VEGETABLES—Trade in vegetables continues very good. All lines are in good request on the part of the public and as stocks are not limited it is easy to supply the demand. With increased arrivals prices are declining more and more. Corn is now obtainable for 7c., but the best quality commands 10c. New green peppers are arriving more freely and the price is lower. Celery is enjoying good sale at 25c. a dozen. Tomatoes are fluctuating more or less, the price asked being anywhere between 35c. and 50c. a box.

FISH—For the season trade is very good. Demand is fair and orders going out are proportionately large. Fresh pickerel and pike are not now obtainable, but frozen stock in these lines is already to hand. Lake trout and whitefish are in fair supply. Fresh haddock and cod continue plentiful and prices are unchanged. Halibut is up one cent this week, as is also Gaspe salmon, while dore has declined. Grass pike is now quoted at 7c. Fresh B. C. salmon, it is said, will be scarce this season. Dealers are at present offering some very good chilled eastern salmon.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—Quite a marked advance has been made this week in oranges and lemons. Very little in late Valencias is offering this week at less than $5.50, and in lemons $6 to $6.50 are the ruling prices. The crops are less than anticipated while the continued hot weather has made the demand very strong. Some fine domestic peaches are on the market now, and while the prices are lower generally the range of quality is so large that it would be impossible to quote grades. As it is they run from 20c. to $1 per basket. Apples are coming in pretty freely, and larger in size, with easier prices. There are still a few red currants at 8½c. per box, and a small quantity of black currants at $1.10 to $1.25 per basket. Blueberries are stronger in price, with few coming in.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are short this week with the prices changing daily. Harvesting is on and farmers have not the time to bring them in. About the same prices as last week prevail. In all other lines the prices are on the downward move, with a good supply coming in. Some nice new silver skin pickling onions are in. They bring from $1 to $1.25 per basket. Green peas are in good demand, with not many coming in.

BACK FROM THE EAST.

James Langskill, president, and W. H. Despard, manager, of White & Company, wholesale fruit and produce dealers, have returned from a trip down through part of the New England States. They made arrangements while there for next season's business, and report a successful trip with a satisfactory outcome. Mr. Despard reports the American crop of apples to be very large this year, which together with good crops in England and France will keep Canadian apples pretty well down in price. The German maximum tax of $1.64 per barrel on foreign apples will also be felt by Canadian shippers, as this practically excludes them from what has been a good market hitherto. Mr. Despard found the weather extremely hot at some eastern points, and was glad to get away from it. One hundred and two in the shade was the mark reached one day in Philadelphia.

MONTREAL FRUIT AUCTION.

Monday of this week at a fruit auction in Montreal a car of peaches sold at 30c. per basket; plums at 60c., and pears at 50c.

A VALUABLE FIND.

The Marine and Fisheries steamer Kestrel, on the Pacific coast service, in a recent trip to the northern British Columbia coast with Prof. Price and other members of the Fishery Commission aboard, discovered a bed of scallops, shellfish similar to oysters, but larger and probably more palatable. The scallops are located at the northern end of Queen Charlotte Sound, a short distance off Tow Hill. The scallops are probably of large commercial value. This kind of shellfish is worth more than oysters, and if the bed proves to be as extensive as it looks on first appearance, it is altogether likely that an important industry may be built up. The beds are fairly sheltered and within about a day and a half run for a steamer from Vancouver.

ANOTHER NEW POTATO.

Messrs. Sutton, of Reading, Eng., are said by scientific cultivation to have produced a new potato, blue of skin with yellow interior, and with quite an individual flavor. Epicures describe it as a combined flavor of turnips and asparagus. The plant will thrive anywhere, the wetter or more marshy the soil the better. It is claimed that its productive power is 50 to 100 per cent. over the ordinary kind.

NOTES.

Twenty tons of strawberries were shipped from Upper Sackville, N. B., this season.

A mammoth potato storage building, 1,500 feet long, and covering four acres of ground, is to be erected at Cape Jellison, a terminus of the Northern Maine Seaport R. R.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., has given a handsome cup of silver, mined, smelted and refined in British Columbia, to be given as a prize for fruit at the Melvin, B.C., exhibition to be held September 19-21.

A representative of a wealthy fish importing house of England is now investigating the fish resources of the British Columbia coast and if favorably impressed the firm will erect a large refrigerating plant on the coast.

J. S. Larke, Canadian commercial agent in Australia, reports that the crop of potatoes in New Zealand is much below what was expected. As a consequence prices have gone up, and in Wellington are quoted at £12 per ton, so that in October there will be a demand at good rates for any surplus Canada can supply.

A lady in Victoria, B.C., has succeeded in cultivating South African gooseberries there. The Cape gooseberry in appearance has a distant resemblance to the tobacco plant. There are no thorns to prick those who would pluck the fruit which is of very uncommon appearance. It is enclosed in an outer husk, about the thickness of tissue paper, that hangs from the branch like a small Japanese lantern. Enclosed in the husk is the fruit itself about the size of a small cherry, but tinged with brown as the husk opens and the fruit ripens. It is delicious in flavor, much resembling the fruit after which it is named. The seeds are almost impalpable and, like the gooseberry, it is a case of one swallow—and finis. Unlike some varieties of the latter mentioned fruit the skin is soft and tender and can be eaten.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

Provide an Appetizer for Confectionery —More Facts About Conversation Lozenges—Old-time Adulterations —Interview with One of the First of Ontario Apprentices

Just as you can stimulate the appetite before meals in ways we wot of, so the live grocer can stimulate demand upon his confectionery department. But first get the department. If it's only a little one, a dandy silent salesman two or three feet wide, it will afford opportunity for a tempting display. A candy department like that would add to the appearance of a nice grocery just the finishing touch it needs, as well as being an aid to business. You know when you have a few friends in to dinner and after the dessert the wife brings in some delicious chocolates and nuts how it tops off the meal and adds lustre to the occasion. You're not very different from other people and the average palate will glow at sight of an array of delicious confectionery.

Try the appeal on the public by a display in the window occasionally.

SOME COCOA FACTS.

A little more than fifty years ago the cacao tree had never been seen in Africa. It was first cultivated on the Island of St. Thomas about 1850. The Islands of St. Thomas and Principe are now producing about 50,000,000 pounds of cacao a year, says the New York Sun, and they sell the crude product for about $6,000,000 to the manufacturers of chocolate and cocoa. A great new industry has arisen in Africa. The Portuguese are very proud of the brilliant history of their industry and call it the greatest material success yet attained in West Africa.

The explorer Chevalier, who has returned from the French colonies, where he studied economic conditions last year for his Government, says that not a white man owns or controls a single cacao grove on the Gold Coast. Every plantation, large or small, is owned by the natives; and although in 1885 not a tree was to be found on the Gold Coast, the African blacks there are now producing about 11,500,000 pounds of cacao a year, worth over $1,000,000. The part which Europeans have thus far taken in the industry has been wholly advisory and commercial. They share in the profits because they buy and ship the raw product.

Cacao is conferring a double blessing on the Gold Coast. It is bringing material well-being to the country, and it is encouraging the natives to work so that each may share in the benefits. The destiny of the cacao tree seems to be to exert an educational and a moral influence while adding to the prosperity of native Africans.

EARLY CONVERSATION LOZENGES.

Following up the article on conversation lozenges in last week's Canadian Grocer, a representative of The Grocer had an interview with Geo. Robertson, Toronto, probably the first man to serve his apprenticeship to the trade in Ontario. He's Scotch, all Scotch, and as he himself said, "I can't help that, and if I could I wouldn't." He came to this country with his parents when a lad. He is a mine of information about the early development of Toronto, but especially in regard to the growth of the manufacturing end of the confectionery trade.

He served his apprenticeship with Dodgson, Shield & Morton, and preserves a testimonial dated November 5, 1864, from the firm, then Dodgson & Shields, to the effect that he was an expert cake maker and confectioner and had been manager of their department six years and four months and they were very sorry to lose him.

Conversation lozenges, he told The Grocer, were not indigenous to Canada. They were European in their origin. The first candy of the kind was made as large medals bearing in relief the portrait of some celebrated personage of the time. On the first conversation lozenge the printing was embossed with boxwood dies which lettered half a dozen at a time and these were afterwards cut singly. Of course the mottoes were few in number and very short, consisting for the most part of such laconic intimations as "I love you" and "Just one kiss." The next improvement in printing was a number of electrotyped mottoes, 18 or 20 fastened to a block. A firm would have possibly six of these each having a different assortment of mottoes. The lozenges were still cut by hand and it was pretty tedious work. An expert man could cut 100 lbs. of ordinary peppermint lozenges a day and only 25 or 30 lbs. of conversation lozenges.

Then machinery came in, and now cutting and printing are done automatically.

An early form of the conversation lozenge was white with a colored back and the makers never thought of printing on anything but plain white. Then as competition became keener the making of two-layer lozenges became too expensive owing to the labor involved, and the practice was adopted of making the whole lozenge of one color and variegating them in that way, mixing them in the proportion of one-third colored to two-thirds white.

In the olden days, ever so long ago, when sugar was 10c. a pound wholesale, conversation lozenges were sometimes adulterated with flour and an even cheaper ingredient.

Terra Alba, or Irish clay, was sometimes used in the cheaper grades. Lozenge dough was originally made of sugar, gum arabic and flavoring. The gum arabic was used solely to give the sugar a footing. When glucose or corn sugar was discovered, it was found to be much cheaper than gum arabic. It was brought originally from France and Mr. Robertson was one of the first to import it into Canada for this purpose.

J. W. Campbell, general merchant, Melbourne, Ont., is moving his stock to Moose Jaw, Alta.

SUGAR IN EGYPT.

Until the year 1881 there were no sugar refining factories in Egypt. The Daira Sanieh mills crushed the sugar cane and extracted the raw sugar, which was either consumed locally in that condition or exported and refined abroad. In 1881 a refining factory was erected at Hawamdieh by the Societe de la Raffinerie and eleven years later, in 1892, another company, called the Societe des Sucreries de la Haute-Egypte, built a second factory at Sheikh Fadl. These two companies amalgamated in 1897 under the title of the Societe Generale des Sucreries et de la Raffinerie d'Egypte. and shortly afterwards constructed the large refinery at Nag Hamadi. The company had by this time extended its system to crushing the cane as well as refining the raw sugar. In 1902 a financial syndicate was formed under the title of the Daira Sugar Corporation, which controlled all the sugar business of Egypt. In 1905 it was engulfed in the failure of MM. Henry Say et Cie. and was ruined. After long litigation reorganization is now in progress, but no one can tell how it will succeed. The opinion prevails that sugar will not be much raised nor manufactured in Egypt hereafter, but that the land will be cultivated for cotton. The natives will raise a little cane near their houses, but only for their own consumption.—Sugar Journal.

War Prices for Tobacco

Same old prices for cigars, same old quality for Pharaoh and Pebble, somebody must suffer. I'm the man.

After Sept. 1st there will be "others," because I will have to suspend all jobbers discounts on Pebble and can allow only 3 per cent cash. discount in place of 5 per cent.

I think about next January all ten cent cigars in the Pharaoh class will advance about $5.00 per M. They should. I have a large stock of Manicaragua Havana on hand, and don't intend to advance the price, but am not making any rash promises.

The phenomenal run on Pebble upset my calculations, used up too much tobacco, now working Manicaragua seconds—the torn and broken leaves—Quality superfine. Cost to manufacture over $3.50 per M. more, worth to-day nearly $7 per M. more.

I am bearing the lion's share because the Pebble trade mark is too valuable to "queer." Quality must be maintained, because two years hence tobacco prices should be right and I will then make profits. In the meantime I think it good business policy if I can break even.

Better accept my 500 assorted order now. Same guarantee as before.

With Pharaoh (10c.) and Pebble (5c.) you win the other fellows customers.

J. Bruce Payne, Limited, Granby, Que.

Rush Orders Often Come

Certain grocers have ways for testing the demand for certain articles, which are not by any means the most profitable ways for themselves.

For instance, a man of 40 comes into the store and says "I'll take a package of T. & B. 10c. size."

Mr. Grocer says, "I don't keep T. & B., but if you like I will get it for you."

"Well, I'm on my way to the shop and, of course, have no 'waiting' time on hand," says Mr. Smoker.

In the afternoon another "pipe" caller practically goes over the same performance, but Mr. Grocer still thinks that by his system of "demand" testing the time isn't ripe for stocking up T. & B.

When by the end of the week the number of enquiries has totalled ten or more and the last one is from no other person than the man of 40 who gave the initial call. Mr. Grocer gets excited, throws his system aside, and wires for T. & B.

Half a mile from "telegram" grocer there resides Tony Suremove, who says nothing but sells tobacco. He never loses a T. & B. customer, never gets rattled. Why, he adopts the simple system of ordering T. & B. regularly.

Who does the moral point at ?

TOBACCO AND CIGARS

A Judge Who Improved Through Smoking—Gather Information—Statistics of Tobacco Manufacture in the United States—Large Increases.

There was a High Court Ontario judge now deceased but of honored memory and still revered by judiciary and bar, of whom it is told that until he learned to smoke he was of a most irascible temper. He was a man of great dignity, proud and quick to anger, and it is small wonder that the gentlemen at the bar held him more in awe than in admiration. Well, one day his doctor advised him to smoke tobacco. He did and the doctor became a benefactor of the legal profession and probably eased the sentence of many a poor malefactor. Anyway, the judge became a most affable gentleman, though he is no way relaxed in dignity.

The man who sells tobacco should take an interest in his wares and be able to interest his customers. To do that he has to dig up a little information himself. He'll find it will return both pleasure and profit.

U. S. TOBACCO MANUFACTURE.

Tobacco manufacture in the United States last year exceeded all previous records. Only cigarettes failed to make a new high mark. The figures are :

Tobacco, lbs.	354,915,499
Cigars, No.	7,174,805,223
Small cigars	895,867,425
Small cigarettes	3,783,276,608
Large cigarettes	9,493,690
Total cigarettes	3,792,770,298
Snuff, lbs.	22,707,539

Tobacco, chewing and smoking, increased 6 per cent., cigars 5 per cent., cigarettes 12 per cent., snuff 7 per cent. The output of cigarettes, while 416,000,000 more than the previous year, was still behind the production of 1896-7. The total receipts of the U. S. Government from tobacco last year were $48,422,997. Since 1863, when the tobacco tax was first imposed, the Government has received $1,504,652,930.

TOBACCO LEAVES.

Jas. Henry has started a cigar factory in Peterboro, Ont.

One day in July seventeen cigar travelers were registered in Berlin.

Andrew Wilson, of Andrew Wilson & Co., Toronto, has returned from a trip abroad.

La Fabrique Moderne is the title of a new firm of cut tobacco manufacturers in Montreal.

The Tobacco Trade Exposition will be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, Sept. 3 to 15.

W. J. Stirton, of Stirton & Dyer, London, has returned from a Northwest trip and reports trade good.

Joe Meyer, representing the wholesale pipe firm of Kaufman Bros. & Bonde, of New York, was in Montreal visiting the trade recently.

There was a slight falling off in the year's output of the London factories as shown in the figures of the Inland Revenue Department.

C. Dillon, formerly in the Windsor Hotel cigar stand, Montreal, is now representing G. Milligan & Co., Toronto, in the Maritime Provinces.

Francis R. Rodriguez is the latest addition of the road staff of Geo. Kelly & Co., London. He will do the ground in Ontario east of Toronto.

The employes of the Tuckett Tobacco Co., Hamilton, Ont., picnicked at the Falls a week ago Saturday. About 500 went in a special T., H. & B. train.

Morris Davis, of the S. Davis & Sons Co., Montreal, has returned from a business trip to the Pacific coast. He says he never saw the west so prosperous before.

C. A. Clark, manager of Adolph Frankau & Co., Montreal, recently visited the trade in Toronto. Mr. Clark has recently returned from a seven weeks business trip to England.

Belgium consumes more tobacco per capita than any other nation, using annually for each inhabitant 6¼ lbs. of the weed. The United States comes second with 5½ lbs., and Canada fifth with 2¾ lbs. for each inhabitant.

W. J. Glenn, manager of the Aylmer Cigar Co., while walking by the gasoline engine, which was running full speed, slipped and fell against the flywheel, which threw him with great force against the partition, severely injuring him.

The second anniversary of the organization of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Protective Association, formed for the purpose of securing better prices for tobacco raised in the Dark district of Kentucky and Tennessee, will be observed at Guthrie, Ky., on September 22 with a monster barbecue. Preparations are now being made to entertain 25,000 people.

Michael Hirsch, of J. Hirsch, Sons & Co., Montreal, recently made an extended tour of the west. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hirsch and the firm's representative, J. B. Morris. All the important business centres from Port Arthur to Victoria were visited. Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch returned by the American route, taking in the principal cities from Seattle to Chicago, including Los Angeles and San Francisco.

SOME INTERESTING PIPES.

At the tobacco exposition in New York next month Wm. Denneth & Co. will have a notable display of pipes. The $5,000 meerschaum pipe awarded a gold medal at the Chicago World's Fair will occupy a prominent position. The carving upon this pipe represents the landing of Christopher Columbus on American shores. There are forty different figures in the group, each perfect in the minutest details, and comprising weeks of work of the patient carver.

Another remarkable pipe will be one carved from the largest solid piece of amber ever mined, representing the head of a Texas steer. This pipe is valued at $3,000.

There will also be a group of meerschaum pipes, the heads carved to represent every president of the United States from Washington to Roosevelt. Another feature will be an exhibit of crude amber and meerschaum.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

Article IV—By Howard R. Wellington

A RETAIL MERCHANT'S ACCOUNTS AND RECORDS.

Customers of retail stores nowadays usually require an itemized invoice or memorandum of the goods purchased in each transaction in addition to an itemized account monthly, thus differing from the wholesale and retail transactions, where an invoice is sent after the goods and then a statement giving dates of purchase and amounts only.

In order to oblige the customer of the retail store it is advisable to post to the ledger direct from the sales ticket the items in detail, which, in turn, are rendered monthly on statements.

The amounts paid on account and credit for returns may be posted in red ink to guard against the possibility of posting the debits in the credit column or the credits in the debit column.

In order that there may be no delay in sending out the statements on the first of each month, the statements may be commenced early in the month for the first of the next month and entered up as soon as the posting is done to the ledger, the ledger folio being placed at the top of the statement. If the ledger accounts are arranged alphabetically as much as possible, a few extra leaves being left open after each letter, the statements will run alphabetically and also according to account folio, making reference and additional posting much easier. If time permits, the balance on the statement may be compared with the corresponding balance in the ledger account, and any existing error detected at once.

There is a tendency among retail merchants in their desire to sell goods, to overlook, to some extent at least, the necessity of recording their daily transactions in such a way that their accounts may be rendered promptly and collections helped thereby. In order to save re-writing the full details of each sale in the ledger and posting again to the monthly statement, the following plan might work out to advantage in a small business, although attaching the triplicate bills mentioned might prove a little cumbersome where a large number of sales were made to any one customer.

The salesman taking the order should use a duplicate cash, sale or charge book, giving the customer the original copy, or, if the goods are delivered by a driver, send the original to the customer with the goods. The total amount of the sale may then be posted direct from the sale book to the customer's account in the ledger and the totals of the sale for the day, week or month recapitulated from the same book, the grand total being posted to the credit of "Sales" account or "Merchandise" account, whichever account has been opened.

When rendering monthly statements to the customers, it should only be necessary to enter on statement the date and amount of purchase, as the customer has already the original bill of goods with which to check his statements.

The retail merchant does not demand from his wholesale house a statement of the goods in detail each month, and if the customer of the retail merchant preserves the original bill sent with the goods, an itemized account would be unnecessary. If, however, it was found that too many requests were being made for the complete statement of goods purchased during the month, a triplicate bill could be made by the salesman who originally took the order, and these bills would be filed alphabetically in the same order as the monthly statements until required at the end of each month.

Another method which was hinted at in a previous article is to use the duplicate cash sale and charge books, posting the charge sales direct to a statement-invoice form, which is inserted for this purpose opposite the ledger sheet in a loose leaf binder. This form is made in duplicate, the original being sent to the customer on the first of each month, the duplicate remaining in the ledger binder as a complete detailed record of each sale.

A DOUBLE PROFIT

Royal Baking Powder Pays a Greater Profit to the Grocer Than any Other Baking Powder He Sells.

Profit means real money in the bank. It does not mean "percentage," which may represent very little actual money. A grocer often has the chance to sell either:

1. A baking powder for 45c. a pound and make a profit of 5c. or 6c., or,
2. A baking powder for 10c. a pound and make "20 per cent profit," which means only 2c. actual money. Which choice should you take?

Royal Baking Powder makes the customer satisfied and pleased, not only with the baking powder, but also with the flour, butter, eggs, etc., which the grocer sells.

This satisfaction of the customer is the foundation of the best and surest profit in business—it is permanent. Do not take the risk of selling a cheap alum baking powder; some day the customer may find out about the alum, and then your best profit in the customer's confidence is gone.

Royal Baking Powder pays greater profits to the grocer than any other baking powder he sells.

ACME CAN PICNIC.

Employes of the Montreal Factory Have a Pleasant Outing.

The first annual picnic of the employes of the Acme Can Works, Montreal, was held at Electric Park, Sault au Recollet, last Saturday afternoon. There were in attendance some three hundred employes and friends. Everyone enjoyed the outing, which lasted from 8.30 in the morning till 7 in the evening. The several committees did their work well and everything was run off in a most satisfactory manner. There were present several representatives of different manufacturing and business enterprises in Montreal.

President Jas. B. Campbell and Vice-President Wm. Pratt, of the Acme Can Works, were both in attendance and helped out the employes, having a good word for everybody.

Dancing occupied more or less time, while the sports supplied were quite interesting. The results follow :

Boys' race, 8 years and under — L. Tison, C. Orchard, D. Campbell, J. Orchard.

Girls' race, 8 years and under—Maggie Stewart, E. Page.

Boys' race, 15 years and under—Geo. Williams, E. St. Pierre, W. Deslauriers.

TO BUILD UP MONTREAL.

Manufacturers and Business Men Will Lay Their Heads Together.

The executive committee of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held their monthly meeting for August on Thursday last week. Hon. J. D. Rolland was nominated for first vice-president of the association. Nominations for that office will close September 3, the elections taking place in September in Winnipeg, where the convention will be held.

Seizure of employes' wages was a matter which came in for much dicussion. The present law is not sufficiently protective. A change was suggested by the executive whereby the court should have the power to summon the debtor, and after taking down his statement, decide how much he should have to pay each week or each month, and tax him accordingly. In this way those who contracted debts through sickness or other such causes would be, to a certain extent, relieved.

The matter of inducing manufacturing concerns and other business enterprises to settle in Montreal was brought up, and a special committee was appointed to take the matter up with the Montreal Business Men's League. At the present time the difficulty in obtaining a site has prevented many concerns settling in Montreal. It is hoped that some arrangements may be made by these two bodies which will help the city in this way.

Three vacancies in the Montreal executive were filled by the election of William Cauldwell, S. J. Joubert and J. H. Sherrard.

Twenty-seven representatives were elected to the central executive, as follows : D. J. Fraser, St. Johns ; J. H. Burland, J. C. Casavant, St. Hyacinthe ; Louis Simpson, Valleyfield ; John J. McGill, Fred Birks, Wm. Bradley, S. S. Boxer, C. W. Davis, James Redmond, Wm. McMaster, J. R. Kinghorn, E. W. Parker, Wm. Smaill, John M. H. Robertson, W. T. Whitehead, F. H. Wilson, Wm. Cauldwell, J. H. Sherrard, F. W. Fairman, P. Hamill, R. C. Williams, R. J. Younge, Jos. Horsfall, E. Tougas, Jas. Davidson, T. Esmond Peck, Montreal.

A NEW PICKLE JAR.

The Ozo Company, Montreal, have placed on the market a new style of patent pickle jar of stone. These jars, which run in size from 1 quart to 10 gallons, are provided with a new style self-sealing air-tight lid. The jars are lacquered and acid-proof. They bear the trade mark of the Ozo Co. in handsome design. The 2, 3, 5 and 10 gallon sizes are supplied to customers for their use and convenience and remain the property of the Ozo Co., who see that the contents are supplied fresh, or the jar returned and exchanged for others when empty. These jars since their introduction have met with splendid reception by the grocery trade, as they are a most desirable as well as hygienically necessary article for every grocer.

BUILDING

To erect a good firm edifice there must be good material and good workmen, expert men to plan and faithful men to execute.

In building up trade similar conditions must obtain if the business is to be permanent.

There are two plans to follow in the Coffee line. One is to try to build up with characterless, haphazard goods, which fails.

But to assure success, respect, confidence, and a hearty, healthy growth in your business, try the other, with the splendid material found in Merchants should recommend food products that are produced in clean factories.

From the "Elgin Sun," West Lorne, July 26th

A Visit to the Canning Factory

One of West Lorne's Leading Industries
A Busy Place at Present

After reading "The Jungle," by Sinclair, and other articles regarding the packing houses of Chicago, and other factories both in this country and the Old Land, the Sun scribe decided to visit the local canning factory and see how the choice brands of canned goods which we always use are put up.

We dropped in unawares without a pass and ran across Mr. Jas. A. Fuller, the manager, and informed him that we would very much like to see through the factory while it was in full operation, if it was not against the "by-laws and constitution." Another sign we noticed was "QUALITY AND CLEANLINESS OUR MOTTO," tacked up throughout the factory, and we must say THE MANAGEMENT LIVE UP TO THIS MOTTO. WE VISITED THE FACTORY ABOUT 4 P.M. AFTER IT HAD BEEN IN OPERATION ALL DAY AND ITS CONDITION AS TO CLEANLINESS WAS EXCELLENT. A plentiful supply of hot and cold water, wash basins, soap and towels for the employes was also noticed.

The new machinery installed has done away with two-thirds the hands formerly required in handling peas, and to a certain extent has done away with many hands formerly needed in packing other goods. The peas are pulled or cut and vines and all hauled to the factory where they are threshed and cleaned in one machine, after which the peas are weighed, the producer being paid by the pound for them, then he loads up his wagon with the vines and pods and hauls them home for his cattle and hogs.

The peas from the thresher run into boxes; these boxes are placed on an endless chain which takes them upstairs, where they are put through a suction cleaner. They are then run downstairs into a grader where they are further cleaned and divided into three grades or sizes by means of sieves. They are then placed on a table and hand-picked by girls, after which they are washed in cold water, then placed in a blanching tank of scalding water, after which they are put through a washer containing cold water, run into cans and these cans placed in a brine tank, then taken to the capping table where they are capped and the trays containing them are placed in the retort where the peas are thoroughly cooked.

After being taken from the retort they are placed in a cooling tank filled with cold water. This tank is sixty feet long with an endless chain which carries the trays containing the cans through the water out into the cooling room. The cooling room is an open place where the cans remain exposed to the air for a time, after which they are placed in cases and conveyed to the warehouse, where the cases are piled on their side and left several days before labelling, in order that any leaks may be discovered.

The company are also putting up large quantities of string beans this season, but at time of the scribe's visit on Friday were only working on peas.

It takes from twenty to thirty minutes for a producer to get a large load of peas threshed and the straw loaded on his wagon again.

Some idea may be conceived of the difference new machinery has made in the factory when it formerly handled in the neighborhood of two hundred acres of corn, whereas it will this season handle in the neighborhood of five hundred acres of corn with less hands than formerly required.

In ordering Canned Goods it will pay you to stick to the brands as follows:—
"CANADA FIRST," "AUTO," "LITTLE CHIEF," "LOG CABIN," "HORSESHOE," "KENT," "LYNNVALLEY," "MAPLE LEAF," "LION," "GRAND RIVER," "WHITE ROSE, etc.

CANADA'S PRIDE

SEASON 1906

We have now fully equipped our factory with all latest machinery, making it modern and up-to-date and will pack a full line of FRUITS and VEGETABLES. We are situated in one of the best districts for producing a fine flavor, which was fully demonstrated by our pack of last year.

We would specially call your attention to our system of naming the different grades of peas, as on the label of each can is shown the exact size of the contents; the different grades being known as Nos. 1, 2, 3, which assures the consumers of getting exactly, what they are buying, instead of the great variety of names now employed, which no one understands. We respectfully ask that you give our goods a trial and allow the consumer to be the judge, ASSURING you we will pack, only, a HIGH-GRADE QUALITY, which will create a demand. Remember the brand "Canada's Pride," the best yet.

TO MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS

DEAR SIRS,—

IF you are not already represented in the West, write us. Do not put it off till to-morrow. Western Canada is to-day the talk of all large progressive Eastern manufacturers. Get busy, and communicate with us at once. It does not matter how small or how large your line is—give your account to us —and watch your Western business grow. We are representing some of the best manufacturers in Canada, United States and Europe. BUT we are not too busy to look after your interests too. We are at all times in touch with the Wholesale grocers at Winnipeg (9), Kenora (3), Brandon (1), Lethbridge (1), Calgary (5), Edmonton (2). We have special facilities for storing and distributing goods of all kinds. Write us for our rates.

Firms in Great Britain or Europe when in the market for Rolled Oats, Oatmeal, or Mill Feed, write us for c.i.f. prices any point.

Fruit, a Short Crop This Year

Jams Will Be a Good Seller

It was difficult for us even to get fruit this year, but we are now finishing putting away a good big share of the best berries and fruits that came to Montreal this summer.

The enormous increase in population this year means that all these people will have to rely almost altogether on the grocers for their foodstuffs, and taking it into consideration that house-keepers have not been able to get fruits to do their own preserving the demand for a good line of Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, etc., wiil be ten times bigger than ever before. We think we have provided for this demand in the best way possible. We have secured from one of the best known English houses their head jam maker and placed him in charge of this department in our factory, and we know that, price for price, we can turn out better goods than any other makers in Canada.

As we were early advised of the shortage of berries, our men bought right and left. This gave us a good stock, but we would advise everyone to book their orders as soon as possible as prices are advancing fast.

We have a large assortment of packages in glass, running up to 7 lbs., 14 lbs., 30 lbs.; and barrels and pails for confectioners in any size.

Send us an order for Standard Brand Jam in 7-lb. pails (6 to crate), at 5½c. per lb., and we will send you something that will please you. We know by testing that it contains from 15 to 20 per cent. more fruit than any other make at the price, and as we bought sugar pretty cheap there is very little glucose in it, and absolutely no chemical preservative. The goods will show a good profit and prove fast and satisfactory sellers.

DO IT NOW.

THE OZO COMPANY, Limited, - MONTREAL

"Relief in Sight"

It is a matter of common remark among some grocers that serious inroads are constantly being made into their Tea selling possibilities by peddlers.

Did it ever occur to you that this condition of affairs can only last so long as you are prepared to allow it.

You have the indisputable remedy in your own hands—then why not apply it.

"SALADA" is your best friend and safeguard for the reason that it leaves you a good margin of "protected" profit.

It has an enormous sale and is of good repute.

It is never sold by peddlers or jobbers.

No firm, company or corporation in existence has ever succeeded in matching the quality and value.

Stock up and push sales with a vim and you will be surprised at the result.

Instruct your clerks and use your own personal endeavors to get every person that visits your store to try a packet ——1-lb., ½-lb., ¼-lb. or 2-oz.——any size to give it a trial.

Tell your customers that you are authorized by us to guarantee the greatest satisfaction or money will be refunded in full. No "buts" or "ifs" but in full.

Handle it with faith and sincerity and we will undertake to say that where you sold 10 lbs. in the past you will sell 100 lbs. in the future. We have many living examples of this doctrine all over the country, and you will never hear these men complaining of "Peddler" conditions.

They have applied the remedy and are reaping the benefit.

A postal enquiry and our experience will be at your service. Address, "SALADA," Toronto, Montreal

Quaker Sugar and Cream Corn

This is a line that every progressive grocer should get next to. It is packed from the finest Maine seed, with the ears all selected, with the cans well filled with corn and not with watery juice. We believe there is a future for an article of this class among the trade. There is corn and corn. No line of canned goods varies so much in quality as corn. Our Quaker Sugar and Cream Corn is not only a really high class article, something in which the Goods are not only tip-top but a line that can always be depended upon for high and uniform quality. The reputation of the Quaker is behind these assertions. While the contents of a can are of more importance than the outside, it may not be amiss to say that these goods are sent out in very handsome embossed wrappers, far superior to anything we have yet seen from our competitors.

The Packers of Quaker Canned Goods

IN BUSINESS TO STAY

That being the case, it is the best policy as well as common honesty to supply your customers with goods that satisfy, that give them confidence in you, that make them your friends as well as neighbors.

Let the man around the corner, who will be around some other corner six months hence, take his chances on inferior canned goods.

If you buy and sell

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND CANNED GOODS

you will never disappoint one of your patrons. You will find your reputation for selling only the best growing steadily. You will find your general trade keeping pace with the increase in your canned goods department.

We make this claim because we know Old Homestead Canned Goods are as perfect as absolutely fresh fruits and vegetables can be made when processed by the most modern and approved manner.

DO NOT FORGET OUR HANDSOME LABELS.
THEY HELP A LOT WITH FIRST SALES.

PRESERVATIVES AND PURE FOOD

Letter to The Canadian Grocer by New York food expert—Ptomaine Poisoning—Consumers Must be Particular—Some Suggestions for Healthful Living.

H. H. Langdon, food expert, New York, writes to The Canadian Grocer as follows :

I perused an article in your esteemed issue of August 3 headed "An Analysis of Meats." It is pleasing, I assure you, to learn that out of 322 samples of canned meats only four showed signs of decomposition, and that boric acid was the only preservative of which traces were found, and that it did not exceed the quantity fixed by the English Parliamentary Committee. The pure food wave that is passing over the country will certainly do a vast amount of good. The adulteration of food is practiced to such a large extent that it is absolutely necessary to place some curb on manufacturers who are flooding the market with cheap, adulterated foods.

Labels Should be Studied.

The new law (United States) will compel true labels on all articles of preserved food. If the public, however, do not pay heed to the labels, of what value will they be ? The public must be taught that there is no economy in cheap foods which have been adulterated with some inferior substance that would lessen the food value.

The preservation of food, however, should not be considered adulteration as the preservative is used to prevent the article from deteriorating. It is not the ordinarily preserved food that injures the consumer, it is food that has not been preserved that is in condition for the propogation of toxic germs which are a great menace to life. Those who advocate dispensing with mild preservatives do not realize the danger which lurks in food that is not preserved.

Ptomaine Poisoning.

Many varieties of micro-organisms produce poisonous ptomaines. After they are once produced they are not easily destroyed. The putrifactive organisms which produce ptomaine poison in such articles as canned meats, fish, fresh pork, head cheese and other animal matter, both raw and cooked, are very dangerous to human life. A peculiar feature of ptomaine poison is that it cannot be detected by sight, taste or smell. The cause of ptomaine poison can be traced to the lack of facilities for preventing the development of toxic germs. Meats, fish or fowl that are sprinkled with borax or boric acid are kept in a clean, healthful condition which prevents the formation and propogation of toxic germs.

The Senate, recognizing the value of mild preservatives, accepted an amendment which will allow borax or boric acid on any article of food from which it can be removed by maceration in water prior to consumption. Preservatives of a penetrating nature could not be removed in this manner.

It is an erroneous supposition to think that preservatives could be used to convert a tainted piece of meat into a sweet, edible condition.

Laws should be enacted and enforced so as to protect the unwary consumer. Our new pure food law will not be of much value to the masses until the various state laws are amended so as to conform with the national law.

Hints for All Mankind.

The spices and condiments that are used have comparatively no food value and they are partaken of to momentarily satisfy the palate (which has been educated to crave such articles), to the detriment of the digestive organs.

The question of eating is a very serious one. It is not so much, however, what we eat as it is how we eat. Food must be assimilated to be beneficial ; our rations should be balanced ; our diet should be varied. Thorough mastication is absolutely necessary to prepare food for the stomach. When persons bolt their food and wash it down with liquids they are candidates for the dyspeptic brigade.

We can live without food for thirty days or more, we can live without water for about seven days, we cannot live without air, however, for five minutes. Consequently, as much or more attention should be paid to our water and air supplies as there is to our food. There should be vigilant inspections of school rooms, factories, public buildings, etc., to insure perfect ventilation.

We spend about one-third of our lives in bed. We must breathe regularly, however, during our sojourn in slumberland, and if we breathe pure air all night, we will certainly arise in the morning greatly refreshed.

We have power within ourselves to be moderate in all things and if we exercise this power, we will enjoy life as the Creator intended we should.

FISH TRADE DEVELOPMENT.

What the Atlantic Fish Co. are Doing —Fast Increasing Trade.

The Grocer has for years past endeavored to bring the importance of our Atlantic fisheries prominently before the trade of Central and Western Canada and has published many interesting and valuable facts bearing on this industry. When it is considered that the annual business totals something like $29,000,000 it will be realized how important a factor this is in the trade returns of the Dominion. To adequately realize the work and financial outlay necessary to the marketing of this enormous business an actual trip over the fishing grounds and the various drying and curing establishment is necessary, and a close study of the situation all-important. Several such trips have in the past been undertaken by representatives of The Grocer and the results published.

During the past week the Montreal representative of The Grocer had an interview with two of the most prominent gentlemen engaged in the Atlantic fisheries, Wm. Duff, managing director of the Atlantic Fish Co., Lunenburg, N.S., and E. C. Whitman, of Canso, N.S. Both of these gentlemen are men whose life study has been the fisheries of the Atlantic, and since the amalgamation of their respective businesses and the purchasing of other large fish concerns they have launched out upon a campaign of drawing the attention of the trade and the consuming public of Central and Western Canada to the merits of eastern fish. That they will succeed, the plans adopted by them in their campaign will undoubtedly demonstrate, as nothing has been left unthought of that will conduce to this result.

Mr. Whitman, in speaking to The Grocer and referring to the curing and packing plant of the Whitman Fish Co., Canso, said :

"Our plant at Canso is now the most perfect and complete that modern methods can demand, and with our newly erected large refrigerating house we are in a position to prepare our products in a manner that must appeal to all lovers of fish. We prepare, among others, kippered herring of the Aberdeen Awa' and Atlantic brands, fresh mackerel, deep sea lobsters, and in the frozen fish line, haddock, halibut, mackerel, salmon and herring. The Canso salt herring, formerly commanding a large sale, will be placed upon the market in such perfect condition that we anticipate a prompt revival of the trade, and I feel sure that the package we are placing upon the market will command the admiration of the consumer and the support of the trade."

In speaking of the Labrador herring trade Mr. Duff stated that his company had purchased large fishing rights at Bay of Islands, on the Labrador coast, and erected there one of the best fishing plants on the Atlantic coast. Mr. Duff said :

"We have fitted up wharves and buildings on a scale to handle a very large quantity of herring. To insure proper handling and regularity in fish we have built large air-tight vats with a storage capacity of from 2,500 to 5,000 barrels. We are guaranteeing regularity and quality of all our pack and this we can do on account of having overcome the one great fault of former years and shippers, the great trouble of rusty fish. This question of rusty fish, as all dealers know, has been a serious one for many years, and was the cause of declining trade. Our 'pickle-tight' barrel, if I may so describe it, is an air-tight package bound with galvanized iron hoops and will insure fish arriving at destination in perfect condition. I have just returned from the United States markets and am pleased to state that our prospects for business are exceptionally good, but (and this was said with a patriotic vigor) we will look after our Canadian trade first and that is why Mr. Whitman and myself are visiting the Montreal and Toronto and western trade and supplying the trade here. Our success in calling upon the local trade with our representative, A. H. Brittain, has shown us that the business is here and our success has been most satisfactory. The impression prevailing last season that herring were scarce is an erroneous one ; the fact is that the greater portion of Labrador herring was shipped to the United States at very much higher prices. With the improved conditions prevailing and our facilities for securing, storing, handling and shipping fish, I anticipate a very large Canadian trade this year. Besides our herring trade, greater efforts than before will be made to insure a good and excellent supply of our Halifax and Acadia brands of boneless codfish, and Duff's boneless herring in packages."

Messrs. Duff and Whitman left for Toronto, where a branch office similar to the Montreal branch will be opened. H. G. Connor, who has been for some time with the Atlantic Fish Co., is being sent to Winnipeg to open up a western branch.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—
Sugar—Advanced 10c.
Fish—Revised.

Montreal, August 22, 1906.

An advance of ten cents all along the line in sugar is the feature of the grocery market this week. It may safely be said that the advance came as a surprise to most in the trade. While a few weeks ago an advance was momentarily expected, it did not materialize and the trade concluded that it was not likely to take place. Under the advance the market is very strong. Canned goods are interesting at present. There are the usual rumors and prophesies regarding the new crops and prices.

Tomatoes are being eagerly discussed, as are also the high prices on salmon. Tea presents no new features this week. Japans continue very scarce. In foreign dried fruits the most interesting line is seeded raisins. The block of cars on the Pacific Coast is causing much trouble to packers. First shipment of figs from Smyrna to Canada will reach here the beginning of October. In coffee there is still heard more or less discussion on the new scheme of the Brazilian Government, but the market is unchanged. Spices are quiet.

Collections have been very good during the week.

CANNED GOODS—At the present moment the canned goods market possesses considerable of interest to the grocer. The many rumors afloat as to probabilities for tomatoes for the coming season; the price of salmon, as well as new prices for corn and other lines, all command more or less attention. A large Montreal jobber this week showed The Grocer a letter just received from the centre of the tomato-growing district in Ontario. The writer stated, among other things, that while two weeks ago 100 per cent. tomatoes were in sight, this week only 50 per cent. were to be seen. He attributed the cause to the continued warm weather. Temperature in that district had been for the past two weeks from 80 to 90 degrees in the shade, and as a result the tomatoes were all ripening at once, while, for lack of rains, they were not growing. This, however, is but one view of the situation in one district, and it is not necessary to consider this as being representative of the tomato-growing districts generally. It is hardly likely, however, that the yield this season will be more than medium to good—time only will tell. High prices in salmon are not viewed with favor, naturally, and it is thought that the new prices will have a depressing effect on trade throughout the country. Stocks being limited to a great extent, however, it is hardly likely that there will be any trouble in disposing of all obtainable. Peas have not been going very well under the new prices, demand being small. New prices on other lines are anxiously waited for by the trade.

SUGAR—Since last report an advance of ten cents has taken place in sugar. By most in the trade it was quite unexpected and few were covered. Owing to the very strong market in other centres, one in particular, it was thought some few weeks ago that the Montreal market would shortly advance, but contrary to expectations it remained steady, although the trade continued to look for a rise up to a couple of weeks ago, when most came to the conclusion that the local market was destined to remain unchanged so far as prices were concerned for the time being. Consequently few were prepared for the higher prices. Trade is still very good.

TEA—Since last week there has been little change in the tea situation. Japans continue very strong. Prices are high and teas cannot be obtained. A Montreal tea house reports having cabled for a lot at ruling market price and being refused, the answer being to the effect that there were no teas obtainable. The present state of the Japan tea market is just what was expected three or four weeks ago and earlier, as was stated in The Grocer. Teas are so scarce as to be almost impossible to obtain and prices are high. Low grade Indian and Ceylon teas are cheap, but these seem to be the only lines obtainable under big money. The primary markets do not present any particular features. Reports received from Ceylon contain no news of particular interest.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Probably the most interesting feature of the market is the seeded raisin situation as it stands at present. Both Valencia and seeded raisins are scarce; the market is bare and will be until the new fruits arrive. When this will be it is difficult to determine. As a result of the San Francisco earthquake there is a railroad block on the coast which will delay deliveries of California fruits considerably. It is estimated that no less than eight thousand cars are tied up along the railroad. These cars cannot be unloaded because there is no place to store the raisins. Because of the same railroad block there is a scarcity of boxes, according to packers, which is another difficulty. The Malaga crop is two weeks later this [illegible] and deliveries will be delayed somewhat in consequence. Advices have been received stating that the first shipment of new crop figs to Canada will be made from Smyrna September 8, due here about October 5.

Toronto, August 23, 1906.

Hope deferred took the trade by surprise in the matter of the sugar advance on Saturday. It had been so long delayed that the feeling prevailed that it was not coming. The result has been a pretty heavy movement this week, in some experiences the heaviest ever recorded. As one trader put it, "The firm market, the fruit season and the advance combined to further the movement."

Generally business is very good, with quiet spots. One wholesale grocer when asked what lines were moving most freely replied cereals and fly paperi and when the reporter laughed he said: "That is right. The demand for fly paper is remarkable." This market is about bare of dried fruits and prices are so high on the new crop that wholesalers are holding off or buying very sparingly. The salmon situation is interesting and high prices are now assured by a very small pack. Canned fruits and vegetables are being quite cleaned up ahead of the new pack.

CANNED GOODS — No new prices have been issued since a week ago, but to prevent confusion the lines in the appended quotations on which new prices have been issued have been separated from those which are still last year's pack.

Canned apples are very scarce. Some jobbers are out and there are no more to be had. It will be a couple of months before the new pack is in. Peaches also are very scarce. A jobber stated this week that all lines of canned goods were being cleaned up in a most remarkable manner.

SUGAR—The advance of 10c. on Saturday came as a surprise to the trade here and stimulated the already heavy movement of the staple consequent upon the fruit season and a firm market.

The raw market continues to advance. The European quotation on beet, which at the end of the week had advanced to 9s. 2½d. f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 3.91c. duty paid New York for centrifugals, 96 degrees test, and 2.56c. cost and freight for Cuban centrifugals, 96 degrees test, shipment to New York, advanced on Monday to 9s. 2d., equal to 3.92c. duty paid New York, and about 2.57c. for Cuba sugars basis 96 degrees test for shipment to New York. Other positions were: September, 8s. 9¾d.; January-March, 9s. 11d.; May, 9s. 0½d. New York prices advanced and one refiner on Monday paid 3 7/8c. basis 95 degrees for 11,000 bags of Cubas out of store, equal to 3.94c. duty paid basis 96 degrees. An advance of 10 points on refined is looked for at New York, where granulated is now quoted at 8.40c. less 1 per cent. cash.

Willett & Gray say: "It seems to be evident that the American refiners will be unable to obtain sufficient cane sugars in season, to keep them fully supplied until the new Cuba crop comes to market, consequently they are likely to make further moderate purchases of beet in Europe, but not of necessity immediately. The course of the European markets will, therefore, have an important influence on prices here for several months."

TEA—Nothing has occurred to ruffle the course of the tea trade locally. Abroad the situation is unchanged, choice goods high in price and inferior goods plentiful.

COFFEE—The coffee market is quiet. Willett & Gray, who say the situation is sound and advancing, say of the valorization law:

"The Brazil valorization law is on the statute books. The Government is actively arranging the necessary formalities to put it into operation. Of this no doubt exists, and the determination of the authorities is beyond question. These are the cold facts. Discussions between economists and financial writers may develop theoretic ideas as to the far off results of this new protection law of Brazil, but the coffee markets are concerned in the conditions as they are now and for the near future.

"Brazil has a crop of coffee which the world must buy. Knowing the urgent necessities of consuming markets and the long continued bear depression and manipulation against the price of her principal product, Brazil had to defend herself. She knows that the actual consumer pays to-day the same prices for coffee as when the green was selling at double the present figures.

"The waiting attitude of the coffee markets may be ascribed to a meagre knowledge of the plan of operation of the valorization law or skepticism from disappointment or ignorance. Brazil continues the law prohibiting new planting. Other countries cannot profit by Brazil's valorization law owing to the poverty of planters from the long period of ruinous prices. There are no surplus stocks in any producing country, outside of this crop in Brazil. Stocks in America and Europe have been very considerably reduced. The advent of valorization in Brazil is well timed. The outlook for the growing crops alone may soon prove possible to outdo the effect of valorization—nature may create a greater benefit than legislation to the underpaid planter."

DRIED FRUITS—Stocks of Valencias and currants are getting into very small compass and the entire dried fruit market is pretty well cleaned up. New crops will arrive in October but as yet jobbers are buying gingerly if at all, hoping for a recession from the present high prices. Currants are almost certain to be higher. Some light purchases of new stock made cannot be disposed of at present quotations. A report from Denia states that the crop of Valencias will be fifteen to twenty thousand boxes less than last year.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., August 21, 1906.

There is a general complaint regarding the scarcity of smoked meats and corned pork on the local markets. All pork products are unusually high and the dealers find difficulty in procuring sufficient pork, hams and bacon to supply their customers. Nearly all of the best stock has been cleaned up. Jobbers find it difficult to reach a conclusion as to the condition of the market Whether it is that the consumption is greater, or that the farmers are not raising as much pork as heretofore, are questions which cannot be decided off hand, but many are inclined to the opinion that the former is the cause.

Business is satisfactory all around, and good orders from outside points continue to come in. Prices are very steady. American beef has advanced 50 cents per barrel. Sugar is firm, the advance looked for not having as yet gone into effect. Sugar is now cheaper in the local markets than on the American market.

EGGS AND BUTTER—The demand for eggs is light at present and the supply is limited. The receipts of Nova Scotia eggs is only fair and some of the stock marketed is far from first-class. One dealer informed me during the week that all the eggs he had in stock would have to be candled, as he could not guarantee them. About 18 cents is the average price quoted.

With the decrease in the receipts the price of butter has been advanced. Creamery prints are quoted at 24 cents for the best and creamery solids at 23 cents The factories are not making as much butter now. Small tubs of good dairy butter are quoted at 20 cents.

FRUIT—There is plenty of good fruit on the market and the price is easing off a little, pears having dropped 50 cents a box Eastern American pears are now coming on the market, which lessens the demand for the California fruit to some extent, as it is cheaper. Nova Scotia apples are also coming in. The quality of the first varieties is very poor, but they are readily bought up, principally for cooking purposes. Tomatoes have also taken a big drop, ten pound baskets now selling at 50 cents.

FISH—The fish markets are showing greater activity and the dealers are stocking up. The receipts of fish during the week were quite heavy and include the following: Schr. Hazel, from North Bay, 575 qtts., green fish; Schr. Kasaja, Banks. 550 qtts. fish; Schr. Maggie Ball, St. Margaret Bay, 350 barrels pickled mackerel; Schr. La France, Bay of Islands, 762 barrels herring, 260 qtts dry fish, 10 barrels salmon, 16 cases lobsters five barrels caplin; Schr. Effie May, 180 barrels of pickled mackerel, and 150 qtts. cod; Str. Defiance, Chester, 100 barrels pickled mackerel; Schr. Ella May, 50 qtts. hake and five barrels of pickled mackerel; Schr. Electro, Banks, 1,000 qtts. cod. In addition to the above, one dealer received 5,000 pounds of fresh halibut. The receipts of fresh cod and haddock were also quite heavy. Prices are steady. There is a good demand for pickled mackerel and also for fresh mackerel.

Since last report the schooner Sirocco from Havana has landed here 1,000 barrels of molasses for the Dominion Molasses Co. The steamer Kathinka landed 800 packages of sugar and the steamer Oruro, from the West Indies, 5,000 packages of sugar.

G. H. Vroom, the fruit inspector for Nova Scotia, gives the following statistics of apple shipments from Maritime ports: The total shipments of apples of the crop of 1905 from St. John and Halifax amounted to 345,230 barrels, 178 half barrels and 3,013 boxes. Of these 15,000 barrels were grown in Ontario; 700 were from New Brunswick orchards; 5,000 were cider apples sent from the Annapolis Valley. Deducting these and adding 1,093 barrels for the contents of half barrels and boxes, the total foreign shipments were 325,623 barrels. To this should be added about 60,000 barrels disposed of in markets on this side of the Atlantic. Of the foreign shipments 29,366 barrels went to Liverpool, 1,482 to Glasgow, 3,814 boxes to South Africa. The shipments from Halifax were 321,576 barrels, and from St. John 23,654 barrels.

MAKES LIFE BRIGHTER.

Minto Bros., proprietors of Melagama tea, "mother's favorite," are giving away to grocers something that "makes life brighter." That's the motto that goes with it. It's not a sunbeam or an electric light, but a simple contrivance for making instantaneous photographs. Send and get one.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

W. P. Downey, Montreal, has returned from a few days holidaying at Old Orchard Beach.

John Cameron, general manager of Perkins, Ince & Co.'s branch, Peterboro, has just returned after spending a few weeks vacation at his cottage, Stoney Lake, and is looking the very best.

The lemon market appears to know no bounds this season. The higher prices predicted a few weeks ago have faded away and it is now a case of "get the lemons at any price." No new Messina lemons can reach us before October 25 and with practically no fresh supplies in sight till that time, the future will see the high water mark on lemons for many seasons unless the weather should turn cooler suddenly.

S. H. P. MacKenzie, manager of H. P. Eckardt & Co.'s sample room, is spending his holidays in Muskoka.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gillett, of Chicago, arrived in Toronto Wednesday afternoon of last week in their handsome Panhard touring car, having made the trip from New York via the White Mountains, Ogdensburg and Prescott. After spending a week in Toronto they left for Chicago in their big French machine. Mr. Gillett is the president of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, and is a motoring enthusiast. His auto of 60 horse-power is one of the largest and most powerful that has visited Toronto this season.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

The Maritime Board of Trade is a union of the business men of the three Canadian provinces washed by the Atlantic. When the financial, industrial and mercantile interests of Eastern Canada are thus united by common purposes and aims, what good reason is there for longer continuing three political divisions? The name "Maritime Provinces" is itself indegative of common interests.

The representative business men of the Atlantic division of the Dominion have declared unanimously for a provincial amalgamation of the three into one. How long will the politicians tarry behind? Just as long as they dare. There will be plenty of opposition. The office holder and the office seeker will regard union as an outrage, a disgrace, a forfeiting of all provincial traditions and sentiment. The tiny politician, who can cut some figure in a small field but would be totally lost in a larger one, will cry down union with a magaphone. And the mass of the people will be added weight.

The union of the three provinces will be attained only after a good deal of agitation and education of public opinion. An effective way of going about it would be to form an association to keep up the agitation, show the people of the three provinces that socially, industrially and politically, their interests are identical, that there would be a great economy in substituting one government for three, and that in federal matters one large province would be a much more potent factor than three small ones. There is but one way, and it is plain, in the one word AGITATE.

This twelfth annual parliament of Maritime businessmen was an unqualified success. The attendance was large and representative; the interest might rightly be termed enthusiasm and a spirit of kindred aim and neighborliness was apparent that could not but extend the horizon and broaden the sympathies of every delegate. It was a gathering well worth while. Already the west has copied the idea with splendid results, and some day the boards of trade of Central Canada will hold their annual conventions. The next step will be a congress of the boards of trade throughout Canada to form and give expression to the business opinion of the Dominion.

AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION.

Toronto's Industrial Exhibition will open next week bigger and better than ever. The city will be crowded. Many subscribers to and friends of The Canadian Grocer will be in the city and we cordially invite them to make the office of the MacLean Publishing Co., at 10 Front street east, next door to the Board of Trade Building, their downtown headquarters. We can't furnish meals or beds, but if you want to rest a while, or a place to meet a friend or write a letter, we will be very pleased to see you and make you welcome to the best we have. Even if you don't want any of these things we'll be glad to see you anyway. We would be delighted if every grocer and purveyor of foodstuffs who comes to the Fair would call at the office of The Grocer.

Whatever you do, don't miss the Fair. If you haven't time to come for fun, come for business and get ideas and suggestions that will help to improve your trade.

LOW WATER AFFECTING SHIPPING

Low water in the port of Montreal is affecting the shipping trade. For the past week or so none of the large boats have been able to load capacity on this account, being restricted by the port warden. As a consequence shipping companies find it necessary to exercise considerable care in making bookings. Several companies when spoken to by The Grocer stated that they had been compelled to exercise the greatest discretion in loading their vessels, in some cases having to refuse shipments of particularly heavy goods. Most of the vessels which have cleared Montreal recently have had either short cargoes or else were loaded with light goods which took up all space in the holds without being too heavy.

When asked the cause of the low water, the port warden stated that the continued dry weather was chiefly responsible for it. Rains this Spring and Summer had been few and far between. It is improbable that conditions will be bettered this year, so that low water will affect the shipping during the remainder of the season. At the present time the water is sinking at the rate of about an inch a day, consequently if this continues the river will be considerably lower than it now is before the season finishes. It is nearly ten years since like conditions prevailed, and shipping companies feel that it is hard lines, particularly since the outlook for the remainder of the season is so bright.

FOREIGN TRADE INCREASING.

A recent report issued by the Dominion Government gives to the public some interesting information on the foreign trade of Canada during the month of July. The aggregate foreign trade during that month amounted to $41,996,228, which is over nine million dollars ahead of the same period in 1905. In a young and growing country like Canada such an increase as this in the volume of trade transacted speaks well for the future of commerce between the Dominion and other countries. Canada is rapidly rising in the commercial firmament, and her products, which only a few years ago were comparatively unknown outside of the British Empire, are now recognized as being pretty nearly the best obtainable. The trade mark "Made in Canada" is acquiring a significance of great value to exporters, a significance which, if maintained, will be of untold value in the future. Imports for the month in question amounted to $23,652,122, while domestic exports wete $16,549,548, increases, respectively, of $5,172,357 and $3,500,099. Animals and their products showed the largest increase in exports, being $1,555,421 ahead of the corresponding period last year. In the export of fish products there is a falling off noticeable, but in agricultural products and manufactures there are substantial increases.

The products of British Columbia last year, Provincial Finance Minister R. G. Tatlow states, was $50,000,000, about $1,250 for every white man in the Pacific Province. Hon. Mr. Tatlow asserts it is a world-beating record.

LONDON TRADE DOINGS

Grocers Will Conclude the Wednesday Half Holiday for the Season by a Monster Picnic—Summer Trade Better Than for Years

London, Ont., Aug. 21, 1906.

The retail grocery trade is beginning to revive after the usual Summer fall-off in trade. While during the recent months trade has been better in London than for many Summers, still the going out of town was more noticeable than ever. Some grocers say that more people are holidaying this year than ever before.

The people are beginning to come back, however, and in another week, with the Western Fair in sight and school vacation over, most citizens will be home. Last Saturday the trade done was almost equal to normal.

Though materials are plenty this week, the heat has been too great to encourage much preserving and as a result when the market on Tuesday was glutted with tomatoes there were few buyers. The price did not go above 25c. per basket.

The Retail Grocers' Association of London had an enthusiastic meeting on Monday evening, when it was definitely decided to wind up the Wednesday afternoon half-holidays during the Summer months by a big picnic at Springbank on August 29. The idea is to have a picnic for which there will be no financial receipts for the grocers but to which the general public will be invited and which will show what an energetic lot the London grocers are. Springbank is the Summer park belonging to the City of London and reached by a four mile ride on the street railway; it is an ideal spot for the grocers to have this picnic which will be marked by numerous sporting features, such as ball games and other attractions, concluding in the evening with attendance at the theatre. The committee appointed Monday evening to take charge of the programme are Messrs. Harry Ranahan, William Mullins and Thos. McCormick.

One of the features of the outing that is anticipated is the presence of London's newest musical organization, the Free Press Newsboys' Band. This band of boys, who have had but three or four months training, made their debut a few weeks ago and have been much sought after ever since. There are about thirty of the youngsters and they make a hit everywhere. If they can be obtained the grocers will have them play at the picnic.

Mr. Frank Harding has resigned the secretaryship of the Retail Grocers' Association, owing to his time being so much occupied since retiring from his grocery business to go into the London Canning Co.

The association are looking for a suitable man for secretary. They want a man who has an office and can be reached by telephone and will have time to devote to a new work they will take up. The idea is to systematize their bad debts list. For some time it has been felt that much money could be saved each year if bad-paying customers and dead-beats could be avoided. But there has been no way of properly attending to the list. They now hope to pay a man to keep this list in shape and give reports like a regular Bradstreet's. The new secretary will also be expected to do other organization work for the association.

THIS PACKING HOUSE ALL RIGHT.

Acting under instructions from the Manitoba Government, Dr. R. M. Simpson, chairman of the Board of Health, of the Province of Manitoba, recently made an inspection of the abattoirs and packing establishments of the province. In his report the following reference was made to the plant of the Manitoba Canning Co.:

"Subsequent to the inspection of the establishments hereinbefore mentioned, the factory of the Manitoba Canning Co. located on the open prairie about ten miles southeast from Winnipeg, was visited. This establishment has been in operation for about three years, and is under the management of a gentleman who received his training in France. The business embraces the canning of corned beef, roast beef, tongue, turkey, chicken, game and other specialties. At the time of visit the factory was not working, owing to improvements being made, involving an expenditure, it was stated, of $25,000, consisting of new buildings and the installation of new and modern machinery and appliances. The premises were found to be clean and well kept, and all the floors where the products enter during the course of manufacture, are of concrete with adequate drainage facilities. Samples of all the products were taken and have been carefully examined and found to be in good condition and of excellent quality.

"In conclusion I desire to say that the proprietors and managers of all the inspected plants are eager to submit to a most rigid system of inspection, and, to my mind, it is most important and desirable that this should be established at as early a date as possible."

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

H. P. Ferguson, grocer, Parry Sound, Ont., is dead.

Louis Gagnon, of Hudon & Orsali's staff, is on a fishing trip at present.

E. Patoine, Laporte, Martin & Cie., Lte., is holidaying at Sherbrooke, Que.

J. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, is in the Old Country at present.

John Crawford, of Mathewson's Sons' traveling staff, is up the Gatineau on his holidays.

Mr. Clough, representing S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, in Toronto, is on his vacation at present.

David Seath, secretary to the Harbor Commissioners, Montreal, is on his vacation at present.

L. M. Bassard, of the traveling staff of Hudon & Orsali, Montreal, is spending his acation at St. Johns, Que.

J. E. Monday, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, is in St. Gabriel de Brandon, Que., for a few days rest.

G. O'Neil, of the traveling staff of Mathewson's Sons, Montreal, is spending his vacation at Huntingdon, Que.

A. Sirois, of Manitoba Self-Raising Flour, Montreal, is spending his holidays at the seaside and in the country.

Mr. Lussier, of Demers, Fletcher & Co.'s grip department, and Mr. Bourbeau are both enjoying their holidays at present.

H. Probert, representing Lever Bros., Sunlight soap, Toronto, was a caller at the Montreal office of The Grocer during the week.

Metis, the Summer resort down east, at present holds Chas. Wilkinson, of the traveling department of Mathewson's Sons, Montreal.

Fred Darvis, Western Ontario repre-representative for the F. W. Fearman Co., is receiving congratulations on joining the ranks of the married men.

W. M. Fielding, a man of the grip with S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, is fluctuating between Hamilton Beach and Toronto, devoting his time to rest and amusement.

Alf. Childs, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Lte., Montreal, is in Ottawa on his holidays. W. E. Sullivan, with the same company, is spending a few days at Foster, in the Eastern Townships.

R. D. Campbell, Brantford, Ont., on account of ill health has had to retire from business and has sold his grocery and meat store to John Kew, from whom he purchased it about a year ago.

S. Rousseau and Hormisdas Delorme, Laporte, Martin & Cie., Lte., have returned from their holidays. Mr. Rousseau spent nine days at Isle Perrot, while Mr. Delorme made a trip up the Saguenay.

One of the Canadian delegates to the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire recently held in London, in the person of Colonel W. N. Ponton, Belleville, passed through Montreal last week on his way home.

Messrs. Rousseau and Booth, two of S. H. Ewing & Sons' Montreal travelers, have given up business for a few days and are now holidaying. The former is at Cacouna, while the latter has chosen Waterloo, Que., as his resting place for the time being.

The Montreal Milk Shippers' Association has issued a circular announcing an advance of a cent a quart in the price of milk from September 1 to April 30 next. Cream will be advanced proportionately. The circular states that conditions this year are unusual and that the advance is absolutely necessary.

Messrs. Jos. Ethier, manager Laporte, Martin & Cie., Lte.; P. Daoust, president of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, and J. A. Beaudry, secretary of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, have returned from a week's holidays spent at Old Orchard Beach. They all look as if they had enjoyed the sea baths, etc., to their full extent.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE

SEA-BOARD PROVINCES ONE IN BUSINESS INTERESTS—MERCHANTS' PARLIAMENT ADVOCATES POLITICAL CONSOLIDATION INTO ONE PROVINCE—SPLENDID GATHERING AT AMHERST, N.S.—MANY IMPORTANT SUBJECTS DISCUSSED—INTERESTING ADDRESS BY THE RETIRING PRESIDENT, CAPT. JOSEPH READ—H. F. McDOUGALL TREATS OF THE PROBLEM OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION IN CANADA.

Progress and enthusiasm were the dominant notes of the twelfth annual convention of the Maritime Board of Trade which was held at Amherst, N.S. under most favorable auspices on August 15 and 16.

The subjects discussed were of great importance and several resolutions of considerable importance were put through.

Rev. Father Burke was again on hand from Prince Edward Island and put forward with greater vigor than ever the project of the tunnel.

At the election of officers a very popular and capable man, Mr. W. S. Fisher, of St. John, was elected president.

There was a fine attendance of delegates from all parts of the Maritime Provinces.

Captain Read, the president, called the meeting to order promptly at ten o'clock. On the platform besides himself were C. J. Silliker, mayor of Amherst; John McKeen, president of the Amherst Board of Trade; W. S. Fisher, first vice-president of the Maritime Board of Trade, and Charles M. Creed.

Captain Read was applauded when he called upon the mayor of Amherst to address the gathering.

The mayor of Amherst, C. J. Silliker's opening address was one of welcome. He asked the delegates to make themselves at home. The members of the council had consulted the different managers of the manufacturing plants, and every delegate would be permitted to visit these works without the usual red tape of having a pass.

He apologized for the tearing up of the streets which had been necessary at this time. He hoped for a good profitable time and he knew that would be the case.

President of Amherst Board of Trade, Mr. John McKeen, said on behalf of the board that it was gratifying to see the splendid response to the invitation of the Amherst board. The local members had looked forward to the meeting. They found on the day of opening that there were more delegates than Amherst could accommodate in hotel life. Citizens had come to their rescue and their loyalty was appreciated by the board. It was the desire of Amherst to make the visitors happy and it would be accomplished if all would co-operate.

Referring to Amherst, he said that the city had nearly doubled in population during the year. Yet the building operations had not kept pace with the growth of population; but Amherst was going ahead in every respect. He again welcomed the members.

Roll Call of Delegates.

Following are the names of delegates present:

NOVA SCOTIA.

Amherst—Harvey Pipe, E. B. Elderkin, J. A. Crossman, John McKeen.
Annapolis—A. E. Atlee.
Berwick—H. G. Harris.
Canning—A. D. Payzant.
Canso—C. H. Whitman.
Halifax—W. H. Sterns, Hon. W. Ross, J. S. Creed, J. E. De Wolfe, W. J. Clayton, Geo. E. Faulkner, John W. Regan, A. M. Bell, I. C. Stewart, A. N. Whitman, G. S. Campbell, A. T. Weldon.
Kempt, Queens County—Thomas Keillor.
Kentville—W. G. De Wolfe, Wm. Fraser, E. J. Ward, H. G. Harris, C. W. Webster.

W. S. FISHER, ST. JOHN, N.B.
President Maritime Board of Trade, 1906-7.

Kings County Board—J. A. Kinsman, S. A. Bowser.
Truro—C. E. Bentley, G. O. Fulton, G. A. Hall.
Windsor—B. W. Mills, H. A. Lynch.
Yarmouth—C. H. Armstrong, Robert Caie, R. S. Crawford.
Sydney, C.B.—J. S. McKinnon, H. F. McDougall, H. E. Kendall, J. H. Young, J. W. Dawson, H. G. Hagen, A. S. Curry, F. L. Dixon, S. P. Challoner.
North Sydney—J. M. Armstrong.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Chatham—J. L. Stewart, W. L. T. Weldon, W. B. Snowball.
Moncton—Hon. F. J. Sweeney, A. E. Williams, G. L. Harris, John Abram, F. W. Gumner, Jas. M. Ross, H. G. Chanter, F. W. McDougall, C. P. Harris, T. J. Welsh, E. C. Coll, W. H. Edgett.
Sackville—Hon. Josiah Wood, S. W. Copp, F. B. Black.
St. John—W. S. Fisher, W. H. Thorne, J. M. Sutherland, T. H. Estabrooks, Jas. Pender, W. W. Frink, C. M. Bostwick, P. W. Trider, W. M. Jarvis, Robt. Maxwell, Thos. White, W. F. Hathway, W. E. Anderson, J. A. Likely, Newton Harvey.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Alberton, West Prince—Rev. A. E. Burke, W. H. Dennis, Jas. E. Birch.
Summerside—Joseph Read, W. A. Brenan, Wm. Stewart.
Charlottetown—S. N. Crabbe, Hon. Geo. E. Hughes.
Newspapers—A. M. Belding, St. John Telegraph; G. S. Gowe, St. John Sun; C. D. Cliffe, MacLean Trade Papers, Toronto.

Mr. De Wolfe remarked that a number of delegates were not present at the roll call and he advised that a full list would be issued before closing day.

Mr. De Wolfe further suggested that as a full report had been issued in the MacLean trade papers, of all the proceedings, the reading of the minutes might easily be dispensed with. This was unanimously adopted.

A committee was then appointed as follows to select a sort of menu for the convention: Vice-President R. S. Fisher, W. H. Thorne, E. L. Derkin, J. McKeen, Rev. A. E. Burke, G. A. Calkin, W. H. Sterns, S. P. Challoner, Hector McDougall.

While the committee was away Mr. Creed read letters of regret from Governor Snowball, R. L. Borden, W. S. Fielding, Hon. Senator Josiah Wood, Sackville; P. Gifkins, general manager D. A. R.; D. Pottinger, general manager I.C.R.; J. M. Lyons, general passenger agent, I.C.R.; Lieut.-Col. J. B. MacLean, Toronto; the secretaries of the Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton Boards of Trade and the Montreal Star and Toronto Globe.

SECRETARY-TREASURER'S REPORT.

Mr. Chas. M. Creed was loyally applauded when he arose to read his annual report, as follows:

Gentlemen,—Your secretary-treasurer begs herewith to hand you his report for the current year.

All the various resolutions and recommendations passed at the last annual meeting were forwarded as directed, and copies of important resolutions requiring the prompt attention of the Federal Government were forwarded to the ministers of the different departments as speedily as possible after the annual meeting, those concerning the provincial governments were forwarded to the premiers of the same and copies of all resolutions were mailed to every board of trade in the Maritime Provinces.

On January 9, as usual, copies of all resolutions were mailed to W. S. Loggie, M.P., Chatham, N.B.; J. J. Hughes, M. P., P.E.I.; Dr. J. B. Black, Windsor; H. J. Logan, M.P., Amherst, and B. B. Law, M.P., Yarmouth, in advance of the meeting of the Federal Parliament in order that they could become familiar with them.

After the opening of the Federal Parliament copies of all resolutions were forwarded to the ministers of the various departments, and to all members from the Maritime Provinces.

The correspondence connected with the same as also from the boards being too voluminous to read are now on the table for the inspection of the members.

CAPT. JOSEPH READ, SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I.
Retiring President
Maritime Board of Trade.

Annual Report.

The annual report was published as usual and copies mailed to the ministers of the departments at Ottawa, the members from the Maritime Provinces and senators, also to all boards of trade in the Maritime Provinces and elsewhere as opportunity offered.

Correspondence with the Boards.

This has had unremitting attention during the year, and am pleased to report a growing interest is being taken by the secretaries who have been prompt in answering correspondence.

Unaffiliated Boards.

Have had every attention paid them; they have been written to frequently urging them to affiliate, and as a result the boards of Dartmouth and Liverpool have affiliated, and are doing good work.

New Boards.

A new board has been formed at Caledonia called the Queen's Board; it has affiliated with this board and is doing good work.

Subjects for Discussion and Notices of Annual Meeting.

The subjects for discussion at the annual meeting were mailed to all boards on August 6. This is most desirable as it gives the delegates time to study them and enable them to come to the meeting prepared to join in the debates on the subjects proposed.

Notices of the date and place of annual meeting with railway arrangements for delegates were mailed at the same time.

Lovell's Gazetteer of British North America

Having been brought to my notice that Messrs. J. Lovell & Son, of Montreal, were about publishing a new edition of their Gazetteer, I wrote them asking if my assistance in sending them a list of the industries in the cities and towns of the Maritime Provinces would be of service to them, to which they replied thanking me for the offer. Circular letters were sent to all the boards of trade with the result that twenty-four boards sent in statements of the industries of their cities and towns, which were forwarded Messrs Lovell & Son, who duly acknowledged the receipt of same.

Sixth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire.

The sixth congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire was held at London, G.B., in July and this board was ably represented there by our esteemed second vice-president, A. M. Bell.

In conclusion, during the past year I have devoted a deal of time, care and thought for the advancement of the board, at the same time doing all possible to assist your worthy president, in which I had the able assistance and advice of our first vice-president, W. S. Fisher, of St. John, N.B., and also of M. G. DeWolfe, of Kentville, N.S., who has been unremitting in his efforts at all times for the advancement and prosperity of the board.

Accounts for the Year.

The accounts for the year are all prepared, but as several boards will pay their per capita tax before the close of this day's meeting, they will be presented to-morrow for your approval and audit.

All of which is respectfully submitted

CHARLES M. CREED,

Mr. De Wolfe then paid compliments to Mr. Creed as permanent secretary, and in moving the adoption of the report he could not avoid saying he averred that without Mr. Creed there would be no Maritime Board of Trade. The motion was carried unanimously.

Captain Read, the president, joined in the expressions of good will towards Mr. Creed. Captain Read believed that no body could live without a good secretary.

Mr. Creed formally thanked the members for receiving his report.

W. F. Humphrey, St. John, N.B., spoke in favor of shortening the proceedings of the committee by some arrangement before the day of session.

Captain Read agreed with Mr. Humphrey that it was a very important matter to shorten the agenda of doings, but it would be a mistake to deal severely with the matter of elimination of subjects as it would discourage many of the smaller boards should there be too many subjects erased from the bill of fare as arranged.

Mr. Atlee, of Annapolis board, also thought some improvement could be made as the committee could be aided greatly by some work before the day of convention.

Several others spoke, expressing the feeling that the board was a great meeting place for busy men who could get relaxation out of it.

James E. Birch, of Alberton, spoke strongly in favor of the present method

E. K. SPINNEY, YARMOUTH, N.S.
Past President Maritime Board of Trade.

being continued. No one could tell, he claimed, what number of delegates would attend. It would be impossible to tell until the president saw the delegates how to adjust the proceedings.

Captain Read thought that the secretary alone would be the man to help them out by putting the more prominent subjects in relative order.

Among the other speakers on this subject of changing the plan of the committee were M. G. De Wolfe, of Kentville, W. H. Dennis, of West Prince, P.E.I., and A. H. Wetmore, St. John.

Mr. Sutherland, C.P.R., St. John, thought a great deal of the discussion might have been avoided if a little more care had been exercised by the local boards before sending in matter for consideration.

Decision Reached.

Several others spoke, and finally it was moved by Prof. W. W. Andrews, seconded by A. E. Atlee, and carried:

"That the president at each meeting of the Maritime Board name five boards which shall each elect one of their delegates to serve on a committee of resolutions to arrange the programme for the next year's meeting; such committee to meet with the officers of the Maritime Board at a convenient date preceding the meeting. And further, that it be ordered that all resolutions shall be sent to the secretary prepared in due form, a week previous to the meeting of the board."

At the afternoon session Captain Reid announced that this resolution was unconstitutional, and would have to be given as a notice of motion.

This was accepted by the movers and the resolution will be taken up at the next meeting.

Subjects of Consideration.

The committee upon agenda reported as follows upon the list of subjects discussed. The Rev. Father Burke as chairman read the list as follows:

1. General development of Maritime Provinces. Berwick—Cause and remedy for decreased population in counties of Nova Scotia bordering on Bay of Fundy. Yarmouth—Advertising of Maritime Provinces in the interests of immigration and repatriation. Souris—Immigration (farmers). Sydney—Immigration, etc. Halifax—Establishment of department of publicity for Maritime Provinces.

2. Transportation—Nationalization of ports, St. John, Halifax, Sydney. Digby—Daily service St. John and Digby. Liverpool—Control of railway rates. St. John—Amendment of preference to apply only to goods entering through Canadian ports. P. E. Island—Communication question. Alberton—Excessive I. C. R. rates.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Captain Read then read his annual report. His first request was on behalf of the Board of Trade of Summerside, that the Maritime Board should choose Summerside as their next place of meeting. He said:

Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade:

Before we enter into the discussion of the important subjects which will engage your attention during this session of the Maritime Board of Trade, I wish to thank this important body for the high honor conferred on me, personally, and upon Summerside, a town that does perhaps more produce business in proportion to its population than any other in Maritime Canada. It is indeed an honor to be recognized by such a representative body of professional, commercial and agricultural gentlemen as make up the Maritime Board.

In recognition of the honor, I have a mandate from our town and board of trade to invite this institution to come to Summerside next year to hold their annual meeting.

Most of the questions discussed last year and on which resolutions were passed, have received the attention of the Federal House and some of the recommendations have been acted upon effectively.

Fast Atlantic Mail Service.

Something has been done to advance this project, but not enough to warrant us resting on our oars.

The report of the Royal Commission on Transportation, which was given to the Federal Parliament during the last session recommended among other things the establishment of a bi-weekly fast Atlantic mail service, all the year round between Liverpool (England) and Halifar, N.S. Coupled with this recommendation it was also suggested the expediency of completing the chain of rapid transit by a similar fast Pacific line to give an all-British mail service through Canadian territory in conjunction with an Imperial subsidy. In this connection it is worthy of note that the new Isthmian railroad now in operation between Coatzacoalcos, in the Gulf of Mexico, and Salina Cruz, on the Pacific, better known as the Tehauntepec route, is claimed to be shorter from New York to the far east by 1,200 miles.

This emphasizes the paramount importance of insisting on Atlantic terminals for the new national transcontinental railroad, now building, and for which such liberal public subscriptions are being made.

Another feature of this commission report is the nationalization of, among others, the ports of Sydney and Halifax and St. John, N.B.

Government support to the building of steel ships in Canada is also recommended, and I would suggest that the Maritime Board of Trade endorse and emphasize these portions of the report.

Towards the tunnel to connect the two Government railways, viz., the I.C. R. and P. E. I. R., and which is only the permanent and certain solution of the transportation question as it affects P. E. Island, while not much has been done, yet much has been accomplished by enlisting the support of Canadian statesmen of the first class. I have it on the best authority that the Premier of Canada is now convinced as to its necessity and its feasibility and that just so soon as the pressure of some of the very large undertakings of the Government is overcome, the tunnel will be built. It is for this Maritime Board a matter of first duty to hurry the day when that important work shall be commenced.

People's Railroad.

During the year just passed some political demagogues combined with the jealousy of certain vested interests have made an attack on the people's railroad. This has produced a mixed result, partly good, but largely evil—good where it made for economical management, bad where it made for impairment of the service and exorbitant local freight rates.

VIEW OF AMHERST, N. S.

The undue prssure brought to bear on the railroad management. by the ungrateful people of Ontario, particularly, the very province which has been receiving the most benefit by the low freight charges of the Government roads and who have been especially benefited by the abolition of canal tolls, a measure which was so generously supported by the Maritime Provinces, had forced the Railway Department to do things, which, to say the least, have not been in the public interest. For instance, Ontario gets a freight rate seven times less than P. E. Island on goods of the same class for export to Barbadoes, etc., the Government in each case being the sole common carrier. They pay nine cents for a carriage of 825 miles while P. E. Island pays 23 cents for a carriage of 309 miles. I am, therefore, not surprised to see among the subjects for discussion this session the question offered by St. John, N.B. "Should not the canal system of Canada be made to pay its working expenses?"

A. M. BELL.
1st Vice-President Maritime Board of Trade.

Certainly the action of the Government in connection with the Government railroads, if continued, changes the whole canal question.

Great improvements have been made during the year in aids to navigation in these provinces; especially commendable is the Government's action in planting wireless telegraph stations at prominent points around our coasts, which is placing within the reach of the great ships that come to us from over sea as well as our coasting steamers, means of communication unthought of a few years ago. The introduction of gas buoys, fog signals and better lights has been marked; but this board should impress upon the Marine Department the necessity of giving timely notice of changes in the lighting of our coasts.

Maritime Union.

This subject is not to my mind within the scope of practical politics at any rate as far as my province is concerned; the fear engendered by the non-fulfilment of terms of union with Canada regarding winter communication and the action of the Federal House in reducing the representation against the well-known intention of the fathers of confederation have so embittered the people against the greater union that they are mightily prejudiced against the lesser and more desirable one. The irritation of the island people against the central authorities above noted is strongly reflected by the sister island of Newfoundland, which waits to see justice done to the smallest member of the Dominion before trusting her destinies to a possibly similar breach of faith. There is no consummation more desirable at this moment from a Maritime Proince point of view than the admission of Newfoundland to the union and nothing the Federal Parliament could do to hasten that inevitable event would be more surely effective than doing P. E. Island justice in the matter of her parliamentary representation and the construction of the tunnel.

Inland Fisheries.

Some attention was paid to this board's recommendation regarding Inland Fisheries. Very shortly there will be a conference between the provincial and federal authorities which will touch among other matters the very important matter which is yearly becoming more obtrusive.

I do not wish to worry you with a too long address, but feel that attention should be drawn to the self-containedness of these three provinces and to the real and permanent progress they have made in the year.

New Brunswick had never before received such high prices for her lumber, Nova Scotia has flourished marvelously in mining, manufacturing and commerce, and Prince Edward Island has had a most magnificent crop and got generally splendid prices. I cannot illustrate the self-containedness of our heritage better than advise you that the Sydney Board of Trade are contemplating the erection of a building for themselves. This building will be constructed of material drawn from a district within a radius of 40 miles of Sydney.

The foundation will be of Cape Breton freestone; the front will be of C. B. marble, quarried at Eskasoni on the east bay of Bras D'or Lakes; the remaining walls, of Sydney cement building blocks, with red granite trimmings from Boisdale, on the Little Bras D'or Lake; the chimneys, of brick manufactured at Mira, about twelve miles from the city; the plaster to be calcined plaster, the product of the gypsum quarries at St. Ann's; the interior finish, of C. B. maple and birch; roofing, the product of the Sanderson Manufacturing Co., a new concern to be established here next month (August); roofing cement from the Dominion Tar & Chemical Co., of this city; the girders of steel, the product either of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. or the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co.; the nails to be made from the product of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co.

Subject to the site finally selected, the cost of the land and building will range from forty to eighty thousand dollars. But what need of illustration from a distance. Look round you right here in Amherst. It is not long since this busy city was a sleeping country village. Its advance has been wonderful and to-day it stands as an object lesson of what other towns in our provinces might be, ought to be, must be.

Insurance.

The unfair system of rating the safer Atlantic ports and the fogless Prince Edward Island ports on the same basis as the St. Lawrence River and foggy gulf ports still obtains.

Adjustment of the severe fire losses at San Francisco has evoked an indignant outburst of criticism regarding the attitude of certain fire insurance companies, which have either repudiated

C. M. CREED, HALIFAX, N.S.
Secretary Maritime Board of Trade.

their liabilities or compromised their settlements.

Some of these companies have been yearly taking lines of insurance in these Maritime Provinces; hitherto the integrity and ability of these corporations have been unquestioned.

The Government has been probing the methods and management of life and accident insurance companies doing business among us, and while the results have not yet been fully given to the public, enough has been shown to inspire confidence in the majority of our Canadian companies. Apart from this the investigations both in Canada and United States will eventually do a great deal of good in correcting past and present evils, also in preventing mismanagement in the future.

Maritime Immigration.

The action of this board last session has been fruitful in moving the Provincial Governments to take hold of the question of immigration into these Maritime Provinces; and while we must deplore the movement of our own people west, it is gratifying to know that steps are being taken to replace them by emigrants of the best quality. The appointing of agents to meet the steamers on arrival at St. John and Halifax, supplemented by similar methods at the European ports of departure whereby books, pamphlets and general information regarding the opportunities in this end of the Dominion, would be distributed, is a matter worthy of recommendation.

I am convinced that as a matter of fact many of our own people are leaving homes much better than they will find in the west.

Exhibitions.

A commendable feature in the Dominion Exhibition, which is to be opened in Halifax next month, is a determined effort to inaugurate a proper fishery exhibit, a substantial building having been erected for the purpose.

Exhibitions of the first class will also be held in St. John, N.B., and Charlottetown, which promise to be the best for years.

The success which has attended the Winter Fair at Amherst affords gratifying evidence of the interest taken by the stock and agricultural interests of these provinces in developing these great branches of human effort.

Sixth Meeting of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire.

A few weeks ago there met in London, England, the members of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire. This was its sixth meeeting and this board was represented by my friend and colleague, Mr. Bell, of Halifax, one of our vice-presidents, who will no doubt report to you fully. This body, representing as it does the whole Empire, is destined to do much to weld together in Imperial unity this great Empire, which, even in its present chaotic condition is the most wonderful aggregation of humanity that ever acknowledged a common allegiance. It has the "promise and potency" of an Empire that unified politically, connected by that annihilator of time and space, electrical communication, with trade matters so arranged as to be mutually beneficial and financially just—would be an Empire that must make for peace without oppression and freedom without license.

Federation of the West Indies with Canada.

This idea has not yet been taken hold of by the public mind in either of the two groups of communities. Trade communications, however, are being well maintained and the volume of business between them is increasing year by year. This reciprocal interchange and the preferential treatment of each other by both these British communiites will inevitably draw them closer together in the near future.

Tourist Business.

From the testimony of a large number of the boards affiliated with the Maritime Board, it appears beyond doubt that the volume of tourist travel throughout the provinces has been well maintained since our gathering at Yarmouth last year. The arrivals at nearly all the points up to the present date also indicate satisfactory progress in this line of effort for the present season. An encouraging feature is the yearly increasing number of visitors from our sister provinces of Quebec and Ontario as evidenced by numerous organized excursions favoring us with their presence. Our delightful Summer climate, scenic and historical attractions are being recognized as affording ideal opportunities for conventions and business gatherings in addition to the seekers for health and change of scene. The systematic efforts introduced by this board and its affiliated boards are meeting with gratifying results in more reasonable transportation fares and improved hotel and cottage accommodation.

Considerable interest is also being taken in preserving historic sites as suggested by this board.

General Business.

Taken as a whole, the varied resources of the Maritime Provinces in the fisheries, lumber, mining, agricultural, horticultural and manufacturing production show an all-round average of satisfactory development. To ensure adequate results the benefits of technical knowledge in every branch of industry is gradually being recognized in our midst, as in other world centres, in order that the yield from sea and forest, mine, mill and farm shall show a steady increase from year to year.

We should not, however, become careless in these days of plenty and unequalled prosperity. I cannot but adise you that much of the good times we are now enjoying is due to the fact that our greatest competitor in the produce markets of Europe is now commercially prostrated by internal troubles as she was this time last year by her disastrous war with Japan. Let our people look to it that they maintain the character of their goods in such high standard of quality that when Russia, with 120 millions of people, with a quarter of the land area of the globe, becomes clothed in the garment of freedom, Canada may be so in possession of the markets by reason of the good quality of her goods and by reason of her consanguinity that she may not be ousted from her position.

TOWN HALL AND FIRE STATION, AMHERST, N.S.

The Peace Congress.

We have seen and heard of three great peacemakers, men whose high positions have been exalted by their acts, Edward VII, King of England; Roosevelt I, President of the United States and Bryan, the silver-tongued candidate, who is the Democratic idol of the latter country, vie with each other in promoting peace, which haply to-day is almost universal.

A. M. Bell moved the adoption of the report and referred to the part of the report which mentioned the growth of mining in the provinces.

Mr. De Wolfe then seconded the resolution in a witty speech. He considered it one of the finest addresses they had ever heard. It was carried unanimously.

W. S. Fisher gracefully put the resolution and made some very nice remarks about Captain Read's report.

Defends Parliament.

Senator Ross wished to correct the idea that the Federal Parliament was to blame for the scanty representation. That would require Imperial legislation over the British North America Act.

Captain Read replied saying that Prince Edward Island did not come into Confederation for a long time after the other provinces, yet one of the conditions of coming into the Dominion was that the island should have six members in the Federal House. On the other hand Senator Ross was right about the B. N. A. Act.

East Seeks Justice.

Rev. Father Burke offered a general resolution : "That in view of the fact that the upbuilding of the west has entailed a tremendous drain on the population and resources of Maritime Canada, the time has arrived when the general Government should devise some efficient means of recompense ; by encouraging immigration of a suitable sort for the development of the fisheries, the agriculture, and the mines of these provinces, and by such bonusing or other fiscal treatment of prime industries as must necessarily give the requisite impetus to trade and commerce within them."

Mr. McDougall spoke of the reasons for the great immigration to the west. He had found out that the Northwest had been advertised extensively. He urged numbers of the immigrants to come to the Maritime Provinces. He showed them the benefits to be found in these provinces. He had pictured great things to many and could not induce one to come. In the Old Country he had found not a sign of any advertising of the provinces in London, Liverpool and Glasgow. Not one inducement was advertised over there to show the benefits of the Maritime Provinces. He found that people were carried from Liverpool to Winnipeg for the sum of $30. He regretted to see men leaving the east, but he was glad they were remaining in Canada. He believed that the Maritime Province people could induce the Government to use some means to bring more immigrants to the east. In Cape Breton they had several iron industries. Why should not the fishery men and the agriculturists use their influence to get something done for the eastern provinces ? The Government should not be permitted to disregard the conditions of the east. Rates west were always less than rates east. The Government railway should be used to bring immigrants back to the east from Montreal. If the C.P.R. could carry them west for $10 then the I.C.R. should be also able. Some effort should be put forth by this board to ask the Government to have ships land somewhere in the eastern ports.

Mr. McDougall's remarks were heartily applauded.

Advertising Abroad.

Mr. Regan then read a paper on this subject of advertising the Maritime Provinces abroad. He believed a bureau of advertising should be established at once in the Maritime Provinces. The daily papers could help greatly by using more space for the advertising of the Lower Provinces. Some school books were not enough devoted to local information. He argued that normal schools would do well to have departments in which the beauties and history of the provinces were accentuated. He referred to the results of good advertising in the American and Canadian west.

Advertising Brings Results.

Railroad systems always maintained publicity departments. In fact, nearly all business men were alive to the needs of publicity. It had always brought results.

Tourists, for instance, should be more encouraged. He showed how the neighboring State of Maine made sixteen millions last season out of tourists. The Maritime Provinces could do even more than that. Some advertising was being done, but more could be done. He believed that within the next ten years millions of American money would be invested in the Maritime Provinces, most especially if the Government would take action immediately and give an appropriation, not niggardly, for advertising the provinces.

Mr. Regan was warmly applauded and Captain Reid remarked upon the value of the paper, yet reminded the convention that speakers were as a rule limited to ten minutes.

J. McKeen emphasized the need of getting immigrants from England and Scotland to come direct to the Maritime points as destinations.

Father Burke : "Don't we want anyone from Ireland ?" (Laughter.)

The New England of Canada.

Mr. McKeen pointed out that it was all very well to advertise, but one must have something good to advertise. The possibilities of the west were immense. They should never forget that. What the Maritimes must remember was that they must be the New England of Canada ; they must be the makers of goods for all these consumers who were migrating to the great west. Without worrying about the migration, let the east encourage manufacturing so that supplies for the whole west would be furnished by the Maritime Provinces. He emphasized the growth of the commerce of Amherst. He said that an output of three and a half millions came from this one little town. They were sending goods to the great west. Money was coming back and building was necessary to keep pace with the increase of population that must come. He believed that bonusing industries was an artificial means of getting factories. Natural methods were the only means of attracting genuine industries. (Applause.)

Something Wrong Somewhere.

Mr. De Wolfe, of Kentville, pointed out how large was this subject, and it seemed as if either the provinces were standing still or there must be something wrong. Although the provinces had the natural facilities they were not going ahead. He endorsed the remarks of Mr. McKeen, and spoke of Amherst as a model for all other towns. He spoke of Truro, where he had just visited the Truro Knitting Mills, and there was a fine example of what two bright young men could do. They could not fill their orders owing to the demand in the great west.

Senator Ross spoke of the comforts available in the Maritime Provinces, and it was the environment and associations in the provinces which should be advertised. Farmers should deal more liberally with their sons and daughters. It would be unwise to make little of the privileges and attractions now in existence in the Maritime Provinces.

W. S. Fisher, of St. John, remarked that he felt sure there were one hundred factories in the provinces now busily selling to the west. Amherst had done wonders. What had been done by Amherst could be done by others. The right sort of men had been at work in Amherst. He referred to the excellent paper of Mr. Regan, and wished to explain that the chief reason for the provinces not being boomed was because no literature had been supplied agents who were in the immigration work.

Captain Read explained that the local Governments had taken up this matter of advertising the provinces. He felt that the movement of the people west was a removal of the generative forces as all the young men were flitting west and the old men were left behind.

Mr. Armstrong, of Yarmouth, pointed out that the Government had recently appointed a representative agent in Boston.

The general motion was put and carried with only one dissenting voice.

Population in the Bay Counties.

The next question was that of a possible remedy for the decrease of population in the counties of Nova Scotia bordering on the Bay of Fundy.

W. H. Reid, of Berwick, spoke, and the reason he gave for the decrease was that sheep raising did not pay down in his district.

A. E. Atlee, of Annapolis Royal, read an interesting paper on the retaining of the young men in the east. This paper had been read at the Annapolis, Hants and Kings Boards of Trade, and referred to industries affecting population and their remedies. Mr. Atlee said in part :

Industries Involved.

"The fishing interest out of Gloucester, Mass., yearly draws upon Nova Scotia for men, and it has now become a common practice for a Nova Scotian to take out American papers of naturalization, and sailing in a vessel under

United States registration, fish in Canadian waters and land the catch in the United States. Natives of Annapolis County are occupied in this business, and many so engaged take up their residence abroad.

"The call for men for lumbering in the State of Maine and in New Brunswick at high wages for a short time attracts many of our working men, and lately Nova Scotia operators have undertaken operations in Newfoundland and Labrador, and our working men have gone there.

"The development of the coal and iron industry in Cape Breton calls for more men (of a class) than Nova Scotia can supply.

"The decline of wooden shipbuilding has seriously affected the population.

The Remedies.

"The fishing and fishing rights of Canada should be exclusively Canadian. The abrogation of the modus vivendi should be brought about as soon as possible.

"The preservation of our forests, better and more careful manufacture of wood products, without the enormous waste that has taken place in former years.

"The development of iron and gypsum mines in Annapolis and Hants counties.

"While large wooden vessels cannot now compete with steel there is an urgent call for smaller sail tonnage, and a hopeful revival in building this class of wooden vessels and also small steamers. I believe wooden propellers are safer and better adapted to our coastwise trade than steamers built of iron or steel, and that this may also be applicable to the coal trade between Cape Breton and Nova Scotia ports and for trading up the St. Lawrence.

Co-operative Farming.

"In farming the co-operative idea should give good results in holding our population. Co-operative apple packing and shipping would give employment at distributing points in the Annapolis Valley and lead to the establishment of factories for using waste stock for vinegar, cider, and evaporated fruits. If every farm could be put on a self-sustaining basis it would hold many of the young men who now leave the province. Too many farmers buy instead of raising their live stock and import feed and grain that should be grown on our own lands. I contend that there should be on the majority of farms sufficient wood growth to supply all needs for fuel, fencing, barrel and box cooperage.

"I would point out that the boy on the farm is too often driven away instead of encouraged to work at home, and that the opportunity to do good work for honest pay is entirely withheld or discouraged. Let a farmer's son have an interest in the home farm, let him be paid for his work or share in the profits, and we will hold many that now leave the province as soon as they can get away.

"To encourage immigration and increase our valley population, it is a prime necessity that there should be an established market value for farm products. In the past trading has been hampered and business turned in other directions because buyers have had to make their own prices and spend a great deal of unnecessary time to fill orders. The farmers of Hants, Kings and Annapolis counties should consider this matter seriously. There should be a regular market price for hay, cattle, butter, eggs, cheese, apples, etc. To fill an order for a thousand tons of hay should be a transaction that could be done in a day. I venture to say that it would take weeks, and much of this time wasted, to fill an order of this kind. This state of things is discouraging to both growers and buyers, and is detrimental to intending buyers of farm properties.

Value of Sentiment.

"When a stranger comes to reside amongst us or a new industry starts up, it should not be our part to stand ready to shy 'arf a brick' at the first chance. A community can be either for or against, in sentiment, in money matters or in work. Sentiment alone can kill what might otherwise turn out to be a prosperous undertaking with the very slightest encouragement.

"Another point—if we are to increase our population we must give employment. If every merchant in every town in the three counties engaged sufficient and efficient help to conduct his business in the most up-to-date manner, and if manufacturers and employers of labor made an effort to keep all their employes fully engaged all the time; if every well-to-do farmer employed men or boys so that every acre of his farm would give its proper return, would it not give work to ten times as many hands as are now engaged?

"How many of us know the merchant whose book-keeping is faulty, and his inability to supply what we are anxiously willing to buy; the manufacturer who seldom or never is up to time with his orders; the farmer with mistaken ideas of economy whose lands lie untilled and he is 'land poor.' Find work, give work, make work. Let those who have not tried it begin now, and we will have hopes of holding the rising generation in the counties of Annapolis, Kings and Hants."

At the London Congress.

A. M. Bell, of Halifax, was called upon to tell the convention of his experience in the Old Country at the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce in London, Eng.

Senator Ross then spoke upon the abrogation of the modus vivendi. Bait in fishing, he said, was the most important part of the industry. The fact that American fishermen took away the best bait from Nova Scotia injured the industry. In Newfoundland the American fishermen were compelled to get bait outside. Then came the opposite question. Americans made easier conditions for getting fish into the United States for those who served them well. Speaking for himself he believed in reciprocity with the United States. Another view was that the herring which the Americans wanted for bait were not much sought for eating purposes in Nova Scotia, and the selling of it to the Americans gave a living to poor people. Still another plea was that the British Government was not anxious to stir up any ill-feeling with the United States. Now if this abrogation were to be brought about, it must come through the Dominion Government. The Government, he knew, was not anxious to excite any ill-feeling with the United States.

A resolution was presented that the board urge upon the Government the abrogation of the modus vivendi.

Mr. Whitmore, of Canso, said that he believed it would be unwise to abrogate the treaty. He believed there was a large class who made a living by selling bait. It looked to him like class legislation. The privilege of selling to the American fishermen should not be taken away. This was good business to sell bait as well as supplies to the American fishermen. It would be impossible to prevent the Americans from catching fish. Their market was too great to be ignored. If we antagonized the Americans we would meet with reprisals later on that would be detrimental.

Fishing Grounds Being Depleted.

Prof. W. W. Andrews thought that reports showed that our fishing grounds were fast being depleted. We had lost our forest assets; were there chances of losing the fish? Surely bait could be sold to Canadian fishermen.

W. F. Humphrey said that information should be given as to how much in value was the bait sold to Americans; how much fish were caught by the Americans, etc.

Senator Ross said he believed that the ocean was as prolific in fish to-day as it was 100 years ago.

Mr. Whitmore said that Newfoundland was on the point of making a reciprocity treaty with the United States. He did not think it would be a shrewd thing to abrogate the treaty.

Mr. Birch, of Prince Edward Island, argued that the Americans protected their industries and we should protect ours. Canadians could give as much for bait as the Americans. The abrogation of the treaty would give all fishermen better chances. He referred to the rigid duty restrictions of the American buyers.

J. McKeen said there was a good deal to be said on both sides of this question and he would deprecate the board taking any action that would commit them to any drastic measure. Likely any resolution would irritate rather than do good.

It was moved and seconded that this matter be left on the table. It was moved in amendment and adopted that a committee of five be appointed to study the question and report upon it at the next annual meeting.

Union With West Indies.

The union of the West Indies and Canada was the next subject taken up. It was brought forward by the Board of Trade of St. John.

W. S. Fisher spoke first. He explained that last year a resolution had been passed urging closer relations between Canada and the West Indies. He asked the meeting to reaffirm the resolution of last year and allow the committee to keep on working towards this union of West India and Canada.

Mr. Fisher was of the opinion that there were many possibilities for trade in the union of the West Indies and the Dominion. It was purely for trade advantages. He had noted that the press deprecated the union owing to the difference in races, etc. The Americans were after the West Indies and Canadians should be awake to their interests and opportunities in the British West Indian trade. The sentiment now was strong in the Indies in favor of British connection and it was wise to make a live issue of the subject.

The speaker's remarks aroused great applause.

Seconding the motion Mr. Elderkin said the United States were only too anxious to annex these British islands in the Caribbean Sea, and he could not see why the Government was so apathetic. He believed a delegation should be named of men who would go to Ottawa and bring the subject before the Government in the right way.

An Opposite View.

I. C. Stewart, of Halifax, said he was opposed to Mr. Fisher's views and he was sorry they could not agree. The industrial conditions of the West Indies were being improved by Sir Daniel Morris, the Commissioner of Agriculture, and no fears of hopeless decline need be entertained. The British West Indies now grew cotton, the finest cotton in the world. The Barbadoes were also much improved and the outlook was that Great Britain would be the great market for cotton and other products.

He felt that before the board passed any resolution every member should know more about industrial conditions in the Indies. He would suggest that they get a report upon the Indies and especially what the people there thought of union with Canada.

Mr. Fisher claimed that Mr. Stewart's statement regarding the growth of the Indies was an argument in favor of union.

Mr. De Wolfe said that the Government of Canada was opposed to union with the Indies.

A Public Benefactor.

A letter was read from John Williams, of Worcester, Mass., in which he stated that he had advertised the attractiveness of the Maritime Provinces for tourists.

Mr. Armstrong, the delegate from Yarmouth, stated that he knew Mr. Williams well, and that he was deserving of a vote of thanks. This was passed unanimously.

Mr. Fisher broached the subject of union of the West Indies and Canada at the evening session. The motion of Mr. Fisher was carried.

Immigration and Publicity.

The motions of Sydney delegate and the Halifax Board of Trade council regarding immigration and publicity had been considered as dealing with practically one subject and a committee which had been appointed to draft a new resolution brought in the following:

"Resolved, that the respective local Governments of the Maritime Provinces be memorialized to establish a provincial bureau of industry, publicity and immigration, to collect and tabulate detailed information as to cost, extent, description and location of vacant lands available for settlement, local labor supply, opportunities for industrial development, etc., etc., and have this and similar data printed together with suitable illustrated literature and other reliable printed matter relating to the resources of the provinces, circulated through competent channels; and also, that the agents of the provinces and of the Dominion in the United States and in Great Britain be requested to take active steps to distribute this material in quarters where it will do the most good; and further resolved, that such immigrants to Canada as may desire it be given an opportunity to land at a Maritime Province port at all times."

Union of the Provinces.

Mr. Maxwell, of St. John, advocated the union of the Maritime Provinces into one and moved: "That this board reaffirm its attitude of a year ago regarding the desirability of a union of the three provinces and that the executives for the ensuing year urge upon each Government that the matter be taken up for consideration at an early date." He argued in support of his contention that as years went by, there would be a reduction of Parliamentary membership. This had happened in Prince Edward Island, and it would happen in all the provinces. The unit of membership in Quebec at 65, according to the area of miles would affect the membership in all the provinces as Quebec had increased in area. The chances were that the Maritime Provinces would be continuously decreased in representation in the Federal House. He thought the name Acadia—a good Scotch name—might do well for a Federal name for a union of the three provinces. It would be a great economy to centralize the Government of the Maritime Provinces.

Senator Ross said the most serious question was the reduction of representation in the House. He believed the influence of a united province would be greater at Ottawa. It was a subject worthy of discussion by the Attorney-General of each province. He favored the union. (Applause.)

Mr. Stewart claimed that the basic principle of representation was on population. The population of the east did not increase and of course representation must decrease. The decrease of membership was a question which must be faced. He was in favor of Maritime union but not on the ground of decrease in membership. The chief ground would be economy and increased influence.

Captain Read pointed out that this argument would not hold in Prince Edward Island. There they had 25,000 more population than when they had six members and they now had four members. Under the present governmental conditions there were no provincial rights.

The motion in favor of Maritime union was carried.

The Dyke Lands.

The improvement of dyke lands in Sackville was the next subject considered. Prof. Andrews spoke of the importance of increasing and improving natural resources. At Sackville and West Amherst, he said, unions had been formed with a view to improving marsh lands. The purchasing power or earning power of the farmers around the Bay of Fundy was decreasing. Greater than all other industries was the problem of agriculture. Manufacturing came next to agriculture. The cost of reclaiming marsh would reach $100 an acre. When once done it would last one hundred years. The number of marsh owners was decreasing.

The following resolution was submitted by Prof. Andrews and seconded by Mr. Stewart: "That the Maritime Board express its approval of all efforts which may be made to increase the yield of the dyked lands of the Bay of Fundy and thus add to the productive power of these provinces, and therefore its population."

The question of sheep raising in Digby, Kings and Kentville was discussed at length. A resolution was moved by S. A. Bowser and seconded by G. De Wolfe and carried, in effect that the board record its vote in favor of legislation at the earliest possible moment which would meet the needs of the situation.

Captain Reid referred to the notable attention paid to the board's resolutions by the Dominion Parliament.

Rev. Father Burke's report upon the permanent committee was adopted.

F. C. Whitman, Annapolis; S. Y. Wilson, Halifax; C. H. Whitman, Canso; J. Agnew, Alberton; and J. L. Stewart, Chatham, N.B., were appointed a committee to look into the matter of the modus vivendi, and report upon it at the next meeting.

At the conclusion of the evening session C. H. Whitman, of Canso, entertained the delegates by reading an interesting paper upon the fish industry.

TRANSPORTATION IN CANADA.

H. F. McDougall, of Sydney, C.B., read the following paper on "The Transportation Needs of Canada, Grain, Coal, Iron and Steel Products:"

The great and urgent need for an improved system of transportation for the carrying inward and outward the product of the important and rapidly growing industries of the country is at the present time the most serious and most far reaching, as well as complicated, problem before the Canadian people.

There is neither complaint nor dispute as to the fact that Canada has for the past twenty-five years kept pace with the most prosperous and advanced of its contemporaries in providing facilities by land and water for its growing trade and industries. The very large expenditures on railways, canals and steamboat lines, added to which other very large indirect expenditures such as light, dock and harbor service, make up a total in the neighborhood of about $200,000,000—much in excess of that which reasonably could be expected of a small population spread over a very large territory.

Great Results Attained.

The fruits of those expenditures, however, have now reached a point of development far in advance of the expectations of the most ardent and sanguine advocates of those expenditures. In one item alone, that of grain, the product of that industry last year reached $100,000,000 in value, all of which was grown in a comparatively small portion of a vast area of country but a few years ago considered by a large portion of our people nothing but a waste and barren territory. The value of the present annual production of a small part of this great territory in grain alone would be sufficient to wipe out the whole public debt of Canada in less than 3 years. The rate of progress of further advancement in this industry in evidence at present, would justify an increase of over 100 per cent. in less than 10 years.

Looking Ahead.

Canada in ten years will be producing two hundred million bushels of wheat alone. The problem of transportation, therefore, is a most serious one, and one which needs immediate consideration. Heretofore the transportation of grain from the west over the C.P.R. has been nearly all together transhipped into lake shipping at Fort William and Port Arthur, at the head of Lake Superior, a portion of which was carried to ports on the Ontario lakes and therefrom carried by rail to different points in Ontario, Montreal and Quebec. A portion came down by Detroit and the system of canals extending from Lake Erie to Montreal and a portion went to Buffalo and other points in the United States for transshipment to European markets. The Canada Atlantic Railway carried a large portion of this grain from Parry Sound, on the Georgian Bay to Montreal, but the system is circuitous and not by any means equipped for the handling of so large a traffic nor are the other railways with terminals on the lakes any better equipped with such facilities as should be required for the handling of so large a traffic with the expedition its importance demands in this growing line of transcontinental traffic. While specially adapted for the conditions that obtain for interprovincial and local traffic they fall far short of present requirements of the traffic that now offers for placing the products of the Great West at the distant market with that expedition called for by reason of climatic and geographical conditions. Expedition, therefore, is of necessity the principal factor in this problem, made urgent by a combination of natural disadvantages, chiefly that of the short season between the date when the grain is ready to move and the date of closing of navigation in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence, and the long distance over which it is necessary to carry these products to reach open Atlantic ports in Canada in Winter.

Facilities Between East and West.

In order to overcome those difficulties, in a measure at least, and to meet the demands for increased transportation facilities between the west and the east, strong appeals have been made for the deepening of the canals between Montreal and the upper lakes. A proposition has been before Parliament for several years for the building of the Georgian Bay Canal, a system of stream navigation and several canals extending from Montreal by way of the Ottawa River and small lake waters extending to Georgian Bay on the Great Lakes. One very great difficulty in respect to those canal improvements is the long time before any relief could be obtained from this plan and other difficulties would be found in their very slow services, as well as in their imperfect connections.

First Consideration.

The first question to be considered is the fact that there must be an immense grain production henceforth in the Western Provinces of Canada and the great bulk of that grain must find its way to the Atlantic seaboard at the earliest possible date after being ready to move from the fields of production.

The second is that this part of the transportation must be done within about three months to escape Winter conditions, which practically close navigation on the St. Lawrence, as well as on the Great Lakes, by the first of December. The interest of the producer and the grain dealer in Canada would require at least one-half the product to find its way to markets beyond the handicap points within those three months before the close of navigation, with the remaining half to be forwarded via St. John, Halifax and Sydney ports during Winter, to be partly used in the supplying of home markets and partly for Summer export beginning in April or May.

Reserve National Channels of Trade.

The third is that, although for a longer period of the year shipments destined for European markets could find their way through the United States to the seaboard, the difference is not so great as to justify the abandonment of a policy so important and national in its character from various points of view, as that of maintaining the channels of trade and transportation within Canadian territory.

The fourth is that we have now a complete railway system from east to west, and that that system in handling this class of freight finds it necessary to drop the greater portion of it at Fort William and Port Arthur to be carried across the lakes, thence across the country to the St. Lawrence, instead of continuing over the additional distance of a thousand miles from Port Arthur to Montreal, or other points at longer distance on the St. Lawrence. That the two lines of railway now under construction between the east and the west are likely, on account of natural conditions of competition, to reduce the cost of haul to the terminals at the head of the Great Lakes and correspondingly lessen the practicability of any appreciable increase in the quantity to be carried over the new roads from head of the Great Lakes to the St. Lawrence which, owing to their further northern location, have to cover longer distances in reaching the St. Lawrence. Essentially those new lines east of the head of the Great Lakes must exist on passenger, mineral and timber traffic, with such ordinary colonization development as the country being opened up will be found adapted to.

Question of Transportation.

The question, therefore, resolves itself into the position of Canada for the purpose of trade having to have recourse to such means as will improve and cheapen its system of transportation from the head of the lakes to a point on the Georgian Bay, thence by rail across the Ontario peninsula to the St. Lawrence at or near Montreal, where the final transfer can be made to ocean steamers. This system would secure to this branch of the trade of the country the very best possible results during the three months immediately following the date when the first grain is ready to move. The Great Lakes navigation being open for nearly a month later would make it possible to continue those shipments during that time partly for domestic or inland markets and partly for export during Winter from St. John, Halifax and Sydney.

Montreal to Georgian Bay.

An air line of double track railway from Montreal to the nearest navigable point on the Georgian Bay, equipped with the most modern and perfect service for carrying and handling this class of freight, with docks and elevator facilities adapted to the handling in the quickest possible time the largest possible quantity of this class of freight, would necessarily call for a very much improved system of both elevator and dock facilities than exist under present conditions, but only such as would be warranted by the results that naturally would flow from the alternating of a number of broken and inadequate as well as antiquated services into a consolidated and enlarged modern service with expedition and cheapening of cost the chief objects in view.

The Coal Trade.

An important auxiliary to this trade is made possible by conditions not unlike those that handicap the free movement of the grain trade of Canada, that militate against the continuous development of the great coal industry of the country. The coal deposits of the Dominion, so far as these are in a state of development, are located east of the Province of New Brunswick and west of Manitoba, and the intervening portion of the country extending over 2,500 miles have to draw their coal supply over long distances from the two extremes or take their supply from the United States. At present Ontario is nearly all supplied from the United States, and Quebec nearly all from Nova Scotia.

The navigation of the St. Lawrence for deep sea shipping for six months of the year makes it possible for the coal of Nova Scotia to reach Montreal at a reasonable cost, a cost which, with the assistance of return cargoes that could be handled without detention, could be considerably reduced. In the County of Cape Breton there is mined annually about 4,000,000 tons of coal, about 3,000,000 of which finds its way up the St. Lawrence during the six months of open navigation in the St. Lawrence. The Province of Ontario consumes annually about 4,000,000 tons, and it is nearly all imported from the United States, about half being hard coal and not obtainable from Nova Scotia. Of the remaining 2,000,000 tons Nova Scotia, with an improved system of transportation and handling, should supply 1,000,000 tons at least during open navigation.

The Western Crop.

The same railway service that conveys the grain from the Great Lake points in Ontario should be made, with very little additional cost, adapted to the hauling of this coal from Montreal to within reach of the great centres of industry within the Province of Ontario. Much of the coal that comes from the United States into Ontario now comes by water to certain points and thence into the interior of the country by rail, which is accomplished with very inferior and expensive equipment, whereas the handling from vessel to rail at one point like Montreal could be done with the aid of the most modern coal handling appliances. Coal can be handled and stored much on the same principle as grain, by means of labor-saving appliances and modern methods. The trade once established through channels with strong guarantee for permanency such as the one proposed would justify permanent appliances for handling the product such as are now established at the shipping points of the operators and to some extent at Montreal.

First Requirements of the System.

First requisites for carrying out the proposed improved system of transportation of the chief products referred to, namely, grain, coal and iron and steel products :

A fleet of steamers to carry grain from the head of the Great Lakes to eastern points on the Georgian Bay in Ontario.

An air line double track railway from a point on the Georgian Bay over the most direct and shortest route to the City of Montreal.

A fleet of steamers to carry grain from Montreal to European points and from Montreal to Sydney, and return cargoes of coal to Montreal and points on the St. Lawrence.

Modern elevator, storage and transhipping equipment at Port Arthur, Fort William, and at a point on the Georgian Bay, Ontario; Montreal, Quebec; St. John, N.B.; Halifax, and Sydney, Nova Scotia.

A ship building plant and docks in the harbor of Sydney, Nova Scotia and at Halifax.

Milling plants at Georgian Bay point, Montreal, St. John, Halifax and Sydney.

Tendency of grain trade is growing more in favor of exporting the finished product and retain the off takes for the production of dairy and meat products.

Comparative value of grain shipments moving east from Port Arthur and Fort William, 1904 and 1905 :

In 1904 grain shipments moved from Fort William and Port Arthur amounted in value to $17,117,221.10, of which $14,302,086 was moved in Canadian vessels, chiefly to Owen Sound, Midland, Depot Harbor, Godench, Montreal, Toronto, and other points, on the Ontario lakes and shores of the St. Lawrence, while $2,724,135.10 was moved in United States vessels to Buffalo and Detroit.

During the past year (1905) this trade was increased to $19,139,184.20 carried in Canadian vessels to Canadian ports, and to $11,137,089 carried by United States vessels to United States points, and $81,793.10 carried in United States vessels to Port Huron, in Canada. Thus it will be seen that nearly all the increase of shipments of 1905 over 1904 found its way from Port Arthur and Fort William in United States vessels and to United States ports because Canadian owners were unable to handle it.

Important Facts.

Coal Production of Nova Scotia. — Annual coal production of Nova Scotia, about 5,000,000 tons, of which about 70 per cent. is mined and delivered for consumption and shipment in the harbor of Sydney, C.B.

Shipping Tonnage Employed.—Tonnage now employed to perform waterborn business of Canada is over 80,000,000 tons; at the present rate of increase 100,000,000 tons will be required sooner than it will be convenient to supply it from Canadian shipyards.

Shipping Owned.—Canada in ownership of shipping stands seventh in the world, Great Britain, United States, Germany, Norway and France being ahead in order.

Steel Ship Building.—Changed conditions in the iron and steel trade and increased demand for carrying tonnage must force Canada into steel ship building on a larger scale than at present. Twenty years ago 90 per cent. of the pig iron used was imported; at present less than 35 per cent. is imported.

The Scheme Approved.

The reading of the paper was received with many marks of appreciation and at its conclusion S. P. Challoner, Sydney, seconded by Hon. Senator Ross, Halifax, moved :

Resolved, That an important system of transportation affecting the shipments of wheat from Western Canada over the Great Lakes and from the lakes at a point on the Georgian Bay to Montreal, for shipment by the St. Lawrence route during open navigation and by rail to St. John, Halifax and Sydney, after close of St. Lawrence navigation, and for the carrying of coal west, such as is outlined and advocated in a paper read before this board by H. F. McDougall, representing the Sydney Board of Trade, hereby receive the approval of this board.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Winter Route to P. E. I.

Hon. Geo. Hughes, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., moved that "Whereas, the Winter communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland is still in a most unsatisfactory condition, therefore resolved, that this, the Maritime Board of Trade, urge upon the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the great necessity of placing a more powerful boat than the Minto or Stanley in the Straits of Northumberland this Winter for the purpose of ascertaining the most practicable route for Winter navigation between Prince Edward Island and the mainland."

The motion was carried.

Freight Rates Too High.

It was moved by W. H. Dennis, of Prince Edward Island, seconded by J. E. Birch that "Whereas, the freight rates on the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island railways are excessive as they now stand and detrimental to the best interests of these provinces, therefore, resolved, that the Minister of Railways be requested to reduce the said scale of rates to those in effect on these roads in 1905." Carried.

Mr. Hughes read the resolution regarding freight rates which was passed at the meeting in Moncton, N.B., in August, 1904, and moved "that this Maritime Board of Trade, now in convention assembled, re-affirm the above resolution and urge upon the Federal Government the necessity of adopting means to carry the same into immediate effect, thus placing shippers to and from Prince Edward Island on the same footing as those from Cape Breton Island and the Island of Vancouver."

A West End P. E. I. Boat.

J. E. Birch, Alberton and West Prince Board of Trade, moved, seconded by Prof. Andrews, "that one of the steamers employed between Prince Edward Island and the mainland for the purpose of inter-provincial communication in Winter be placed on what is known as the western route, so that the advantages of direct communication with the west be as often as possible afforded to the public."

The motion was carried.

The Fish Industry.

The following resolution proposed by C. H. Whitman, of Canso, and seconded by Rev. Father Burke, was carried :

"Whereas, the fresh fish business of the Maritime Provinces is already an important industry and is destined to be one of the leading industries of Canada, for this reason it being important that the railroads should be in the closest possible touch with the sources of supply ; therefore, resolved, that in the opinion of this board the Dominion and local Governments in the making of any future contracts for railway extension should insist upon the main sources of fish supply being included in any such extension where at all possible.

"Resolved also, that for the better encouragement of deep sea fisheries the Government of Canada should readjust the conditions warranting the reception of fishing bounties, so as to make the lobster period count in determining the time and quantity requisite for same."

Back up the Commission.

A. M. Bell, of Halifax, spoke on transportation. It was a mistake, he thought, to boom Montreal as a port for freight and mail. Montreal and St. John were good ports for distributing freight, but for mails and passengers he was in favor of Halifax and Sydney and other Maritime extremities. In advocating a route he must submit to modern engineering and all the arguments regarding ports were relative from the point of view of engineers. Mr. Bell proposed the following resolution based on a recent report of the Transportation Commission. This was seconded by Mr. Bentley, of Truro, N.S. :

"Whereas, the report of the Royal Transportation Commission in dealing with the requirements of the Maritime Provinces makes the following recommendations :

"(1) That the grades and curves on the Intercolonial Railway between Moncton and the Atlantic ports be as far as possible reduced in order to secure faster and cheaper transportation ;

"(2) That the Grand Trunk Pacific between Quebec and Moncton be built by the most direct route;

"(3) That equitable running rights be secured by the Intercolonial over the Grand Trunk system between Montreal and the Great Lakes; and also that similar rights be given the Grand Trunk Pacific over the Intercolonial between the Atlantic ports of the Maritime Provinces and Moncton.

"(4) That it is in the interests of Canada and the Empire that a high-class fast mail, passenger and express service be established to run semi-weekly between Halifax and Liverpool.

"(5) Be it therefore resolved, that the foregoing recommendations, being in line with the declared policy of providing Canadian routes for the carriage of Canadian products are cordially endorsed by this board, and the Federal Government are hereby urged to carry them out in the interests not only of the Maritime Provinces but of the whole country."

Remember St. John and Sydney.

Mr. Hathway, of St. John, criticized the proposed resolution and said the members of the Transportation Commission from Winnipeg had shown a lack of knowledge of eastern conditions. St. John and Sydney should be in that resolution.

H. McDougall did not like to see the resolution hurried through as it was. At Sydney there were two ports but there was only one harbor. North Sydney was one port and Sydney another. The port was open from one end of the year to the other during some years. It was not safe to say it was an open port.

Prof. Andrews thought Mr. Bell in behalf of Halifax had spoken in a broad-minded way on this question and the question was which would be the point of mail call, Halifax, St. John or Sydney. It was a Canadian matter and should be looked at in a broad Canadian way.

Mr. Hathway proposed, seconded by M. H. Thorne, of St. John, an amendment to Mr. Bell's resolution.

Captain Read would not allow the resolution to be put as an amendment. He ruled that it was a substitution, not an amendment.

J. S. Campbell, of Halifax, spoke in defence of Mr. Bell's resolution and elaborated on the problem in sight over the question of transportation.

W. H. Thorne, of St. John, spoke on the question of Halifax and St. John men coming together. They had tried this. The St. John men could not see eye to eye with Halifax men. St. John men objected to the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. Direct connection to St. John should have been allowed, and owing to the G.T.P. scheme the representative in the cabinet from St. John resigned. St. John further thought that as the mail service had been divided, St. John should be considered.

Mr. Stewart moved in amendment that clause 2 be eliminated from the main resolution.

Mr. Fisher explained that St. John was not jealous of Halifax. They wanted to have a just share in the resolution. The St. John men were willing to concede a great deal, but it was impossible to vote for the resolution as it stood.

Hon. Mr. Hughes extended an invitation to the board to meet next year at Charlottetown.

Mr. Sumner, of Moncton, spoke as an unprejudiced man, and said he thought the resolution should go through as it stood.

The amendment was put and lost by a large majority.

Mail at North Sydney.

It was then moved by Mr. Challoner and seconded by A. M. Bell, that the following new clause be added to the original resolution and the whole offered as an amendment.

Hon. J. N. Armstrong, of North Sydney, suggested a further addition to the main resolution. Mr. Challoner and Mr. Bell, as well as Mr. Bentley, the seconder of the original motion, all agreed to this. After much parleying over parliamentary usage the question was put and carried with this addition:

"Further resolved, that as the contract entered into by the Dominion Government for the carrying of the mails places the option of the Minister of Trade and Commerce of obliging the subsidized mail and passenger steamers that make their terminus at Quebec and Montreal to call at North Sydney; that it is desirable in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade, particularly in the interests of the Maritime Provinces, and generally of all Canada, that the option of the minister should be exercised so that the mail steamers call at North Sydney accordingly."

The New Officers.

The committee to nominate officers, comprised of M. G. De Wolfe, Rev. A. E. Burke, W. F. Hathway and N. T. Weldon, reported as follows: President, W. S. Fisher; first vice-president, A. M. Bell; second vice-president, Hon. Geo. E. Hughes, Charlottetown; secretary-treasurer, Chas. M. Creed, Halifax; auditor, G. M. De Wolfe, Kentville; recording secretary, M. Anderson, Halifax.

The report was approved unanimously. Mr. Fisher was congratulated warmly upon his election and all the other officers received similar greetings.

A Pleasant Outing.

The afternoon was occupied by an automobile drive to the Chignecto mines, and most of the delegates participated. The Board of Trade of Amherst were the hosts. After inspecting the mines and enjoying an ideal drive on a perfect road with finest of weather, a stop was made at the Government experimental farm.

There a band was playing and the ladies of Amherst had prepared the best of refreshments, which were served on the beautiful lawn.

When the meal was over the guests assembled in front of the house and a photograph was taken of a group of 150 at least, including as many of the ladies as wished. Speeches of appreciation and welcome were made by the different officers of the boards of trade and by R. Robertson, head of the farm. Cheers were given for Amherst, the ladies, and the boards of trade.

In driving back to the city the electric illumination of the Rhodes-Curry Co.'s factory was a feature that attracted attention.

The board of trade after its holiday resumed sessions promptly at 8.30, even before all the delegates had returned.

Help for Railroad.

Thos. Keiler, delegate from Queens, set the ball rolling by a report regarding a new railway from Digby to Liverpool.

The following resolution was adopted: Moved by T. Keiler, and seconded by W. M. Jarvis, "That the Government be urged to grant adequate financial assistance to any company that will build a railroad from Liverpool, in the County of Queens, to Digby, in the County of Digby, by way of Caledonia and Bear River, thereby affording railway connection to a section of Nova Scotia which is now without such connection and placing the towns along the route of the proposed railway on more equal terms with other parts of the province."

A paper on "Shipping, Old and New," was read by F. McDougall, of Moncton. He spoke highly of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick sailors. All over the world Nova Scotia sailors were in demand. They, he claimed, were the best sailors in the world.

A motion by Father Burke and Hon. G. E. Hughes was passed that the expression of the board on the P.E.I. tunnel passed last year be reaffirmed.

To Revive Shipping.

In connection with the shipping paper, the following resolution, offered by the Moncton Board of Trade, was adopted:

"As it is of the first importance to the Maritime interests of Canada that we should secure and hold a place in transportation by sea, therefore, to revive our fast declining shipping industry it is desirable to promote Canadian ship owning under the new conditions now prevailing; moreover, as supplementary or corollary to this, it is necessary that Canada should have the power to limit the coasting privileges now enjoyed by European nations;

"Therefore, resolved, that in the opinion of this board the Dominion Government should first pass a ships subsidy bill for the promotion of sea-going Canadian owned tonnage, and second, take such steps as will secure for Canada the privilege of cancelling existing coasting privileges now enjoyed by foreign countries under old Imperial treaties, the idea being to have Canada control these treaties as we control our tariff."

H. F. McDougall, of Cape Breton, suggested an addition to the resolution to the effect that a recommendation might be made to the Government asking for support to the industry of building wood and iron ships.

Want M. P.'s to Attend.

It was moved by Prof. Andrews and seconded by Hon. G. E. Hughes, and resolved, that the secretary notify all provincial representatives in the Federal Parliament that it is the desire of the Maritime Board of Trade that they attend the annual meetings of the board and take part in the proceedings.

Lower Postal Rates.

The question of reduced postal rates was dealt with unanimously in a resolution put forward by J. L. Stewart, of Chatham, N.B., and seconded by W. L. T. Weldon, as follows:

"Whereas, although letter postage has been reduced, the rates on some other postal matter, particularly miscellaneous printed matter, has been materially increased;

"And whereas, the postal revenue has so greatly increased that a surplus has been reported by the department;

"Therefore, resolved, that in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade these increased rates should be reduced to at least the rates that prevailed before the increase was made."

Technical Education.

The subject of technical education was dealt with by A. A. Hayward, of the Mining Institute of Halifax, in the following resolution :

"Whereas, the commercial and industrial success of the foremost nations of the world at present has been in a large measure due to technical education in equipping the men of these nations to better develop their natural resources ;

"And whereas, individuals, communities and national governments are supporting technical institutions in all parts of the world ;

"And whereas, the great natural resources of these Maritime Provinces demand technically trained men for their more efficient and complete development ;

"And whereas, the industrial trend of the age demands that our young men should have an opportunity to acquire the highest technical training within their own borders at a moderate cost to themselves ;

"And whereas, a sum of money more than large enough to support local technical institutions is annually paid to alien institutions by students from the Maritime Provinces ;

"And whereas, higher technical institutions, situated in the Maritime Provinces, would be best able to cope with the industrial problems of this eastern section of the Dominion of Canada ;

"And whereas, delegates from Nova Scotia colleges and from Mount Allison of New Brunswick, assembled in Halifax, April 19, 1906, to discuss better and more efficient means of technical education, endorsed the facts already outlined and promised their hearty co-operation, and requested the Government of Nova Scotia to enact such measures as would bring about the establishment of such an institution as the conditions demand ;

"Therefore be it resolved, that it is necessary that higher technical institutions should be established in each Maritime Province, equipped with such laboratories and instructors for teaching and research as the local needs demand ;

"Further resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade recognizes the importance of greater facilities for higher and more complete technical education at home, and pledges itself to do all in its power to promote the establishment of institutions that will more fully equip our young men to develop our great natural resources and place these provinces in a better position to share in the industrial prosperity of the age.

"Resolved also, that this Maritime Board recommend to each local board of trade that on account of the paramount importance of the subject, it be made a matter of discussion at least at one meeting of each board of trade during the year in the hope that the interest of our people be thoroughly aroused in this matter so vital to the continued industrial development of the provinces."

Prof. Andrews spoke upon the resolution and presaged in glowing terms of the magnificent possibilities of the Dominion and the coincident part which technical education would play in this development. He dwelt upon the great need of trade schools in all growing centres, conducted on the lines suited to the existing industries and conditions locally.

Other able speeches were made upon the subject by Mr. Hathway, of St. John, J. McKeen and R. Maxwell, of St. John, and the resolution was carried.

The following resolution submitted by the Truro, N.S., Board of Trade was carried :

"Whereas, by an act of the Legislature of Nova Scotia passed 27th of March, 1902, the incorporated towns of Nova Scotia are deprived of the privilege of granting permission for the opening of streets for the purposes of supplying light, heat and power ;

"Therefore, resolved, that in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade the said act should be amended and the incorporated towns of Nova Scotia should be given the privilege of granting permission for such purposes, subject, however, to a majority vote of the ratepayers of any town."

The auditor's report was read and adopted as follows :

Examined and found correct.
M. G. De Wolfe,
Auditor.
Amherst, August 16, 1906.

Mr. Creed made a cheerful speech at the conclusion and thanked all the members for kind wishes for him.

Captain Read in concluding the session asked Mr. Fisher to take the chair, and designated him a "worthy successor."

Mr. Fisher spoke briefly thanking the board and stating that he would endeavor to do his best in taking up the work of worthy predecessors.

A. M. Bell brought in a vote of thanks to Captain Read who very suitably responded.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Board of Trade of Amherst, moved by A. M. Bell and seconded by H. F. McDougall.

Mr. McKeen replied on behalf of Amherst.

M. G. De Wolfe moved a vote of thanks to the MacLean Publishing Co. for their friendly work in connection with the Board of Trade.

The next place of meeting was voted upon and St. John was chosen.

NOTES.

Amherst was gaily decorated with flags, and the whoe town said welcome.

Capt. Read was an ideal chairman. At critical moments his judgment proved of great value.

The local club was open to all delegates and Mr. Curry, jr., made a cordial host wherever possible.

No man seemed to have more of the knack of making others happy than W. S. Fisher, the popular new president.

Secretary Weldon, of the Halifax Board of Trade, was an active though quiet participant in all the proceedings.

There were two senators, Ross and Wood, at the convention. They added their knowledge of procedure to a dignified gathering.

Mr. Atherton, the head of the local entertainment committee, was a wonder and he deserved all thanks. Mr. Ross and others also assisted.

E. K. Spinney, of Yarmouth, was much missed at the convention. His ears must have burned if saying nice things about him would cause it.

G. DeWolfe was described jokingly as a professional "introducer." No man did more to make strangers feel at home and especially in the case of newspaper men.

Mayor Silliker, and Mr. McKeen, president of the Amherst Board, made everyone welcome. There is no doubt about why Amherst is going ahead. Mr. Fisher solved it: "They have the right men."

TO IMPROVE POTATOES.

Department Expert Tells How to do it —A Breeding Plot.

T. G. Raynor, of the Seed Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, writing of how to improve potatoes, says :

"It is true that the potatoe balls are the medium for originating new varieties, and that many potato growers let their varieties run out; but is it not due largely to the fact that so many growers sell or eat all the large ones and plant the small ones? The contention of the seed branch is that having once got a good variety, growers should stay by it as soon as it is acclimatized, and improve it by selection and using a breeding plot.

"Let the potato grower in starting out to improve his variety, note the strongest and best growing hills by putting down a little stake by them. We will say he selects 50 hills in this way. When they are ready to dig, let him dig the 50 hills first and from them select 20 hills which he considers the best in the lot. Let him keep in small bags the product of each hill by itself, and the following season plant eight of the best potatoes saved from each hill, in a row, one potato in a hill. Then from this plot select 20 hills again of the best for a breeding plot the following year, and keep all the seed on the breeding plot for planting except, of course, the small ones, which should be fed. In this way we can hope to keep up the standard of any variety and should improve it some from year to year.

It has been found as a result of experimenting that the largest and best yields of potatoes were obtained from cutting large potatoes to one or two eyes, and planting one piece in a hill. The most economic production, however, has been the result of planting medium potatoes cut to two eyes. Each eye corresponds to a seed and too many plants in a hill act like weeds."

GATEWAY TO THE ATLANTIC

Halifax the Busy and Beautiful—Early Beginnings and Commercial Development—Outlet of Canada's West Indian Trade—Some of its Progressive Business Houses.

Every person of school age and over in Canada knows Halifax as the chief military and naval station on the North Atlantic, as the most easterly city of the Dominion and as the location of one of the finest harbors in the world. Unfortunately comparatively few of them reared west of the Maritime Provinces ever see it. Halifax is one of the most thriving and one of the most beautifully situated cities in the Dominion. No one can better speak of it than John Forrest, president of Dalhousie College, and in an article for the American Science Monthly's encyclopedia he says:

"Halifax, the capital of the Province of Nova Scotia and county seat of Halifax County, a city and port of entry on Halifax Harbor on the Intercolonial and Dominion and Canadian Pacific Railways. The harbor, originally known as Chebucto, 'chief of havens,' is one of the best in the world. It is 16 miles long from north to south, with an average width of a mile, and terminates in Bedford Basin, a beautiful sheet of water four miles wide, affording 10 square miles of safe anchorage. The Northwest Arm, an inlet on the west of the city, is a charming bay, on the shores of which are many of the villa residences of the wealthier Haligonians. The harbor is protected by eleven forts and batteries. A citadel crowns the hill on the slopes and at the base of which the town is built. The streets are regularly laid out on a rectangular plan, are lighted by gas and electricity and have electric street car line. The public buildings are built chiefly of freestone, the houses of wood.

Means of Communication.

"Halifax is the chief British naval station in North America and has extensive dockyards. * * Halifax has railroad communications with all parts of the Dominion and the United States and steamship lines connecting with Great Britain, the West Indies, Boston and New York. The chief occupations of the inhabitants are commerce and fisheries. The city has considerable West Indian trade, exporting lumber, fish, and agricultural products, and importing sugar, rum, molasses and other subtropical products. Most of the commerce of the province is carried on through Halifax. The principal manufactures are iron castings, machinery, agricultural implements, nails, paints, gunpowder, cordage, leather, boots and shoes, clothing, soap and candles, cotton and woolen goods, and woodenware. There are also sugar refineries, distilleries and breweries.

"Halifax was founded in 1749 by Hon. Edward Cornwallis, and named in honor of the Earl of Halifax. The following year it was made the capital of Nova Scotia, then including New Brunswick, in place of Annapolis. In 1817 it was declared a free port. In 1842 it was incorporated a city."

World-Wide Trade.

The business of the city is large and increasing, and there are several firms who trade extensively all over the Dominion, such as the Dominion Molasses Co., Wm. Stairs, Son & Morrow, the Starr Manufacturing Co., of Dartmouth, and others.

The shipping trade of Halifax is growing rapidly. The exports as well as the imports show steady increases and this serves as a barometer to all students of trade development. During the month of August the city streets were nearly all torn up and new pavements are rapidly replacing old uneven roads. There are signs of improvement on every hand. Fine new business buildings are in course of construction and Halifax is enjoying its share of the general prosperity of the Dominion. Steamship lines of the first importance trade with Halifax. Manufacturers are always given openhanded treatment by the Halifax City Council and the attractions for industrial enterprises are numerous.

Levi Hart & Son.

Founded in 1848 by Levi Hart, now the president, Levi Hart & Son are one of the oldest business houses of Halifax. Since their establishment they have carried on a large, successful and ever increasing fish business, being now one of the largest exporters in North America.

In January, 1901, they formed themselves into a joint stock company, combining a flour and feed business with their fish industry. They purchased the Crown Mills, having a daily capacity of 500 barrels, and have since improved the plant so that it is now thoroughly up-to-date and is in charge of a competent miller from Western Canada. Their Gold Dust brand of cornmeal is a standard in the Maritime Province market.

Besides being millers themselves they represent several of the best flour mills in Ontario and the west, notably the Brant-Wood Flour Mills, of Brantford, Ont., and have a large and growing trade in mixed cars of flour, feed, rolled oats, etc. They make a specialty of handling grains.

In fish they export to the New York, West India, South American and Mediterranean markets. In consequence of their extensive range of trade they are in an especial position for handling advantageously for their customers all fish and grain products, either by sale or purchase.

The business is under the direct management of H. Flowers, Jr., widely known for his energetic and pushing capabilities. He is assisted by an efficient and obliging staff. It is a pleasure to do business with such a firm.

H. W. Wentzell & Co.

This firm is reputed to be the largest wholesale grocers in the Maritime Provinces and their large warehouse in Halifax is one of the finest in Eastern Canada. The firm has been established nearly twenty years and it has distanced some of its oldest competitors. How they have done it is simply by hustling, and anyone who knows Howard Wentzell will not long wonder why the business has succeeded so well. He is a worker and his whole staff seem imbued with his spirit. They have a sign out, "The busy store," and it is aptly chosen.

Their fine block was known formerly as the Kenney block. It consists of four fine floors all lighted by electricity and fitted with electrical elevators. Everything is up-to-date. They are direct importers and have their own bonded warehouses. Their annual turn-over is very large, as it must be to insure their dividends, since their margins in many cases are very small. One of their specialties is the Three Star brand tea, which is widely and ably advertised. Mr. Wentzell is also the largest shareholder in the Cape Breton Wholesale Grocery Co., of Sydney, C.B.

J. Frank Crowe & Co.

The wholesale grocery business of J. Frank Crowe & Co. is one of the most important, though it is one of the youngest, in Halifax. Mr. Crowe is very popular in business circles and his trade is continually increasing. Since he purchased the business in 1897, increasing vigor has characterized it, and to-day it stands in the front rank. The premises are well located at the head of City Wharf, Water street.

The Moirs Co., Limited.

The Moirs Company are said to be the largest confectionery and biscuit makers in Halifax. They put out branded goods and do a very large trade. Their biscuit trade covers the Maritime Provinces thoroughly, while their chocolates and candy are very well known. They have a fine plant in the heart of the city.

The Halifax Hotel.

The comfort available in the Halifax Hotel is of the home type. Bright, clean, luxuriously furnished and elaborately appointed, the house stands easily as the aristocratic and leading hotel of the east. About a year ago the present company took charge under the management of E. L. Macdonald. New life has characterized every department and hundreds of guests have visited the hotel this Summer and are now personal advertisements for it. The house looks out on the harbor of Halifax and a fine conservatory lends additional attractiveness to the handsomely furnished drawing-rooms. The bedrooms are well lighted and airy. Every accessory to modern hotel life has been employed as well as an excellent cuisine. The dining room is most attractive and a first-class orchestra lends additional charm.

BEHIND WITH SOAP ORDERS.

The St. Croix Soap Manufacturing Co., producers of Surprise soap, have made extensive improvements and enlargements in their plant and this work has curtailed their output to some extent for a couple of months. Though the factory is again in full swing with a largely increased capacity the company find considerable difficulty in filling their orders promptly. This is partly because their business has increased very much this year. They hope, however, to soon catch up, but in the meantime are treating the customers as well as they can in the matter of shipments.

T. J. McCammon, grocer, Moose Jaw, Sask., is building a new store and expects to be in it early next month. Mr. Rondell, formerly with Cullend Co., London, Eng., arrived a fortnight ago to assume his duties in the store and will give his attention to the stores' Old Country customers.

TO BE CANADA'S WINTER PORT

High Ambition of the City of St. John—Its Early History—Landing of the N. E. Loyalists—Some Leaders of its Business Life To-Day.

The town derives its name Saint John from the river which pours into its excellent harbor. The river was named after a great prelate who lived in 1630 when Chas. Le Tour built a fort at the river's mouth. It became the scene of many stirring events. Much romance is found in the history of the district from 1670 to 1713, when the region was ceded by France to England. In 1758 the place was occupied by English soldiers and was called Fort Frederick. In 1762 the first English settlement was made by New Englanders. Three thousand loyalists from New York landed in St. John in 1783, just after the revolutionary war, and in 1785 these men were largely the founders of the city which was granted a charter in that year. The Province of New Brunswick had been formally established a year previous.

St. John as a Trade Centre.

In 1904 Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., said: "With all that may be said upon the subject, the Canadian Winter port must of necessity be at St. John or in that vicinity. There are one or two other points quite close to St. John that could be utilized, but at either of these it would be necessary to start anew and build a port, where there would be none of the advantages of a city of considerable size like St. John."

When work now in progress is completed, the City of St. John will have spent upwards of a million dollars to provide harbor facilities to accommodate the Canadian export and import trade during the period when the St. Lawrence is closed to navigation.

The waterworks system just completed shows an expenditure of two millions to provide a gravitation system of the purest water, having its source in a chain of lakes.

The city has spent $538,000 on a sewerage system. They have a new ferry steamer costing $80,000, connecting the eastern and western sides of the harbor, and it compares favorably with similar craft in Boston and New York. The people are industrious and intelligent. The business men are easy to meet and pleasant to deal with at any time.

A Renowned Harbor.

The harbor is a wonderful place. It has the advantage of being at the mouth of the River St. John. New wharves are to be erected, the Government having let contracts which will be carried out next year. Just now the Federal Government is considering the question of nationalizing the port of St. John. This was recommended by the Transportation Commission in its recent report to the Government.

The city has unrivalled facilities for cheaply gathering raw material, of which lumber, lime, coal and iron are at her doors and others within easy reach by water routes. There are splendid facilities, too, for distributing the finished product. There is an equable climate Winter and Summer and work need not cease because of low temperature.

Exceptional opportunities are available for low freight rates to and from the United Kingdom and South Africa in Winter by regular steamship lines. Summer and Winter services are carried on to Glasgow, Liverpool, London, United States and the Indies.

The city deals liberally with all promoters of bona fide industrial enterprises. With cheap water, moderate insurance rates, efficient fire protection and intelligent labor the city possesses four of the cardinal advantages to attract industrial ventures.

St. John is the Atlantic terminus of the C.P.R. and one of the terminii of the I.C.R. and will be one of the Atlantic terminii of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is easily the chief Winter port of Canada. It is the chief depot for the fish trade of the Bay of Fundy with fine fish-curing and packing houses for home and foreign trade. There is an estimated population of 50,000 people and St. John has a future that is worth the careful consideration of business men.

White's Restaurant.

One of the chief attractions of St. John is White's restaurant, a picture of which is given here. Mr. White is a brother of White, the candy man, and the two enterprises work well together, though entirely distinct. The cafe and confectionery store are on King street and constitute one of the busiest places in the city. The restaurant is renowned for its excellent dining parlors, its fine cooking and its extremely low prices. It has equipment, accommodation and style equal to the finest and much more expensive restaurants.

dy Co., naturally provides the candy for the restaurant and it, too, is just as popular with the Maritime public and tourists. White's chocolates are hard to beat and are being sold all over the Dominion.

The Crosby Molasses Co.

Since the last convention of the Maritime Board of Trade, at which L. G. Crosby was a delegate, his firm has been changed to a stock company under the name of the Crosby Molasses Co., Limited. Mr. Crosby has taken his very capable son, Fred S. Crosby, into the company as secretary-treasurer. This company claims to be the largest direct importer of molasses in Canada. Mr. Crosby, the president of the company, has been in the molasses business for over a quarter of a century. He is a native of Yarmouth, N.S., where he started in the West India shipping business in 1888. He has been located in St. John for over eleven years. His frequent trips to the West Indies keep him in touch with the finest import trade and all customers can depend upon the Crosby Molasses Co. In addition, the company export large quantities of Canadian products, such as lumber, shingles and flour.

Charles H. McDonald.

Charles H. McDonald has opened fine premises for himself on Water street and has secured a number of fine agencies. He is a St. John boy and has made a good name for himself in business. He served Malcolm MacKay in the lumber business, and there received a sound training. Later he joined the wholesale grocery and tea house of H. W. de Forest. There Mr. McDonald established the reputation of being a hustler and he early got the notion of starting out for himself. At the age of 26 years he is started as a manufacturers' agent and importer, and with his brains, energy and determination success must attend him. He has four fine warerooms, all equipped for storage. Among his chief agencies are Guggenhime & Co., San Francisco, fruits; the Campbell Milling Co., Toronto; Canada Milk Condensing Co., Antigonish; Dalton Bros., Toronto.

Baird & Peters.

Baird & Peters have a very fine wholesale grocery which dates its inception from 1886, when it was founded by John H. Baird and C. H. Peters, the latter being head of the firm to-day. They cover the provinces thoroughly with a highly efficient staff of travelers and have a leading trade. The firm also control Vim tea, a high grade blend created by this firm.

G. E. Barbour & Co.

G. E. Barbour, head of the wholesale grocery house bearing his name, is a splendid type of business man. It is gratifying to note that the firm is doing a fine business and that they are rapidly climbing past old-fashioned competitors. They own the Maritime Spice Mills and do a large and growing trade all over the provinces. A competent staff of travelers is employed and all orders receive prompt and careful attention. Personally Mr. Barbour is a model of business astuteness combined with fine social qualities that win the good will and respect of all with whom he comes in contact.

Northrup & Co.

This company has been established in St. John since 1883 and at first went under the name of H. & W. Northrup. In 1890, I. H. Northrup was taken in as a partner, when the name was changed to Northrup & Co. The firm has won its way by intelligent progressiveness and good management. They have several good agencies and look after them. Fish is their specialty and they pride themselves upon the superior quality of their goods and their prompt attention to orders. Braun's canned clams is a line they push with vigor. They are great sellers and find favor in the trade.

T. H. Estabrooks.

No reference to St. John business men would be complete without the name of T. H. Estabrooks, the Red Rose tea man. His handsome five-storey-and-basement warehouse is an architectural ornament to St. John. Since May, 1894, Mr. Estabrooks has been building his success upon the rock of business integrity and hard work coupled with the best of judicious advertising. He has today one of the finest tea warehouses in Canada. He has seventeen travelers in different parts of Canada and the popularity of his tea is increasing daily.

St. John's Leading Hotel.

When down by the sea, in Canada, scarcely any traveler omits to call at the Royal Hotel, St. John. It is unique for many reasons. First, it is genuine home; second, it is a result of years of good management and development. The hotel is well located on King street and is constructed so as to face on two streets making an ideal hotel site. It is furnished from basement to attic with the best and newest hotel comforts and accessories. The hotel is owned and managed by two partners, W. E. Raymond, nephew of the man who founded it nearly half a century ago, and H. A. Doherty, who has been with the house for 37 years. He has risen from the position of bell boy to that of one of the proprietors.

Messrs. Doherty and Raymond make a great team. Mr. Doherty is attentive to all the tiring details of this big house, and always pleasant and obliging. Mr. Doherty is liked, as his partner is, by all who know him. Both take an active interest in the welfare of St. John. In the office of the hotel is Mr. T. B. Reynolds, the chief clerk. He is know almost as well as the proprietors for his unfailing good temper, capability and politeness. He is called the "Beau Brummell" of Canadian hotel clerks.

STORE WINDOWS AND FRONTS

No Royal Road to Window Dressing— An Office Boy's Views on the Subject —Opinions Wanted Regarding Displays of Goods on the Street.

Does the average grocer know or care how to dress a window

Does the average grocer know the value to his business of a well-dressed window and attractive store front?

The man on the street who knows little and cares less about shop windows, but who has a habit of seeing things, would probably answer "No" to both questions.

The fact is the ordinary grocery window is not attractive. And why? Because the grocer is not sufficiently interested.

Any man of ordinary intelligence can dress a window attractively just as any young person of average capacity can get through the university if he wants to. But he has to want to and he has to work.

There's no royal road to window dressing.

And windows are not dressed by inspiration. The store keeper must go after ideas, then work them out.

Behind every effective piece of window dressing there must be one good idea.

Don't smother an idea under a lot of stuff just to fill up. If you have an idea for a confectionery window, don't murder it under a lot of soap boxes.

Display one thing at a time, is not a bad rule. Of course it has exceptions.

WHEN DOES A STORE FRONT NOT AFFRONT.

(We are not responsible for this essay. Our office boy has taken to using the pen and we thought that this is the easiest way to help him get over it. N. B.—We wrote the title.)

Some merchants think that their show windows are places for everything that they haven't room for on their shelves They don't show or stand any show for getting new customers. The front windows should be in the rear of the store.

I went into a grocery store once and asked a clerk for a carload of black dirt.

"This ain't no truck garden," said the clerk.

"But you have a lot of samples of such real estate in your windows." And he kicked me out.

I tried another storekeeper and asked him if those vegetables in his window which he had kept there for two weeks, were fresh.

"Certainly!" was the phonograph reply.

"Well then, were they raised on the soil in your window?" The proprietor raised me.

Of course, some men only keep store, while others make it so their stores keep them.

If a man is a good shower of his goods, you can be sure that he needs no cellar for them; but if he isn't, he needs a mighty good seller.

A TORONTO INTERIOR.

This is a picture of F. G. Martin's store, 1498 Queen street west, Toronto. It looks good and the stock is well arranged, but somehow it looks too crowded. That's partly the fault of the picture. There should have been more floor space in it. Still there seems to be some things that must be in the way of a progressive grocer like Mr. Martin. The day will come when the grocery counter will be relegated to the back shop. Why not? That's what is happening in the States, and the grocers who have tried it like it. There are still a few good stuffs that are not put up in sealed packages, and if this pure food agitation keeps up people will take a dislike to seeing them stand about exposed to many kinds of impurities.

STREET DISPLAYS.

Is there any gain to the grocery trade as a whole in stacking store fronts breast high with fruit and vegetables.

In these days of pure food agitation it is strange that the health authorities do not take the matter up. Raspberries cannot very well be washed, yet thousands of cases of them stand open on the streets of Toronto in all the dust and filth until they are sold. Why need a grocer do business on the street anymore than the hardware merchant or the baker? The fronts of the best stores are not cumbered in this way. The Grocer would be pleased to have for publication some views of practical grocers on this question. Won't some of those who don't put fruit and vegetables out give the rest of the trade the benefit of their experience?

KEEP THE STOCK CLEAN.

One of the advantages of taking stock is that it brings to the surface slow-selling and shopworn articles. The good retailer should not wait the periodical stock-taking time to turn over his stock but should make it a weekly duty to go through the entire line and bring to the front the slow sellers. When these slow movers are found they should be brought to the front, marked with a price that will move them, and then the energy of every salesman should be directed to their sale.

BIG NEW WAREHOUSE IN MONTREAL.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, will erect a large new warehouse next Spring. Already the necessary property has been purchased, the firm having obtained from the Seminary of St. Sulpice two adjoining lots, making 23,000 square feet, in the heart of the wholesale district and next to the Grand Trunk offices. The two lots in question have 90 feet frontage on St. Paul street, 101 feet on William street, and 250 feet depth, running right from William street to St. Paul street. The third side of the building will face St. Henry street, the remaining side a twenty-foot lane. Thus the situation of the building will be an admirable one for commercial purposes. The new building, which will be six storeys high, will be fire-proof, built of brick, and excellently lighted. Architects are now preparing plans.

D. Granda, of F. & J. Granda, cigar manufacturers, Montreal, left Tuesday of this week on a business trip to Havana. Mr. Granda expects to be absent at least three weeks and perhaps a month.

N. B. MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 20, 1906.

The writer had the pleasure of attending the annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, held at Amherst, during the past week. The meeting was one of the most successful of recent years. One feature was the large delegation present from St. John. The presence of Mr. Cliff, representing the MacLean Publishing Co. was particularly appreciated by the board, the more as the MacLean Co. have annually sent a direct representative to report its meeting, in fact it is the report of the MacLean representative which is considered the official report of the meetings. Particulars of the meeting, and in regard to Amherst, perhaps the most enterprising of the younger cities of the Maritime Provinces, will be found in Mr. Cliff's report published in The Grocer.

In markets there is nothing of striking importance. The looked for advance in sugar has been relaxed. One feature of interest is the erecting of an up-to-date fish drying plant for the preparing of fish for the West India business, by John Sealy, one of our large fish merchant. This is the first plant of the kind in New Brunswick.

OIL.—Business is just fair. Burning oil has, of course, improved consumptive demand. Contracts for Fall shipments have been made for some time. Prices firm. In lubricating oils a good steady sale. Paint oils have but a fair demand. Prices unchanged. In cod oil there is improved demand. Prices continue quite low.

SALT—In Liverpool coarse salt this has been an active season. Prices have ruled rather lower than last year. Market is expected to be stronger in the coming month. There are still several cargoes due. In fine salt Canadian has good steady sale.

CANNED GOODS — Vegetables are firmly held at full prices. It looks, however, as if there would be corn and tomatoes to last till new goods arrive. New peas held firm. In fruits prices are firm at quite full figures. New gallon apples are quoted rather above last year, they come on a bare market. Salmon held at full prices. In domestic fish sardines likely to rule firm. Haddies and kippers a fair pack.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples continue to improve. For best stock, prices still high. While last week bananas were somewhat scarce, they are again in good supply. Oranges high. Lemons have been quite sharply advanced. Melons are not a large line. Peaches are higher. Plums and pears about as usual.

DRIED FRUIT—Spot seeded raisins are firm. New goods unchanged. The outlook for Valencias is for quite high prices. Malaga loose muscatels not yet generally quoted. Layer rather higher than last year. Spot prunes scarce and high. For new goods prices are easy. Peaches and apricots will be high. In currants prices unchanged. New goods quoted about the same as spot stock; prices higher than last year. New evaporated apples are quoted for later shipment. No spot stock. Dates, figs and peels all higher than last year. Good Valencia onions now received.

MOLASSES — There are quite full stocks held. The arrival of two cargoes of Porto Rico, while not making a large stock, means a fair quantity of the goods here. Fancy Barbadoes a good stock. A fair supply of choice. Prices unchanged.

FISH—The outlook is for high prices in dry cod fish. Pollock, for local business, have but little sale. A drying plant for West India stock has been established here. In pickled herring fair supply. Prices held at full figures. In smoked herring some new arriving. Tendency is to higher prices. In fresh fish there is now light variety.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—In flour, manitobas rather lower. The situation in all grades easy. Feed rather scarce. Oats lower. Oatmeal has but a light sale, price unchanged. Cornmeal a fair business at even figures. Beans quiet. New stock quoted at rather lower figures. Yelloweyes are firmer.

CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER CHEESE

Important Meeting of the Trade at Brockville—Cool Curing, Grading and a Montreal Referee—Subjects Discussed—Improvements Going on.

An important cheese conference was held at Brockville in the Government cool curing station last Friday. Prof. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, called the meeting for the consideration of three things, cool curing of cheese, grading of cheese and the appointment by the Government of an official cheese referee at Montreal. A hundred gentlemen responded to his invitation. Nearly every cheese board from Peterboro to Alexandria was represented. There were also present many cheese makers, buyers, cheese instructors, patrons, and manufacturers, besides G. A. Putnam, superintendent of farmers' institutes in Ontario; Mr. Publow and G. H. Barr, chief dairy inspectors for Eastern and Western Ontario respectively; D. Derbyshire, M.P., and others.

After an address by Prof. Ruddick, who presided, there was a general discussion in regard to grading and the appointment of a referee at Montreal. It was generally favorable to grading, but against the appointment of a referee, but no action was taken in the way of putting the questions to a vote.

Prof. Ruddick stated that one of his main reasons for desiring to hold the meeting was in order that as many persons as possible interested in the dairy trade might have an opportunity of thoroughly inspecting the Government cool curing station and the system of work conducted in it, for in the course of another six weeks or thereabouts this and other stations would close operations. He said that the experiments conducted during the past five years had been satisfactory, and had fully attained the object for which they were established, viz.: to demonstrate the advantage to be derived from the process of cool curing. He was pleased to report that an active and intelligent interest in the system had been developed in many sections of Canada, though he regretted to state that Eastern Ontario had not shown such interest or progress with regard to these advantages as some other sections. Central Ontario had taken hold of cool curing with more enthusiasm than any other portion of Canada, and, as a result, the improvement in factory facilities had been marked, resulting in the dairymen deriving especial benefit. Improvement was also noticeable in the Kingston district, but not to such a marked degree as further west. He hoped that Brockville would take part in this general improvement and that cool curing rooms would soon be provided in all the factories of the section.

Progressive Quebec.

Among the most progressive sections that he had noticed was in Lake St. John, 250 miles north of Quebec, where there had been recently built eight large factories, fully equipped with modern cool curing rooms, many of the older established factories were being fitted in a similar manner. He then reviewed in detail the advantages to be derived from cool curing methods. The Brockville station had accommodation for 2,700 boxes, and the average cost for it per year has been $65. Regarding the appointment of an official referee at Montreal, he said it was the desire of the department to get an expression of opinion from those interested in the dairy trade. It would be remembered that about twelve years ago the position was made of an official inspector, which was cancelled a few years later, and no appointment was made to fill that or a similar position until 1900, when an official referee was created, which was filled by the speaker for the first three months.

PROF. J. A. RUDDICK.
Dominion Dairy Commissioner.

About a Referee.

Some difference of opinion seemed to exist as to whether there is or is not a necessity for a referee. The speaker thought that such an appointment should result in the advancement of the interests of salesmen as much as it would insure prompt examination of disputed lots of cheese. An opinion which seems to have gained considerable belief had been that the certificates of the referee have always been against the seller, but he knew of his own knowledge that this has not been the case, for he was aware of several instances where the finding had been of direct benefit to the sellers and against the buyers. It was perhaps true that the buyer was sometimes one of the rejected upon the referee's certificates. This he hoped was not often done for he considered that the buyer was in a better position to protect himself as a rule than is the salesman.

Already a number of expressions of opinion relative to this matter had been received by the department and generally salesmen were opposed to it. As a measure of protection, however, to both parties a referee seems advisable to many and the department has fully determined that if it does make the appointment it will be with the distinct understanding that the referee shall not act except on the request of both parties to the dispute

Grading of Cheese.

Another question he wished to consider was that of grading cheese. To-day it is sold as "Finest" or "Under finest" —just two grades. This he thought was too loose a practice. Either the finest grade is too low or the grade known as "under finest" includes too much. If at least three grades were established it would be beneficial to the trade. As the matter now stands, it is impossible to clearly define what is meant by "under finest," as the term is too vague and indefinite. If the trade is to have recognized goods, there must be standards for these grades. At present Canada's standard for finest is too frequently simply absence of bad flavor. This he considered insufficient to establish a first standard for cheese

Better Factories Needed.

To be of first standard cheese should be not only free from bad flavor, but also have developed a rich, meaty flavor. In order to make this possible, Canada needs greatly to have much improved factories. In Central Ontario, where the factories are generally joint stock and co-operative, the improvements in facilities are far in advance of sections where factories are owned by individuals. Patrons, he thought, should co-operate with owners in the inauguration of improvement. This could be done by giving an advance on the price of manufacturing and the results would soon repay the patrons. While the cost of production has increased of recent years the price paid for manufacturing has not increased and this, he thought, was unfair. The work of syndicate instruction in Eastern Ontario had been an effective factor in bringing about much needed improvement and financial benefit to the trade.

Chief Instructor Publow pointed out two things as being necessary to produce a fine article, viz: Cool curing for milk on the farm followed by cool curing in the factory. Cool curing with good milk well handled would produce an article even in hot weather equal to best September.

The discussion which followed was very general.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

The cheese market, at least as far as prices paid at country markets are concerned, is still pursuing the advancing tendency, in spite of the already abnormally high prices for this season of the year.

Weather conditions continue unfavorable, and in many sections of the Dominion of Canada the pastures have been almost completely destroyed by the prolonged intense heat, and if it were not for the fact of the cows being out of doors, we might almost say that a large portion of our August made cheese are "fodder" goods. Prices are so high that farmers can well afford to give their stock extra feed to keep the flow of milk up as much as possible, and they are doing this, but the product is not "full grass goods."

Again reverting to statistics, we find that receipts in Montreal were last week 97,202 boxes of cheese and 26,571 packages of butter, against 80,934 boxes of cheese and 38,901 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,286,504 boxes of cheese and 395,160 packages of butter, as compared with 1,238,993 boxes of cheese and 477,026 packages of butter for the same period of last year.

The exports from Montreal were last week 83,781 boxes of cheese and 24,560 packages of butter, against 74,263 boxes of cheese and 31,321 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,203,956 boxes of cheese and 216,409 packages of butter, as compared with 1,089,747 boxes of cheese and 326,371 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Our receipts since May 1 show an increase of 47,511 boxes of cheese and a decrease of 81,866 packages of butter,. Our shipments show an increase of 114,-209 boxes of cheese and a decrease of 109,962 packages of butter as compared with the same period of last year. In last week we accumulated apparently 16,268 boxes of cheese, against only 9,-518 boxes for the same week of last year, but since May 1 there is an apparent falling off of stocks in Montreal of 66,698 boxes of cheese, and in butter we find that our stocks in Montreal are about 28,096 packages more this year than at the same time last year.

According to advices from Great Britain, stocks of cheese show a slight accumulation there, but this is only natural at this season of the year, when the production exceeds the consumption, and a good portion of present supplies will have to last for the Winter months when the production ceases. It is certainly a fact that our stocks in the Dominion of Canada are considerably less than a year ago, and the make is shrinking so fast that we may not have enough goods to supply the legitimate demand; at any rate, there are at present no signs of declining prices.

On invitation of Mr. J. A. Ruddick, the Dominion Dairy Commissioner, the different Ontario cheese boards sent their representatives to a meeting at Brockville last week for the purpose of discussing, first, the advisability of having an official referee appointed for Montreal; second, to have cheese sold at the different country boards on their merits and to have three grades instead of two, as now we have only "finest" and "under finest"; and third, the cool curing room question.

The meeting does not seem to have been a general success. Country salesmen are very much divided on the question of an official referee in Montreal. We should have one to settle disputes regarding quality. An honest referee will never decide against the farmers, but once he gives his certificate for goods not being of "finest" quality, it saves the Montreal merchants a lot of trouble to settle with the country salesmen, who are too apt to regard a deduction in price as unjust.

Regarding the cool curing rooms, the Dominion Government demonstrated for some years that cheese cured in a moderately cool and even temperature were of a better quality than those cured in the ordinary way, exposed to all changes of temperature. This was done at a great public expense to induce the factories to adopt this system for themselves. No doubt the experiments have been a success, as the cool curing room cheese have been sold at a premium over others. The Government now feel that they have done their share of education and they will this season close their public cool curing rooms and the progressive factories should now at once install their own cool curing rooms.

Regarding the appointment of an official referee for Montreal, we should have a capable judge of both cheese and butter. He should be a man able to speak both languages, viz., French and English, and all things duly considered, he should be a man from the Province of Quebec. Mr. Ruddick evidently is in favor of having an official referee appointed for Montreal, and certainly the merchants want it, but the country salesmen seem to be largely of the opinion that they can make better terms for themselves with the Montreal merchants without such a referee. This is the cause of the long delay of the appointment, as it is generally thought that the wishes of the country salesmen and makers of cheese and butter are to be considered first. The referee must be a man who is trusted by both the countrymen and the Montreal merchants, otherwise his decisions would lead to never ending disputes.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The provision situation seems to be a little unsettled. Some prices are advancing and some are going back. Consumption has been very heavy but recently there has been a feeling that the high prices have checked it. From Nova Scotia comes the word that stocks are very low and supplies hard to get. In Toronto some stocks have been accumulating and prices in those lines are backing up. In Great Britain the market outlook is worse and there is no encouragement from that quarter.

"Two rocks face us," said a large packer this week. "Old Country prices are now below the cost of production here and October is always a bad market over there." Of course the packers can't afford to let their export trade go even to take advantage of the temporarily better paying domestic business, but they are not pushing sales very strongly across the Atlantic.

The packers are paying for live hogs 50c. less than a week ago. The price is $6.65 f.o.b. country points. That means $6.50 for the farmer. Next week it will be 25c. lower.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Good demand in all lines is reported in this market. For lard, both pure and compound, inquiry has been quite brisk and orders received numerous. Weather conditions have considerably increased the sale of hams, bacon and smoked meats generally. Prices at the present moment are steadily maintained. Whatever else occurs in the near future, it is not probable that there will be any advance. It all depends upon the state of the hog market which, just now, is about firm.

BUTTER — Last week the English market advanced ¾c. a pound, and as a result the Canadian market is now about ½c. a pound higher. At the advance business is very quiet, not many orders coming forward, but holders are indifferent sellers, and are holding in anticipation of better prices. Stocks are accumulating locally, but notwithstanding the market continues to remain firm.

CHEESE—Prevailing prices are the highest on record for this season of the year. Since last report the market has scored another advance. Demand from the other side continues good, and with liberal shipments stocks are not accumulating to any extent. The opinion held by those in the trade is that prices cannot advance much further, but a serious decline is improbable considering the hot weather and the shrinkage in the make.

EGGS—This week the egg market is somewhat easier. Quality of eggs received continues poor, owing to the very warm weather. Consumption at present is limited, receipts being the heavier. Dealers are not over anxious to buy, as they do not wish to put away eggs such as are arriving daily, and it is not an easy matter to dispose of any taken. Selects are quoted at 20c. to 21c., while good No. 1 bring 18c. Straight stock is sold from 17c. to 17½c.

TORONTO MARKETS.

PROVISIONS — There are many changed quotations this week and the market seems unsettled, prices on the same lines varying more than usual so that in some cases the range is somewhat wider than usual. A good demand is still reported, but some stocks appear to be accumulating and it may be the point of highest consumption is past or production is greater. Receipts of hogs have been a little better, though nothing to boast of.

EGGS—Produce houses are paying 17 1-2c. per dozen for eggs delivered in Winnipeg.

The twelve Government creameries in Alberta last year turned out for market 925,000 lbs. of butter, which averaged 21.35 cents, says the New York Herald. The product was sold in British Columbia, Yukon, China, and Japan. The Government operates and turns over the entire net profits of these creameries to 1,200 farmers supplying the milk.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Market Continues Quiet—Prices Low, but Foreign Grain Buyers Think They Should be Lower—Little Business in Flour—Cereal Prices Unsettled.

The Canadian grain and cereal markets are still waiting for the new crop. Grain is lower than ever before, but even grain buyers seem to think it not low enough. Whether foreign or domestic opinion will prevail only time will tell. Very little business is doing in flour. The advance in shipping rates for export has blocked that channel temporarily at least. Cereals are unsettled and prices are seeking to adjust themselves to new crop conditions.

The annual agricultural statistics for Great Britain recently published give the grain grown crop yield for three years as follows :

Crops	1903. Quarters.	1904. Quarters.	1905. Quarters.
Wheat	6,102,000	5,740,000	7 542 000
Barley	8,164 000	7,8 7,000	8 125,000
Oats	21 618 000	22,094,000	23,786,000

And the amount required to be imported as : Wheat and flour, 114,226,590 cwts.; other, grain, 86,692,628 cwts.

MONTREAL.

GRAIN—There is an easier feeling in oats this week as is shown by prices quoted. Corn is also rather easier, prices having declined two cents.

FLOUR—There has been little change in the flour situation since last report. Locally the demand is not very brisk, although orders are occasionally received for quantities more or less large. Export inquiry is rather quiet yet, although some improvement is noticeable. There have been some shipments to South African ports recently, while inquiry from the other side seems to be a little better.

GRAIN.—Little business is being done here. Prices of Ontario wheat have returned to within a ½c. of what they were a week ago after a temporary depression. The western crop is, however, still undecided, and the mind of the market is in the same condition.

THE GRAIN COMMISSION.

The members of the Grain Commission have received their commissions. They are John Miller, Indian Head, Sask., chairman; Wm. L. McNair, Keys, Man.; George E. Goldie, Ayr, and J. R. Boyle, Edmonton. They are empowered to investigate all matters in connection with the grain inspection act and the Manitoba grain act, to visit the grain-growing districts, to inspect the interior elevators, and inquire into the distribution of cars, the methods of the grain dealers of Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, and the handling of grain at Fort William, Port Arthur, the other lake ports and at St. John and Halifax. They will also investigate the manner of handling the grain on its arrival in England, which will necessitate a trip to England.

EDUCATION OF MILLERS.

Consul J. I. Brittain writes from Kehl that the large exportation of wheat from Russia to Germany and other continental countries is causing the Russian millers to pay more attention to the education of their sons in the art of scientific milling. The consul continues :

Recently several milling schools have been established in Russia, modeled largely after the more successful schools in Germany, for the education of millers. The course of instruction, besides the Russian language, includes the following subjects : Mathematics, physics, electro-technics, technology, chemistry, machine building, milling, mill engineering, drawing, and bookkeeping. Several visits to the mills are made each year in order to enable the pupils to see the practical working, and thus obtain a knowledge of milling. The schools are divided into three grades or classes, and the pupils spend one year in each class, the complete course extending over three years. Pupils who attend a milling school for two years are only obliged to serve the same period in the army, instead of serving the customary four years, while students who have passed through the complete course are obliged to serve only one year in the army. In Germany one seldom sees a town with from 2,500 to 4,000 population without a successful flour mill, and largely because they teach milling according to present day methods.

CEREAL NOTES.

Baker & Morrison's flour mill and elevator at Wallaceburg were burned August 11.

Fire damaged the Bilmore mill of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. last week and 30,000 bushels of wheat were damaged by water.

RECORD PRICE FOR SALMON.

Canners on the Fraser River Got up to 40 cents—Pack 200,000 Cases Short of Four Years Ago—Other British Columbia Markets.

By Our Own Correspondent.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 16, 1906.

Forty cents per fish for sockeye salmon is pretty nearly touching high water mark in the purchase of fish for salmon canning purposes. It is the highest record for the market on the river. The fact that the American canners have maintained a camp on the river and bought all they could has had some influence on this price, but the scarcity of the fish, the shortness of the run and the conviction that the sockeye are over for this season, have also been contributory factors The pack up to date is not much over 150,000 cases for the whole river, which is 200,000 cases less than the pack of four years ago. The canners all claim that it has been a losing game to have been open for packing at all this season. The run on the northern waters of B. C. is also over. There it has been smaller than anticipated and than other years. On the Skeena and Naas rivers humpbacks are now running and are being packed. Not choice fish, the humpback salmon has been put up for several seasons now for trade in Japan where it finds a ready market, being of course, cheaper than the choicer sockeye.

On the Fraser River, cohoes and silver salmon are following the sockeye run and the run of cohoes promises to be fairly large, so large in fact that the trappers have asked permission to operate the traps during the run. They have also asked the fisheries commission, now sitting at the coast, to endorse their memorial, especially in view of the fact that it would give an opportunity of testing the traps in the catching of cohoe salmon.

The fruit crop, so far as it relates to tree fruits, is turning out well in B. C. this year. The apple crop is fully up to expectations and so is the pear crop. Peaches, which, of course, are mainly grown in the Okanagan Valley as yet, have turned out remarkably well. The quantity shipped has amazed those who have not been watching the rapid advance of the plantations of peach trees along the famous Okanagan Lake. At the coast, in Vancouver and Victoria, the growing of peaches is successfully carried on, but it is not likely ever to be established in the way it is being done in the interior. When railway facilities serve the Similkameen district and Keremeos will also be large producers of peaches and similar fruits.

The plum crop of B. C. is now coming in rapidly, and is being sought eagerly, as the crop in Eastern Canada is reported to be largely a failure. The Italian prune is being largely grown, especially in the coast and Fraser River districts. It is not liable to plum rot, as are so many of the larger and softer varieties. The prune also stands shipment better and is popular with consumers. The drying of prunes or plums has not been undertaken on any large scale in this province as yet, though there would seem to be a future for this branch of industry.

Current prices of produce show upward tendency The butter market is extremely firm for this season. Continued hot and dry weather east and west has been cutting down production in proportion as the pasturage has become poorer and drier. The local production has been much less than was expected. The price remains still at 25c. to the trade for local creamery, but it is possible that a raise will be enforced. Eastern creamery brings 22c. to 24c. Local eggs are 30c. wholesale and scarce. Case eggs, good eastern stock, are quoted at 24c. for choice selected.

The fruit market is still well supplied a large range of local plums, pears and apples, as well as Okanagan peaches being in stock, while blackberries are now plentiful and bringing good price with demand active. California fruit is still in fair supply, as well as some Oregon and Washington plums and prunes. Peaches from California are, however, taking second place to the favorite local product, which is being greatly appreciated as being the first time it was supplied in any quantity on the local market.

The Australian steamer brought in a large consignment of pineapples and water melons and canteloupes are plentiful now. California oranges are quoted 25c. per case higher, and lemons are still showing upward tendency, though the price seemed to have reached the top limit.

Ripe tomatoes, both from coast and Fraser River districts and from the Okanagan, are on the market in good supply. They bring about 50c. per crate less than last quotation. Potatoes are very plentiful and quote at $1.15 per ton. The fact that this is a remarkably dry and hot season tells in favor of the potato crop of the delta lands of the coast and lower Fraser Valley, which is usually too moist a climate to produce a really first-class dry potato of the Ashcroft type. This year the weather conditions have suited the potato in the coast district perfectly. The crop is, of course, not as large as it would have been under other conditions, but the quality especially for keeping purposes will amply make up for the lack of quantity.

Lemon Prices Away up—Heavy Business Doing in all Classes of Fruit and Vegetables—Unusual Heat Said to Threaten the Growing Crops.

The hot weather has created a very heavy demand and also furnished supplies to meet it. The cry now is for rain to save unmatured crops. Except in regard to lemons the market is little changed during the week and heavy business has been doing throughout the country. Delaware peaches are arriving but Canadian Crawfords have not yet started. The excessive heat has given a violent impetus to lemon prices.

British Columbia fresh salmon are now on sale in Montreal. Surely nothing could more clearly demonstrate transportation facilities and the result in the creation of markets and development of industry.

FISH—Owing to increased arrivals, fresh halibut is lower this week. Fresh B. C. salmon is arriving by express now, and considerable trade is being done in this line. Gaspe salmon, chilled, is in good demand at 15c. Mackerel, fresh haddock and cod rather scarce this week and prices have been advanced. Lake trout and whitefish have been arriving more freely, but prices are steadily maintained. There is a scarcity of pickled salmon, but new pack Labrador are beginning to arrive, which relieves the situation more or less.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—The choicer grades of peaches are not yet coming and the aspect of the market is little changed from last week. A few plums are arriving but the preserving demand has not commenced and despite the short crop prices are moderate, from 65c. to 75c. a basket for Bradshaws, Niagaras and Yellow Egg.

Lemons, however, are the feature. They are up to $7.50 and a leading fruit importer said he expected to see them $8.50 if the hot weather keeps up. Last year's high price was $6.50. A week ago $5.25 was the high mark.

Oranges are moving out steadily, the demand coming principally from the Summer resorts. Bananas have been arriving pretty ripe and some losses are recorded.

Imported fruits are light, water melons and California peaches, pears and plums making up the list. Of these three California fruits one Toronto house has received to date 29 cars. This gives an idea of Toronto's capacity as a fruit consumer.

VEGETABLES — Alarmist reports have been coming from the tomato growing districts about the effect of the hot spell on the growing crops. They are, however, largely discounted on the market. Arrivals continue liberal and prices are lower, though there is a firmer tone than at last week end. It is alleged that the canners are fearing the effect of the hot days and are rushing to their work. Cauliflower was said to be suffering from the heat in gardens adjacent to Toronto, and corn was withering before it was fit to gather. Potatoes are higher again, but as soon as the farmers get a chance at them supplies will swell again. Otherwise the market is nearly unchanged. Supplies generally are plentiful and demand good.

AUBURN ORCHARD PEACHES

We have fifteen thousand baskets in our own orchards. Crawford type will be ready August 27th. Don't buy a "pig in a poke." You buy oranges sized, graded, and sold according to diameter measurement. That's the way we sell peaches. Let us ship a trial order and see for yourself. These little ones in the bottom don't pay. Our packages are guaranteed to contain uniform sized fruit.

That is just what I have a right to infer from Bulletin No. 119 (June, 1906) issued by the Department of Inland Revenue, Ottawa.

182 samples were collected. Of these 129 were adulterated, 2 were doubtful, 19 contained preservatives but were otherwise genuine, but only 32 were absolutely genuine—i.e., were unadulterated and contained no preservatives whatever.

Of these 32 pure samples

10 or nearly one third were made by E. D. Smith, Winona, the rest were scattered in 1's and 2's amongst different makers.

These are the facts. You can verify them yourself by writing to the Inland Revenue Department for a copy of Bulletin No. 119 (June, 1906).

If you are interested in the Jams, Jellies and Sealed Fruits in glassbeing sold in Canada you will certainly write for Bulletin 119.

FRUIT NOTES

Astrachan, duchess and harvest apples are so plentiful in the vicinity of Galt, Ont., that people can have them for the picking.

The fruit division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is arranging a series of demonstrations in boxing apples to be given by an expert, who has been brought from Oregon specially for the purpose. The schedule so far is as follows: Aug. 22, St. Catharines; 24 and 25, Chatham; 27 and 28, Forest; 29, Grimsby; 30, Winona; 31, Burlington; Sept. 1, Oakville; 3 and 4, Toronto; 6, Walkerton; 7, Owen Sound; 8, Thornbury 10, Orillia; 11, Brighton; 12, Newcastle; 13, Oshawa.

The fruit and vegetable growers of the Hamilton, Dunnville and Oakville district held their annual picnic at Brant House, Burlington, Ont., last week. There was an attendance of about 3,000 and addresses were delivered by Hon. Nelson Monteith, E. D. Smith, M.P., F. R. Lalor, M.P., Thos. Bain, E. J. Mahony, R. A. Thompson, North Wentworth; James A. Livingston, Grimsby; J. T. Regan, Ancaster; Rev. W. J. Anderson, Beamsville; J. C. Ford, Oakville; Dr. J. C. McGregor, Waterdown, and J. R. Binkley.

U. K. APPLE CROP A HALF.

Circular of Liverpool Importing Firm Last Season's Prices.

Woodall & Co., Liverpool, in their circular on the apple crop in the United Kingdom and the apple situation, says:

"We again have the pleasure in giving the comparative figures of the apple crop in the United Kingdom, from which it may be gathered that it is about half a crop, as against an almost entire failure last year.

	Over.	Average	Under.	Total Receipts
This year	40	109	104	253
Last year	3	44	223	280
1904	128	109	15	252
1903	2	17	248	267
1902	12	98	184	294

The reports from Holland, Belgium and Germany all indicate the crops to be good average.

"The total imports from the United States and Canada into the United Kingdom during the past season were 1,877,000 barrels, as compared with 2,140,000 barrels in the previous season, and 3,053,000 in 1903-4, which was a record, and 2,330,000 in 1902-3.

"Of last season's receipts of 1,877,000 barrels, 930,104 were received into Liverpool.

"After the holidays the market opened with very retail supplies, the bulk being from Canada, and there was an excellent demand, which was well maintained to the close at satisfactory prices, varying according to supplies, and during April ranged from 24s. to 33s. for Baldwins, 21s. to 36s. for Spies, 20s. to 28s. 6d russets, 19s. to 26s. 6d, Ben Davis, and American Baldwins, 20s. to 25s., russets 20s. to 22s., Ben Davis 20s. to 26s. 6d. As regards the prospects for the coming season, it is evident that a large proportion of the English crop will be marketed early, and will thus come into direct competition with Fall fruit from America and Canada. On the other hand, crops of pears and plums are exceedingly light, which will doubtless help the demand for apples, but if our half crop is gathered it will go a long way to supply the demand during the early part of the season, and last year's high range of prices cannot reasonably to be expected."

B. C. FRUIT IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has generously consented to repeat the favor granted last year to the fruit growers of British Columbia in carrying, free of charge, a commercial consignment of fruit to the United Kingdom for exhibition purposes and the promotion of the export fruit trade. The company has agreed to carry the fruit, a carload lot, in cold storage to the shipping port, Montreal or Quebec, where it will be carefully transferred to the cold storage rooms of one of the new Atlantic Empresses, thus insuring its arrival in the Old Country in prime condition.

The experiment of shipping a carload lot of fruit to London last year was so signally successful that the provincial government deemed it desirable to duplicate the consignment this season, so that the interest aroused in British Columbia fruit in London, Glasgow, Dublin and other distributing points should not be allowed to die out.

NOTES.

Mrs. Thos. Kitchen, Nanaimo, has the only lemon tree bearing fruit in British Columbia.

About 15,000 salmon were taken in the Bay of Fundy this season. The catch last year was 13,000 and it was considered exceptionally good.

The Kootenay Fruit-Growers' Association assembled at Nelson, B.C., recently, passed a resolution by 15 votes to six calling upon the Dominion Government to admit Chinese agricultural laborers free of head duty. This action was taken because of the scarcity of labor.

The Dominion Orchard Co., which is projecting an immense orchard in the neighborhood of Montreal, has elected these officers: S. M. Luke, president; J. O. Castle, vice-president, and C. S. Clark, secretary; H. D. Metcalfe and F. W. Gross.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

Glucose Manufacturers Said to be Affected by New U. S. Pure Food Law—Movement Against Street Vendors of Candy and Fruit.

The Corn Products Refining Co., says the New York Journal of Commerce, has sent out notices to all its customers that hereafter bisulphide will not be used in glucose. This action is announced to be in deference to the new national pure food law. Heretofore bisulphide has been used to bleach the glucose, making it white.

Local manufacturers of and wholesale dealers in table syrups are inclined to the belief that the company's action has been brought about through the publication of the results of some recent analyses of syrups by the Pennsylania State Department of Health, which caused a large number of the brands examined to be placed under the ban of the State law.

The glucose for these syrups has been purchased from the Corn Products Refining Co., controlled by the Standard Oil Co., and mixed with pure sugar syrup. The resultant compound upon chemical analysis, showed that sulphites had been used, and consequently it was declared unfit for consumption.

On the other hand, the syrup made by the Corn Products Co. itself, and supposed to be the same as the product sold by it to the compounders of syrups, is declared to have shown not a trace of sulphites.

The dealers are wondering if the corn syrup purchased by them was adulterated with a deliberate intention to drive their goods out of the market and give the Corn Products Refining Co. a monopoly of the trade. At any rate, it is known that many protests against the use of the bleaching sulphites have been made to the company recently.

AGAINST STREET VENDORS.

Curbstone candymakers are affected by the new pure food crusade of the board of health of Los Angeles, Cal., says the Confectioners' Journal. An effort is to be made to compel these vendors to cover their wares so as to protect them thoroughly from dust and dirt. During last month the chemist and the bacteriologist have been making chemical tests on samples of fruit, vegetables and confectionery taken from the street vendors. Here is a section of an ordnance which the health department is now considering:

"No person shall expose, sell or offer for sale breadstuffs, cake, pastry, candy, confectionery, dried fruits, fresh fruit or vegetables outside any any building in any open windows or doorways, or on any sidewalk, street, or alley or thoroughfore, except they be covered so as to thoroughly protect them from dust and dirt." For several months the Health Department has been discussing ways and means to stop the sale of candy and confectionery from open stands. The proposed new ordinance is similar to one now in effect in Cleveland, Ohio; New Orleans, La., and in a number of other eastern and southern cities.

ARTIFICIAL ICE CREAM.

"When Prof. Stillman, of Stevens Institute, gave a dinner to two friends, at which most of the viands were made artificially by chemical means," writes Lawrence Perry in Technical World Magazine, "he had small idea of the furor his efforts would produce. But he has received hundreds of letters asking how different dishes were produced —so many that he has not had time to answer many of them.

"The chemical processes which he employed were some of them simple and some quite complicated. To make vanilla ice cream by artificial means, for instance, the alchemist took some triple refined cotton seed oil, placed it in a centrifugal machine which revolved at a velocity of 3,000 revolutions a minute. duced, which was then frozen, chemically of course. The flavor was obtained by the addition of vanilline, glucin, and nitrobenzol. They say that ice cream composed as above is sold in many Southern States where cotton seed oil is more plentiful and consequently cheaper than milk or cream. It is far from harmful, tastes good and does not melt as quickly as the genuine ice."

WHO WOULDN'T ADVERTISE.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead that to himself has never said, "My trade of late is getting bad, I'll try another ten inch ad." If such there be, go mark him well. For him no bank account shall swell, no angels watch the golden stair to welcome home a millionaire. To such a man the noisy din of traffic may not enter in, for bargain seekers by the score shall pass, nor heed, his dingy door. Tread lightly, friends, let no rude sound disturb his solitude profound. So let him live in calm repose, unsought except by men he owes. And when he dies, go plant him deep, that naught may break his dreamless sleep: where no rude clamor may dispel the quiet that he loves so well, and that the world may know its loss, place on his grave a wreath of moss and on the stone above: "Here lies a chump who would not advertise."

J. J. Manship, manufacturer of chocolates, Amherst, N.S., says a Moncton, N. B., despatch, was in the latter city recently looking for a site to locate there, but could not find a building large enough.

FRESH.

The woman who was doing her Christmas marketing was difficult to please. She had overhauled every comestible in the shop and insisted on getting the best in stock at a penny a pound cheaper than the marked price, and now it was a question of eggs.

"Are you quite sure these eggs are fresh?" she asked.

"They are, madam."

"You will guarantee them?"

"I will, madam."

"But how am I to know that you know they are fresh?"

"My dear lady," said the exhausted shopman, with incisive emphasis, "if you will kindly step to the telephone and ring up our farm you will hear the hens that laid them still cackling! I'm afraid I can't say any more than that."

3 YEARS AGO

Sugar cane gave big returns to the Cuban farmers. Tobacco was neglected, crop short, prices advanced slightly. Two years ago only ⅔ crop tobacco harvested, prices advanced so that tobacco was the more profitable crop.

One year ago everybody planted tobacco, manufacturers jubilant; during December, 1905, the rain was continuous, drowning out the plants, freshets prevailed, washing away acres and acres of tobacco, result a little over a half crop to fill empty warehouses. This tobacco is now going through the curing process, farmers have already sold at fancy prices, some manufacturers will have to buy in December; I won't. Everybody should advance prices; I may.

No old tobacco in the market, plenty in my warehouses for Pharaoh at old prices, plus carrying charges.

The run on Pebble upset my calculations; now using 1904 crop. Quality superfine, cost to manufacture over $3.50 per thousand more, worth about $7.00 per thousand more at to-day's prices.

After September 1st can allow only 3% cash discount, instead of 5% on Pebble; all jobbers' discounts will have to be suspended.

My 500 assorted guarantee offer still holds good. With Pharaoh 10c. and Pebble 5c. in stock you can bet you have the best trade winners manufactured.

TOBACCO AND CIGARS

Germany Making Cigars Out of Tobacco from Which Nicotine has Been Wholly or in Part Eliminated—Flavoring of Tobacco.

Carl Bailey Hurst, consul at Plauen, reports that in suite of the fact that German cigars as a whole are light in comparison with those of other countries, there has been considerable local agitation as to the harmful effects of smoking and of over-smoking in particular. He says :

Although the use of the weed has in nowise diminished thereby, some factories are now producing cigars known as "free of nicotine" and "poor in nicotine," which are gaining in popular estimation. It has come to notice, however, that certain makes of these cigars are advertised as free from this poison, but contain in reality from 0.38 to 0.9 per cent. of nicotine, while ordinary cigarette tobacco varies between 0.3 and 0.4 per cent. Thus there is little difference between some of the tobacco from which the nicotine is supposed to have been extracted and that which has not been treated. An effort is now being made in Saxony to fix the maximum that a cigar "poor in nicotine" may contain in order to be sold as such and the tobacco of the cigar claimed as "free" must in reality be so cured that a chemical analysis will be unable to reveal the presence of nicotine.

Some American manufacturers, although acquainted with the German "nicotine-free" and "nicotine-poor" cigars, as the labels literally run, may now find it of advantage to experiment fully along this line, in view of the recent increase in the production of these varieties in a great tobacco-consuming country. It is not impossible that a brand of cigars deprived of a portion of the original nicotine might find favor with a part of the American smoking public. That the innovation does not lessen the demand for tobaccos of usual strength is evidenced by the growing output of the old-fashioned sorts in the German factories. It is held as immaterial whether the new product can be classed as pure tobacco. There is no question of adulteration or deceptive elimination with a view to cheapening the product. Whether the specially treated tobacco will have a markedly more beneficial effect on the system must remain undetermined for the present, but as a commercial proposition the new cigar appears to have a favorable chance, for it is well on the market and seems likely to remain there.

FLAVORING TOBACCO.

Some Popular Delusions—Licorice is Chiefly Used.

A tobacco manufacturer in a recent interview about the flavoring of tobacco said :

"It is remarkable what absurd delusions prevail quite generally as to the ingredients which are supposed to be used to sweeten and flavor tobacco by the manufacturers of plug, smoking and scrap tobaccos.

"You often find ordinarily intelligent people accepting and repeating the most absurd stories as to how tobacco is flavored. They speak of molasses, cayenne pepper, copperas, opium, strychnine, Indian hemp, and a multitude of other things, as being part of the stock in trade of every factory, and part of the flavoring of all plug and smoking tobacco.

"The molasses delusion is the commonest of all. I don't believe that a drop of molasses is used by the entire trade. The reason is simple. Molasses ferments quickly, and if mixed with tobacco would cause it to swell and ferment in turn. To sweeten tobacco we use Demerara sugar or maple sugar, which are the best for the purpose, especially maple. Many manufacturers have experimented with glucose, grape sugar and dextrine, and in some cases obtained good results. But as yet they have not displaced Demerara and maple sugar.

"Another quite common but most absurd story is that many brands of tobacco and cigarettes contain large quantities of opium. Now, as a matter of fact, opium is never used in the manufacture of tobacco. Even were it wanted —which it is not—its cost, $15 per pound for the poorest grade, prevents its being employed at a profit, and manufacturers would certainly not use it to their financial loss.

"A great and practically universal ingredient is licorice. Besides being sweet and pleasant flavored, it has an adhesive quality which increases the stability and durability of the plug.

"The oil or extract of bitter willow, which was called killickinick by the Indians, was extremely popular in the middle of the last century, but is now out of vogue. It may be used by a few manufacturers of plug and chewing tobacco, and is used in one or two brands of smoking tobacco.

"Rum, brandy and port wine have been used in special brands, but not in popular goods. This is the basis of the story that fine wines and even champagne are employed in producing flavors. Some manufacturers use cider for casing tobacco, but the practice is not at all common.

"Tonka and myrbane are used to scent smoking tobacco, but not in plug or chewing. The best flavoring comes from blending well seasoned tobacco. These, and these alone, give the real value to the weed."

Prof. Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College, has been sent by the Government to Wisconsin to investigate there the growing of binder tobacco for cigars, with a view to seeing if it cannot be grown in Ontario.

ANCIENT COLONY NOTES

The weather for several weeks has been very warm, which is not good for the curing of fish. The prospects for a good average catch is good. The price has opened for new fish at $4.50 per quintal, which if it keeps up, is a very good price.

Provisions—Pork is still very high. Beef is very reasonable. Flour on the decline. Molasses 30c. wholesale. The market is very bare of dried fruits, consequently prices are away up. Oranges very poor and high in price. Onions extra good and reasonable in price.

Jos. Sellars, the representative of Union Blend tea, has just returned from a very successful trip around Green Bay.

J. J. Lockerby, of Montreal, paid the Colony a visit and went away delighted with the country.

The Earl and Countess of Grey left in a special train to join the Government steamer Minto at Bay of Islands. They evidently had an enjoyable time as they extended their visit. We were glad to meet the Earl. He's a jolly, genial good fellow and no wonder he is popular with Canadians.

John S. Swift, National Drug Co., has been booking lots of orders.

Geo. Hall, of Seneca Falls, N.Y., representing Ramsey & Co., of this city, has been introducing his firm's goods here.

W. deG. Warren, of London, Eng., one of the oldest tea travelers, has been making his annual visit, and, as usual, went away in the Siberian with a goodly lot of orders. Mr. Warren is very popular with the trade. He has been visiting the Colony 30 years.

J. H. Roberts, the energetic representative of Vim tea, has, in company with Chestley Woods, been visiting the Northern Bays in the yacht Scallawag. During Mr. Roberts' absence from the city his numerous interests were looked after by Mr. Hussey. Both Mr. Roberts and Mr. Woods report business as extra good.

Fred J. Allen, of Milwaukee, Wis., was a visitor to the trade. He reports business goods.

Steer Bros. are changing the front of their building. When done they will have one of the best show windows in the city. We have no more enterprising firm than Steer Bros. in the whole colony.

T. & M. Winter are now the general agents for Five Roses flour, which is the largest seller in this market. This firm are special agents for some of the largest selling goods in the market. They represent E. W. Gillett & Co., Mont Royal Tobacco, Star Leather Co., Five Roses Flour, and several other large concerns, besides handling all kinds of groceries and provisions.

Col. H. Robinson, manager of the Robinson Export Co., Boston, leaves for home next week. The colonel feels well—his order book bulging out.

W. J. Murphy, manager for the Exploits Lumber & Pulp Co., has been in the city the past week. His many friends were glad to see him looking so well after his experience.

T. T. Cartwright, the Royal Yeast and Magic Baking Powder Ambassador, leaves for a months' cruise north in his yacht. Mr. Cartwright has only returned here a week but has put in some good work. The city is being well advertised with the Gillett's goods.

E. Button, New Melbourne, was a vistor to the city. Mr. Button is a member of the progressive firm of Button & Sons, who do a large business in the staples of the country.

W. Kennedy, of Harbor Grace, has joined the traveling force of the Thos. Smyth Co.

The Crosbie Hotel, notwithstanding they put on fifteen new rooms last Fall, is crowded to the roof.

VALUE OF TEA AS FOOD.

The real value of tea as a food is just now attracting considerable attention. It is pointed out that though modern science has not laid bare all of nature's secrets, and cannot yet declare the causes of all the body's demands or cravings, it now knows that not all of the values of food are comprised in those ingredients that build or repair, heat or furnish power. For example, the so-called extractives do neither of these things, but simply act as stimulants and appetizers. Among other things, they contain nitrogen, deprived of which animal and plant life would cease to exist. Until recently this was not known to be among the components of the Asiatic leaf—all discussions of which have been confined to the values, theine and tannin—but the chemists say tea contains 3 per cent. But, passing over any further discussion as to the nutritive, fuel, or therapeutic value of tea, its greatest virtues yet remain; its use repairs the body's waste, and it is, unlike alcohol, a stimulant without reaction. Dr. John Coakley Lettsom, described by a recognized authority as "the first medical writer to give the public a reasonable and scientific account of the plant," particularly remarked these peculiar properties, and, in evidence, quotes the experience of various noted travelers — among others that of Brydone: "We have traveled all night on mules, and arrived here, about ten o'clock, overcome with sleep and fatigue. We have just had an excellent dish of tea, which never fails to cure me of both. I am as fresh as when we set out." It would be easy to multiply examples of tea's staying powers, as exhibited by its users—the little Japs on the march to Peking gave their western allies one object lesson in that direction, a lesson, however, that has been taught for centuries by coolie labor under burning suns, in dank, moist climates, such as would speedily kill off the users of alcoholic beverages.

The E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, installed a fine large new engine recently in their Toronto factory. The plant with the old engine was shut down Friday night and started with the new engine on the following Wednesday. The feat was made possible only through thorough organization.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Hints on How to Talk to the Public with Printers' Ink—An Illustration Advertisement—Desertation on Getting Business.

The ad of J. A. Charlton, Fort William, is reproduced because it exemplifies a business-getting style touched on in this page at other times.

You will notice Mr. Charlton appeals to one class of people, whose cause he undertakes to champion.

A person reading this ad would naturally think J. A. Charlton made a specialty of pleasing, and that is exactly the vein of thought the advertiser in this case desires the reader to have.

William R. Cummings, of Cummings' Bridge, Ottawa, forwards a "slaughter sale" circular for criticism.

The printing and the stock are the best ever sent into this office in the form of a circular.

The lay-out of the matter is attractive, the leading lines being well displayed and enclosed in sufficient white space.

The descriptive portions of the items, unfortunately, lean towards ambiguity because of insufficient sentences. Dashes and commas do certain work, but they cannot usurp the function of the full stop without confusion following.

A writer should aim to make his statements as clear to his readers as they are to himself.

ADVERTISING RESOLUTIONS.

I will be progressive.

I won't hesitate to investigate any new schemes, theories, systems, etc. I want each succeeding year to be richer than the preceding.

I will be honest.

I won't let my competitor get a leverage on me by letting palpable exaggerations and deceptions creep into my ads.

I will be fair.

I won't let slip any chance to get valuable suggestions from inferiors, equals or superiors. I am out to succeed. Also I will persuade rather than force.

I will be strong.

I won't be tempted to evil. I won't be weak, petty, cavilling or despairing.

I will be original.

GETTING BUSINESS.

"Getting business, as I understand it, consists of getting regular customers rather than occasional ones, and to do this successfully you must advertise along a certain line and keep everlastingly at it. It is easy enough to say 'mail circular letters,' but the hardest thing in the world is to get the proper mailing list. A box list from the post-office in your vicinity will not get satisfactory results because nearly half of the people who get mail at every office get it through general delivery. The woman of the family is usually the shopper and the one to appeal to for trade. Letters mailed to the men of the family seldom find their way into the home, as they are opened, glanced at and thrown down in their office or place of business.

"I have a successful mailing list in operation which was made up as follows: I first took our county map and struck a 25-mile circle which was as far—I figured—as we could draw trade. I then made a miniature post office case from an old shoe case which contained forty 4x4 pigeon holes. On slips of paper pasted on these pigeon holes, I put the name of all the towns and rural routes within my circle. I went to the office of the store and got from the bookkeeper the letter file for two years back. This contained all the letters that had been written to the store on any subject whatever. I found these letters contained the names and addresses of one or more customers from twenty-five of my thirty-six towns and routes. I selected one woman's name from each route and town and wrote her the following letter:

"Dear Madam:—I find your name on our mailing list, the only one from (town or route) and as we are anxious to reach the ladies of your town who might be interested in samples of free dress goods, notices of special sales, etc. if you will kindly make us a list of such ladies getting their mail at your post office or on your R. F. D. route, I will mail you a pair of fine kid gloves. Please state size and color preferred when you send your list. Thanking you in advance, I am, respectfully yours, etc., and signed the firm's name.

"I used a glove that cost sixty-three cents and the twenty-five letters brought in over 3,000 names. I now offered a monthly prize of $1 with a pair of gloves as a second prize to the saleswoman in the store who would bring to my office for the current month the names of the greatest number of ladies not down on our mailing list.

"This brought over one hundred names a month for three months, which gave us a splendid mailing list from which we are receiving good results, as every mail or sample goes direct to the one to whom it is addressed. A strong letter giving a long list of attractive prices was sent to each of the names on the list. Other letters and circulars were used to follow up the first one.

"A small store could commence with a mimeograph, but where you are mailing 500 or more copies it will pay to have them printed with imitation type-writer type. I indexed a petit ledger and arranged the names alphabetically, leaving a space for the addition of new names — filed the original manuscripts away and will return them to their original writers one year from now with a small present enclosed, say a handkerchief, also stamps for returning, and ask them to cross out the names of those dead or removed, and add new ones. This will keep the list alive and is the only way I know of to keep in touch with your trade and successfully cope with the mail order houses."—Selected.

OYSTERS WITH OR WITHOUT.

Particular Customer—I want an oyster stew, and I don't want the oysters and liquor and milk all mixed in a mess and merely heated. I want the milk carefully boiled first, then the oysters added, next the liquor, and finally, after it is taken off, the seasoning. Be particular about the milk. It must be sweet and rich, and above all things be careful to get good butter. Only the best and freshest gilt edged dairy butter should be used. As for the oysters, I want the finest to be obtained anywhere—no common mud oysters for me. Now, don't forget.

Waiter—Yes, sah; do you wish the oysters with or without, sah?

Customer—With or without what?

Waiter—Pearls, sah.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

Low Water at Montreal is Limiting Cargoes—Shipping Business More Active —Flour for South Africa—Much Cheese and Butter Moving Out.

Shipping has been rather active during the past week, all the ocean-going boats carrying such cargoes as they were permitted to load.

Export business from the port of Montreal is more or less hampered owing to low water. During the past couple of weeks all boats drawing over 24 feet of water have been restricted by the port warden from loading capacity. Naturally the effect on the trade is felt very much, since the boats in this category cannot take full cargoes.

Lack of rain, said the port warden, is accountable for the existing conditions. It is hardly likely that there will be any improvement in the situation this season. It is more likely that lower water will cause still further restriction in loading.

In speaking of the matter shipping companies state that in more than one case they have had to refuse bookings, and in all cases have found it necessary to exercise the greatest care in loading.

Grain is moving out quite briskly at present and shipping companies are looking forward to good business for the remainder of the season.

Hay is very quiet, few shipments going forward.

Export trade in butter has been very good, much better than for some little time past. The Dominion Liner Englishman, which left for Bristol Saturday morning, carried a large cargo of butter and cheese, having no less than twenty-two thousand cheese and eight thousand odd packages of butter.

Cheese shipments, even at the high market price, have been very good, in fact somewhat better than expected.

There has been some little activity in flour, some shipments being made to South African ports. Trade with the Old Country, however, is limited.

A few small shipments of apples have been made.

Meats are not very brisk, inquiry from the other side being limited.

The Dahomey, Elder Dempster & Co., arrived in port last week with general cargo from Mexican ports.

Another of last week's arrivals was the Volage, McLean, Kennedy & Co., from Demerara and Trinidad, via Halifax. This boat brought a cargo of sugar for the Canada Sugar Refinery.

Englishman, Dominion line, for Bristol cleared August 18 with a cargo including 22,000 cheese and 8,000 odd packages of butter.

These rates are for general information only, and are subject to change at any time without notice; it is therefore important that all contracts must be reported by wire and confirmation obtained before closing with shippers, and unless specifically stated to be prompt shipment, or shipped within ten days after date of contract from the west.

The above rates are exchanged on basis of $4.80 to £1 Stg., excepting that when freight is prepaid, the ocean proportion of the through rate must be collected on basis of $4.86 to the pound sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option, prompt replies will be facilitated by giving, when applying for rate, the relative weight and measurement of the merchandise.

It is understood that when reporting Sack Flour engagements, a carload is considered 28,000 lbs.

It is also important that shipper's name be given for every engagement made.

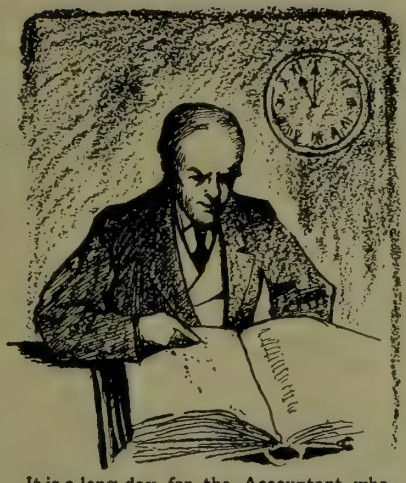
IN THE JOY OF LIVING



It is a long day for the Accountant who uses the ancient system of bookkeeping by bound books.

The introduction of labor-saving machinery has done a heap towards increasing the possibilities in the joy of living.

The eight-hour work day is the result of these modern methods, and it hasn't decreased the earning power of any man or body of men, nor has it increased the price of the goods which they assist in manufacturing.

The introduction of modern methods of accountancy reduces the working hours of the accountant, and saves the merchant at least fifty per cent. in clerical service value. Also it facilitates business, avoids chance of error, and makes it easy for the merchant to know at any time just how his outstanding accounts are, and what business he has done within a certain time.

Using bound books to record daily, weekly, monthly or yearly transactions in business, is using obsolete machinery; in a day, too, when competition can only be met with up-to-date labor-saving methods.

In accountancy this all means that the Copeland-Chatterson Systems must be employed if you wish to assure success in the handling of your business.

The Copeland-Chatterson Monthly-Account System is a condensed and distilled method of handling bookkeeping in retail business—one book does the work of three, and without extra effort on the part of the accountant.

FALL TRADE

This is the season for laying in a stock of RISING SUN Stove Polish in cakes and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in tins for Fall Trade, which will begin in a few days. These goods afford you a good margin of profit. When you push them, you make friends for yourself as well as for us. You can't afford to displease a good customer by selling an inferior Stove Polish. Begin the season right and sell the best. Both RISING SUN in cakes and SUN PASTE in tins bring the customer back to you for more.

WARNING!

Crescent BM&Co TRADE MARK Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

"————————are about dissolving partnership and are not buying any goods until the old business is settled up, and they said: 'You can book us an order for Red Rose all right for we use that ourselves and can't afford to be without it.' Even where several other brands are kept I find very many merchants prefer Red Rose for their own use."

One of the very best proofs of the superior quality of Red Rose Tea is the fact that most merchants who sell it use it in their own homes.

If you are not doing so will you try it?

Large Soap Sales

Don't try to sell soaps that are unknown—it's hard work and unprofitable labor.

The best selling soap is the best known soap, and the best known soap is the one which is advertised the most extensively and is at the same time absolutely pure and of high quality.

Baby's Own Soap

is the most extensively advertised soap in Canada—it is absolutely pure and is known throughout Canada as the best soap for the Nursery, Toilet and the Bath, because of its rare quality. It is not surprising that it sells easily and in very large quantities. You cannot afford to let your customers go elsewhere to buy Baby's Own Soap.

THE IMPERIAL CANNING CO.,

KINGSVILLE, ONT.

(Branch of the Canadian Canners, Limited)

"one of the best in the Province"

The following editorial is clipped from the KINGSVILLE REPORTER of August 26, 1906.

The canning factory started up on the 15th of this month, a few days earlier than last year. While this factory is always to the fore front, it IS THIS YEAR STILL MORE MODERN IN ITS EQUIPMENT. CLEANLINESS IS ONE OF THE FEATURES WHICH IS RIGIDLY ENFORCED BY MANAGEMENT, and this year more machinery has been added which will facilitate the cleaning of the raw material, making it still more easy to put up the goods in the cleanest possible manner. THE TOMATOES ARE emptied from the boxes into a washing machine and agitated until the sand or other dirt is washed off. They pass from this into a tank of hot water and are scalded, then they pass out into a chute and are carried in to the peelers. They fall from the carriers into fibre pails which are placed on a revolving platform, around which the women and girl workers are assembled.

As the tomatoes are peeled they are carried in pails to the canning machine and are soon in the cans which are soldered automatically, and pass out into the cooker and cooler and from there are wheeled to the storeroom. Each pail of the peeled tomatoes is carefully examined as they are emptied into the canning machine, and if a worker has been careless and left any spots in them she is reprimanded. Each pail is numbered and is traced by the check given the peeler. A woman is kept constantly at work sweeping up refuse and tidying things up generally. The annual output of the factory is 600,000 cans tomatoes, 90,000 gallons of apples, and this year peaches will also be put up. Employment is given to a staff of 100 people, who will put through, running full time, 2,000 bushels of tomatoes per day. THE FACTORY IS ONE OF THE BEST IN THE PROVINCE, AND PEOPLE NEED HAVE NO HESITATION IN EATING IMPERIAL BRAND OF TINNED GOODS, BECAUSE THEY STAND ON THEIR MERITS FOR ABSOLUTE PURITY, WITH QUALITY OF STOCK THE BEST THAT CAN BE PROCURED IN CANADA.

The remarks as above are equally applicable to each of our thirty factories. In ordering Canned Goods it will pay you to stick to brands as follows, viz.:—"CANADA FIRST," "LITTLE CHIEF," "LOG CABIN," "HORSESHOE," "KENT," "AUTO," "LYNNVALLEY," "MAPLE LEAF," "LION," "THISTLE" "GRAND RIVER" "WHITE ROSE," etc.

"Quality and Cleanliness," our Motto.

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

Stop and Consider

"Retail merchandizing is essentially a business of small things. This is just as true of the great metropolitan store which sells millions of dollars' worth of goods a year, as of the little general store at country crossroads. In either case the individual items which make up the total sales are small and in most cases the margins of profit are also small. Consequently only a little margin of waste in the handling of these goods is necessary in order completely to dissipate that small margin of profit. A little leak here and there is enough to let all the profit ooze out of the cash drawer and leave the merchant with only his labor for his pains—if not with a burden of debt and failure."

Extract from an article in August 11 issue of Saturday Evening Post. This article was written by Harlow N. Higginbotham, for years a partner of Marshall Field, of Chicago. A man who made himself a millionaire by stopping just such losses as are caused by tin tank storage of kerosene and gasolene.

If Mr. Higginbotham had been a grocer he would have used a Bowser Tank.

RAISE STANDARD OF GROCERS

Effect of New Pure Food Law in United States—Address Before New York Association by L. J. Callanan—Must Study Their Business Responsibility for Light Weight and Lower Quality.

At the recent annual meeting of the New York Grocers' Association at Olne, N.Y., L. J. Callanan addressed the convention as follows:

The passage of a pure food law by Congress has simplified matters in the pure food controversy. That it was a necessity there was no question; that it will benefit the grocery trade and raise the standard of the men who carry on the business I believe. Why? Because every man engaged in it must study his business he must acquaint himself with the quality of the goods he sells and not depend on every salesman from whom he purchases them as to their quality, who, while he may believe that he is telling him the truth, is doing his best to make a sale and is prejudiced in their favor.

It will undoubtedly raise the standard of the men who enter the grocery business. It will not do for every Tom, Dick and Harry who saves a few dollars to think that all he has to do to enter the grocery business is to pick up a little stock of groceries here and there, hire a store and commence to make money; he will have to learn the business to comply with the law else he will find himself in trouble.

Make Grocers Proud.

That is what is needed in the business; it will make the men who are in it proud of it; it will create a spirit of fraternity in the trade and every man who finds himself competent to carry on the business successfully will be glad to join the different associations, he will try to get in touch with his association and help to put it in the position it ought to occupy by reason of its numbers and of the large business it represents.

If it has this effect, and I believe it will, it will be the greatest boon ever conferred on the grocery trade and make the retail grocers associations the greatest power for good in this land.

The passage of this law will undoubtedly compel the various states to pass laws which will not be in conflict with it. The multiplicity of the rules for the regulation of a standard of food products throughout the country is confusing in the extreme; what would pass as healthy food in New York will not pass as healthy in Pennsylvania. This causes confusion which should be remedied at once even if special sessions of the legislature of the different states had to be called to do it.

Scared for no Reason.

After all these matters are adjusted the people will begin to realize that they have been scared badly with very little reason, that for the quantity of food manufactured in this country it has been shown that a very small proportion of it has been pronounced unhealthy, that some of the meats, particularly potted ham, chicken and other potted meats, have been cheapened by the addition of corn meal, which of itself is not unhealthy, but selling it for meat is a fraud that should not have been committed by the parties manufacturing the goods named. Every grocer worthy of the name grocer, after he has got rid of his stock of these goods should get a guarantee from the parties manufacturing them that they are made from sound meat—potted ham, tongue, chicken, etc., to be as represented on the label.

The adulteration to these goods is undoubtedly due to catering to cheap trade, the department and the cash stores who are looking for quantity not quality.

About Light-Weight Goods.

The same can be said of gross or light weight goods. They are put up not on the demand of the retail grocers, but on the demand of the wholesale grocers and the cheap Johns of the trade. The first time I heard of gross weight goods being put up was when Geo. C. Naphey's lard, which was put up in tins, was very popular. I was standing in front of our store when a very good customer of ours stopped and asked me what we were selling Naphey's ten lb. pails of lard for. I told him the price. "Why," said he, "I can go down the street and buy it for 10 cents less." I said it could not be possible as I named him a very close price on it. He said, "I will go and get one." I asked him to show it to me when he was passing. I waited for him. He brought in the can; it was Geo. C. Naphey's can. I thought it looked smaller than what we had. I asked a clerk to bring me a 10-lb. can from our stock. He did. I placed one on each side of the scale. The secret was out; the tin he bought contained only 9 1-4 lbs. of lard, the tin we were selling contained 10 lbs. net. Lard was very high at that time; he and I figured out the difference; we made it 20 cents. He took the can back, got his money and bought one from us with his other goods. E. C. Hazard & Co. were the agents in this city for the lard. I went to them and they told me that the wholesale trade demanded the light weight goods, as they could be sold cheaper.

This was the beginning of the downfall of the reputation of the tins of lard put up by that firm.

Wholesaler to Blame.

The adulteration of goods sold in the grocery trade is attributed to the demands of the retailer. This is false. It may be that in some instances it is true, but in the great majority of cases the wholesale grocers and distributors are to blame; competition and a desire to cut prices by the salesmen traveling for these houses is the cause. The same cause has resulted in making candles 11 1-2 ounces instead of 16, in putting up raisins in packages containing only 12 ounces gross, in adulterating cream of tartar, spices, etc., extracts of lemon and vanilla in fraud bottles containing only 1 1-4 ounces instead of two without a drop of lemon or vanilla in them. All these frauds are blamed on the retail grocer, in reality the wholesale grocers and manufacturers are to blame. The pure food law will cure the adulteration. The only way to cure the sale of light weight goods is to be honest and sell them for what they are.

Test of Canned Goods.

That there is no necessity for using any sort of preservative or bleacher in putting up canned goods has been so clearly demonstrated that it is surprising it is done by reputable manufacturers. When we bought our first stock of canned fruits and vegetables they were higher in price and good in quality and honest quantity. . I was very skeptical about their keeping qualities. I determined to test them in my own way. I put a can of corn, tomatoes, peas, pears, peaches and cherries in the cellar and took out a can every six months until all were used. I found all were as good as the day they were put up except the pears and peas which had softened some. The trial established my faith in canned goods. The corn was the Gorham; it was put up solid; it was all corn with its natural flavor, no juice in it, not the bleached, half-filled cans put up now, but filled solidly with corn, and as I have often expressed it, you could fire it out of a gun and you would not burst it. The peaches were Louis McMurray's, of Baltimore, the other brands I do not remember.

Since this controversy about canned goods has come up I have often wished I had kept a diary and entered the result of my experiments at the same time.

I trust the convention will adopt the pure food law, which, while it may not be perfect is a step in the right direction. If the men who are to formulate the rules for its enforcement will adopt a set of rules which will not bear too heavily on any trade yet will comply with the spirit of the law and exert the influence of the national government to have uniform laws passed by all the states then indeed will the enactment of the pure food law be a blessing to the people of this country and a still greater blessing to all who are engaged in the distribution of food products.

IMPROVEMENTS AT SUGAR REFINERY.

Some improvements to save labor and increase capacity have been installed this Summer at the plant of the Ontario Sugar Co., Berlin, Ont. The capacity of the battery has been increased from 2 1-5 tons to 3 1-2 tons; a storage bin has been put in for the storage of the sugar over night; the combination shed, which heretofore has necessitated a double shovelling, has been transformed so that one handling from the car into the flume is all that is necessary, and a large carrier has been built to convey the pulp about ten feet above ground into the silo instead of on the ground level, saving the labor of a staff of men.

THIS YEAR'S SALMON PACK

Sockeye Run a Failure—Season Extended to Sept. 15 to Give Trap Owners a Chance—The Catch on the Fraser Traps a Losing Game this Year.

This has been one of the very small seasons in connection with the salmon fishing on the Pacific Coast. Four years ago the pack was small, but this season it is 200,000 cases less. The sockeye run was a failure. It has meant a profitable time for those fishermen who secured fish, for the prices were high, going even to 40c. per fish, but spells loss for the canners, and in some instances this has been quite serious. Traps have also been a poor investment this year, and those who have operated them are up against heavy deficits. On the Puget Sound side the pack is even less than on the Fraser River, and the canners are trying to have the season extended so that cohoes may be put up, and so lessen the failure which has taken place.

Official figures of the pack of the Fraser River canneries are given as follows:

B. C. Packers	51,380
Canadian	17,754
B.C. Canning Co.	5,200
Gulf of Georgia	2,000
A.B.C.	20,400
Steveston	2,050
Royal Packing Co.	5,000
Great Western	3,900
Malcolm, Cannon Co.	14,500
Burrard Canning Co.	3,030
St. Mungo	8,500
Industrial	3,433
Unique	4,380
Eagle Harbor	4,000
Great Northern	4,200
Wilson cannery (est'd)...	2,200
Richmond	5,900
Nye Cannery	300

The Puget Sound pack is estimated at 150,000 cases, which is also about 200,000 less than four years ago, making a combined total of 460,000 cases difference.

In response to the request of the owners, the trap season has been extended from August 25 to Sept. 15, and it is understood also that still net fishing has also been extended to the same date. This latter is not regarded with favor by any means by most of the canners, as they fear that if gill nets are allowed to be used for another month salmon will have great difficulty in getting past them to the spawning grounds up the Fraser. This would mean a ruinous year in 1910. It was in 1902 that the salmon were prevented from reaching the upper reaches of the Fraser by the dam at Quesnel, and the result is plainly seen in the very small number of cases of sockeyes which have been put up this season. In 1902 the pack was in round numbers 327,000 cases, nearly twice as many as in 1906, and with gill nets in the river until Sept. 15, canners say that in 1910 the pack will be correspondingly small.

The extension was asked for by trap owners merely to get cohoes, and it has been stated, though only a rumor, that cannery owners who have no traps made the request for the extension of the gill net fishing.

News from the north does not give any definite returns as yet. The first of the season was marked by a fairly good run, but nothing exceptional has been since recorded. Until the returns are in it is impossible to arrive at any estimate of the pack, as nowhere else is noted the peculiarity of one cannery being crowded, while another perhaps only a short distance away may have very few fish. This is shown in the report from Naas River. The four canneries there on the Canadian side put up 20,000 cases, with a fortnight or so more to operate, while a firm on the American side spent $6,000 in operating a trap and got 7,745 sockeyes. It will at once be seen that the trap owners will lose considerable. Of the 20,000 cases packed at Naas, which will be augmented by the other two weeks' run, nearly the whole were half-pound tins, these packages being more in demand in the Old Country than any other.

The Fishery Commission has been active for the last month or two. This is composed of Prof. Prince, of Ottawa, chairman; J. P. Babcock, commissioner of the Provincial Government; Campbell Sweeny, of Vancouver; J. C. Brown, New Westminster; Rev. G. W. Taylor, Nanaimo, inspector, and Richard Hall, M.P.P., Victoria. They have visited all parts of the fishing grounds, taking in the Fraser River from its mouth to the Mission bridge in a steamer, and have paid surprise visits to the canneries. Traps have been inspected both on the Canadian and American sides at different times, and it is expected that when a report is made it will be a very important one. Better opportunity for studying the conditions is afforded in a year like the present, when the catch has been small. After the traps have all been looked over, a conference is to be arranged between the representatives of the State of Washington and this commission to arrive at some understanding regarding the preservation of the salmon fisheries which shall be satisfactory both to Canadians and Americans.

CURRANTS AND VALENCIAS.

The Produce Markets Review, London, Eng., in a recent number says of currants:

"Confirmation of the previous estimates of the new crop is to hand and there is little likelihood that the yield will exceed 145,000 tons, which is about fifteen per cent. less than the crop of last year. It is pleasing to know that the quality will be, if anything, even better than that of the past two or three seasons. It is most satisfactory to all concerned that the demand for Sultanas should continue to be so very good at prices which show a considerable increase over those of the past two or three years. The low prices taken for this fruit have, doubtless, done much to popularize it and it is fortunate that there is practically no likelihood of anything like such easy prices for the new crop. Quotations for new crop Valencia raisins are now being made, but the prices, which are about 39s. London for good average fruit in ½-boxes, are apparently too high to attract business. The sellers are adopting a very firm attitude as the crop will in all probability be very much smaller than for some years past. It is to be hoped, however, that the present estimate of the position is somewhat exaggerated as the demand for the fruit would be seriously affected by such very high rates, and the result would no doubt be that the public would have to turn their attention to the cheaper fruit—currants, which may perhaps affect the outlet for the Valencia raisins for some years to come."

HAMILTON GROCERS MERRY.

Had a Big Time at Their Annual Outing—Storm on the Lake.

The Hamilton retail grocers held their annual picnic on Wednesday afternoon of last week. Everyone enjoyed himself to the top of his bent and the aggregate merriment made an impression which only another such can eradicate. It was an affair of jollity and fun from start to finish. Stores, customers, creditors and debtors were all forgotten and only enjoyment was thought of for an afternoon.

The steamer Acacia was chartered for the afternoon and evening, and left the dock shortly after three o'clock with the crowd on board. There was a big line of black clouds rolling up from the west, and when the Acacia had got half way to Oaklands the storm broke. The rain and wind were both heavy, and for a time it looked as if the grocers were in for a stormy picnic. The Acacia steamed out into the lake and back, however, getting to Oaklands about five, by which time the sky had cleared. The games were then run off, resulting as follows:

Pig-a-back race—Berry and Lord; Jackson and Howard.

Sack race—M. Cummins, A. Hobson.

Show race—Hunt, Johnston.

100 yards dash—W. Hunt.

Wheelbarrow race—Hobson and Brown; W. Cummings and Clark.

Three-legged race—Hunt and Cummings; Semmens and Brown.

The Orange Meat contest was won by J. Bews, who got a gold watch, and H. Spicer was second, getting a pair of gold cuff links. These prizes were donated by the Frontenac Cereal Company, of Kingston.

A baseball game between the grocers and travelers of the city resulted in a tie.

After the games, the weather having turned out fine and bright, another sail on the lake was enjoyed. While out on the water the grocers sent up a balloon and set off fireworks. There were songs, speeches, and a general merry time. The Acacia got in about ten o'clock, and landed tired but happy passengers.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

A New Ad that is a Winner—Odors that Beat Ads—Some Hints for the Retail Grocer who is His Own Ad Writer.

The ad of J. Henry Christie, reproduced on this page, is a splendid example of retail "reason why" publicity.

The sentences (with one exception) are clear cut and have a convincing ring to them.

The lay-out of the ad is very striking.

Mr. Christie showed excellent judgment in his size of space and amount of matter.

Grocers, read this ad. over. It will give you new ideas for the future.

LIVE UP TO YOUR ADVERTISING.

The trouble with a whole lot of the small local grocers is that their stores are not up to the level of their advertising.

They employ some ad writer, in one of the cities, to get up their announcements and pay him a more or less reasonable amount for his services.

The ad writer, who has never seen the grocery store, takes it for granted that it is a well conducted, neat, modern grocery.

His announcements are written on that supposition.

The prospective customer who reads those announcements and is attracted by them, goes to the store and finds that it is a dirty, ill-smelling establishment of the old style.

As a consequence, the customer doesn't come back the second time.

The grocer's business doesn't increase and he writes a saucy letter to his ad writer.

Eventually, he stops advertising entirely and joins the ranks of the business pessimists who swear that "advertising doesn't pay."

While talking about grocery stores, I might as well call attention to a physiological fact that every grocer should know.

The Olfactory Nerve.

The doctors tell me that the olfactory nerve is the only nerve of sense that goes in a direct line to the cortex, or intellectual brain. (Anyway, it sounded something like that.)

That is to say, the sense of smell acts directly and emphatically on the intelligence and emotions, and being connected by a line, with the animal brain, also exercises considerable influence over the muscles.

This explains why a man or woman who has been attracted to a grocery store by the glowing phraseology of some ad writer, promptly retreats upon meeting the odor of old fish, kerosene oil, or stale cheese.

A well conducted grocery store will have a separate department for articles of this description, which are offensive to the sense of sight or smell.

A good ad writer can exercise a big influence on the purchasing public, but he can't compete with an olfactory nerve.

If there is any merchant who needs to go into any details, to make clinching arguments, and to give convincing facts and figures, that merchant is the grocer. I refer particularly to the grocer who has aspirations—the grocer with a good store, in a good location, who wants to draw people from all over his town and his vicinity.

It is true that there is a very large number of people who eat regularly.

But it is also true that there are a good many grocers who are ambitious to feed them.

Magnetism Needed.

Therefore, when you try to get people to go past several other grocery stores in order to come to yours, you have a very nice little advertising proposition on your hands.

You've got to tell people what you have for them, how good, and pure, and fresh it is, and just how and why you can give them a wider selection of better goods, for less money, than they can get anywhere else in town.

If you do this earnestly, and persistently enough, and if you're telling the truth, you'll get them.

Extensive and continuous prosperity is dependent upon holding customers right along.

And it is worth an occasional sacrifice to satisfy customers.

You should guarantee everything you sell to be perfectly satisfactory, and back up your guarantee with a standing offer to refund money to anyone who may be dissatisfied with his purchase.

"Money Back."

Once in a great while you will probably be imposed upon by following this course, but if you try to discriminate against those who appear to be a little unreasonable, you will surely lose more than you will gain.

If your goods are as reliable as they should be, you will very seldom have anything returned, while the "money-back-if-you-want-it" clause in your ads will give people a degree of confidence in you and in your ads that can be obtained in no other way.

You could better afford to hand over a ten dollar bill to a dissatisfied customer and look upon it as "hush money" than to have him go about telling people that you are unreliable and won't deal fairly with people.

And ninety-nine people out of a hundred will express themselves freely, if they think they have any sort of excuse for doing so.—Trade.

READ THE ADS.

Give more attention to the perusal of wholesalers' and manufacturers' ads. You may think that because you see the travelers you need not give the "paper talks" more than a cursory glance.

Do you imagine that the wholesaler or the manufacturer would talk to you if there wasn't something to say that had a bearing on your business? It's not likely.

Their ads are always seasonable, always to the point. By reading them regularly you get the news that is newsy.

"PAST AND PRESENT"

Take a look at the ads you wrote a year ago. See if your present statements are clearer. Notice if you have eliminated the "generalities" weakness. Size up for typographical arrangement and compare spaces with results.

Be willing to spend money to get money.

Aspire to become the biggest grocer in your town.

If a clerk writes your ads allow him the privilege of looking around.

Don't waste too much old-fashioned time essaying to be new-fashioned.

WILL SALMON DEMAND BE SMALL?

Meat Scandals Have Done Much Harm in Old Country.

In a letter received from London by a prominent brokerage house in New York the depression in the salmon trade is attributed largely to "the recently gross exaggerated reports concerning the tinned goods." The writer estimates that on account of this less than 50 per cent. of the business usual at this season is being done. He further says: "Jobbers report to us that they cannot interest dealers, the latter offering in explanation of their not buying a statement to the effect that they have little call for the goods from the consumers, and do not want to have more goods in stock than they have hopes of selling.

"In our opinion the meat scandal as it has come to be termed, has done incalculable injury to this year's salmon trade. The various boards of trade in the several markets of the country have taken up the subject, including, of course, the general line of tinned meats, with the view of overcoming the prejudice aroused against canned goods among consumers. This campaign, in our opinion, will be slow, as it is apparent that a good deal of prejudice must be removed."

APPLE-PACKING PROBLEM.

Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of the fruit division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture to inform apple packers regarding the meaning of the law respecting the various grades defined by the Fruit Marks Act as amended during the last session of Parliament, there seems to be a good deal of misunderstanding as to the proper interpretation of the terms and allowances fixed by statute, says the Toronto Globe. The standards for grading apples recommended by the Dominion conference of fruit-growers and incorporated into the Fruit Marks Act are considerably higher than those that have prevailed heretofore. The first, or "fancy," grade must contain only the most perfect apples. The "No. 1" grade is higher than the old No. 1, but makes an allowance of ten per cent. to cover inadvertences resulting from rapid work. "No. 2" makes an allowance of similar character amounting to 20 per cent., but all the apples of this grade must be of medium size and include no wormy, scabby, or immature specimens. All other marketable apples may be classed as grade "No. 3." In every case the box or barrel must be marked plainly with the name and address of the owner, and the name of the variety of the fruit.

The Fruit Marks Act was put upon the statute books of Canada in 1901 for the purpose of assisting the fruit-growers of this country in securing a reputation for their apples shipped abroad. With standard grades and greater uniformity in packing, the Canadian apple grower has been rewarded with enhanced prices for his product. The amendments subsequently made to the original act have been framed with a definite view to conforming more nearly to the requirements of British and foreign buyers. As a result Canadian apples are rapidly gaining the recognition they so eminently deserve in the markets of the world.

The greatest need in developing the fruit industry throughout this country is systematic, sympathetic, and hearty co-operation on the part of all concerned in the growing, packing, shipping, and marketing of the fruit. The country's reputation and the ultimate value of the product may be seriously injured by carelessness or willful negligence at any point.

INDUSTRIAL AT ITS BEST

Toronto's Great Fair was Never so Good Before—The New Process Building —School of Display for Grocers Which None can Afford to Miss.

Toronto's Industrial Exhibition is on again, and nothing is truer than that it is better and bigger than ever. The dominant features of the fair this year are the Second Life Guards Band, the King's horses and the new Process Building. The most lasting impression for the average visitor at least will be the new building. It is at the turn in the roadway leading from the main entrance and its size will be a surprise to every visitor. It is this shape with an imposing dome over the centre (A). The north wing is given over to stove exhibits, the middle one to agricultural implements and wagons, and only the third wing houses processes of manufacture, but there are more of them than ever before. Among carpet weaving, boot and shoe making, thread making, envelope making, silver plating, typesetting, and other processes, the food stuff industry has not been neglected. Weston, the baker, has an oven there and a house made of loaves, roof and all, and across the aisle the process of making shredded wheat biscuits is demonstrated. It is the intention of the management to increase these processes of manufacture from year to year, and ultimately to fill this great building with this most interesting and instructive class of exhibits.

Ready, Aye, Ready.

Never before since the exhibition assumed something of its present proportions have the thousands of displays in the great buildings been as far forward on the opening day. When Sir William Mulock touched the button at 2 p.m. on Tuesday practically the entire exhibition was in readiness. This means a good deal to the people who go to the exhibition to learn, to get ideas to help them in their business. There are fewer sightseers there, better opportunity is afforded for examining things of interest and the people whose business it is to give information are better able to do so satisfactorily. Heretofore much of the exhibition has been in a very unprepared state on opening day and there was little encouragement for people to come early. This year there is a decided change for the better in this respect.

Newly Housed.

Within a year or two the exhibition has taken on a greatly changed appearance. Few of the buildings of only a little while ago remain. In their places are the new Process Building, the Manufactures and Arts Building, the Administration Building, the Dairy Building, the Press Bureau, and two new art galleries. All these are of brick and steel or cement construction and will endure till they are outgrown. The old Main Building, now named the Transportation Building, originally erected on the old exhibition grounds and known thirty years ago as the Crystal Palace, continues as the hall mark of the great fair in the minds of a very recent generation of fair-goers. Machinery Hall still crowns the rise at the north limit of the park, but its accommodation has long been outgrown. The dog show building, the live stock accommodation, the Women's Building and the grand stand are as they were. Most of them are substantial and expensive buildings. The grand stand cost $100,000 and will seat 17,000 people, while 23,000 have been crowded into it.

City Puts up Money.

The Exhibition Association consider they have an investment of over a million dollars in their buildings. This all belongs to the City of Toronto, which puts up the money for improvements and takes the annual surplus, which for two or three years has amounted to between $30,000 and $40,000. When money is required for improvements the directorate go to the city council, and if council is satisfied that the proposed expenditure is advisable a by-law is submitted to the ratepayers.

Business is the Basis.

If the exhibition had been what many people think it is, merely an annual entertainment, a yearly show, it could not have succeeded and increased as it has. Primarily and fundamentally it is a business proposition. Everyone will admit that business considerations actuate the exhibitors. To the wise purveyor of food stuffs it is a rich mine of information and suggestion. No progressive grocer in Ontario can afford to disregard it. The outstanding feature of it all is display methods and devices for showing goods. The trade in Canada is not strong in this regard, and for them the exhibition is especially apt.

Throughout the exhibition the first consideration in the thousands of separate displays is cleanliness. Everything shines. Every vegetable and piece of fruit is cleaned, every animal in the stables is curried and scoured, among the machinery and implements it is polish, scrub and dust, and in the great Main Building cleanliness is the first consideration in the morning and the last thing at night. Everybody can clean, but here is a place where everybody does clean.

Art of Display.

A much more difficult proposition is the art of display, which includes decoration. At the exhibition hundreds of expert minds have been exercised to arrive at the results attained and every individual has tried to make his lay-out more attractive and tempting than those about him. Surely amid this great array of practiced effort at display the dullest grocer in Canada could not fail to get some ideas for the improvement of his store, and a live man will get ideas to keep him busy till exhibition comes again.

A couple of southern editors were being shown about the fair and reaching the Manufacturers' Building stopped in admiration before the Gowans, Kent & Co.'s array of cut glass, and were astonished when informed it was made in Canada. Cut glass will display itself. Tea won't. The Red Rose tea booth is a good example of decorative effort and another kind of advertising, the practical method of serving the beverage. Tobler's chocolate is another such. Egg-O-See is displayed in a way to furnish some new ideas. W. H. Dunn's display of Borden's condensed milk is also attractive.

The new electric power coffee mills made and exhibited in the Process Building—south-west wing—by the A. D. Fisher Co. should be seen by all members of the trade. They are neat, attractive and up-to-date.

Factory in Canada.

The Genesee Pure Food Co., of Leroy, N.Y., manufacturers of Gelo desserts and Gelo ice cream powder, have a most attractive exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building, where both products are made and served by competent demonstrators. This company, which has one of the largest factories in the United States, has just taken over the Canadian Gelatine Co. and established a factory in Canada. The trade are invited to visit their exhibit and meet the manager, Mr. Thompson.

A very interesting and instructive exhibit for grocers is that of West Indian products in the Process Building.

Next week's issue will contain a more extended description of the fair with numerous illustrations.

NOTES.

F. W. Sutton, general merchant, Bala, Ont., has built a fine new store.

W. A. Day, Port Stanley, Ont., has sold his business and is enjoying a trip to the Canadian west.

Commercial travelers on the Northern Ontario route say the tourist business in Muskoka was never before so heavy as this year. Business men throughout the entire district have had a very satisfactory Summer.

B. R. James Norris, one of the men who are making Red Rose tea a household word in Eastern Ontario, will shortly move his family from Kingston to Toronto to take up his residence in the capital city.

A. H. Paffard, manager of Davidson & Hay's sample room, is holidaying in Portland, Maine, and other Atlantic coast points. In his absence his assistant, Geo. Moffatt, is ably discharging the managerial duties.

The American packers of red Alaska salmon on Tuesday issued their prices on this year's pack. It is the same as last year, when the pack and carry-over was 4,900,000 cases, against 2,300,000 cases this year, and 5c. less than dealers expected.

A TRAVELER'S OUTING

Two Weeks with Nature by Five Grocery Salesmen and a Physician—A Fortnight Vacation in the Temiskaming and Temagami District.

Five grocery travelers, two from Hamilton and three from Toronto, spent their recent two weeks vacation in New Ontario. They didn't quite reach the Height of Land, but they did attain to the height of enjoyment and stayed there the whole two weeks, managing also to cover considerable of the land, lake and river reaches in the Temagami and Temiskaming district. They were: W. McPherson, of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, and Mr. Somerville, of Hamilton; J. W. Shouldice, John W. Charles and Bill Bradley, of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto. They added one other good fellow to their company in the person of Dr. Wickett, of North Bay.

From Toronto they laid their course for Temagami, not a very difficult feat by rail, explored Lake Temagami, crossed over to Temiskaming, down the Ottawa River to Mattawa, C.P.R.'d it to North Bay, and Grand Trunked it home.

No. 1—A Mornings' Catch

Their itinerary may not have been in exactly that order; what matter — the fun did not ebb at any stage of it. The accompanying illustrations are pages from a picture record of the trip, a sort of photographic log of the fortnight's goings. They tell more than many reams of manuscript. Here is the roll call in (1) reading from the left: Holding the fish, Shouldice, Charles; sitting, Bradley, Wickett; standing at the back, Somerville, McPherson. In (3), Shouldice and McPherson are on the bridge discussing the situation with the guides. The hotel is in the distance.

ONE THING HE DIDN'T KNOW.

A good story is going the rounds about a wholesale merchant and his experience with a new manager. The wholesaler had been very successful and had amassed a good deal of money. Age was creeping upon him and he came to the conclusion that he would make one of his bright young men manager in order that he might be relieved of a great deal of the detail of the business and that he would have more time for leisure. He gave his manager absolute control.

No. 2—A Good Hand to Draw to.

No sooner was the latter in harness than he began to make sweeping changes. He tore down the partitions in the office and warehouse and put up new ones. He changed the clerks around and made radical changes in the traveling staff.

No. 3—Bill and the Doctor Posing.

The trouble was his energy was not tempered with discretion. Soon old customers began to complain of their treatment and declared that the firm had never done such things before. The result was that the house began to lose prestige and finally, after this state of affairs had been drawn to the attention of the chief several times he called his manager into his office and said: "John, you are a very clever fellow, much more clever than I am, and your cleverness sometimes surprises me, but, John, there is one thing that you don't know that I do know, and that is that you are a darned fool."

TRADING WITH INDIANS.

R. J. Thomas, of B. W. Thomas, general merchant, Hartford, Ont., is spending a few days in Toronto this week. The firm has been in business in that part of the country about fifty years. In reply to a question Mr. Thomas said that about half their trade was with the Indians.

No. 4—President of the Drummers' "Snack."

"They are peculiar customers," he said. "For example, you do not know when they have finished their purchases. They will often say that is all they want and then buy several parcels of goods afterwards. Then their purchases are nearly always confined to cheap lines of goods. So far as credit is concerned we give them very little, say from 25 cents to $5. It takes a long time to wait on them, too, on account of the slowness with which they come to a decision of what they require."

Mr. Thomas says that trade in his part of the country is good and that crop prospects are excellent. The hay was saved in good time and recent rains have greatly benefitted root crops.

RECORD LEMON PRICE.

The record price of lemons in New York was broken last week when some boxes of 300s, choice grades, sold at auction for $8.50. The general price was 75c. to $1 above the previous auction.

LONDON TRADE NOTES

Grocers' Picnic—New Canning Factory—Scarcity of Baskets— McCormack Mfg. Co's Employes Hold Their Annual Outing at Port Stanley.

London, Ont., Aug. 28, 1906.

The event of the week among the retail grocers of this city is the big picnic at Springbank on Wednesday afternoon. As mentioned last week the idea was to have a special celebration to mark the wind-up of the three months of Summer, during which grocery stores closed on Wednesday afternoons. The Free Press Newsboys' Band was secured and other special attractions were booked for the day, the citizens of London generally being invited to participate. Next week a full account of the picnic will be given.

The grocers all report small importations of fruits. Cantaloupes are reported to be plentiful and more popular than ever, and the quality of the peaches offered is exceptionally good. But the plums which usually are sold in very large quantities are coming in very slowly. There seems to be a failure in this year's crop and few are offered.

The new canning factory just erected in this city was opened last week and will soon be running at its full capacity of 60,000 cans per day. The tomato peeling machines, which the company has installed, and which are the only ones of its kind in Canada, were used and gave complete satisfaction. On the opening day the company had about 500 bushels of tomatoes on hand, but that amount was not expected to last long and contracts were being made in many parts of the country for the delivery of large consignments. This week hundreds of bushels are coming in and the company is canning large quantities..

At the North Branch cheese factory, Crumlin, on Friday last a big garden party was held at which 300 guests were entertained by the cheesemaker and owner of the factory, W. H. Dalton.

The McCormick Mfg. Co. held its 36th annual picnic in Port Stanley on Saturday. Over 500 people attended and spent a thoroughly enjoyable day.

The sports and races were keenly contested for, and the baseball match was one of the fastest ever seen in Port.

The following is a list of the races and their winners:

Open race, 100 yards—1, Bert Gould; 2, J. Ferguson; 3, H. Stephens.

Boys under 8 years—1, L. Finch; 2, E. Vining; 3, A. Craig.

Boys under 11 years—1, R. Hutchinson; 2, F. Finch; 3, G. Finch.

Boys under 15 years (sack race)—1, G. Finch; 2, F. Finch; 3, E. Rodgers.

Girls under 8 years—1, V. Piercey; 2, L. Johnson; 3, V. Marsh.

Girls under 11 years—1, G. Legate; 2, C. McCormick; 3, V. Piercey.

Young ladies' needle race—1, S. Glendale; 2, A. Graham; 3, A. Nixon.

Men's button race—1, Bert Gould; 2, Jack Flemming; 3, Joe Ferguson and Joe Black tie.

Men over 40 years—1, Jos. Craig; 2, J. Flemming; 3, J. Collins.

Jockey race—1, J. Beach and W. Rothwell; 2, Jos. Craig and G. Waud; 3, John Doneghy and Joe Ferguson.

Wheelbarrow race—1, G. Quick and E. Burgess; 2, Alf. Williams and A. Whittaker; 3, H. Stephens and J. Fleming.

Potato race (for girls of the candy department)—1, A. Graham; 2, E. White; 3, E. Norfolk.

Running long jump—1, N. B. Fisher; 2, W. Wasnidge; 3, Joe Black.

Hop, step and jump—1, N. B. Fisher; 2, Bert Gould; 3, Robert Dew.

Throwing baseball (girls)—1, Alice Halbert; 2, Ruby Baker; 3, Viola Bellamy.

The ball game, which was a five-innings one, was won by the office staff by a score of 13 to 9.

WINDOW AND STORE DISPLAY

Illustration of a Very Modern Silent Salesman—Some Suggestions in Regard to Very Necessary Store Ventilation.

"Do you want to see the very latest things in show cases?" said a store-fitting and show-case man to a Canadian Grocer representative the other day. Sure, and the accompanying illustration shows about half of it. As the cut shows, the shelving is adjustable, and the rest, except the nickelplate frame, is glass. All the information about it is contained in the following from the company's literature:

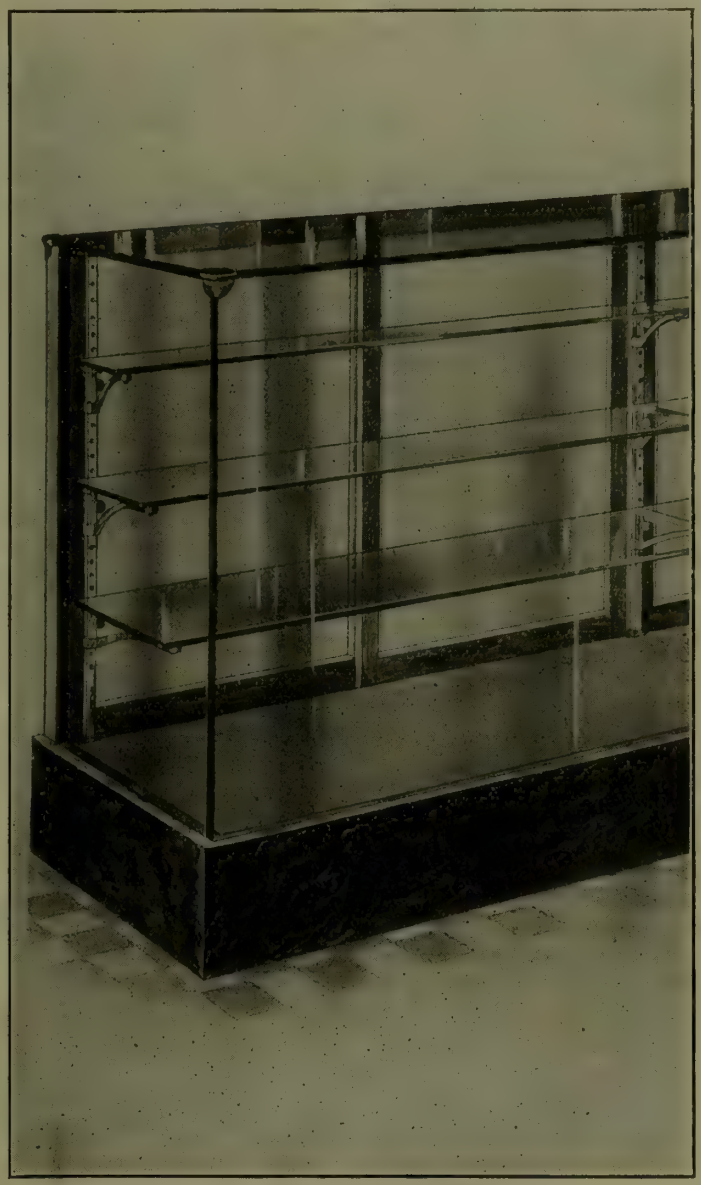
"The most beautiful silent salesman case in the world. Made of polished plate glass and marble, wood only used for door frames. We have been waiting for years for the perfect all-glass case and at last present it to our customers. The faults of all other makes are done away with in this. No holes in glass, no connecting rods, no danger of breakage. Made of polished plate glass, with nickle corner fastenings, fitted with 8-in. marble base, shipped knock down, can be set up by any person in fifteen minutes. Clear glass or mirror doors. Three plate glass shelves, 6, 10 and 14 in. wire. Dimensions: Height, 43 in.; width, 26 in.; length, 4 to 10 feet. Approximate weight, 100 lbs. per foot. Price per foot: White Italian or pink Tennessee marble, $15; green Vermont marble, $16."

The modern showcase or silent salesman is one of the newest and most effective aids to storekeeping. Even this, though a very handsome piece of store furnishing is not the last word in showcases. There is a case made after the design of a Toronto men's furnisher, without frames except a base and back, the front and top being entirely of glass.

WINDOW DRESSING AS AN ART.

Window displays have reached an importance in the economy of advertising and store management which makes it a necessity to observe the principles which make a trim the means to an end. Time was when anything that could be done by way of a window trim to bring a crowd of curious people about the window was done. It was thought that great, dazzling, showy windows made the merchant's name known far and wide, but it was gradually found out that the majority of people were attracted to these windows out of curiosity, and went away without ever giving a moment's consideration to the merchant's name who so generously catered to idle curiosity. The same law of idle curiosity brings a crowd about the gaudy and elaborate window display, and as soon as that curiosity is satisfied they march away with no further concern about the window of the merchant. If to gather a crowd about a store window is the sole object of the display, that can be done at much less time and by placing some grotesque figure of a man or an animal in the window, and the effect as a seller of goods would prove as profitable.

The old theory of showy displays has given way to a most modest and useful system of window trims, and the trim that fails to make an impression upon the people of the class of goods presented fails in its purpose. The merchant no longer caters to idle curiosity, but prepares his window trims to bring him customers. It is trade he wants, and his trims must appeal to that class capable of giving him trade. One soon tires of display and beauty that brings no profit. The window display, therefore, must be made a strong advertisement, and that can be done by selecting from a few lines the best and by giving them a strong position in the display. Composite trims offer good advantages, as it frequently happens that allied pieces, though of different lines, greatly help to bring the whole into a strong light with striking effect. It is not the quantity of goods in a window, but the quality that commands most attention. In composite trims, therefore, keep in view the utility, and use such articles only as will accomplish that purpose. — Clothier and Furnisher.



VERY NEW IN SHOW CASES

"It is a debatable question," says the American Grocer, "if it pays to carry every article asked for, or whether it is the better policy for a retailer to select his line and educate his trade to take such brands as he can recommend. For instance, one grocer doing $1,000 per week business carries seventeen different sorts of breakfast foods. Another doing quite as much business selects the best and most popular brands, has some with his own label, and resists the demand for the poor sellers and the new comers. One has stale stock on his shelves; the other fresh goods. One turns the money invested in breakfast foods frequently; the other seldom."

A. H. Milner, of H. P. Eckardt & Co.'s traveling staff, spent his holidays very pleasantly at the Peterboro lakes.

BRITISH TRADE.

The report of the trade of the United Kingdom covering the five years, 1900-5, has been issued. It shows an increasing percentage of food stuffs are drawn from colonies and dependencies, and a large expansion in the total of trade. While total imports have increased, the proportion of them drawn from British possessions shows a larger percentage of increase than that from foreign countries, but in regard to exports that position is reversed. The value of imports from other parts of the Empire in 1901 was $515,213,790, and in 1905 was $636,146,912, an increase of nearly 21 per cent. The imports from foreign countries increased only 5 per cent. from $2,071,118,957 to $2,174,827,176. The actual increases were from under the flag, $120,933,122, from foreign markets $103,708,219

In the increases of imports derived from other parts of the Empire, India comes first, Canada second, New Zealand third and Australia fourth. The increases are :

India	$43,165,872
Canada	29,060,533
New Zealand	13,913,259
Australia	13,687,758

The imports into Great Britain from these parts of the Empire in 1901 were:

India	$136,273,877
Canada	98,776,561
New Zealand	52,708,071

The principal commodities making up the increase from Canada were cheese, living animals, apples, bacon, lard, and leather, as follows :

	1901	1905
Cheese	$18,395,859	$23,900,756
Bacon	4,584,508	13,689,777
Lard	1,179,498	3,128,589
Hams	1,516,490	3,474,854
Living animals	7,161,742	12,363,555
Apples	1,522,116	3,500,659
Leather	763,952	1,581,933

Grain shows little change, and wood and manufactures of wood a decrease.

The increase from India was largely under the head of grain, increasing from $5,161,314 in 1901 to $39,217,816 in 1905. The imports of wool nearly doubled and raw cotton increased almost fifty per cent.

New Zealand's principal increase was in wool, but was considerable also in butter, gum and hemp. There was an increase also in fresh mutton, but a considerable falling off, quite half, in dead rabbits.

The most striking feature in the imports from foreign countries is the decrease, $126,579,008, in those from the United States, from $710,554,939 in 1901 to $574,975,931 in 1905, and this notwithstanding that the value of the raw cotton import increased $29,644,869, from $160,969,667 in 1901 to $190,614,536 in 1905. The main shrinkage is, of course, to be found under the head of corn and grain ; but all sorts of food stuffs show diminution of $125,026,531, as indicated by the following figures, which give the value of the imports for 1901 and 1905 :

Wheat	$67,040,817	$12,206,247
Wheatmeal and flour	43,273,789	14,409,177
Eggs	625,074	24,552
Lard	18,783,800	15,078,415
Beef (fresh)	33,638,896	24,052,190
Bacon	46,047,859	28,996,251
Hams	20,943,840	11,989,716
Butter	3,428,591	1,999,532

Decreasing at the rate of $126,000,000, or over 20 per cent., in four years, the United States will soon become an inconsiderable factor in the food supply of Great Britain.

The Argentine Republic, on the other hand, has increased its sales of wheat to Great Britain during this period from $13,285,017 to $41,204,881. It has nearly doubled its sales of maize and mutton and trebled its sales of fresh beef. The exports from Russia to Great Britain rose nearly 50 per cent., mostly in grain and butter, and Germany and France also show substantial increases.

Great Britain's exports to foreign countries during this quinquennial period increased 24 per cent., and to other parts of the Empire only 8 per cent. The increase to British possessions amounted to $42,605,851, but there was a decrease in the exports to Australia of $21,718,273, from $106,248,543 to $84,530,270. New Zealand on the other hand increased her imports from the Mother Land from $27,856,378 to $31,968,320. The increase of United Kingdom exports to India was $39,890,854, the largest sum in the increases to British possessions, but on a percentage basis the increase of exports to Canada was very much greater and greatest of all the British possessions. They rose from $38,732,724 in 1901 to $59,248,489 in 1905.

READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS.

Is it possible that some subscribers to this journal do not read the advertisements?

If there are any such let them call to mind the story in one of the old school readers, the II. or III. book, of the farmer who called on Lawyer Longhead for advice and got "Never put off till tomorrow what you can do to-day." Then when his wife wanted him to leave his hay out over night he told her he wasn't going to pay five dollars for no use and followed the lawyer's advice.

To admit the completeness of this analogy might be to declare the news and editorial department of this paper to have no value. But if a man paid for a suit of clothes and took only the coat and vest he wouldn't be regarded as safe to be at large, would he?

The advertising in this paper is not for the general public any more than the reading matter is. It is all direct talk to the foodstuff trade. A wholesaler said the other day "I read the ads first." He wanted to know what others of the trade were saying to the retailer. Isn't it even more the business of the retailer himself as the man addressed to know that.

Some grocers depend on the travelers to keep them in touch with the market and trade news in general. If they saw all the travelers they might get along in a way, but they see only a few whose business is the business of their firms. In the advertising columns of The Grocer they have direct weekly communication with all the wholesale houses.

PURE FOOD LAW IN CANADA.

In the United States the new national pure food law is about being put into operation. Many of the states have their own food laws and a good deal of confusion is anticipated. Pure food advocates, and notably the associations of grocers, are now urging that state regulations be made the national law. Probably the situation in Canada is not too clear to many purveyors of foodstuffs. The Canadian Grocer representative recently asked A. McGill, assistant to the chief analyst of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, about it and though too busy to go into the matter in detail, he replied:

"While it is true that the Adulteration Act is a national as contradistinguished from a provincial measure, it does not deprive provinces or municipalities of the power to undertake local food inspection. Section 6, explicitly states: 'The council of any city, town, county or village, may appoint one or more inspectors of food, drugs and agricultural fertilizers; and such inspectors shall, for the purposes of this act, have all the powers by this act, vested in officers of Inland Revenue; and any such inspector may require any public analyst to analyze any samples of food, drugs, or agricultural fertilizers collected by him, if such samples have been collected in accordance with the requirements of this act.'

"The amendment of 1890 provides (Section 2): 'The Governor-in-Council may on the nomination of the council of any city, town, county or township, or other municipality, appoint food examiners for such municipality, to examine such articles of food as are determined by the Governor-in-Council, etc.

"The Ontario Public Health Act, R.S. 1887. chapter 205, section 99, provides that 'Any medical health officer or sanitary inspector may, at all reasonable time, inspect or examine any animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, vegetables, grain, bread, flour or milks exposed for sale, etc.'

"The Province of Quebec, and I believe other provinces, make similar provisions. I have not the acts in question before me, but I am aware that the City of Montreal employs a city analyst, whose duty is to examine foods, etc. I believe that a large number of towns in Canada, and probably all Canadian cities, make more or less regular examination of milk.

"I have long been of opinion that the water supplies of towns and villages should undergo regular inspection. There can be no doubt that the annual scorage of typhoid and similar fevers, which proves so serious and fatal during later Summer and early Autumn, might be lessened, or entirely prevented by attention to the purity of drinking water. This matter is more easily looked after in cities and large towns, which usually obtain their water supply from a single source, than in the case of villages, where ground water wells are the source. The matter justifies more attention than it has yet received'.'

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

During the past season there were numerous complaints about the condition in which large quantities of Canadian butter arrived in this country. In boxes, style, packing, quality of parchment paper, and general appearance, the Australian product was much in advance of the Canadian. Moldy butter, so common from Canada, is unknown from the southern colonies. The defects are solely due to the absence of the care and organization which prevail in Australia and New Zealand. The season now in progress shows a distinct improvement in quality packing, and freedom from mold.—Weddel & Company's Colonial Dairy Produce Review for last year.

There is no good reason why Canadian butter should rank behind Danish, Scottish, Irish and Australasian. The creamery men and dairy farmers simply haven't yet learned their business. One of the Canadian commercial agents in England, writing a letter a while ago and complaining of moldy butter, said it was caused by using cases made of green lumber.

The Globe tackles the subject and blames the dairy instructors. It winds up: "It is time that our dairy experts were grappling with this problem." If the experts were magicians as well, they might do more, but, unfortunately, they have only the ordinary equipment. There are many poorly equiped creameries in Canada, but there is a failing back of that to be corrected. Dominion Dairy Commissioner J. A. Ruddick recently visited a noted butter producing district of Scotland, and telling about it described a stable, where a great number of cows were housed and milked, that was clean as a kitchen. It was scrubbed out every day and there wasn't a sign of manure or hint of bad odor about it. How many cow stables of that kind are there in Canada?

The case of cheese is not very different. The Canadian product holds the first place for quantity and quality of quantity on the English market, but he is a foolish Canadian and no patriot who is satisfied with the quality or quantity of the cheese produced in the Dominion. A buyer visiting a Government cold storage warehouse in Ontario recently saw 400 boxes of cheese from one factory, a month's output, and the older it was the worse was its flavor. The cheesemaker knew it was bad, and knew it was caused by some farmer's milk, but so keen is the competition among factories for patrons that he wouldn't turn the farmer away.

The Governments and their experts are all pegging away at the farmer for better milk, and at the creamery man and cheesemaker for better methods and equipment. It is a matter of education and it means millions in the pockets of Canadian people every year. No class is more interested than the retail merchants, and every one of them should constitute himself a propagandist for better methods in the dairy industry.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

France has passed a very stringent pure food law to protect legitimate foodstuffs and liquors from imitation.

During the first three months of the year Australian imports increased £1,250,000, and exports £5,961,000. In New Zealand the imports were £367,000 and the exports £611,000. In the case of New Zealand, the increase is almost wholly due to the advanced prices of wool, though the exports of frozen meat during March and April has very largely increased, while there has been a falling off in the exportation of butter, with some little increase in that of cheese.

Ontario provincial health authorities are agitating for legislation making two deliveries of milk daily compulsory upon all milkmen. Dr. Sheard, medical health officer, Toronto, advises a municipal dairy to prevent infant mortality. The doctor is not much of a believer in municipal ownership, either.

The Government of New South Wales, Australia, is about to introduce a bill to deal with the tramp nuisance. Under it a tramp would be sent to an industrial farm and fed on bread and water till he works. His diet would be improved as he works, and finally he would be paid. When he showed a disposition to earn his own living he would be released.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Fish—Revised.

Dried fruits—Some changes.

With the month of September just about to begin, which means the beginning of Fall business, there is a noticeable picking up in trade on all sides. People are getting back from their vacations and resuming their trade with the grocers, and the grocers in turn are sending in better orders to the wholesalers. The balance of the prices on canned goods have not yet come to hand, and are awaited with some anxiety by the trade, who do not know what surprises the new lists may contain. Orders at the new prices already given out have not been any too good. There has been no change in the sugar situation since our last report. The market is strong. Japan tea continues the feature of interest in the tea market. Reports received say that the primary markets are very strong. Cables received from Shanghai say that Pingsueys, Gunpowders and Young Hysons are all two cents higher than last year. Formosa Oolongs are also above last year's basis. Molasses is very quiet. In foreign dried fruits there is considerable of interest this week. Nuts are very high and buyers do not seem interested at the prices asked. The quotations on new crop Valencia raisins are due, but are away too high to attract buyers. There is nothing new to report in coffee this week, nor in spices.

Collections have been very good in most quarters.

CANNED GOODS—Price lists for the balance of canned vegetables and fruits have not yet made their appearance, and are anxiously awaited by the trade. Fall orders are coming in perhaps a little better this week than last. The higher prices, such as have been given out, are causing many to delay in buying, although no good can be gained by the delay. Canned salmon is reported strong this week.

SUGAR—Under the recent advance the market has been very strong. Merchants have not been buying very heavily, but for that matter, being between the small fruit and the large fruit seasons, it is not expected of them. Nevertheless a fair trade is being transacted.

TEA—In the tea market Japans still hold the interest of the trade. Latest reports from Japan continue in the same strain as those which have come to hand at different times during the past couple of weeks—that a very strong market rules. Outside of this there is no information given in advices from Yokohamma and other points in Japan.

Cable quotations from Shanghai say that the market is two cents higher than last year. Pingsueys, Gunpowders and Young Hysons are all higher by 2 cents. Formosa Oolongs are also about 10 per cent. above last year.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Quotations on new crop Valencia raisins have been given out and they certainly are such as to cause those in the trade to stand still, for the time being at least. The new quotations show a cost of 8c. laid down— a figure so high that none seem interested in the line. This price is particularly high when last year's opening is considered—5c. There is no change noticeable in seeded raisins. In currants the situation presents no new features. The trade are awaiting the new crop. Prices on all nuts are too high to interest buyers at present. The prudent buyers will wait until early next month, by which time prices will have become more reasonable on account of increased offerings. Prices were made on California peaches at the end of last week, but were immediately withdrawn, as what little supply there is has fallen into the hands of speculators. The initial cost of apricots this year will be fully 5 to 6 cents over last year, while peaches are just about the same. Nectarines are in very small supply. California raisins promise well, but have been affected somewhat by the very hot weather The supply of three and four crowns will be somewhat reduced in consequence. Prunes are unsettled at present, but it is likely that the crop will fall considerably short of the first estimates.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, Aug. 30, 1906.

BUTTER—Market rather strong under recent advance.

CHEESE—Prices a shade higher. Ontarios selling 12½c to 13c.

EGGS—Steady market. Demand fair at practically unchanged prices.

PROVISIONS—No change in the situation. Dressed hogs continue to bring $10 to $10 25 per 100 pounds.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Sugar very firm.

No new prices in canned goods.

Higher prices for new dried fruits.

Cheese higher.

Business is just fair this week with wholesalers busy entertaining customers here to attend the exhibition or getting the advantage of the low railway fares. Sugar continues strong and the feeling inclines to a further advance. Otherwise the grocery market is quiet. New dried fruits and nuts are engaging the attention of the wholesalers, but retailers are not yet interested. Stocks will not begin to arrive here till October. The situation in prunes is interesting and a suggestive letter is given below.

CANNED GOODS—No new prices have come out this week and prices are unchanged from last week's schedule.

SUGAR—The market is very firm and a further advance is looked for and by some authorities boldly predicted. In New York last week raws advanced 1-16 cents to 3.94 cents for 96 test centrifugals, and granulated declined 10 points. Since then raws have further advanced to 4c. Beet in Europe has advanced from 9s. 3 3-4d to 9s. 6d.

Last week's summary of the statistical position shows stocks in the United States and Cuba together of 370,889 tons, against 405,664 tons last week and 432,032 tons last year, a decrease of 61,143 tons from last year.

Willett & Gray say of the visible supply: "Total stock of Europe and America, 1,957,889 tons, against 1,448,032 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 509,857 tons, against an increase of 552,145 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together, show a visible supply of 2,162,889 tons, against 1,793,032 tons last year, or an increase of 369,857 tons.

The same firm under date of August 23 say:

"Even at the higher prices only very moderate quantities were obtainable, and holders are now still more reluctant to part with their sugars.

Stocks in Cuba are reduced to only 92,000 tons, of which about one-half has already been sold, while Porto Rico has no more than 15,000 tons to dispose of, and there is scarcely any old crop sugar in the West Indies. Javas are coming forward slowly and in a small way compared with former seasons. It will be seen that the available supply is barely sufficient to meet the demand from refiners for cane sugars until December. It was hoped that the new Cuba crop might make an early start, and part of it come to market before January, but the news just received of a revolution in Cuba causes the fear of delay in the harvesting of that crop, in which event the value of cane sugars now in stock would be greatly enhanced .The new Louisiana crop will help out to some extent, and the distribution of the large domestic beet crop will tend to lessen the requirements of refiners for meltings in November-December, but it is evident that further supplies must be brought from Europe.

"There were no sales of Javas reported this week, the offerings now being at 10s. 7 1-2d c. and f. for September shipment, equal to 4.05c. landed for 96 degrees test.

"Canada bought 5,000 tons Demerara centrifugals for October shipment at 2 7-16c. c. and f. Montreal, equal to 4.08c. landed at New York.

"It is understood that recent sales of about 20,000 tons of European beet sugars were made to New York refiners at 9s. 8 1-4d c. and f., equal to 3.90c. to 3.94c. for centrifugals, and but little more of old crop sugar suited for America is now obtainable.

TEA—J. L. Watt, of J. L. Watt & Scott, importing brokers, said yesterday: "The market on black teas, both in Calcutta and Ceylon, has advanced 1-4c. to 1-2c. on low grades during the past week with a strong demand and probability of higher prices. The higher prices, however, will in some measure be compensated for by improving quality as the season advances. But those who desire low priced tea with good appearance of leaf without regard to quality have been operating freely on the very low market that has existed. Buyers of teas for packets on the other hand have been buying very sparingly, waiting for cup quality to improve.

"A small volume of business has been for shipment from Japan owing to the generally high level of prices, but importations are likely to be further curtailed as the season advances."

Locally the market is quiet.

COFFEE—The strength given to the speculative market by the Brazil valorization plans seems to have ebbed very quickly. However, those who have believed in the efficiency of the plan to bring about higher prices for actual coffee, are of the same mind. Willett & Gray, New York, say:

"The valorization pro's and con's have had some influence in the market changes the past week. While the practical success of this new protection policy remains to be demonstrated, it must be said that until the scheme has been applied or a full knowledge of its methods revealed, a fair criticism is not possible. One thing is very certain, that those who are in haste to condemn the new measure, have not taken the pains to get at the true facts. No one can doubt the right of Brazil to attempt to conserve her chief industry and at a time when the world must buy the product. The Government is actively engaged with the details of the new law and loan. Private advices predict the success of same, but meanwhile operators profess to be disappointed because inside information is not immediately available to satisfy calculations as to the course of the markets. It is only about two weeks ago the president of Brazil signed the bill authorizing the loan, and in the most modern countries a longer time than this would be needed to complete it. The general lack of knowledge of modern Brazil is perhaps responsible for a great deal of the skepticism as to her capabilities and possibilities. The sound condition of the country, financially, and the high foreign credit of her states, individually, are well attested. Now that the coffee crop is moving in earnest, Europe and the States stand in the markets as free buyers, not from choice, but from sheer necessity. Europe has no coffee in the interior, and in the seaports the smallest stocks known for years. Europe has abstained from buying a very long time, hoping a full Santos crop would mean lower prices, but Brazil held firm and seems determined to strive for a living price when buyers must have the goods and actual consumers daily pay the old scale, year in and year out, as when coffee was double the price of to-day. Europe must continue to buy freely in Brazil, and so must this country. The monthly deliveries average 1,400,000 bags for the two countries, the greater portion of which must be drawn from Brazil for months to come, before any importations can be set by to replenish reserves.

"With early activity of valorization plans and the outlook for the next growing crop already very satisfactory, Brazil can control the markets. Any further unfavorable developments as to the next crop would result in a great rush to secure coffee.

"For several week's the weather has been fine and dry, the trees being reported in a weak condition, without foliage. It is quite significant at this period, when there should be, under ordinary circumstances, some signs of vigor prior to the blossoming periods. We repeat that too much attention cannot be given to this point of itself, as exhausted trees cannot furnish a crop.

DRIED FRUITS— With stocks very low and prices high interest centres on the new crops and opening prices. The current market for several weeks past has had a strengthening tendency. The advance during this time has now reached a shilling per cwt. All cables agree that the position is very strong and higher rather than lower prices are looked for. Opening prices are 1-2c. higher than last year's opening.

In regard to Valencia raisins, opening prices are 1 1-2c. higher than a year ago and the new stock will cost the wholesaler considerably more than present prices to the retail trade. Generally speaking, first-class shippers in Spain are not now offering the new stock that is coming to market because the quantity is not sufficient to fill orders actually in hand.

In regard to prunes the situation is very unsettled, but very interesting. There is a very large crop in California and prices opened moderately low, but advanced a 1-4c. this week. As to whether or not the advance will hold, opinion differs. If orders placed by jobbers had stood, the trade would have been pretty well stocked till Christmas, but only yesterday word was received that a good deal of business had not been confirmed and so the situation is open.

W. G. A. Lambe & Co. received under date Aug. 23, a very interesting letter from C. W. Griffin in part as follows:

"While the market has been weak, there has been a very heavy demand, and the distribution seems to have been very heavy indeed, and we are now receiving inquiries, and selling a good many people who bought quite heavily at the opening prices The total absence of a carry-over in California, and practically so in all markets in the United States and Canada, means that it will take a very large quantity of prunes to stock up the jobbers and retailers even in a moderate way.

"We thought at one time that the market might get down to the low point of three years ago, but, while the market has been very weak, it seems to be considerably stronger at the present time, and there is practically no one who will part with their prunes to-day even at a price that will permit us to fill orders at a profit, at the same time we, of course, believe that we shall be able to work it out a little later on.

"Drying has commenced all over the Santa Clara Valley and we believe we shall be able to get out a number of cars of prunes in September. Of course, the early cars have to be shipped to points where the assortment fits. It is very seldom that we have any large prunes out of the first deliveries, but these early prunes will go into distribution very rapidly, and that is likely to strengthen the situation. Of course, very favorable curing weather might insure the curing of a larger quantity than could be put up otherwise, but even with a large crop, the indications are to-day that the market is not far from bottom; but we would like to say right here that this has been a season of unexpected happenings, and about every estimate that has been made on the California crop has been wrong, and if I am making a mistake in this letter, charge it up to the earthquake or whatever seems to have been regulating things in California for the past four months."

Since then the market has advanced 1-4c.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., August 28.

The only notable change in the grocery markets since last report is an advance in the price of sugar, which has been anticipated for some time. The advance is ten cents per hundred pounds on all grades. The quotations here follow: XXX granulated, $4.40; Austrian granulated, $4.30; bright yellow, $4.20; No. 1 yellow, $3.90; unbranded, $3.80. The markets, generally speaking, are in a healthy condition, and trade is good all round. The industrial activity throughout the province causes money to circulate freely, and as a result business in all lines reaps the benefit of the good times.

MOLASSES—The market is comparatively quiet at present, the warm weather having had rather a bad effect on business. Prices quoted here are: Fancy Trinidad, 39c.; fancy Porto Rico, 37c.;

extra choice Porto Rico, 37c.; choice Trinidad, 35c. to 36c.; fancy Barbadoes, 30c. to 32c.; Barbadoes, 29c.

BUTTER, EGGS AND CHEESE — There is a good demand for butter, but the receipts are not increasing any. Prices are steady. Eggs are unchanged both as regards price and receipts. The quality of some of the stock on the market is very poor. Cheese is firmer and the price has advanced to 13c. Prince Edward Island quotations are now 12c.

FISH—The crew of the French hospital ship St. Francois D'Assisi, which has just arrived at Sydney, report that the Grand Bank fishery is almost a total failure this year, at least in so far as the French vessels engaged in it are concerned. As one of the men put it, "When fish were plenty there was no bait and when bait was plenty there was no fish," so that a large number of the vessels have hardly had their bottoms covered with the catch. Another report says that there is a scarcity of bait at Channel, Newfoundland, though herring are on the coast but will not mesh. If bait could be procured there is a prospect of good fishing. The fishing in Bona Vista Bay has been below the average. The best fishing has been done at Indian Arm to King's Cove, where there was about 8,000 quintals landed to date. Competition among the buyers is keen, and it is expected that the price will go up in consequence. Fish is slacking off around the south coast of Newfoundland, and there is very little doing now from Cape St. Francis to Cape Spear. There has been an advance of 50 cents per quintal on dry cod at St. John's, Nfld. From store large cod are quoted here at $7 and medium at $6.75. Ex vessel shore cod are quoted at $4 to $4.25, and Bank cod the same, the quality of the fish regulating the price in the majority of cases. Shipments of mackerel to the American cities are decreasing, and it is not expected that the movement will revive to any extent until the autumn run of fish sets in. The arrivals of fish this week include the following: Schooners Mizpah, 600 qts. cod, and Alice E. L., 900 qts. cod and 10 barrels of herring, both from Labrador; schooner Sadie E. from Larry's River, 200 qts. cod, 100 barrels of pickled mackerel, 30 barrels of pickled herring, and 11 barrels of fish roes. The schooner Mabel H., from Lunenburg, brought 1,200 qts. cod, 120 drums dry fish, and 33 barrels of herring.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, August 30, 1906.)

For the harvest month business is particularly active. General grocery supplies are in good demand.

CANNED GOODS — Sockeye salmon is very scarce this year and there will be scarcely any tall tins on the market. One large local house that packs its own brand was able to get only 1,000 cases in all, only a small fraction of what was wanted. All sizes of new canned lobsters are now in stock. We quote:

PACIFIC PROVINCE FAIR

Exhibition at New Westminster—Close Season for Sockeye—Expansion of Fruit Growing—Seaweed as Fertilizer—Market Notes and Prices.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 27, 1906.

Though not favored with the Dominion Exhibition grant again this year the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Society does not intend to allow the Provincial Exhibition at New Westminster to be one whit behind the magnificent display of last year. The programme for this year includes many very important improvements and the attractiveness of the prize list is assurance that the great wealth of ranch and field and forest of the Pacific province will be so exploited as to impress every visitor. That there will be many visitors is assured. The Province of Alberta is to have special excursion rates and transportation is being arranged for over 5,000 people. The Dominion Forestry Association convention is also to be held during the fair week. Mayor Keary, of New Westminster, manager of the Royal City fair, has received assurance that His Excellency the Governor-General will be present to open the exhibition. It was at one time expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was to be in attendance at the forestry convention and therefore would be at the fair, but he has sent word that he will not be present.

The display of fruits from every section of the province is to be, as always, one of the leading attractions. The City of New Westminster is arranging for a distinctive display to show the products of the fishing industry, while other similar exhibits will be made.

Whether the traps should be allowed to continue right through from the end of the sockeye season, August 25, to the beginning of the cohoe season, September 15, is a vexed question among individual fishermen, seeing that the Government has not extended the season on the Fraser River when the sockeye net can be used. Until September 15 nothing but the 7-inch mesh net, or larger, will be allowed, this to permit of the last of the sockeye run getting up river to the spawning grounds. Provincial Fisheries Inspector Babcock, who is also one of the Canadian Fisheries Commission, left the other day for his sixth annual inspection of the spawning grounds of the Upper Fraser. Before leaving he stated that the catch was disappointing in that it was so much smaller than four years ago, the corresponding period, so far as salmon lore goes. Taking that as authoritative, it very likely indicates clearly why the fishing season for sockeye was not extended.

At any rate, there are a number of fishermen using the 7-inch mesh net, now, catching Spring salmon. The sockeye run is really over for the season. The sockeye run to the upper waters of the Fraser River where the spawn are laid, seems to have been fairly good. As the fish travel up stream over 500 miles it is evident they must enter the river earlier than July 1 in order to be as far as Quesnel by this time. The later run goes to the streams tributary to the lower portion of the Fraser, such as Harrison Lake. The only hindrance to the fish reaching the upper waters is the Indians, who are allowed to catch fish for food, curing a supply for their use next Winter. It is a familiar sight to see a string of illahees, temporarily erected, where the Siwashes are encamped while they catch their Winter supply and cure it, which is done by drying in the sun and air, and lightly smoking. The long strings of dark red fish hung on poles shaded with leaves and ferns, are frequently seen as the C.P.R. train sweeps along the valley of the Fraser River below Lytton. The Indians gather from all sections to catch the salmon, and there is no limit on what they may put up for themselves, but they may not catch them for sale, neither can they use any but drift or dip nets. No anchored nets across the streams are allowed.

The expansion of the fruit growing and other branches of the ranching industry in the section of the lower Fraser Valley south of that river, is likely to be very great if the proposal is carried out to install an electric railway extending sixty miles up river to Chilliwack, thus connecting that large and prosperous agricultural district and all intervening sections with the coast cities. Mr. J. Buntzen, managing director of the B. C. Electric Railway Co., has the matter in hand and states it will be the most important project he will lay before the board of directors when he returns to London this Autumn. There is a very large area of splendid land in the country to be traversed by the proposed line. Largely without transportation except that supplied by river steamers on the Fraser, and that more or less hard to reach from points some miles away from its banks, the districts have been handicapped and settlement retarded, while those settlers living on the land have not cleared the acreage they might have, had transportation facilities rendered it an object to get more land into cultivation or ready for market.

The humid yet mild climate of the coast prevails in the whole area to be traversed by this first long distance electric line in the province. The soil is fertile, much of the land is easily cleared, and there are already a number of considerable settlements, which will afford a nucleus for larger settlement. Fruit growing, dairying, vegetables and grain will all be as now very attractive and profitable industries. The district would easily support many thousands of people where now but a very few thousands are settled.

What may be a valuable suggestion to farmers living within reach of the sea coast is contained in the hint given by a farmer on Vancouver Island at Englishman's River, near Nanaimo. He has a magnificent field of wheat, by far the best crop he ever raised, and the success is attributed entirely to the fact that last Winter before plowing it he gave it a liberal top dressing of seaweed from the gulf. This method of fertilizing is easily adopted on the coast, though not heretofore tried. It has long been in use in England.

Local fruits are making a much greater showing on the local market of late. Apples are coming in greater variety, Bartlett pears, greengage and Bradshaw plums, crab apples, etc., make up a fairly large list and additions are coming each week. The fruit crop so far as tree fruits are concerned, is promising extra well this year. Local prices for apples range from 75c. to $1 a box. Pears bring $1 and $1.25 a box yet, while greengage plums bring 75c. Bradshaws, 60c. to 75c. Crab apples, 35c. to 50c. for 20-lb. boxes. Blackberries are worth $2 per crate.

California fruits are still coming in fairly well, though the advance of the local season shuts out importations to a considerable extent.

Vegetable supplies are practically all local now. Celery is on the market in good quantities, bringing 40c. to 50c. a dozen. Green corn sells at 20c. per dozen, cabbage, local, 2c. per lb. Tomatoes are fairly well supplied now from up country sources. They sell at $1.25 and $1.50 per crate. Potatoes are plentiful and quotations range in the vicinity of $15 per ton.

Thirty-three to thirty-five cents per dozen is the wholesale paying price for fresh ranch eggs, and retailers are selling at 40c. and 45c. per dozen, with the article scarce at the price. Eastern eggs are of doubtful quality at the present moment, yet the price is up to 26c. per dozen for candled stock.

Local butter remains unchanged at 25c. for creamery. Eastern butter is nearly as high. Cheese is from 16c. to 16½c.

N. B. MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 27, 1906.

Business continues good. Values are firmly held. The continued dry weather affects particularly dairy produce. While it has been fairly warm we have had none of the extreme heat of western cities or even of points inland in this province. Forest fires have done much damage. In New Brunswick lumber is our chief wealth and therefore fire is a most dreaded misfortune. Unfortunately it is often the result of carelessness. Our people are not alive to the need of well devised efforts to prevent these disasters. Personal responsibility should be brought home to those doing anything likely to cause fires. Another important matter is better methods to fight the fires, particularly in their early stages.

Next week will be one of great interest. The exhibition, which promises to be our best, will bring crowds into the city, railway fares being extremely low. Our wholesale houses in particular will see to it that their customers have every attention. It is profitable, as well as pleasant, that outside buyers should see the establishments and meet the proprietors of the houses with which they are doing business.

OIL—There is increased business in burning oil. Prices are unchanged. All Fall contracts have been made. In lubricating oils there is active business, dealers report a good season. Gasoline has a very heavy demand. Dealers are unable to get enough to stock. Paint oils unchanged. Just a fair sale. Cod oil has just a steady demand at even prices.

SALT—In Liverpool coarse salt the quantity being handled is large; values well maintained. There are continued arrivals. Fine salt, just fair business.

CANNED GOODS—Our market has a fair stock of corn and tomatoes. While full prices rule, values unchanged. Peas firm at the advance. Strawberries held at full figures. Fruits not large sellers here. In gallon apples, local packers supply the market. Prices rather higher than last year. Salmon firm at full prices. Oysters scarce. In domestic fish, sardines expected to be a light pack, and values likely to be higher; haddies and kippered herring unchanged.

GREEN FRUIT—Dealers are very busy. Apples keep high, some good stock now arriving. Bananas in full supply. Oranges are scarce and high. Lemons hold at very full prices. Pears are fine stock, prices firm. Californian and eastern Bartletts offered. Peaches scarce and high. Plums are fine, price unchanged. Melons, just fair business. Grapes in light supply. Sweet potatoes held at full price.

DRIED FRUIT—Spot seeded raisins firmer. Futures unchanged. Prices quoted on new Valencias high. There is some sale for seedless California raisins. In prunes, little spot stock. Goods for Fall easy. Apricots and peaches high. Spot currants unchanged, futures firmer. New York cleaned largely bought. Dates, figs and peels are all rather higher than last year. Evaporated apples scarce. New goods expected in about thirty days. This will mean lower prices. Valencia onions freely offered, prices rather higher. Reports of Canadian onions not favorable.

SUGAR—The Glasgow steamer of last week landed a large quantity of Scotch granulated. In local market advance of last week firmly held and higher prices expected.

LARD

There are two very good reasons why we may expect to see higher prices for Lard.

The weather is getting colder, people use more Lard in cold weather.

Butter is scarce and higher and will be higher yet.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market still continues breaking previous records and making new records of high prices for the future. A prominent house in Great Britain puts it, "The market is spasmodic. We start with a dull Monday and by the end of the week we find we have sold thousands of boxes of cheese. We buy reluctantly, as we have no confidence in present prices, but we must have goods to supply our trade. The spot prices are lower than the c.i.f. prices, so we have bought a good many cheese on spot."

The above is a very fair illustration of this year's cheese business. The fact is that the country markets are higher than the market in Montreal, and Montreal is higher than British markets. Now, how is it possible to make a legitimate profit? In other words, how or where can anybody buy any goods and sell them even at a very small margin of profit?

This great trade, we might almost say "the backbone of the Dominion of Canada," the dairy industry, seems to be mismanaged from a commercial point of view. Under the keen competition of buying on the one hand, and the keen competition of selling on the other hand, the business has become very speculative. We have "bulls" and "bears"; the former buy the goods in hopes of a profit if the market prices advance, the latter sell for future delivery and then they become "buyers" when the time comes to fill their contracts. Cheese is a most unfortunate article of speculation as far as "short sales" are concerned. Provisions, grain, etc., sell at a higher price for future delivery, while in cheese the market has invariably to be discounted, and prices for future delivery are always lower than spot prices.

This makes a gamble, with the odds against the seller every time, especially when it is considered that the buyer in Great Britain can always find fault with the quality of the goods if the market is against him; yet some of our most prominent houses will do this sort of business, and the consequence is that the former legitimate order business is today a dead letter.

Statistically our situation remains a very strong one and from present outlook it seems that prices may still be forced higher.

Receipts in Montreal last week were 91,763 boxes of cheese and 26,344 packages of butter, against 83,824 boxes of cheese and 27,466 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,378,267 boxes of cheese and 421,504 packages of butter, as compared with 1,322,817 boxes of cheese and 504,492 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Our exports were last week 89,507 boxes of cheese and 26,307 packages of butter, against 86,896 boxes of cheese and 27,240 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,293,463 boxes of cheese and 242,716 packages of butter, as compared with 1,176,643 boxes of cheese and 353,611 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Up to date we received 55,450 boxes more cheese than last year and we exported 116,820 boxes more, leaving us 61,370 boxes of cheese less in stock than at this time last year. In butter our receipts are 82,988 packages short of last year, and our shipments are 110,895 packages less, leaving a stock of 27,907 packages in excess of the stocks at this time last year.

The season started unfavorably, and the recent weather conditions of extreme heat and drought have not improved matters in the country. The above figures show a considerable falling off in the production of milk, the increase in the receipts of cheese being considerably more than offset by the enormous decrease in the receipts of butter.

Butter, compared with cheese, has been the cheaper article all through the season, but it looks now as though our butter was also wanted in Great Britain, and recent prices show a substantial advance, although they remain still at a discount against prices for cheese, which simply means that farmers will continue to make cheese rather than butter, wherever they are in the position of making either article.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

Live hog prices are steadily getting down. This week the packers were paying $6.40 f.o.b. country points, which means $6.25 for the farmer. The official bacon figures given out in the Old Country show a decline for last week of 5s. on Danish and 3s. on Canadian. The supposed cause of the decline on the English market is the size of recent American shipments, which have been running from 17,000 to 20,000 boxes, while the normal has been about 15,000. The American packers began to reduce the price of live hogs several weeks ahead of the Canadian, and the latter have a lot of pork in their cellars now on which they will lose several shillings a hundredweight. The price of finished hog products usually follows the live hog market five or six weeks later, and this accounts for the weaker tone in hog products in Canada.

Deliveries of live hogs have been a little lighter of late. The farmers were marketing quite a number of immature animals and the packers reduced the price on that class to induce the growers to keep them a few months longer. The plan has apparently worked all right.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

Inquiry amongst the trade goes to show that Canadian bacon is selling better than it has done for some while past. This is evidently directly due to the improved quality of arrivals on this market, for there is no shortage of supplies of bacon from other sources. Stocks of Canadian on hand, however, are not very plentiful, and in the absence of advice of heavier arrivals, sellers have adopted a firm attitude. Prices have therefore been advanced from 2s. to 3s. Retailers and distributors are somewhat unwilling to take this advance lying down, for they still contend, as they have been doing for some while back, that the quality of Canadian bacon does not justify the upward movement. However, market conditions are against them, and the fact that they continue to buy whatever is on offer goes to show that they realize the state of affairs. It is confidently hoped that October will see more hogs marketed in Canada and that more plentiful supplies will be available for this market.

The position of the Canadian cheese market here is eminently satisfactory from the sellers point of view and latest advices from across the water go to show that the firm attitude adopted is in every respect warranted. Of course while it is impossible to contradict the statement that Canadian cheese rules this market, it would not, perhaps, be out of place to remind Canadians that any further advance in price on their part would be attended with questionable results. It is true that stocks here, though fair, are not heavy, and it is true that buyers are responding readily to the present high prices asked (60s. and 61s. for choicest colored) but it would be well to bear in mind that there is a limit to the buying capacity of retailers, and that any bullish tendencies on the part of sellers will be vigorously resisted. About 175,000 boxes are now on hand at the warehouses in London, but the amount that has gone into consumption during the past seven days has been above the ordinary. It is quite impossible to account for this. Indeed the consumption of cheese seems to vary without any particular cause, and often in the hottest weather, when the quality is materially affected for the worse by the heat, larger quantities are consumed. There is no New Zealand cheese on offer, and the demand for Dutch is exceedingly poor.

The Canadian butter market does not seem to be developing so rapidly this year as it did last. However, the demand has been better this week for such supplies as have come to hand, and best packages are making 110s.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Provisions are practically unchanged since last report. Market conditions are just about the same as prevailed at that time. Export inquiry is becoming more noticeable. Local trade is satisfactory in all lines. Lard, hams and bacon are moving out freely. Although it was thought possible in some quarters that there might be a decline in prices, one has not occurred so far, quotations being steadily maintained.

BUTTER—The butter market is once more higher, having advanced in sympathy with the English market, which went up 3-4c. per pound last week. The situation is rather strong and holders seem to have every confidence that they will be making still higher prices during the coming month. Demand from England has been fairly good of late, but whether the advanced price asked will curtail the demand or not remains to be seen. Prices may possibly go up another notch, but if they do demand will doubtless fall off somewhat.

CHEESE—Another advance has taken place, but this one is evidently the work of manipulation, some operators trying to raise prices in the country above a basis that can be made on spot, their object being best known to themselves. To the last advance the response from England has been very light. From present appearances it looks as though the market had about reached top at last, although this has been said before. Shipments continue very heavy, so that there is little accumulation on spot.

EGGS— Cool weather recently has been the cause of a slight improvement in the quality of the eggs offered, although dealers are still receiving many lots shipped during the hot spell and these are none too satisfactory. Consumption is still rather limited in the city and district, but as receipts are not particularly heavy, this does not affect the situation very much. Since last week there has been practically no change in prices. Quotations give 20c. to 21c. for selects, according to size and quality, and from 17 1-2c. to 18c. for No. 1.

TORONTO MARKETS.

PROVISIONS—The market has scarcely the strength of last week, but there are few quotable changes. Street lot hogs, however, are down a quarter to three-quarters of a cent, this week's prices being $9.50 to $10. Smoked breakfast bacon is also easier, 16c., being the ruling price at present.

HOW TO KEEP EGGS.

In reply to a retailer who wanted a reliable process for keeping eggs, the National Provisioner replied :

Water glass (silicate of soda) is one of the best preparations for the preservation of eggs. Water glass can be obtained from your druggist and is a clear, sirupy fluid. Mix one pint in an earthenware or glass with nine pints of boiling water. Do not use metal. This solution should be allowed to cool before being used. See that the eggs are clean and strictly fresh. Pack them in a stone, glass, or wooden vessel that is water tight and perfectly clean. When the container is two-thirds full of eggs pour the cold water glass solution carefully over them, allowing the solution to stand about two inches higher than the topmost layer of eggs. Cover the container tightly and place it in a cool, dry place to be kept there until the eggs are wanted for use. The room in which the eggs are kept should be cool and the air pure and sweet, as clean as you would keep a milk room. If the room is too warm a gummy deposit will be found upon the eggs when they are removed. When the eggs are wanted for use they may be taken from the solution, dried and packed in cases for market. An ordinary observer cannot distinguish them from an ordinary fresh case egg. They can be used satisfactorily for all culinary purposes except boiling, but if they are to be boiled the large end of the egg should be pierced with a coarse darning needle. Even then they are liable to burst open. Eggs will keep in this solution from six to ten months. The solution should be made fresh for each lot of eggs packed.

SOME BUTTER PRICES.

The following comparison of butter prices in England by Thos. Nesbitt & Co. in their circular of August 13 is interesting :

	1904	1905	1906
	s. s.	s. s.	s. s.
Danish..per cwt.	110—112	120—122	114—116
Normandy.. "	80—108	92—308	95—104
Dutch..... "	102—108	110—112	104—106
Canadian,etc. "	82— 94	90—110	82—110

It is noticeable that the highest price for Canadian is next to Danish but below the lowest price for Danish.

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER.

Australian export of butter to Great Britain has increased in three years as follows :

	Tons.
1903-1904	19,855
1904-1905	24,368
1905-1906	26,450

Since October cheaper freights have been in force, making a reduction in this year's shipping bill from £185,150 to £92,575.

OPENING FOR CANADIAN MEAT.

The Canadian commercial agent in South Africa writes:

"Recent statements in the press regarding the methods of meat packing in Chicago had the effect of seriously injuring the sale of United States of America tinned meats in South Africa, to the great benefit of Australian canners who have not been slow to take advantage of the opportunity.

"The new tariff is also favorable to the latter, allowing a rebate of 1-2c. per lb. on canned meats of Canadian and Australian origin. Canadian canners would do well at the present juncture to take more interest in the South African market."

WANT CANADIAN EGGS.

Prof. Ed. Brown, assistant director agricultural department, University College, Reading, England, who is now in Canada studying agricultural methods, says.:

"Great Britain's main source of supply for poultry and eggs is Northern and Eastern Europe. We paid Russia alone nearly $15,000,000 last year for poultry products. The best eggs come from Denmark, but on the whole the quality of the products received from foreign sources is not good. Canada can supply a better quality of eggs and a finer type of dressed poultry than any of her competitors. Unfortunately the farmers in the Dominion are at present unable to meet even the home demand, and consequently the exports of these products to Great Britain have been materially reduced. The markets are there, and why cannot the Canadian people supply them ?"

In discussing the methods adopted in shipping Canadian eggs to Great Britain Professor Brown expressed a preference for limed eggs over those shipped in cold storage, as the latter had to be consumed immediately after being taken out for they rapidly deteriorated in quality, but limed eggs were fairly safe as a market commodity.

and the average price got for butter sent to Great Britain was Kr 98.41 ($26.37 1-3) per cwt.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture has received from the military authorities at Malta forms of tender for the supply of fresh meat and live cattle to that district during next year.

Creameries throughout the province are this year enjoying one of the best seasons they ever had. Though cattle are still pasturing, butter has risen to 40 cents a pound, and for a long time remained at the 35-cent figure.—Victoria, B.C., Colonist.

In July of last year there were exported from the United States 5,232,794 pounds of canned and tinned meats, at a total value of $542,168. Last month the total number of pounds sent abroad was only 1,039,652, and the value $104,710.

Between July 1 and May 14 following the exports of Australian butter to Great Britain have been for the years 1903-4, 1904-5, 1905-6, as follows: 19,019 cwts., 22,221 cwts., and 24,912 cwts. respectively.

Hon. B. Findlay, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, feels that there is restriction of trade in the difference between the price paid stock-raisers and the amount which the general public has to pay for dressed meat, and has called a convention of representatives from Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, to meet at Calgary to consider the cattle and dressed meat industry.

RECORD SPEED.

A fine large new engine has recently been installed in record time in the factory of E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., Toronto. The makers of the engine thought they required two weeks in which to remove the old engine and install the new one and get it into running shape, but the contract was made with the understanding that the work should be done and the new engine running in four days, and this was accomplished by working two gangs of men, night and day.

The business of the Gillett Co. is so heavy that they were obliged to put in an engine which is of more than double the capacity of the old one which they began with in their new factory less than two years ago.

The management attribute the wonderful increase in the demand for their goods to two facts, one being that the goods made by them are first class and the other to the great results obtained from advertising.

VALUE OF U.S. FISHERIES.

The value of the water products taken and sold by United States fishermen in 1905 was approximately $56,250,000, and this sum is exclusive of the very considerable fisheries of insular possessions and the immense quantities of fish taken for home consumption and by sportsmen. The number of persons who make a livelihood in this industry is about 232,000, and the capital invested exceeds $82,000,000.

The most valuable of all the fishery products is the oyster, in the output of which the United States surpasses all other countries combined. The crop of 1905 may be placed at 32,000,000 bushels, with a market value of $15,760,000. Virginia has recently assumed the first rank as an oyster producing state, owing chiefly to the more general practice of oyster farming, the state's yield being now upward of 8,500,000 bushels, with a value to the producers of $3,250,000.

NEW AGENT APPOINTED.

A. A. Carrick, until recently the Montreal representative of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, has been succeeded by W. C. Murray, who has been for some years this company's Maritime Province representative. Mr. Murray is an old Montreal boy and considering his long experience with the company named and the fact that he is generally liked by the trade wherever he has been, he will undoubtedly make a success in his new position.

E. W. Gillett Co., Limited., now carry a stock in Montreal and are prepard to ship goods direct to retailers, when the latter find it impossible to get what they want from their wholesale grocers. The Montreal office of the company is located in the Coristine building.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Canadian Markets Continue Quiet, Waiting for the Resumption of Business and Watching the Crops—News of the Trade.

Flour and grain markets throughout Canada are still waiting for the opening of Fall business and watching the crops. The Grain Commission got to work in Winnipeg this week and its peregrinations will be of interest to the trade for a month or so to come. They will take up first the question of transportation and beginning at Winnipeg will work east to New York via north of the Lakes and return by way of Buffalo and Chicago. That tour completed they will go west and pursue their inquiries among the farmers.

Expert estimates of the western wheat crop still differ, ranging from 74,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels. The weight of world yields, however, has pressed prices down a cent. The flour trade is still very quiet and little business is passing.

MONTREAL.

GRAIN—Grain has been quiet during the week, there being little activity in any line. Prices have been well maintained.

FLOUR—Since last report there has been a decline in flour. Royal Household, Glenora and Five Roses are all lower by 20 cents. Manitoba is also lower. The arrival of new wheat is, in a measure, responsible for the decline. Millers report the usual volume of business for this time of year.

FEED—There is nothing new in feed this week. Bran and shorts are still hard to obtain in anything like quantity. Demand is good, but since dealers cannot fill orders this does not help matters much. Feed flour is in very good request.

HAY—Prices have advanced locally from 25c. to 50c. There is very little hay coming forward, and dealers say that it is very difficult to obtain any in the country. As prices stand at the moment they are too high for export business. Trade on the whole, as a consequence, is on the quiet side.

Latest advices from the other side say that the market has not changed much since last report. Liverpool quotations received hover around 63s. c.i.f.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GRAIN—New wheat is lower this week. Things are still quiet, but in a short time there will be a movement. So far, farmers are not showing a disposition to market their wheat, but they no doubt will soon, when a still easier price is looked for. New oats and barley remain the same in price with not a great deal doing.

GREAT WEEK IN MOUNT FOREST.

Old Boys and Girls Come Back and Things are Stirred Up.

Mount Forest, Ont., had an old boys' and girls' reunion that beat the beater all the way round. It was a revival, too. It converted all those backsliders who had got tired of the old town, surprised the optimists and revived everybody's faith. It was a week of solid enjoyment and the vim hadn't petered out at the end.

Monday morning the 13th Battalion Band of Hamilton headed a procession of old boys and girls to the rink, where the mayor read an address of welcome. What is now regarded the dominating feature of the week's festivities, the trade and calithumpian procession, took place in the afternoon. It was a pleasant surprise to everybody. Manufacturers, merchants, trades and the boys all put in their best licks and made an array that would have done them credit in a metropolis. Among the manufacturers the first prize was taken by the Mount Forest Carriage Co., the Weir Wardrobe Co. got second prize, and Martin Bros., millers, got third with a fine display of their oat products. T. H. Ellis & Co. won first place among the merchants with a display of food stuffs happily conceived and artistically arranged. A large float carried two displays, one of groceries and one of cured meats emblematic of the business. W. Ernewein and Geo. Whitham, the two managers, accompanied each his own department. The second prize was captured by G. P. Bateman, general merchant, with an attractive display of dry goods, and third place was awarded to J. P. Norman, for a hardware and stove float. Among the trades the barbers were first, James Spicer, baker, second, and the blacksmiths third. Then there were emblematic and historic floats and the gay and festive calithumpians. A baseball match filled in the afternoon and a concert was the attraction for the evening. Tuesday was a breathing spell, but there was bowling in the morning, baseball in the afternoon and a reception to visitors in St. Paul's Church grounds, when the town folk expressed their appreciation of their postmaster, T. G. Smith, by presenting him with an address and a gold-headed cane. Just to keep things stirred up the fire brigade had a run at midnight to a little blaze in an outhouse.

Wednesday was to be the big day and the whole countryside turned in to have a hand in the doings. The 48th Highlanders Band of Toronto was there. Scotch games and a baseball match held the interest of the populace in the afternoon and the Highlanders Band gave a splendid concert in the rink in the evening. The day's receipts were $1,000.

Thursday was another siesta and everyone joined in the picnic in Martin's grove. Addresses were delivered by Thos. Martin, M.P., H. H. Miller, M.P., Dr. L. H. Tasker, of New York, and W. J. Allen, entertainer, of Creston, Ohio, added some diversion.

Things got going again Friday with a lacrosse match in the morning between visiting and resident old boys and the visitors won. Football and baseball occupied the afternoon and in the evening the old boys and girls gave a concert that was a dandy.

Saturday was cricketers' day, and as J. A. Lambert, of the Mount Forest Representative, put it, "the good old game in which the Smiths and Martins excelled in ye olden time formed a fitting close to a grand week and served also as a good preparatory pastime to Sunday's calm."

All this was two weeks ago, but with Mount Foresters home and abroad it

TRISCUIT TRUTHS

TRISCUIT is shredded whole wheat, made the same as Shredded Wheat Biscuit--except that it is compressed into a wafer and baked by electricity.

TRISCUIT is not a "breakfast food." It is a substitute for white flour bread and is used as a TOAST with butter, cheese or marmalades.

TRISCUIT is an ideal food for flat-dwellers, light house-keepers, campers, for picnics, for excursions on land or on sea. The best of all wafers for chafing dish ookery.

TRISCUIT should always be heated in an oven before serving. It is made by The Canadian Shredded Wheat Company at Niagara Falls, Ont., makers of shredded wheat products. The TRISCUIT booklet is sent free.

PLEA FOR ORGANIZATION.

At a recent convention of the New York Grocers' Association, E. A. Stevens, former national organizer, in a plea for organization said :

"It may have been true at one time that competition was the life of trade, but when competition assumes the attitude of opposition it speedily becomes the death of the trade and the ruin of the tradesman. Competition and opposition are easily confounded. In fact, without organization they merely become interchangeable terms.

"The world to-day represents the phenomenal spectacle of innumerable class struggles. In every department of human endeavor, in the realm of labor, in the domain of finance, in the myriad of the world's diversified industries, it is found that all those who follow any one particular pursuit or calling have common interests to maintain, common objects to achieve, common wrongs to redress, and these things can only be accomplished through vigorous, intelligent, united action. The gigantic trusts which embrace every enterprise, commercial, financial, industrial, into which the production and distribution of the world's commodities enter ; the great labor organizations which embrace every avocation known to modern industrialism — none of these are dominated by ethical principles ; none of them are founded on altruism ; not one is based on the Golden Rule enunicated by the great moral teachers, but rather on the reverse of that rule, 'do others or they will do you.'

"Nevertheless, it is a significant fact that out of these great combinations usually evolve or develop an altruism of which the highest ethics need not be ashamed. And the reason is that it is far more rational to love our neighbor as ourself when we realize that his interests are identical with ours and that we can best conserve our own by guarding his, than it was when we considered his existence inimical to ours and his advantage to our detriment."

Fruit, a Short Crop This Year

Jams Will Be a Good Seller

It was difficult for us even to get fruit this year, but we are now finishing putting away a good big share of the best berries and fruits that came to Montreal this summer.

The enormous increase in population this year means that all these people will have to rely almost altogether on the grocers for their foodstuffs, and taking it into consideration that house-keepers have not been able to get fruits to do their own preserving, the demand for a good line of Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, etc., will be ten times bigger than ever before. We think we have provided for this demand in the best way possible. We have secured from one of the best known English houses their head jam maker and placed him in charge of this department in our factory, and we know that, price for price, we can turn out better goods than any other makers in Canada.

As we were early advised of the shortage of berries, our men bought right and left. This gave us a good stock, but we would advise everyone to book their orders as soon as possible as prices are advancing fast.

We have a large assortment of packages in glass, running up to 7 lbs., 14 lbs., 30 lbs. ; and barrels and pails for confectioners in any size.

Send us an order for Standard Brand Jam in 7-lb. pails (6 to crate), at 5½c. per lb., and we will send you something that will please you. We know by testing that it contains from 15 to 20 per cent. more fruit than any other make at the price, and as we bought sugar pretty cheap there is very little glucose in it, and absolutely no chemical preservative. The goods will show a good profit and prove fast and satisfactory sellers.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Trade Very Active—No Unusual Drift in Prices—Crawford Peaches Will Commence to Arrive Next Week—Fish Trade Picking up Some.

The fruit and vegetable trade continues at high tide. The small fruits are passing, but peaches and pears are just at the gate. The feature of the market this week is the continued stringency in the lemon market. Very little of the fruit is to be had, but a shipment is expected to arrive next week. Large quantities of melons are going into consumption and they are of good quality, but Quebec growers talk of a short season owing to the hot spell. There is a story in the Montreal press of a large grower there who gets $15 a dozen for his fruit from leading American hotels whose guests indulge in it at the rate of a dollar a slice.

The rain and cooler weather have relieved the vegetable growers of anxiety and supplies are sufficient. Potatoes are cheaper again and the talked of tomato famine has not materialized.

The fish trade is improving and is asking only for cool weather.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Dealers say that during the past couple of weeks business has been first class. Practically all fruits to be offered this season are now on the market, and it must be said that trade has been very brisk in each succeeding line as it was put on the market. Crab apples are offered at 50c. a basket this week, and so far sales have been good. Pears are quoted from $3.25 to $3.50. Gooseberries and black currants are now out of the market, while Lawton berries are in scant supply. Lemons have been advanced since last report, the price now being $7 to $8 a box.

VEGETABLES—Trade is good in all lines. Prices have been rather steadily maintained since last report, although there are a few changes to note. Tomatoes are now arriving more freely, coming in mostly in baskets, which are sold at 35c. One line, known as the rose tomato, is selling at 50c. a box. New beets are offered three dozen for 25c. There is considerable business in celery at prices quoted. The stock offered at present is excellent. Potatoes have been fluctuating more or less according to market conditions, and are at present quoted at the same figure as last week—$1 to $1.10 per bag. Few lots of green peas are obtainable, but they are still quoted.

FISH—Business is picking up somewhat with the advent of cooler weather, and within the next couple of weeks fish dealers expect considerable improvement in the state of trade. Fresh lake trout and whitefish are coming in freely. Brook trout is quoted this week, the price being 22c. It is probable that there will be a scarcity of dore and pike until about the middle of September. Dealers will overcome the difficulty, however, by offering frozen stock which they have in cold storage. Skinless cod arrivals have been large, and as a result the price is lower. British Columbia salmon, fresh, is scarce, but Gaspe, chilled, is in fair supply.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—The lemon market has made a further advance and it is not at all improbable that still higher prices will obtain soon. At present stocks are very low, but some new shipments are expected next week. Quite a large quantity of St. John peaches are on the market. They bring from 60c. to $1.25 per basket. Grapes are showing up fairly well and bring from 25c. to 30c. per small basket. Oranges are becoming scarce, and high prices still obtain. Red currants and blueberries are off the market, but Lawtons are still in, and bring from 9c. to 10c. Cantaloupes are coming in freely, and are easier in price.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are easier this week, and both quantity and quality are good. Beets and carrots are being quoted by the bushel now instead of by the bunch, which shows the advance of the season. A goodly quantity of tomatoes are on the market, the recent rains and cooler weather giving them quite a help along. Wax beans are about done—that is, the good ones—and are bringing now from 40c. to 50c. per basket, an advance of 15c. Local onions are coming in well. From 75c. to 85c. a bushel are the figures asked. A better quality of late corn is looked for next week, which will bring a higher price.

AMENDMENTS TO FRUIT MARKS ACT.

Referring to the recent amendments to the Fruit Marks Act the Fruit Division at Ottawa has given out the following:

Instructions have been issued to the Dominion fruit inspectors to enforce strictly the system of marking and grading apples established by the recent amendments to the Fruit Marks Act. The important changes are:

1. The word "Fancy" or the numerals No 1, No. 2 or No. 3 must be used to mark the grade. Other marks must not be more prominent than these.

2. Three grades are now defined instead of only one as formerly.

The essentials of each grade are as follows:

1. Every apple in a package marked "Fancy" must be of normal size and free from all blemishes.

2. Every apple in a package marked "No. 1" must be a well grown specimen of the variety named on the package, sound, of not less than medium size, of good color for the variety, of normal shape, and 90 per cent. of the specimens must be free from all defects.

3. Every apple in a package marked "No. 2" must be not less than nearly medium size and 80 per cent. of the specimens must be free from all defects causing material waste. It is held that immaturity causes material waste, so that no immature apples can be shipped marked higher than "No. 3."

No. 3 grade is not defined, but the grade mark is provided so as to enable shippers to send forward any marketable apples that cannot qualify for the better grades.

FRUIT NOTES

The potato blight has appeared in Ireland and upon the weather for a week or two depends whether or not there will be a famine.

M. R. Barker, of Guelph, Ont., has been appointed general assistant to the chief of the fruit division, Dominion Department of Agriculture. He is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College.

J. H. Hodges, Montreal; John B. McCarter, Toronto; P. D. Crerar, C. W. Bell, T. H. Crerar, Hamilton, have been granted a charter as the Ancaster Apple Co., of Hamilton, with share capital of $10,000.

Robert Elliott, Goderich, Ont., has closed a contract with a Winnipeg firm for 10,000 barrels of apples for the west. Mr. Elliott is reported to be doing all his shipping to the west this season because of anticipated low prices in Europe owing to abundant crops there.

The Rock Island Railway is building for Minneapolis a $40,000 fruit house to be used as an auction mark in Summer and for the protection of fruit in Winter. It will be built of steel and brick, will be 300 feet long, 75 feet wide and will have tracks for 18 cars. It will have the latest type of steam heating for Winter.

The F. T. James Company, Limited, wholesale fish dealers, Toronto, is suing Jane Corney, Toronto, trading under the name of the Atlantic Fish & Oyster Company, and the said company for $529.49, balance due on goods sold and delivered between March 2, 1906, and August 17.

The catch of lobsters in the Westmoreland County, N.B., fisheries, has this year been a record one and returned a quarter of a million dollars to the fishermen. The total pack in the county, it is estimated, will be upwards of 50 per cent. greater than last year. Prices average from $13 to $14 per pound flats to $17 to $18 per case for quarter pounds.

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

Takes a Department to Make a Good Candy Business—Confectioners' Association Out for Pure Goods—Standing Offer of $100—No Candy Poisoning.

Every grocer keeps candy but comparatively few have a confectionery department. Now, confectionery is one of the forms in which it pays to sell sugar. It is a specialty that every progressive grocer who is in the business to make money should emphasize. The best way to do that is to make a department for it and that can most successfully be done with a modern show case. It need not be big, but it must be nice. The case itself should attract and enhance the value of the display inside, which again need not be large but must be select and up-to-date.

A Philadelphia despatch states :

The Corn Products Refining Company, the subsidiary concern of the Standard Oil Company, which promised the Pennsylvania Food Commission to withdraw from the market all of the deleterious products now in the hands of dealers, began to keep faith yesterday when through representatives it assumed the fines of seven candy manufacturers, aggregating $300, when they were arraigned before Magistrate Beaton.

There are about 130 warrants out for other candy dealers, the fines of which the Glucose Trust will assume when the warrants have been served and the accused have been arraigned for a hearing. By the latter part of the week it is expected that twenty additional candy men will be arraigned before Magistrate Beaton.

There were half a dozen other hearings of firms charged with selling adulterated table syrups. All waived hearings and gave $300 bail for court.

Three separate cases charging a big firm in the city with using benzoic acid in their table syrups were also heard. The firm was fined $60 and costs in each case.

It is said there are between 400 and 500 cases of dealers who have used the Glucose Trust's products pending in the state. The trust proposes to assume the fines of all, a matter of many thousand dollars.

Dr. Warren, food commissioner, said that he did not have the names and addresses of the seven firms on account of whom a compromise had been made with the Glucose Trust in the matter of paying their fines. An effort was also made to secure the names in the office of the Pure Food Commission, but this was also unsuccessful.

STANDING OFFER OF $100.

The candymakers have established a "clean shop" standard. On July 7 and 10 occurred two instances of alleged "candy poisoning." The National Confectioners' Association, in a statement just issued, declares that it has a standing reward of $100 for evidence that will convict any person of the adulteration of candy with poisonous or injurious substances, and upon learning of these cases in the newspapers retained E. J. Lederle formerly Commissioner of Health, to make an investigation.

Dr. Lederle found that in the first instance where eight children were said to have been poisoned in Brooklyn the evidence was strong that they were made ill by drinking milk. In the second instance, where a baby in Williamsport was said to have died from the effect of poisonous coloring extract in candy, Dr. Lederle states that the attending physician called the illness diphtheria and the coroner's physician said that the sickness was caused by eating pickles. No mention whatsoever was made of "candy poisoning." In each case the facts were greatly distorted.

The National Confectioners' Association, through H. W. Hoops, vice-president, declares it is making every effort to maintain high standards in the materials used in the candy trade ; it condemns the use of all materials which are not pure and wholesome and will spare no expense in prosecuting any tradesmen or manufacturers who use spurious or adulterated goods.—American Grocer.

CONSUMPTION OF COCOA.

The consumption of cocoa and chocolate has more than doubled in the United States in five years. Less than eight years ago the United States held only fifth place as a manufacturer of cocoa and chocolate, England, Germany, Holland and France taking precedence in about the order named. To-day the States hold first place, both as manufacturers and consumers of cocoa and chocolate, by a comfortable margin, and manufacturers can scarcely keep up with orders. In 1905 the United States consumed nearly four hundred and sixty thousand bags of cocoa, or about one-third of the world's entire crop.

INVESTIGATE HONEY.

The Pure Food Branch of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, has collected throughout the Dominion 54 samples of honey, analyzed them and stated the results in a bulletin as follows : Pure, 44 ; adulteration declared on labels, 1 ; adulterated and not declared, 9. This is about the same result as obtained by an examination in 1903, 81.5 per cent. pure.

ICE CREAM COMPANY FORMED.

The Imperial Ice Cream Company, with a capital of $20,000, has been incorporated at Ottawa. The incorporators are : E. G. Roy, F. A. C. Bickerdike, and J. M. Leach, Montreal, and H. G. Wade and Thos. McFarlane, Ottawa. Montreal will be the new company's headquarters.

The uncollected book accounts of the Canada Biscuit Co. estate are advertised for sale by the assignee, Osler Wade, Toronto. They amount to about $4,000.

BLESSINGS IN DISGUISE

A man stepped into our factory the other day and said the trouble with our biscuits was they all looked the same and all tasted the same.

We replied : "My good man, that sameness means perfection of method, uniformity of material. It's the ideal all makers try to reach."

Then we showed him the butter and the cream and the flour from which were made, the ovens in which they were baked, the methods by which they were packed.

The visitor was delighted. He had realized what a biscuit virtue "Sameness" is.

COMPETITION OF PEDDLER.

The competition encountered by the retailers through mail order houses, chain and department stores, is almost insignificant as compared with that of the peddlers, says the American Grocer. During recent years the selling of tea, coffee, soap, baking powders and other profit-paying goods by parties running wagons and traveling regularly in certain localities has become general.

It has been claimed, and it seems justly, that these wagon peddlers have seriously cut down the regular retailers' sales of tea and coffee. Unfortunately, it is the exception to find a retailer who keeps a record that will show the increase or decrease in the sale of commodities handled; but recently we came across such a fellow, a retailer of twenty years' experience, and who is making a good net profit. He keeps a stock ledger, from which at a glance may be noted the comparative purchases made one year with another.

When asked as to the sales of tea and coffee, he said: "Here is the record of five years. While the general business is as large as it has ever been, I find that the sales of tea have decreased 90 per cent. in five years; coffee, 25 per cent.; soaps, 25 per cent. I attribute the shrinkage to the peddlers and the prize-giving policy. To overcome this I am forced to push more profitable lines, and make a specialty of fresh fruits, crackers, confectionery, or whatever promises to make good the encroachment of route wagons run by men without a store."

In the west this wagon competition with the retailers is fierce. How to meet this competition is a puzzle. The most promising way seems to be by "fighting fire with fire." Let the retailers run route wagons and canvas near-by or outlying territory. It is just as easy for them to stock a wagon as it is for the exclusive peddler, with the advantages in favor of the store wagon, which can not only sell and deliver on the spot, but can take orders for anything in the food line.

CEYLON TEA PROPAGANDA.

In the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal of New York for August Sir Oracle in his correspondence from London says:

"One of the first people I met in London was P. C. Larkin, of Toronto, Can. All the trade in America knows Mr. Larkin. Those who did not know him before he took up the cudgels with the New York Herald last Winter, must have certainly heard of him since then. You will recall that he has been frequently spoken of as the "Tea King of America." There seems but little doubt that, after Sir Thomas Lipton, he has had as much to do with advertising Ceylon tea in the States as almost any other one man. I had a very pleasant chat with Mr. Larkin at the Metropole. He was on his way to the States after a trip through Egypt and Italy with his family. He looked the picture of health and said he was going back prepared to do even better work for Ceylon tea than before. He expressed himself as not being altogether well pleased with the prospect of the Ceylon Association recommendation for the reduction of the tea cess being accepted by the Thirty Committee. Mr. Larkin agrees with many other gentlemen that I have talked with in reference to this matter, in saying that it would be a mistake to 'let up' on the Ceylon tea propaganda."

Water in the St. Lawrence at Montreal Still Low Though Rains Have Made Some Improvement—Merchandise Going by Rail to Quebec for Shipment—Early Consignment of Apples.

During the past week there has been good business in shipping circles. Butter and cheese have been active, good round lots going out by the big boats. Meats have been better than for some time past, there being a picking up in the demand from the other side. Exsary to send a great deal of their cargo to Quebec by rail there to be loaded onto their boats, since it was impossible to load the vessels as much as they would wish in Montreal.

There has been a general advance in rates from Montreal to European points. pite the fact that the crop is not to be an extra large one, according to rumors, the shipping companies expect good export business in this line.

On August 21, the Dahomey, of the Elder-Dempster line, sailed for Cuban and Mexican ports with a general cargo.

The Egwanda, of the Elder-Dempster line, is at present loading 5,000 tons of sugar for Montreal at Demarara and Trinidad. The boat is expected in Montreal around September 1.

The Leyland liner Roman sailed August 24 for Antwerp, via Halifax and London. She carried a general cargo.

I will have to ask my customers to share with me the extra cost to manufacture Pebble cigars. I will stand the lion's share, will have to suspend all jobbers' discounts and can allow only 3% cash discount instead of 5%.

Everybody knows that all kinds of tobacco for cigar purposes have advanced steadily the past three years and to-day command war prices.

Cigars have remained at same price, except Cuban imported. Manufacturers have been hoping for a large Cuban crop but have been disappointed the past three years. The best of us have holes in our warehouses now. To fill these holes at to-day's prices would cost a heap of money. I can hang out another year on Pharaoh as I calculated on a steady increased consumption, but the phenomenal run on Pebble upset my calculations.

I am now using '04 crop. Cost to manufacture Pebble over $3.50 per 1,000 more, worth at to-day's prices $7.00 per 1,000 more.

In October, Cuban farmers will be planting on their house tops, and every available foot of suitable land will be used. I look for normal prices a year hence. In the meantime I will furnish Pebble and Pharaoh smokers with "the best yet."

My 500 assorted guaranteed offer still holds good. Better wire, my expense, for your Autumn supply.

TOBACCO AND CIGARS

Growing in Ontario Past and Present—Paragraphs from a Writer of Half a Century Ago—Notes of the Trade.

The Tariff and a Profitable Industry—

The first mention of the exportation of tobacco from Essex is contained in the port records of Amherstburg for 1849, when six hogsheads were sent out. This is a small consignment, and it must have been grown in much greater quantity than this insignificant shipment would suggest. That this is so is shown by W. H. Smith, author of "The Canadian Gazetteer" and "Canada—Past, Present and Future." He made a journey through what was known as the Western District in 1850 and he has this to say about the cultivation of tobacco in Essex County in that year: "The soil of Mersea is generally a light loam, well adapted for the culture of tobacco, of which large quantities are cultivated. If the price is good it is considered a very profitable crop, the produce averaging generally from twelve to fifteen hundredweight per acre. As much as twenty-two hundredweight has been grown on good and suitable soil. The price varies considerably; sometimes it will not command more than $5 a hundred, and during the Summer and Fall of 1850 it was worth $9 a hundred at Montreal, clear of all expenses of shipment, etc. Five acres is as much as one man can attend to properly; the crop, however, is one requiring but a short time to bring to maturity, the land being planted in June and the crop taken off the ground in August or September. The cultivation requires considerable trouble, although the labor is light. First the plants are raised in beds, then, when of sufficient size, they are planted out like Indian corn. They afterwards require hoeing to free them from weeds, and when the plant is budding the top is nipped off, that all the nourishment the plant imbibes from the soil may go to enlarge and improve the leaves. When these are considered fully grown the plant is cut and suspended in the open for a few days to evaporate the moisture from the stalks and cause them to dry more rapidly. They are then removed to the sheds, where the drying is completed. At least three times during the growth it is necessary that they should be 'sprouted'—that is that the side stalks should be nipped off. During the Winter the leaves are separated from the stalks, and in the Spring they are packed in hogsheads and shipped. There are several varieties of tobacco cultivated."

Important Industry.

Speaking of the manufacture of cigars and tobacco at Fonthill in the same year, the author says:

"Formerly, as already noted, large quantities of tobacco were grown in the Western District, and much of it was said to be of excellent quality, but the admission of foreign tobacco at a low rate of duty threw it in a great measure, out of cultivation. Within the last year, however, the high price of American tobacco has tended somewhat to revive the culture."

It is evident from this that the growing of tobacco on the banks of Lake Erie was an important industry a quarter of a century ago. Mersea, mentioned in the foregoing, is the Township of Mersea, Essex County, in which is situated Leamington, the county town. It is regrettable that Mr. Smith did not give the acreage under tobacco or the names of the varieties cultivated, of which he says there were several. The general impression is that there was but one variety grown and that "shag," or what is known to tobacco growers as thickset, the coarse, acid article grown in many parts of Quebec and known as French-Canadian tobacco. Though valued by the Lower Canadians and used largely in the leaf form in the Northwest, this tobacco has nothing in it to commend it to manufacturers of the leaf. This district grows but one variety to-day, the American burley, and it would be interesting to know what the varieties were that Mr. Smith speaks of. It would also be interesting to know what became of the leaf after it reached Montreal, but as to this we are also in the dark. The methods of growth and treatment which he explains differ little from those of to-day, however, and he lets us know the cause of the blight on cultivation that put an end to the industry for many years, viz., the failure of the Government of that day to see that a home industry that is subject to foreign competition demands protection in its own market. foreign tobacco at a low rate of duty threw it in a great measure out of cultivation." There cause and effect are stated in a single, compact sentence, revealing clearly how progress was curbed by the stupidity of Governments long ago that looked upon free trade as proper policy for a young colony.

Lack of Protection.

The Americans, always having a keen eye to their interests, had favored protection since 1835. Their tobacco fields flourished. Being considerately given the Canadian market, the Canadian tobacco plantations were plowed under as no longer necessary. We can imagine what a tobacco country Canada would have been under a little protective care from her governors. The Americans long cultivated the view that tobacco of good quality could not be grown in Canada because of the severity of the climate. Tobacco was a sub-tropical plant that developes its fine qualities only under the sunny skies of the south. But one day, Wisconsin, which is a hyperborean wild compared with this favored land, suddenly stepped into the market as a tobacco producing state, and the climatic argument fell into disuse. But when that far northern state, where there is snow in the woods in July, rose up to be a tobacco competitor with Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky, standing next these in the value of its product, the climatic argument was sent to the cemetery for concealment. Now they are growing more successfully several grades of tobacco in Wisconsin, but mostly cigar tobacco, Canada does not produce much cigar tobacco simply because she is experimenting with the makers of plug tobaccos. Having mastered that, as she certainly will, then attention will be turned to the cigar tobaccos. Inquiries in this direction are already being made. It is said that they are producing a binder in Wisconsin that cigar manufacturers say is in every way satisfactory. The Ontario Government has sent an expert over to inquire into this because it is held that if a good binder can be grown in Wisconsin it can also be grown in Canada. But what is a binder? Binder is the leaf that lies between the filler and the wrapper in a cigar, and a good binder is said to cover and obliterate a multitude of sins in a cigar which otherwise would smell to heaven. If it hadn't been for the deadly knock the tobacco raising industry sustained at the hands of our wise governors of fifty years ago it is probable that we would not need to go to Wisconsin or any other state in quest of knowledge of varieties or culture, but that these states might be coming to us for knowledge we ourselves might have evolved from intelligent study of the plant, for, notwithstanding that we live half the year in the lee of icebergs, and walruses and polar bears are our intimate associates, we are a smart people when we thaw out and said to know a thing or two.

Elements of Success.

It is not the climate, nor is it the soil, nor is it the treatment that make tobacco growing successful, but a little of all three. The soil of Mersea, says the old chronicler, is well adapted to the culture of tobacco. This soil is a light, sandy loam, such as is found in many parts of Ontario. It may be that the millions of feet of hardware bush that was burned upon the land by the really horny-handed farmers who cleared it, was the cause of its gratifying fertility, because there is a great deal of potash in hardwood ashes, and tobacco is a perfect gourmand where potash is concerned. But in other parts of the province where the same soil exists, and where it has not been enriched by the ashes of walnut and cherry freely burned upon it by men who did not recognize riches when they met her, the potash necessary for congenial bed and board for the tobacco plant is available at small cost and easily applied. There need be little fear of the business being overdone. Speak to a farmer hereabouts, and if you be susceptible to "con" (correct contraction of "confidence") talk you will be filled up with the assurance that good tobacco can be raised only in Essex County, and there only in Mersea Township, and, to contract the area, the assumption will be insinuated into you that the very best can only be raised on his particular land. Ask him about the condition of the crop and he immediately becomes moody and pessimistic. His crop "is all right," but he shakes his head dolefully over the condition of the crop on the other fellow's place, for every one has it, if not by the acre, then by the foot, and if not by the foot, a few plants in the front garden are popular and ornamental. It is said that the use of tobacco makes a man philosophical, and it is evident from these farmers that constant association with it—hoeing it and pinching it and growing it—tends to make them short-sighted, so that they detect wholesome and vigorous growth only in their own. Of course this is all done to affect the price, but the gentlemen who are at that end of the industry make their own handbooks when the day is yet young. Thus they serve a good and wise purpose in curbing the covetous and evil disposition. There is a disposition in most men who get much easily and speedily grasp more.

Mr. Smith innocently says that five acres are as much as one man can attend to properly. Could he visit the tobacco fields of Essex County to-day he would see fields of ten, fifteen, twenty acres being attended to by one man, and fields of thirty, forty and fifty acres being managed by several. Could he go to Walkerville he would see a plantation of 150 acres, containing hundreds of thousands of plants, being worked as easily as a field of turnips. This is on the land of Mr. Hiram Walker, the distiller, who has the distinction of having in one field the greatest tobacco crop in the world. The practice here and in the tobacco-growing states is to have ten acres here and ten acres there, but Mr. Walker puts his all in one plantation, and has had great success, but he has the advantage of immense cattle byres to provide the land with manure.

A NOVEL TOBACCO PIPE.

Many inventions have been made from time to time, with a view to preventing nicotine from being drawn up through the stem of the tobacco pipe and into the smoker's mouth. The latest invention along this line is a radical departure from all previous designs. The pipe has the appearance of a pear, the bowl being entirely inclosed with the exception of a ventilation opening in the bottom. The body of the pipe is made up of three members which are threaded together. The central member contains the bowl proper or holder. This consists of a sleeve with wire netting over each end. The netting at the lower end is carried in a cap hinged to the tobacco holder. A suitable lining is interposed between the holder and the body of the pipe. In use the bottom section of the pipe body is removed, and the holder is filled with tobacco. The latter is now lighted in the usual manner, and the section screwed on again. The top section of the pipe body is provided with a lining, which will absorb any tainted saliva or nicotine that passes up into the upper section. This lining can be removed at any time and replaced by a new one. As the tobacco is almost completely inclosed, no sparks can pass out, and the pipe is thus rendered perfectly safe in almost any place. A patent on this improved tobacco pipe has been secured by Neal P. Shulin, of Butte, Mont.

TOBACCO LEAVES.

The world's tobacco crop of 850,000 tons is grown on 2,250,000 acres.

Tuckett & Son's employes held their third annual picnic at Port Stanley, Ont., Saturday, August 18.

The crop of tobacco in the Leamington, Essex County, district this year is valued at $500,000 and is said to be a good average.

Because of the rebellion in Cuba American importers are hurrying forward as much tobacco as possible lest the island ports be closed and shipments be impossible.

Seymour Buckingham, of Godfrey Phillip's Sons, English tobacco manufacturers, is at present pushing his firm's trade in Canada. Their brands of tobacco are B.D.V., Marigold, and Grand Cut, all of which are familiar to Canadians who have been in England. B.D.V. is the most extensively advertised brand of tobacco in the English market. Mr. Buckingham is working west from Halifax to the Pacific coast.

Sir William Macdonald, of Montreal, one of the most generous benefactors of the University of McGill College, Montreal, has presented to that institution, in connection with the magnificent agricultural college now in course of erection under his supervision and at his expense at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, near Montreal, an experimental farm, with buildings, plant and stock, to the value of about two million dollars, to which is added a liberal endowment of another two millions.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

Article V—By Howard R. Wellington

Purchases and Stock Records.

In almost nine cases out of ten the business which does not succeed may trace the cause to the fact that somewhere in the organization there has been a lack of system in arriving at the actual cost of expense of doing business. For instance, a merchant may calculate that his expense of selling is 10 per cent., advancing his selling prices accordingly, overlooking that there are other expenses in connection with running his business, such as rent, insurance, light, fuel, etc., which would necessitate advancing selling prices considerably in order to assure a fair margin of profit.

As to the correct percentage to add to cost prices for expenses and cost of selling before figuring selling prices, it would depend entirely upon the nature of the business. A fair percentage may be obtained from the previous year's statement of profit and loss account, and unless some unusual item of expense arises the advance may be based upon the result of past years.

Orders may be placed to re-stock lines which have run very low, thus avoiding the loss of sales which so frequently occurs through not having the goods on hand when required, and a good assortment will constantly increase business.

Of course, if the merchant does the selling himself and is able to watch the stock carefully, no record of goods purchased and sold would be necessary, but a record of costs and selling prices would be very useful to every merchant.

In the illustration the merchant in purchasing goods at $1.60 net and advancing 10 per cent. for expenses and 15 per cent. for profit, and selling at $2.10, would be making a gross profit of 31¼ per cent.

Stock.

Stock should be taken actually at least once a year, valued at actual cost when goods were purchased, notwithstanding that possible prices have advanced slightly; extended and added for the purpose of closing the books.

It is an excellent plan occasionally to look over stock which has been on hand for some time, and for which no immediate sale is probable, and mark goods down to promote ready sale, as it is not a good policy to carry "dead stock" from year to year at the original cost of the goods; in fact, when a business is wound up, the stock is usually sold for about 50 or 60 per cent. of its value on the books of the dealer.

A method for looking after purchases for different departments and payment of accounts, with illustration, will be given later.

From Whom	Goods	Bought			Sold			Balance in Stock	Net Invoice Price		Net Invoice Price		Advance for Expenses 10%		Advance for Profit 15%		Selling Price
S.P.K.	Silks	1905 Jan	10	Yds 50	1905 July	5	Yds 10	40	2	00	1	60	1	76	2	02	2	10

Stock and Cost Cards.

Cards (A) alphabetically arranged, according to the various lines carried in stock, or according to the name of the concern from whom the goods were bought, may be used to advantage in giving full information as to the goods purchased, the cost, stock on hand at present, list price, net price, advance on cost for expenses, advance on cost for profit, and selling price.

It might appear at first sight that these records would entail a large amount of work, but if the sales records are posted to the sales column on the cards each day, the information which the cards contain will be simply invaluable in showing at any time the actual stock on hand without referring to the shelves; the cost of each line purchased without referring to the purchase invoice, which has sometimes been misplaced, and also the correct selling prices based on experience of past years.

THE APPLE OUTLOOK.

Eben James, Toronto, Trenton and Montreal, in a circular on the apple crop, says of the outlook in Canada: "In Ontario and Nova Scotia the crop as a whole is taken to be about the same as last year. My own information regarding Ontario will hardly warrant this statemen, but unquestionably many districts in Western Ontario have apples where there were practically none a year ago, although the eastern sections show a very great falling off, but possibly 100 per cent. may be more correct than 75 per cent."

Of the U. S. crop he says:

"The largest body of dealers in the United States and Canada cannot form any consensus of opinion from their own statistics; from the most voluminous reports ever gathered, some would put it at about that of a year ago, others would put it less, while others again would put it as more than double. York State, taken as a whole, is placed at 1 1-2 times as many as a year ago, but there is much diversity of opinion about this particular State. The central producing states, Illinois, Missouri, Askansas, Nebraska and Iowa are quoted 3 1-2 times as many as a year ago, which means a very large increase in their production causing a very much smaller draft of fruit from York State than usually goes to Western markets.

ALCOHOL FROM CURRANTS.

Mr. Charles S. Wilson, secretary of legation at Athens, has reported to the Imperial Government that the company formed some months ago, which obtained from the Greek Government the monopoly of the growing and trade in dried currants, upon taking over the stock of the former companies, found about 98,000,000 litres of currants in its storehouses, and at the end of this year that amount will be almost doubled. In order to utilize this large supply the company is making experiments in feeding animals with the product after it has been kneaded and made into molds. The company is also about to import a number of automobiles into Greece to be used as public conveyances. The motive power of these machines is to be alcohol extracted from currants. The same alcohol will be used for lighting purposes, and the company is now trying to introduce lamps which burn alcohol.

MACONOCHIE'S

Pickles, Sauces, Marmalade, Herrings

are demanded by discriminating consumers—by people who are competent judges of a "good thing"—by connoisseurs who can appreciate true delicacy of flavor—by the economical housekeeper who recognizes good value—by the food crank whose slogan is "purity." Mr. Grocer, these are the people to get acquainted with—these are the customers who will stay with you, if you use them right. Maconochie's goods will help you—will serve as an introduction to the best families and cement your existing connection with the class of trade that pays. Cheaper lines of poor quality will not serve your purpose—higher priced goods cannot be better than Maconochie's, chances are they are not as good. Merit wins—demand our goods from your jobber, if he is one of the few who have not come out of their trance—try another—but firmly decline to accept a substitute—something said to be as good, or something with a bigger profit on it (for someone else). Nothing will take the place of Maconochie's and on nothing will your profit be as certain.

To Maintain a Standard

It costs us more every year to make RISING SUN Stove Polish and SUN PASTE Stove Polish up to "Morse Brothers' Standard." Our increasing sales enable us to maintain the standard without raising the price. We are constantly improving our facilities for the manufacture of our goods on a larger and larger scale and we never allow anything but the best materials to be used in our processes. That is why our goods please the trade and consumer. RISING SUN and SUN PASTE are right every time you sell them.

Large Soap Sales

Don't try to sell soaps that are unknown—it's hard work and unprofitable labor.

The best selling soap is the best known soap, and the best known soap is the one which is advertised the most extensively and is at the same time absolutely pure and of high quality.

Baby's Own Soap

is the most extensively advertised soap in Canada—it is absolutely pure and is known throughout Canada as the best soap for the Nursery, Toilet and the Bath, because of its rare quality. It is not surprising that it sells easily and in very large quantities. You cannot afford to let your customers go elsewhere to buy Baby's Own Soap.

The "Thistle" Brand Fish

The fact that for twenty-five years we have sold the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Haddies. Kippered Herrings, etc., is pretty good evidence of the high standard of quality of the goods. By high quality we mean, first, the very best fish put up in the very cleanest way; second, the preservation of the rich, delicate, natural flavor by prompt action after the fish are caught.

There has never been any attempt by theo wners of the "Thistle" Brand to produce their goods as cheap gooods—quality has been their watchword first, last and always. They have never pretended to compete on the basis of price and they never will. The "Thistle" Brand is the best by every test and regardless of expense.

The Manager of the company is unsurpassed as a fish-curer as his father was before him. The buyers of the "Thistle" Brand can be absolutely sure of perfection. It is the standard from which the quality of all other brands is judged.

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

DO YOU KNOW that One Pound of Red Rose Tea, which retails at 40 cts., will make 200 Cups of Tea?

If the people who use 25 and 30-cent teas knew this, don't you think many of them would use the 40-cent grade instead?

Tell them about it! Let me help you. Send me your address and I will send you some printed slips giving this and other interesting facts, for distribution among your customers.

Put more energy into the selling of really good tea, and you will be surprised at the results.

The Best in the Dominion.

THE IMPERIAL CANNING CO.,

KINGSVILLE, ONT.

(Branch of the Canadian Canners, Limited)

"one of the best in the Province"

The following editorial is clipped from the KINGSVILLE REPORTER of August 26, 1906.

The canning factory started up on the 15th of this month, a few days earlier than last year. While this factory is always to the fore front, it IS THIS YEAR STILL MORE MODERN IN ITS EQUIPMENT. CLEANLINESS IS ONE OF THE FEATURES WHICH IS RIGIDLY ENFORCED BY MANAGEMENT, and this year more machinery has been added which will facilitate the cleaning of the raw material, making it still more easy to put up the goods in the cleanest possible manner. THE TOMATOES ARE emptied from the boxes into a washing machine and agitated until the sand or other dirt is washed off. They pass from this into a tank of hot water and are scalded, then they pass out into a chute and are carried in to the peelers. They fall from the carriers into fibre pails which are placed on a revolving platform, around which the women and girl workers are assembled.

As the tomatoes are peeled they are carried in pails to the canning machine and are soon in the cans which are soldered automatically, and pass out into the cooker and cooler and from there are wheeled to the storeroom. Each pail of the peeled tomatoes is carefully examined as they are emptied into the canning machine, and if a worker has been careless and left any spots in them she is reprimanded. Each pail is numbered and is traced by the check given the peeler. A woman is kept constantly at work sweeping up refuse and tidying things up generally. The annual output of the factory is 600,000 cans tomatoes, 90,000 gallons of apples, and this year peaches will also be put up. Employment is given to a staff of 100 people, who will put through, running full time, 2,000 bushels of tomatoes per day. THE FACTORY IS ONE OF THE BEST IN THE PROVINCE, AND PEOPLE NEED HAVE NO HESITATION IN EATING IMPERIAL BRAND OF TINNED GOODS, BECAUSE THEY STAND ON THEIR MERITS FOR ABSOLUTE PURITY, WITH QUALITY OF STOCK THE BEST THAT CAN BE PROCURED IN CANADA.

The remarks as above are equally applicable to each of our thirty factories. In ordering Canned Goods it will pay you to stick to brands as follows, viz.:—"CANADA FIRST," "LITTLE CHIEF," "LOG CABIN," "HORSESHOE," "KENT," "AUTO," "LYNNVALLEY," "MAPLE LEAF," "LION," "THISTLE" "GRAND RIVER" "WHITE ROSE," etc.

GROCERY LABOR MARKET

Views of one of the Important Retail Grocers Houses in Canada—Great Difficulty in Getting Good Men—Efficient Old Country Clerks Have to be Gone After.

Two requests by Old Country grocery clerks for help in securing positions in Canada were forwarded by The Grocer to one of the largest retailers of fine groceries in Canada. They replied in part as follows :

"While we do not wish to be quoted in this matter of help, we would state that if we had been written to by them, as we frequently are, we should in these cases inform them that this was undoubtedly a time when EFFICIENT grocery assistants had no difficulty in securing employment at better wages than have been paid here for many years.

"If they had applied to us, we should not give them encouragement, as neither seems to be of the class we require, but it seems to us that anyone with any little grocery knowledge can get a position now, and we think the travelers for the wholesale trade will tell you that they are constantly asked for a GOOD man, but these letters appear to be from the very ordinary kind that are coming out in shoals, and even they seem to get employment.

"Of course, almost every man who has swept a store and delivered a few parcels in the Old Country thinks he is fit for a first counterman out here, but it is a fact that we seldom see a finished retail grocery salesman, and we don't mean an expert but a man with the grounding of a good common school education, able to write distinctly, spell correctly, and use reasonably good English ; this much as grounding ; then he requires the grocery part of the training, which we need not enumerate, but it is a fact that we have to take on men who claim years of experience and yet cannot let them at our counter to serve a lady until we have first gone through the A B C of the business with them, showing them how to take an order down properly, how to wrap a parcel in many cases, how to assemble a number of parcels for one delivery into a good neat looking package, how to give an intelligent opinion to a customer who asks as to the merits, the uses, the quality, etc., of what he is selling ; and by the time we have done that they are ready to look elsewhere for another position at higher salary, on the strength of the fact that they have been at ——.

"Theoretically men are well trained in the Old Country ; actually, they may be, but if they are they can get good jobs at home, and they don't come here of their own accord—you have to go and get them."

TEA TRAVELERS CONVENE.

Selling Staff of Red Rose Tea Gather in Toronto—Annual Banquet.

Last Friday's boats and trains took away from Toronto the traveling staff and heads of departments of the great tea house of T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, N.B., proprietor of the widely advertised Red Rose Tea. They were assembled in Toronto for their annual convention, which covered five days, during which time business points of interest to the firm were systematically discussed. The mornings were devoted to convention work, and the afternoons to seeing the beauties of Toronto and its environs, as far as Niagara Falls.

Proposed by Mr. B. A. Fisher.
Responded to by Messrs, Fred. Rose, G. L. Palmer and others.

G. J. Campbell, manager of the firm's Toronto branch, acting as host in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Estabrooks, took the boys to Niagara Falls, by boat to Lewiston, and thence by the world renowned Gorge Route. At the Falls the party took in everything to be seen, and especially enjoyed the automobile ride thoughtfully provided. They returned to Toronto by boat that night. Tuesday and each succeeding morning was devoted to discussing the various points of interest to the business in general. On Wednesday the Toronto Exhibition was visited and the party were entertained to cups of delicious tea at the Red Rose Tea booth, so ably conducted by Geo. E. Taylor.

On Wednesday evening the greatest event of all such gatherings, the annual banquet, was held at McConkey's. As the menu explained, it was a complimentary dinner given by T. H. Estabrooks to his travelers. The story of the evening is skeletonized in the menu and toast list.

Thursday afternoon passed quickly enough in a 36-ft. motor boat on the bay and lake. Part of each day was devoted to testing tea under the supervision of Walter R. Miles, who has charge of the Red Rose Tea testing and blending department. Mr. Miles is the third generation of tea testers, as his father and grandfather before him made tea testing their profession. His talks were interesting and very instructing to every traveler present.

When leaving the travelers all agreed it was the most profitable and pleasant convention yet held, and that the remaining four months would show the greatest increase yet in the sales of Red Rose Tea.

STARC AND SYRUP PRICES.

Notification was made the trade September 1 that the Edwardsburg Starch Company had advanced the price of their starch in several lines. Canada Laundry Starch, Canada Corn Starch, and Silver Gloss Starch have been advanced ½c. a pound. One or two other brands have been advanced also to bring the different lines into harmony. Further than this, there have been some changes in quotations for the Lower Provinces and Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

Crown Brand corn syrup has also been advanced. Cases, two and five pound tins, have been advanced five cents ; ten pound pails have been advanced ten cents ; twenty-pound pails, fifteen cents; two and three gallon pails, ten cents, and barrels, half barrels, and quarter barrels have been advanced ½c. per pound.

STARCH AND SYRUP PRICES.

A very cleverly gotten up cooking receipt book has been issued by the Cox's gelatine people, Arthur P. Tippet & Co., Montreal, agents. In the booklet there are hundreds of choice receipts. A supply of these cooking books will doubtless be sent to any merchant on application. The same firm are sending out telephone mouthpiece covers, or discs to fit over the mouthpiece of the telephone, as they may be called. The idea is to insure sanitation. These are also obtainable through the company's Montreal agents.

HALF HOLIDAY ALL THE TIME.

A movement is on foot among Hamilton grocers to continue the Wednesday half holidays during September, with a view ultimately to securing them all the year round except in December, as is the common practice in England.

John Lunz, Drayton, Ont., has returned from a pleasant six weeks trip to the Canadian west. While there he purchased some land as an investment.

A small fire occurred in the grocery store of A. Renaud, corner St. Lambert Hill and Craig street, Montreal, Monday morning. Very little damage was done.

Jos. W. Shields, general merchant, Victoria Road, Ont., is erecting an addition that will quite double the size of his store. He was in Toronto last week.

H. A. Lawson, of Stratford, traveler for the Canada Spice & Grocery Co., London, is father to a bouncing baby girl, a bran new one, too, and fine and healthy.

Fred Burrows, Niagara Falls, after a year or so in the grocery business has sold out to Mr. Place and returned to his former occupation, lumbering in the north country.

F. Trudel, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, who has been holidaying in Quebec after a business trip through the northern part of Ontario, is expected home this week.

A. H. Lindsay, of the advertising department of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N.B., is now in Toronto, in charge of the very attractive exhibit at the Industrial Exhibition.

James Haskett, London, has a new boy in his family. Somehow the new arrival seems to make the grocery business more worth while. His father never was slow, but watch him now.

John W. Timmons has purchased the grocery of Ed Moore, St. Catharines, Ont. It is one of the best businesses in the city. Mr. Timmons has been associated with it as clerk for some years.

Seen in Toronto last week were John R. Burns, Janetville, Ont.; J. L. Arnold, Fenelon Falls, Ont.; Harry Hopkis, of Hopkis & Mark, Kinmount, Ont.; C. Waters, of R. W. Waters & Son, Norwood, Ont.

D. Kraft, Preston, Ont., was in Toronto last week, calling on the wholesale trade, seeing the exhibition and enjoying himself generally. Mr. Kraft has a pleasant way of enjoying himself and helping others to enjoyment all the time.

F. F. Dalley, Hamilton, met with a nasty accident recently. Two strange dogs began a fight on his lawn and he undertook to end the mill. As a result he was pretty severely bitten on his hand and leg and was laid up for a few days.

James J. Hatley, who has a large grocery and butcher business in Orillia, has sold out his butcher business in Midland to Mr. Preston. Mr. Hatley has one of the finest stores between Toronto and the North Pole. His store is an ornament to Orillia.

Frank Harley & Son, one of London's progressive grocers, may change the sign to Frank Harley, Son & Grandson. Harry Harley is the proud father of a new boy and the young gentleman seems thrifty enough to enter the business. He weighed nine pounds upon arrival.

The West Indies Plantations Co. has been incorporated under Ontario charter, with $200,000 share capital, and these Toronto gentlemen as provisional directors: E. G. West, J. E. Black, J. A. McAlpine, C. D. McAlpine, A. T. Blackwell, Geo. Crompton and James Langmuir.

DRIED FRUIT CROPS.

Interesting Statement by P. L. Mason & Co. on the Raisin and Currant Situation.

P. L. Mason & Co., Toronto, yesterday issued the following report on dried fruit situation:

In view of the high level of prices ranging for foreign dried fruits, the following details regarding the situation may be of interest:

VALENCIA RAISINS.—The crop early in August was estimated at 17,000 to 18,000 tons. By the end of August estimates had fallen to 15,000 to 16,000 tons, the latter being equivalent to 1,280,000 boxes. A leading shipper says crop is about one-half of last year's. In 1902 crop was 18,000 to 19,000 tons, and prices ranged throughout the season (except on some speculative sales made early) at the equivalents of 27s. to 28s. c.f. The average crop of ten years (1890 to 1899) was 2,300,000 boxes; largest crop in that period was 3,467,980 boxes; smallest crop in that period was 1,807,764 boxes. The small production this year is aggravated by the low and declining rate of exchange, and prospects are anything but bright for lower prices.

SULTANA RAISINS.—Last year the yield was 46,000 tons; held over from 1904, 3,000 tons; total, 49,000 tons. In May of this year the crop was estimated at 38,000 tons; in July, 35,000 tons; in August, 28,000 tons; and a cable just received now estimates crop at barely 22,000 tons. Even with present high prices, market is strong and advancing.

CURRANTS.—Crop estimates in July were 170,000 tons; in August this was reduced to 140,000 tons. Prices have advanced again this week. The decline in exchange and the heavy charge against currants, brought about by the increased retention (which now amounts to fully 50 per cent. on first cost of currants) are responsible for this. Cable to-day says: "Market is impracticable; 1s. advance, and rising."

NEW ADVERTISERS.

Mackay, J. Co., Limited, Bowmanville, Ont.

VACATION TIME.

The holiday season is about over and more grocers have taken a vacation this year than ever before, according to the commercial travelers. This willingness of the retailer to break away from business for a week or two is said to be one of the results of the prevalent prosperity.

Whatever the reason, it's a good time now to take a reckoning. Didn't it pay? Mentally and physically a man is the better for a change occasionally. He comes back with renewed energy and brightened ambition.

The wife should have a vacation too. Men are apt to forget that housekeeping can become as monotonous as business. To a woman it's pretty nearly as good as starting all over again to come back after a few weeks visiting away. If husband and wife can get away together so much the better.

Then there are the clerks. Good clerks are mighty hard to get and the grocers are partly to blame. They should take more interest in the men who work for them. No sort of business effort would pay better. A clerk who doesn't take an interest in the business isn't worth much. A good clerk needs a vacation and deserves it and it will pay his employer to see that he gets it with his wages in advance to help make it enjoyable.

While business is important, health is much more important and that is a fact many men forget. A vacation rightly spent will make for health every time, and the better health a man has the better grocer he will make. Settle it now, that good times or bad times the vacation is to be an annual affair.

GETTING SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Some abuses result from thoughtlessness and failure to get more than a merely local or personal view of a situation. Such an abuse is the practice of merchants and clerks soliciting subscriptions for Fall fairs from wholesalers. Why should a wholesale grocer subscribe to local fairs throughout the district from which he draws his trade? There is as much reason for his subscribing to all as one. Such a practice would be a heavy drain upon his profits. He would regard it as a part of the cost of doing business, just as he would a traveler's salary and expenses.

Such bad practices breed others. A group of business men in one of the wholesale centres were discussing the fair subscription nuisance the other day and one told of having been asked by a lady clerk in a store for a subscription to herself as a wedding present. This particular kind of girl is not likely to be prevalent, but it just shows what the illegitimate begging habit leads to.

There's another side to this. The retailer and wholesaler are partners as purveyors of food stuffs. It is the retailer's interest that the wholesaler has a fair profit. It is equally to the wholesaler's advantage that the retailer does a profitable business. A merchant who solicits a fair subscription from a wholesaler evidently regards him as the other fellow in a horse deal. That is bad for business. It breeds distrust where there should be sympathy and co-operation.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

Germany has put her millions into technical schools and has no problem of the unemployed, the principal of a newly established technical institute in Boston told an interviewer after a tour of Europe. Other European countries have more or less effectively solved the problem of technical education. All are industriously working at it. In Switzerland there is a city of only 18,000 with a school where 700 boys, including a dozen Americans, are being technically trained. This school is superior to any in Boston. In Vienna there are 15 lower commercial schools and four higher schools of commerce.

Where is Canada in this procession? Standing afar off. We're asking questions; let us take credit for that. Because we are a young country with undeveloped resources is just why we should be going at the technical education question, hammer and tongs. It is needed in agriculture, in mining, in manufacture, in commerce, and nowhere more than in the grocery trade.

We are unlikely to go back to the Old Country system of apprenticeship; it does not seem suited to the new world soil. But if the food stuff trade is to keep pace with the progress of the country in other lines the men in it must be trained. In the aggregate both grocer and clerk must know more of the technical detail of the business. Package goods may lighten labor and lessen the necessity for technical skill, but they cannot answer the everlasting "which" and "why" of the grocer's customer.

CANADIAN DAIRY PRODUCTS.

The Montreal Produce Association has submitted to the Government at Ottawa suggestions for some radical reforms in connection with the dairy industry. Because Canada supplies Great Britain with the greater portion of its cheese some people may think we are doing well enough. Nothing is truer than that when such an industry stops in its progress it begins to go backward. What Canadians should be anxious about in regard to dairying is the quality of the product. It can never be good enough.

The butter and cheese associations throughout the country, says the Montreal Witness, will have the sympathy of the public in their efforts to raise the standard of Canadian dairy products higher and higher. At one time the United States exports of dairy products to Great Britain were enormous, but so much trickery was condescended to, so much "filled" cheese and "faked" butter was put on that market that the trade became discredited, and the cheese trade fell largely into Canadian hands. The principal reason was that about the time United States dairy products were deteriorating, ours were improving, very largely as a result of the educational campaign that was carried on among our farmers and shippers by Mr. Sydney Fisher and Professor Robertson, of the Department of Agriculture. There is still, however, a remnant of ignorant or careless makers who send poor goods to market, and to some extent depreciate prices for the whole product. The chief faults seem to be lack of cleanliness and ignorance of temperatures. These and other faults there is now to be a determined effort to overcome. Many are in favor of all butter and cheese makers being required to pass an examination, and the department is said to regard such an examination with favor. Another reform proposed is the establishment of a central warehouse, a sort of clearing house, and Government inspection. Mr. Fisher may be depended upon to give all suggestions his best thought, and the butter and cheese men are to be congratulated upon their determination not only to preserve but to increase the already high general reputation of Canadian dairy products.

INDIA'S LARGE WHEAT CROP.

The wheat crop of India this year is a large one. The area sown amounts to 26,226,200 acres, and the yield is estimated at 8,560,000 tons (nearly 300,000,000 bushels), as against 7,582,000 tons last year, the increase being 13 per cent. The Indian Trade Journal, which makes this statement, says that the Government is taking a deep interest in the complaint of the admixture of dirt in the wheat exported. The Government has consulted the chambers of commerce, some of whom, however, indicate a reluctance to depart from the present customs of the trade; but the Chamber of Commerce at Karachi, from which 70 per cent. of Indian wheat exports are now shipped, strongly supports the Government's proposal for 98 per cent. pure wheat.

SHOULD CANADA BE IN THIS?

The next great exposition is to be held at Jamestown, Va., next year, to worthily celebrate the first permanent English settlement in America. British Vice-Consul Barton Myers, of Norfolk, Va., thinks Canada should have a prominent place in it and in a letter to The Canadian Grocer says:

"Referring to your letter of June 25 in relation to the markets in the United States for Canadian goods, I beg to bring to your attention the Jamestown exposition, which is to be held here from April 26 to November 30, 1907. This is an international celebration of the 300th anniversary of the first permanent Anglo-Saxon settlement in America. In addition to an exposition on the shores of Hampton Roads, near Norfolk, the United States Government has invited all nations to send their ships and soldiers. The invitation has been generally accepted. Additionally, a large number of the states have made appropriations for State buildings and exhibits here. There will unquestionably be a vast concourse of visitors. The naval and marine features of this exposition are new and will be very attractive.

"Large exhibit buildings are being prepared by the exposition company, space in these buildings being sold at rates about on a par with those which were charged at Buffalo.

"I suggest that great good would be accomplished here for the commercial interests of Canada if a Canadian building could be erected by the Government or commercial bodies of Canada, in which could be assembled such matters of historical interest and exhibits of industrial and commercial character as might tend to make it a fair advertisement of what Canada is now seeking to offer to the trade of the United States."

NEW AUSTRALIAN TARIFF.

The Australian Government, according to a cable despatch from Canadian Commercial Agent Larke at Sydney, has introduced a tariff measure giving a preference to Great Britain and New Zealand, but raising the duty against Canada. This is tightening the commercial bonds of Empire to the point of straining. The Dominion Government should commission Col. Denison to make a lecturing tour in the island continent and J. Castell Hopkins might be induced to accompany him. They are both high protectionists, but doubtless they could show the Australians that fostering industry in Canada is the same as fostering it in Australia.

The Australians are evidently convinced that protection begins at home. Evidently they are not sentimental, at least imperially, else they would not have struck at so small a thing as Canadian-Australian trade. For 1904 the total was only $1,410,949, and Canada had $1,080,000 of that. With Great Britain, Australian trade totalled $232,031,760, about evenly divided between imports and exports. With the United States it was $45,597,351, also about evenly divided. With Germany, the next largest customer, it was $20,918,930, the balance being on the side of Germany by five millions. The trade between New Zealand and Australia amounted that year to nearly $16,000,000, the smaller colony having a little the best of it. Australia's other large customers are India, South Africa, France and Belgium.

The Australian discrimination against Canada as a part of the Empire will not disarrange the commercial system of the Dominion, but for the Imperialists it is a rather nasty pill.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

More than $9,000,000 worth of American goods were shipped from St. John, New Brunswick, during the fiscal year 1906 to the United Kingdom and South Africa. The principal shipment was 7,000,000 bushels of grain.

The aggregate value of the stocks, bonds, and similar securities belonging to French capitalists is estimated by Mr. Neymarck, a French statistician, to have been at the end of the year 1905 93,000,000,000 francs ($18,600,000,000), 87,000,000,000 francs ($17,400,000,000) in 1900, and 74,000,000,000 francs ($14,800,000,000) in 1890.

Bulawayo, South Africa, several hundred miles north of Cape Town on the Cape to Cairo Railroad, held an agricultural exhibition on July 5. There were over 1,000 visitors on the first day and at the dinner in the evening when the administrator of the district and the principal farmers of the vicinity were present it was decided to make the show an annual affair.

A great Australian exhibition in London is announced by the Pall Mall Gazette as being in process of organization by the agents general of the six states of the Commonwealth. When it has run its London career it is proposed to take the exhibition on tour through the principal provincial centres. All the leading Anglo-Australian firms have promised their cordial co-operation.

The New Zealand University has established a chair of commerce, and will give to successful candidates the degree of bachelor of commerce. Only matriculated students of the university are eligible. The final examinations are of a purely business character and consist of commercial law, statistical method, commercial French or German, accountancy, and two of the following: Actuarial mathematics, industrial law, economic history, and currency and banking. The Sydney University has resolved to likewise take up commercial education.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Fluctuations.

Honey—Advanced one cent.
Fish—Revised.
Corn Syrups—Advanced.

Montreal, September 5, 1906.

Continued improvement is noticeable in the volume of business being transacted. Orders coming in are larger than they have been for some time past and Summer dullness is now becoming a thing of the past for another year. The grocery market this week is an interesting one all through. While prices have not been changed in a great many lines, yet nearly every grocery article has some feature which will prove of interest to the modern grocer. Sugar is very strong and many in the trade look for an advance at any moment. The remaining canned goods prices are still awaited, but it is thought that the lists will be out in about another fortnight. Tomatoes, owing to crop conditions, and corn, will probably be higher than last year. Corn syrups have been advanced since last report. Full particulars will be found under that market. Tea continues of special interest to grocers. Japans are still very firm and high. Ceylon and Indian greens are advancing in sympathy with Japans. Coffee and spices have not changed since last week Several interesting features are noticeable in the foreign dried fruits market this week. Californian raisins have been advanced a quarter of a cent a pound. Nuts are still advancing. Prunes are stronger this week. First shipments of the new stock are expected to arrive this month. New evaporated apples are expected to arrive next week. Dealers are quoting around 8c.

Collections have been very good during the past week, and jobbers say they have nothing to complain of in this respect.

CANNED GOODS — The trade are still waiting for the remainder of the prices which are to be issued. It is probable that the lists will be out in the course of a fortnight or two weeks. The feeling in the trade is that tomatoes and corn, two of the chief lines to be quoted will be higher owing to crop conditions. The hot weather has affected the tomatoes so much that it is impossible that there should be a full yield, while lack of rain has affected the growth of corn. Fruits will probably be about as expected, there being little room for surprises. Jobbers report better business in peas than they have experienced for some time past. Other lines are moving out fairly well.

TEA—A very firm tone prevails in the tea market this week. Japans are very hard to get, and when a few small lots are found high prices are always asked. Manchuria continues to figure largely in the market. Reports from primary markets say that fourth crop Japans have been purchased by Manchuria. Further advices are to the effect that all Ceylon fannings and dust, and Calcutta fannings and dust have been bought up, to be made into brick for export to Manchuria. Consequently the present market in these lines cannot help being very firm in tone. As has already been stated in The Grocer, Japan fannings and dust are not obtainable for export to Canada. It now begins to look as though fannings and dust were to be hard to get after present stocks run out. First, second and third crop Japans are strong. Green Indians and Ceylons are advancing. One tea merchant reported having cabled an order for Ceylon green at last week's price, which order was turned down unless half a cent advance was paid. Low grade black teas are cheaper than they have been for a long time, but the better grades are all going for good money.

SUGAR—Sugar this week is very strong. Owing to conditions existing in other markets, and the state of the raw sugar market, it is highly probable that there will shortly be another advance. Just when it may occur, if it does, it is hard to say, but the trade may be prepared for higher prices in the near future if present indications work out as it is thought they will.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Molasses continues quiet. Practically no business is being transacted in this line. Corn syrups have been advanced about an eighth of a cent in barrels, half barrels and quarter barrels; ten cents in pails, five cents in two and five-pound tins, cases; ten cents in ten-pound tins, cases and fifteen cents in twenty-pound tins, cases.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Valencia raisins continue very high and consequently there is not much buying being done, buyers preferring to wait until there is a drop. Currants are higher for Fall owing to advances on primary market. Advices from California say that owing to the hot weather and the subsequent shrinkage in the crop, it has been necessary to advance the price of all Californian raisins a quarter of a cent. Prunes are distinctly stronger than at the time of our last report. The first estimates on Californian fruits have been greatly reduced owing to the very warm weather. The price recently quoted on Californian peaches has been withdrawn. First shipments of new prunes are expected this month. Dates are about cleared up on spot, what lots there remain being taken up at 5c. Packages bring 5 1-2c. Nuts continue to advance. Reports received say that Tarragona almonds will be scarce this season. Walnuts are higher.

EVAPORATED APPLES—New crop evaporated apples are expected to arrive next week. Dealers are quoting 8c. to 8 1-2c. Meantime there are some who are quoting about 15c., but this figure is not obtained, buyers preferring to wait a week for the new crop.

SPICES—Dealers report an increasing business in spices. All lines are now subject to more or less inquiry. Jamaica ginger is very high in the primary market, but locally it is practically unchanged. Nutmegs are very cheap.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

ABBREVIATIONS—

Corn syrups advanced.
Starches up ¼c. to ½c.
New Valencia raisins very high.
Rice higher in London.

Toronto, Sept. 6, 1906.

Toronto wholesalers are very busy this week extending the glad hand to the multitude of customers attracted to the city by the exhibition and cheap rates. Not a very heavy business is passing, however. Many of the travelers have been in all week.

Prices are pretty steady. The most noteworthy change was an advance in starch and corn syrups, announced Monday. Increased cost of raw material and labor are alleged to be the reason for the advances. Sugar is still firm, and opinions as to the future differ between steady and an advance. Dried fruits continue to advance in price and the situation is not very satisfactory.

CANNED GOODS — No new prices have come out this week, but tomatoes and corn are looked for any time now. Demand continues good.

SUGAR—A careful observer of the sugar market said to The Canadian Grocer yesterday: "The market is firm. Some people look for an advance."

"What's your own view?"

"I think an advance is not unlikely, but I wouldn't be surprised if it stayed where it is."

The latest quotation on European beet is 9s. 6¾d., which is 3 farthings higher than a week ago. The situation in Cuba is probably the most interesting feature at the moment. Willett & Gray say:

"Cuban exports for the week were 16,800 tons, leaving a stock of only 77,000 tons, of which about one-half remains unsold.

"The price of 4c. for centrifugals is high enough, based on present conditions of supply and demand, provided dependence can be placed on the new Cuba crop coming to market at the usual time. Refiners' supplies of raws on hand and to arrive from Cuba, Europe, Java and Hawaii are sufficient for their requirements until December 1.

"Meanwhile the new beet crop will begin to come in, and if cane sugars should become scarce, the deficiency can be made up by imports of beet sugars. But the question is—what price will the European holders demand in case the new Cuba sugars are not available at an early date?

"The time for grinding cane in Cuba is three months off, and the Government officials are making strong efforts to crush the revolution immediately, in order that work on the crops may not be interfered with. The movement, however, appears to be spreading, and indications are that it cannot be suppressed by force of arms in a short period. Cane is being neglected in several localities, bankers are withholding loans and planters are becoming discouraged.

"If a settlement of the troubles, by compromise or otherwise, is effected soon, the supplies of raw sugars will be abundant and prices will be regulated accordingly; but if present conditions in the island continue, there will be not only a delay in harvesting but an important shortage in crop outturn, which, in addition to the expected decrease of 600,000 to 800,000 tons in the European beet crops, would cause a deficiency in supplies and speculators would certainly push prices upward. Events in Cuba will be watched with keen interest by everyone for some time to come.

TEA—Fair business is passing locally and nothing of great moment has transpired within the week. From England mail advices give the old story of better prices for all except common teas and they are rather a drug on the market.

COFFEE—Of the present outlook Willett & Grey, New York, say:

"While valorization matters in Brazil are developing, the markets have gone lower on various local causes, such as September settlements, liquidation and transfers, as well as forced selling and manipulation, under which stop orders were reached. The market position is decidedly better and will assert itself ere long. The same necessity for supplies exists in consuming countries and the Brazil crop is required to satisfy consuming demand and complete the stocks of commercial grades. There is no reason for the pessimistic sentiment which manipulators are trying to spread and especially when looking ahead at the prospects of the now growing crop."

DRIED FRUITS—All markets appear to be firm, but Valencia raisins appear to be the most interesting subject. Prices continue to advance and it would cost now to lay down the fruit in Toronto 3c. a pound more than a year ago. That represents an advance of about 70 per cent., making the fruit cost about as much as California seeded raisins. There is promise of a big year for the California product. Prunes have advanced another ½c. in California, making ½c. within a fortnight.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 4, 1906.

The produce markets are now very active and dealers report business good. Butter is very firm and owing to the limited receipts the price is advancing. Creamery prints are now quoted at 24c. and dairy is rather scarce at 20c. to 21c. Many of the factories are now turning their attention to cheese making. Eggs have also been advanced, Nova Scotia being quoted here at 19c. and Charlottetown from 17c. to 18c.

FRUIT—Is in good supply and is now increasing daily. Nova Scotia peaches are quoted at 60 cents per six quart basket. Nova Scotia apples, astrachan apples are quoted at from $1.50 to $2. American gravensteins are worth $5 and early Williams $4 to $4.50. Nova Scotia gravensteins are expected on the market shortly. California Bartlett pears are quoted $4 per box, and American Bartletts at $5.50 to $6 per barrel. There has been a glut of bananas on the market during the past week, and good stock could be bought on the wharf at which the steamer loaded her cargo at from 50c. to 75c. per bunch. Oranges are very scarce and high, and also lemons.

FISH—Notwithstanding the report of the small catch of fish on the Newfoundland Coast, dealers here do not seem to be worrying over the outlook, although they are buying up all the fish available. The condition of the foreign markets at the present time is not very encouraging, and in consequence this has had some effect on the home markets. Cod is selling here ex vessel at $4 to $4.25. The shore fishermen are doing fairly well, particularly those in the vicinity of Ketch Harbor and Lambro, where large catches of pollock and cod are being made. Large catches of herring are being made at Yarmouth, Port La Tour and Liverpool. Bait is becoming more plentiful. The fishermen on the Cape Breton coast have been greatly hampered in their operations owing to the scarcity of bait. The schooner Twilight, from Dover, N.S., landed 100 barrels of pickled mackerel, 50 barrels of pickled herring and 25 qtls. of dry fish. The Rising Sun from Prospect brought 175 barrels of herring and eight quintals of cod; the Venus from Fallport. 800 qtls. dry fish and 10 barrels herring, and the Louise Maud 75 qtls. dry fish.

The grocery markets on the whole are in a healthy condition, and there is a general movement in all lines. No changes of special note have occurred since last report.

The retail grocery stores of Halifax were open for business during the morning of Labor Day, but in the afternoon all closed up.

Fred J. Clarke has purchased by tender the grocery business of J. L. Archibald & Son, on Spring Garden Road, and took possession on Saturday last. Mr. Clarke also conducts an up-to-date grocery on Seymour street. Mr. Archibald and his son, Bert, have also disposed of their fine residences on Coburg Road, and it is understood that with their families they will remove to Western Canada where they will engage in the same line of business.

Robert Urquhart, the veteran grocer of Spring Garden Road, who has been laid aside by illness for several weeks, is about again and once more behind the counter.

N. B. MARKETS

St. John, N.B., Sept. 3, 1906.

This has been a somewhat quiet week—that is, there has been light business as far as the wholesale houses are concerned. The exhibition brought large crowds to the city, and while very many of the outside buyers called to see the trade, few were inclined to talk business. There is, however, great advantage in buyers and sellers getting acquainted. It results in increased confidence where conditions are right.

The exhibition was a success. Exhibitors were pleased, feeling the value of the advertisement, the direct touch with the consumer under the most favorable conditions. Without doubt much money was left in the city. Travelers finding it impossible to do business on the road were, in many cases, on hand and busy showing every attention to their customers.

In markets there are few changes. Rice is firm. Spice, particularly ginger and cloves, held at full figures. Flour is somewhat of a puzzle. Sugar very firm but advance is slow. The feature of the market is the very extreme price of cheese.

OIL.—In burning oil improved sale, prices unchanged but firm. Lubricating oils continue to have a free demand. Paint oils rather quiet, prices unchanged. Cod oil has just a fair demand. There are fair receipts. The feature of this line is the heavy sale of gasoline and the difficulty to get stock.

SALT.—There are continued receipts of Liverpool coarse salt. Sales are good and prices well maintained. In fine sale chiefly for Canadian.

CANNED GOODS.—While both tomatoes and corn, particularly the latter, are firmly held, there are fair stocks here and no special interest shown. New peas, beans, and a few other lines received. Peas well above last year's prices. Fruits are firmly held. Apples and strawberries well above last year. Salmon firm at the advance. Oysters scarce and higher. In domestic fish, sardines a light pack and very firmly held. Kippers and haddies unchanged.

GREEN FRUIT.—While there is now lots of cheap apples, best stock is held at full figures. New Brunswick stock is chiefly Fall apples. Crop not large. Oranges and lemons are still very high. Bananas in fair supply. Pears are of fine quality; prices are firm. Peaches high. California plums unchanged. Ontario fruit shortly expected.

DRIED FRUIT.—The feature of the market is the high prices of Valencias. This is the more noticed because of the low prices of last year. It will mean light sales. California prices unchanged. Sales of California goods have been large, particularly prunes. Owing to the price very few apricots and peaches sold. Prunes quite low. Spot seeded raisins higher. New evaporated apples freely quoted, prices quite low. Currants are firmly held. Owing to very favorable terms and prices quoted by New York firms they have sold freely of new goods. Dates, peels and figs firmly held. Onions quoted rather higher.

SUGAR.—Full stocks are held. Prices firm at the advance of some two weeks ago. Higher figures daily expected. So far the advance has been slow.

GREATEST ANNUAL FAIR

CANADIAN NATIONAL AT TORONTO WITHOUT AN EQUAL IN THE WORLD AS A YEARLY EXHIBITION—HOW IT STARTED—ITS SPLENDID EDUCATIONAL VALUE—SUCCESS THIS YEAR UNPARALLELED—GREAT ARRAY OF FOOD STUFF EXHIBITS—FINE DISPLAY OF THE PRODUCTS OF THE WEST INDIES—EDUCATION IN THE ART OF DISPLAY AND DECORATION.

Ideal weather, record crowds, more and finer displays have put this year's Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto away beyond any former achievement. The greatest annual exhibition in the world is now its rightful name beyond all doubt. People who see it year after year get used to it and fail to appreciate its superiority. A Toronto teacher had some American friends visiting him this week. They had taken advantage of the low fares without any thought of the exhibition. When invited out to the fair they thought it wasn't worth while and impressed their host and hostess with the great things to be seen in New York and other American cities. They were persuaded to go, however, and a short time on the grounds put an end to the talk about what they had seen elsewhere.

There were exhibitions in Toronto before 1879, but it was in that year the present exhibition was started. Hamilton was the first place in Canada to undertake an annual exhibition, and Toronto got the idea there. In 1877 the Provincial Exhibition, an itinerant fair, was held in Toronto. The city made an arrangement with the Agricultural and Arts Association to conduct an annual fair on condition that certain buildings were erected. The city did its share but the society got cold feet and drew out. Some public-spirited gentlemen took the matter up and decided to go on with it. The exhibition of 1879 was opened in the present grounds by the Marquis of Lorne. Many mistakes have been made in the 30 years and a good deal of money has been expended ill-advisedly, but the present exhibition is worth far more than it has cost in money and public-spirited effort. It is estimated that there is now in buildings alone an investment of a million and a half dollars.

There is not a business interest in Canada not touched by the fair and every year it becomes a larger factor in the agricultural, industrial and mercantile life of the Dominion. In 1880 there were 8,234 exhibits. This year there are over 8,000 animals alone on exhibition. The educational value of the fair cannot be computed. A teacher walked into the exhibit of West Indian products and said to Mr. Pickford, who is in charge: "Have you any more of those booklets about the West Indies? I got one myself, but I would like one for each of my pupils." There was a pebble of knowledge thrown into the young life of Canada to cause ever increasing ripples of learning. That is but a very minute instance of the educational value of the exhibition.

The manufacturing operations in the Process Building were an endless source of interest to the visiting multitudes. This department is being fostered and will one day occupy the whole of the great building.

No Dairying Lectures.

The only department that might be considered weak this year is the dairying. The Ontario Government has not taken the usual interest and the lectures by experts which have been so popular in the past are this year eliminated.

The loan exhibition is a feature that cannot be too highly prized. There are gathered pictures from the public galleries and private collections of Great Britain that otherwise would be quite unavailable to the great mass of the people who see them at the exhibition. Canada is too young a country to have fostered art a great deal, but true appreciation of fine art is a quality in a people or an individual greatly to be desired. Nothing could better advance the cause of art than these loan exhibitions.

Next year it is expected the departments of horticulture and floraculture will be newly housed and a decided impetus will be given to these important departments.

Wealth of the West Indies.

One of the most instructive and interesting exhibits is that of West Indian products in the Process Building. It contains upwards of 2,500 examples of the agriculture and manufacture of the Carribean Archipelago. Most of them are foodstuffs, but there are many samples of cotton commercially recognized as the best in the world. The whole has been arranged and is under the direction of Mr. Pickford, of Pickford & Black, whose line of steamships is the principal means of communication between Canada and the Indies. The display is a credit to his taste and judgment. Though a little too confined for the best results the public are admitted within the enclosure and may examine as minutely as they please the hundreds of articles.

The Indies produce a great variety of spices and to see them as they are presented in this exhibit is the best possible kind of education for the grocer. There is the nutmeg just as it grows with its coating of mace and enclosed in a big pulpy shell. And such nutmegs! Lots of dealers have said "We can't get nutmegs like that." Mr. Pickford's reply is "Why don't you deal with the Indies instead of through New York?"

There are sugars in great variety, many glass jars of cocoa, a large variety of preserved fruits, tapioca, an interesting feature in the grocery markets today which few dealers are aware is produced in the West Indies; nuts of many and curious varieties, green fruits, syrups, cordials, rum, bitters, woods, a sticky compound of molasses for cow feed, essential oils, honey and a host of other equally interesting exhibits.

The exhibits and their housing in the Manufacturers' Building are this year finer and more elaborate than ever. In the aggregate a great sum of money must have been expended in providing these displays. For an observant grocer a trip through that building is in itself an education in the art of display and decoration.

Borden's Condensed Milk.

The most important article of food is milk. The most important question is its purity. Impure milk is the chief cause of death among infants. Gail Borden in 1853 solved the problem of "milk evaporation in vacuo" and became in a large way a benefactor of the human race. Upon the beginning he made one of the greatest business institutions in America has been built up and is to-day carried on by his family and associates. The Borden Condensed Milk Co. is the largest handler of milk in the world. The success of this company goes back of their spotless methods of manufacture and handling and lies primarily in the minute and absolute control of all dairymen who supply them with milk. It is on the farm that milk is most often contaminated, but the Borden dairymen must operate hygienically according to a cast iron contract and a very thorough system of inspection is maintained.

Cleanliness is the chief item of expense in the production of pure milk. The products prepared by unreliable companies are subject to carelessness and unscientific handling. The very best milk may be impaired in flavor and otherwise robbed of its natural and healthful characteristics in one stage or another, unless thoroughly safeguarded from pasture to consumer.

Science is unfolding many startling things in these days of investigation. The belief is gaining ground that the result is the same whether you are killed by a bull or by a microbe. As a means of self-protection, wise men are carrying fewer pistols and more microscopes.

Experiments have shown that the contamination of milk occurring under ordinary circumstances can be reduced over ninety-five per cent. by taking care to avoid all sources of impurity and unfavorable conditions, but the care necessary is expensive. The different steps through which milk passes might be compared to the links of a chain—if one is weak the strength of the whole chain is impaired; so if the care of milk is neglected at any step, the care taken at other times may be rendered useless.

Just an instance of the company's carefulness: Before a factory is formally opened, there are often long months of rehearsing to accomplish the absolute sanitary efficiency of employes and dairymen. No milk is sold from a factory until the president of the company is satisfied that "the principles under which it is managed are as perfect as human ingenuity can make them," to quote the official announcement. There are ninety factories and receiving stations.

Of course, such a while light of honesty could not remain hid under a bushel. During half a century, these products have taken the highest award whenever exhibited in competition.

The Borden Condensed Milk Co. claim that more babies have been successfully raised on Eagle Brand milk than all other so-called artificial foods combined.

Testimonials are never used in the Borden Co. advertising (the firm is intensely conservative in the manner of its announcements), but there is in its archives a collection of thousands of children's photographs, sent voluntarily, which would take a day to go through, and which would make a mighty effective campaign if widely published. For with each picture came a letter from a grateful mother eager to tell of the benefit from feeding her child on Eagle milk, often supplemented by one from the family physician.

Melagama Tea.

After thirty-five years in the tea business people are apt to know what they are doing. That is where the Melagama Tea people, Minto Bros., are. And they are not confined to package teas or a package tea. They make a specialty of bulk teas. They are blenders, too, and in this line of work a generation of successful operation in the tea trade stands them in the highest stead. Their long experience insures for their customers a continuity of blend so that when a grocer gets a blend that he likes and his customers like, he can confidently build his trade upon it, knowing that the next order will be the same, and the next and the next. That is success in tea blending, the success that tea blenders the world over strive for.

The company claim that Melagama tea yields the retailer a better profit than any other package tea on the market, and that the quality is as good as the best. Melagama is well advertised, which is another important consideration in regard to package tea. Like their blended bulk teas, their package tea is blended by experts and its uniform quality is assured.

Minto Bros. invite grocers to write for samples of their new crop Japan teas. This invitation is not limited to Japans; the company will be pleased to furnish samples of any of their teas on request.

Their booth at the exhibition is one of the busiest corners in the Manufacturers' Building and the public evince a keen desire to sample "mother's favorite." In addition to an attractive display of Melagama packages there are in view samples of bulk teas ranging in price up to a dollar and more a pound wholesale.

Majestic Polishes.

Among the exhibits at the Fair that brought a personal interest to all who saw it, that of the Majestic Polishes, Limited, Toronto, was up with the leaders. Polishing up metal and burnished surfaces ordinarily suggests the application of elbow grease, the contemplation of which often left the cleaning up until corrosion and time put the articles to be cleaned without the pole of such work.

Polishes have been brought out from time to time that eliminated to a great extent this hard labor, but which either ate into the metal or scratched the surface so that soon the brightness was altogether gone. It was to do away with these injurious elements and yet get a quick shinning polish that the Majestic brands were first made. In the liquid metal polish only the highest quality of refined oils are used, free from all acid and grit, and which can be used with perfect safety on the most delicate gold and silver. The Majestic bar polish is made for cleaning and polishing copper, brass, nickel, zinc, bar fixtures and household articles. A feature of this and all the Majestic polishes, is that not only is a lasting lustre obtained, but all stains and oxide are removed, and the metal left less susceptible to atmospheric conditions. The company's paste metal polishes are made in three colors—white, red and black—of the same high grade ingredients as the liquid polish. As many housewives are prejudiced against a liquid polish for their silver, the Majestic people have got out a silver polishing powder, which is a dry polish highly recommended as giving a lasting brilliancy to the article cleansed. This powder is guaranteed to contain no acid or alkali, and like their other polishes contains only pure ingredients. The Majestic furniture polish is another line, made expressly for high grade polished wood surfaces, and there is no case where a good polish is more desirable. Nearly everyone has some idea how to go about polishing metals, but few amateurs have been successful in restoring the lustre to a highly-finished piano or other article of furniture. There is usually a hesitancy in tackling a piano, and well there might be, for it is too expensive an article to experiment upon, as many have found out by experience. For this class of work, however, the Majestic furniture polish has been proven to be a complete success as can be testified by the many people in Toronto and other Canadian towns who have used it.

Red Rose Tea.

It could seldom be seen for the throng about and in it, but the Red Rose Tea booth was one of the daintiest and most attractive in the Manufacturers' Building. The decoration was in white and green, very artistically done, with some touches of the oriental. In the centre was an illuminated pillar proclaiming Red Rose Tea to the multitude of eyes the live-long day. The back of the booth was walled with packages of tea and the words Red Rose Tea were spelled out in the roses on the ends of the packages. Tables and chairs were furnished for 30 people, and usually the booth was full of people sampling the tea, which was daintily served by a corps of pretty girls. The booth was in charge of Geo. H. Taylor, who made tea in a way to surprise a great many ladies and please them all.

Just about five years ago Red Rose Tea was introduced on the Ontario market, starting with two travelers—the tea and firm absolutely unknown on this market, being told continually there was no room for another package tea. In fact one of the above-mentioned travelers told our reporter that when making his first call on the Ontario grocers, some of them had a good laugh, as they thought it quite a joke. To-day they have ten travelers calling on the Ontario trade, and the name of T. H. Estabrooks and Red Rose Tea, and its familiar echo, "Is Good Tea," is certainly well impressed on the public.

Their new premises at 3 Wellington street east are centrally located and well adapted to the tea trade. G. H. Campbell, who is well known to most of the Ontario trade, has charge of the Toronto branch, and thoroughly enjoys meeting his old friends and making new ones.

Mr. Estabrooks is to be congratulated on his remarkable success on the Ontario market. It all goes to prove what he claims, that Red Rose Tea "Is Good Tea."

Fry's Cocoa.

That Fry's chocolate and cocoa are popular articles was well demonstrated by the fact of the large crowd of interested and satisfied customers constantly about their booth at the Toronto exhibition, and which at times fairly swarmed the limited space afforded them and taxed to its utmost the active staff which looked after the wants of the people. The booth is tastefully decorated in blue and white.

There were distributed tens of thousands of match boxes filled with Fry's cocoa, picture post cards, souvenirs, milk chocolate samples, etc.

Fry's celebrated pure concentrated cocoa was served daintily in the firm's own special Doulton chinaware. This cocoa has a world-wide reputation and has taken medals and diplomas in every civilized country on the globe. Chocolates in popular priced sizes were on exhibition and sale.

The exhibit was in charge of M. D. Beard, who represents in Ontario the Canadian agents, D. Masson & Co., of Montreal, who have their Ontario branch at 8 Colborne street, Toronto. There a complete line of the goods of J. S. Fry & Sons is always kept in stock. The firm have now upwards of two thousand customers in Ontario, where a year ago there were 500. That speaks volumes for the quality of the goods.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Fry's Milk Chocolate.

Canadian National Exhibition—H. J. Heinz Exhibit.

H. J. Heinz Co's Usual Fine Exhibit.

Among the specially notable exhibits at the Toronto Exhibition this year, it is a pleasure to mention the display of H. J. Heinz Company, the high character of whose products is mutely evidenced in the beautiful appearance of the display itself. In accord with the company's well known business hospitality, a staff of courteous demonstrators is constantly on duty at the booth, serving samples of the "57 Varieties" to the thousands of exhibition visitors who have heard of Heinz quality and want to test the many good things for themselves.

This thorough manner of acquainting the consumer with the merits of their products, is characteristic of the Heinz way of doing things. With them, thoroughness is an all pervading business principle. Beginning with the very source of supply they raise their own seeds on experimental farms devoted solely to the propagation and perfection of those varieties of fruits and vegetables best suited to their purposes; to supply the raw materials for Heinz products, 20,000 acree of land located in the most fertile sections of the United States and Canada annually yield up their richness. In these widely scattered sections 13 branch factories and 67 salting stations have been established, enabling the company to manufacture the fully ripened products fresh from the field the same day they are harvested, thus insuring in the finished product a flavor of the fresh fruit not otherwise attainable. Coupling this care in the selection of raw materials with the most modern and scientific methods of manufacture, an inviolate insistence upon cleanliness in every stage of preparation and a high regard for the comfort and convenience of their employes, we may understand in some measure how H. J. Heinz Company have grown to be the largest manufacturers of food products in the world.

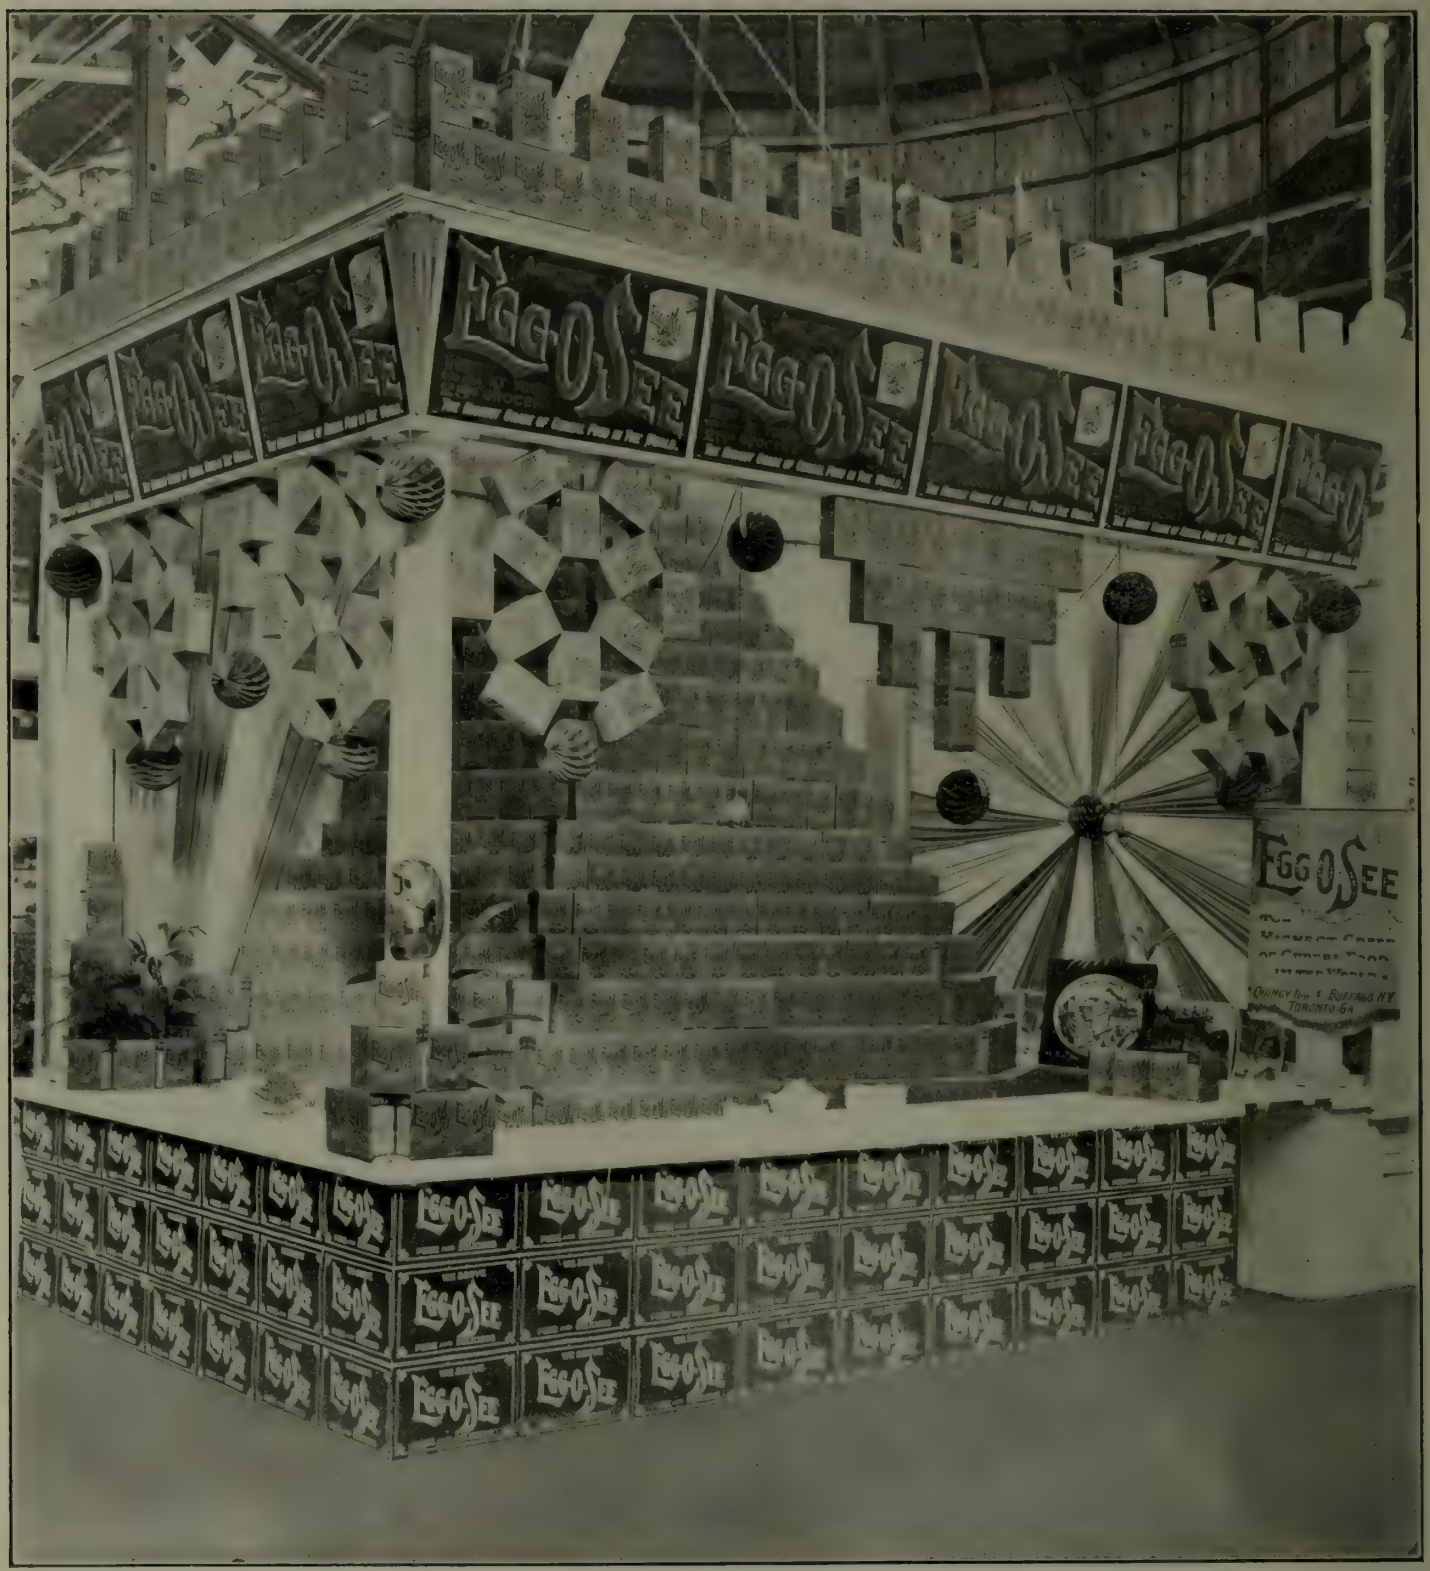
word—PURITY; a purity which involves absolute perfection of raw materials, cleanliness to the minutest detail of manufacture and environment, and the constant endeavor to improve upon their best in quality. That the exacting conditions of such a high standard have been fully met in the Heinz kitchens is conclusively proved by the testimony of more than 30,000 visitors who annually go through the company's main plant at Pittsburgh and see for themselves just how the "57 Varieties" are made.

The Heinz doors are always open to visitors, and this willingness to show an inquiring public how they do things at all times, and especially at such times as this when food purity is a question in the mind of every householder, has done much in gaining a world wide confidence for Heinz products and establishing them as the standards of purity and excellence everywhere.



Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Egg-O See Co.

And this thorough supervision of every step in the growth and manufacture of the "57 Varieties" from the planting of the seed to the delivery of the finished product, finds its keynote in the single Egg-O-See.

It is pretty safe to say that no one blessed with the sense of sight to an ordinary degree has passed down the south aisle of the Manufacturers' Building without seeing the Egg-O-See exhibit. There is little chance of missing it. Presenting a solid monotone of color—green—it has a decided distinctive quality that quickly draws attention. That accomplished, there is not the slightest likelihood of the spectator going away without knowing what article is being advertised. "Egg-O-See" is everywhere, and a man with a megaphone could not draw a larger crowd than the goods themselves do. The entire exhibit is built of packages of Egg-O-See, and the arrangement is simple, though very effective.

The following table of percentages show the result:

	Egg-O-See.	Wheat Flour.
Moisture	9.73	13.94
Proteids	10.43	9.02
Fat	2.81	1.51
Ash	2.47	.42
Crude Fiber	1.31	75.11
Carbohydrate	73.25
	100.00	100.00

The analyst concludes: "From these analyses we see the superiority of the Egg-O-See in food value. It has a higher percentage of proteids, fat, and ash. The ash, which is rich in phosphates and iron compounds, is very small in the roller process flour. The fiber in the Egg-O-See is also of great value, in that it assists the digestive processes; this is almost entirely lacking in the flour."

In the booklet, "Back to Nature," which has been distributed at the Exhibition, the strong points of Egg-O-See are convincingly stated. Egg-O-See menus for every day in the week are given also, as well as instructions in regard to the proper mode of living.

The Harry Webb Co.

The Harry Webb Co., wholesale confectioners, Toronto, presented a dainty array of their goods in the Manufactures Building. Besides the staple lines in 10c. and 25c. packages, half pound and pound boxes, etc., Christmas novelties are shown in wide variety. Silk boxes, silk-lined baskets, fancy and picture boxes, etc., form an attractive display.

Biscuit Makers of Quality.

Christie, Brown & Co.'s array of over 500 varieties of biscuits and cakes is as usual a principal food stuff display. No fact of business is better established than that it pays the grocer to handle the best goods and get the best trade. For more than a generation the name "Christie" has been indicative of quality and purity in biscuits throughout Canada and far beyond the boundaries of the Dominion.

As an illustration of how Christie, Brown & Co. maintain their standard of excellence, take the one item of butter. The bulk of their supply is purchased Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of the Harry Webb Company, Confectioners.

The booth has been actually besieged with people desiring samples of the cereal.

Egg-O-See is a product of the Egg-O-See Cereal Co., Quincy, Ill. It is the whole of the wheat with an exquisite flavor in addition. It is cooked for a period of two hours, then baked. In air-tight, inner-lined packages it is preserved crisp and delicious, never having been touched by hand from the reaping of the grain to the serving at the table.

Edward H. Keiser, Professor of Chemistry, St. Louis,, Mo., made an analysis of Egg-O-See, and for comparison one of a high grade of wheat flour.

from dairy farmers under contract to supply their whole output. These are the very best butter makers in the country and as the company pay the highest price there is keen competition to supply them. When supplies from these sources prove insufficient the best creameries are drawn upon. All the butter is salted according to the company's directions. In this way uniformity is attained and in turn insures uniformity in the product. Examine a tin of Christie's biscuits and scarcely one will differ from the rest in the slightest degree.

An importing molasses broker told the writer one day when discussing the molasses market that no matter what the cost Christie, Brown & Co. always got the very highest quality and the price was usually about twice what indifferent grades sold at. Throughout the purchasing trade this is the reputation of the firm.

Paying such attention to quality of expense. Each employe is allowed time during working hours for two baths a week. Such is the organization that if a complaint should come in of gravel in Sultana biscuits—a circumstance almost unknown—given the number on the box, is put into boiling water and next into an oven. When removed it is handled by a man with heavy leather mitts.

The company have adopted the new method of putting up their fragile goods in half-pound cartons. These are packed raw material, the company is not likely to be lax in its methods of manufacture. Nor is it. The great factory is a model of cleanliness and organization. Every one of the hundreds of employes is furnished with a uniform and handkerchief, which are laundered at the company's the girl who cleaned the raisins would be known.

The cleaning of returned biscuit boxes is another example of the firm's particular methods. Every such box gets the same treatment. It is first soaked in water and the label removed, then it in the usual tin box. Those who prefer the old style can have it; the new costs 1c. a pound more. Sodas are packed in pound and half-pound boxes.

The company's four-way exhibit contains over 500 different varieties. Christie's biscuits are so light that there are an unusual number of them to a pound which more than makes up the increased cost to the consumer. The company now pay freight on lots of 200 lbs. and over.

Very Popular Exhibit.

Judging from appearances, one of the most popular exhibits at the exposition is the Jell-O booth, located near the south-east corner of the Manufacturers' Building, where competent demonstrators serve free delicious ice cream made from Jell-O ice cream powder. The ice cream is made by simply stirring the contents of one package of Jell-O ice cream powder into a quart of milk, or milk and cream mixed, and freezing without heating, cooking or the addition of anything else whatever, as everything but the ice and milk is contained in the package, and is strictly pure and wholesome, standing the severest tests of the pure food commissioners.

Jell-O is prepared by dissolving contents of one package in a pint of boiling water. When cool it will be ready to serve and makes a most delicious desert.

A cordial invitation is extended to all grocers and their families to call at the booth, sample the ice cream and Jell-O, and get acquainted with the manager.

Jell-O ice cream powder is sold two packages for 25c., and Jell-O for 10c. per package, and are enormous sellers in the States. The Canadian factory will soon be in operation.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of the Dominion Canister Co. of Dundas, Ont.

Dominion Canister Co. Exhibit.

A very handsome exhibit and one of the greatest interest to wholesale and manufacturing grocers is that of the Dominion Canister Co, of Dundas, Ont., in the western end of the Manufacturers' Building. The company manufactures a container in three shapes, round, square and oblong, in sizes to suit all requirements. The canister or container has a tin top and bottom, a tin side strip and a body all of wood pulpboard. The canister is a patent device. It is much lighter and 40 per cent. cheaper than tin, and for all dry products is much superior and more convenient. It makes an especially fine container for tea, coffee and spices and is in use for Tartan brand and Vim brand tea, the Red Feather teas, coffees and spices, Windsor salt, and scores of other lines in the grocery trade, samples being displayed in abundance. In making the canister the label can be put on at the same time, the effect being very pleasing. The canister is lined to suit the contents and is moisture proof, air proof, asceptic and original. The company have a fine commodious factory at Dundas, Ont., and their canisters are rapidly gaining in favor with the trade, who are quick to see its advantages over the tin can for dry products.

Eureka Refrigerator Co.

Right in the centre of the Process Building is situated the fine exhibit of this firm. They are showing a fine line of butchers', grocers' and dairy refrigerators, and their staff have been kept busy showing the trade the superior qualities of Eureka refrigerators.

Pure Fruit Preserves.

There's one exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building that suggests mother and her fruit cellar. It beats mother in style because the bottles are of French design and handsomely and uniformly labelled, but the contents of each jar look like the real thing that mother used to make. It is an attractive array of E. D. Smith's pure fruit, jams, jellies and preserves from the Helderleigh Farm, Winona, Ont. W. G. Patrick & Co. are the Toronto agents.

Mr. Smith emphasizes very strongly the fact that he uses only fresh fruit and pure granulated cane sugar. He uses no preservatives. His canning and preserving are all done during the fruit season.

Mr. Smith owns a fruit farm of several hundred acres and it is the product of his own lands and adjacent farms he uses in the products in question. They are gathered when ready and made into jam, jelly or preserves without delay. With cleanly methods, and the Helderleigh Farm methods are beyond question, a product of extraordinary merit must result.

Some time since the Pure Food Branch of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, issued a statement in regard to 182 samples of jams, jellies and preserves examined. Of these 29 were found pure. Mr. Smith in a little pamphlet for distribution says :

"Now let us examine where these 29 samples were made. Ten were made by E. D. Smith, Winona, Ontario ; three were made by English and Scotch firms; three were made by Mrs. Luke, Montreal, Que. ; two were made by Mr. Bennet, a retail grocer in Ottawa ; four were made by various fruit firms on the Pacific coast of British Columbia ; four were made by local establishments in Charlottetown, P.E.I. ; one was made by a lady in Fredericton, N.B. ; one each by two Toronto firms. Not one single pure sample was made in Canada (outside E. D. Smith's) by any of the leading establishments manufacturing a general line of jams, jellies and preserves and catering to the trade of the whole Dominion. What need is there for more words ? Surely in the face of this most absolute proof no one wanting pure goods will run the risk of buying from any other source."

Stewart's Confectionery.

One of the daintiest stands at the Exhibition is that of the Stewart Co., Limited, where is displayed samples of the various lines of fine confectionery and chocolates which they make. The high standard of Stewart's chocolates and confectionery is becoming so well known that the firm has difficulty in keeping up with the demand for them. Every high grade chocolate turned out by them has the name Stewart stamped on the bottom, which is a guarantee to the purchaser that the quality is of the very best. It has always been the policy of the company to use only materials of the purest grade, and throughout the factory the most scrupulous cleanliness is insisted upon, and the best class of help is employed, the result being that Stewart's goods are known from end to end of Canada as having an uniformly high quality which is maintained by few other makers. Another feature is the great care exercised in the packing of every line put out, which ensures them reaching their destination in perfect condition.

Canadian National Exhibition—Quaker Oats Co. Exhibit.

The Quaker Oats Co.

The Quaker Oats Company—formerly The American Cereal Company—have a splendid corner booth, in which the several foods manufactured by them are well displayed. A staff from the Chicago office is in charge, and the demonstrators have been exceedingly busy. Their efforts have been liberally rewarded by fine returns right on the spot. The results achieved are greatly in advance of expectations.

The booth has a good position and the display is attractive as well as effective.

The Canadian headquarters of this company are at Peterboro, and the business has increased so satisfactorily that a stronger force will likely be put on this ground.

Quaker Oats, Pettijohn's Breakfast Food, Quaker Rice (puffed) and Apitezo are among the well known foods advertised.

Quaker Puffed Rice is rice, to be sure, but so vastly different in flavor, texture and appearance from rice cooked in the old way that comparison is impossible. The grain is cleaned, sterilized and placed in great air-tight cylinder guns where it is thoroughly cooked in the steam from its own moisture. Then the cap is taken from the gun, and the explosion which follows puffs the grains to several times their original size.

Following is the Analytical report of the Columbus Food Laboratory, Chicago, on Apitezo :—Protein, 19.00 ; fat, .99 ; dextrinized carbohydrates and cellulose, 54.67 ; grape sugar, 16.00 ; ash, 1.57 ; moisture, 7.77 ; total, 100.00.

Pettijohn's Breakfast Food is not cooked at the mill, but through exclusive and original processes is made ready for easy cooking at home. In each Pettijohn flake is retained every one of the myriad food qualities for brain, bone muscle and blood, placed in the wheat by nature.

Walter Baker & Co's Chocolate.

It is a fact of interest to every handler of cocoa and chocolate that in October, 1780, just 126 years ago, the house of Walter Baker & Co., Limited, was established in Dorchester, Mass., on the site of one of the large mills of the company. The plant now comprises six large mills and storehouses, having a floor space of 348,480 square feet, about eight acres.

The house has grown to be the largest of its kind in the world, and it has achieved that result by always maintaining the highest standard in the quality of its cocoa and chocolate preparations and selling them at the lowest price for which unadulterated articles of high grade can be put upon the market.

Under cover of a similarity in name, trade-mark, label or wrapper, a number of unscrupulous concerns have, within recent years, made attempts to get possession of the great market won by this house, by trading on its goad name — selling to unsuspecting consumers goods of distinctly inferior quality by representing them to be the products of the genuine "Baker's." The quantity of goods sold in this way is not so much of an injury to Walter Baker & Co. as the discredit cast upon their manufactures by leading some consumers to believe that these fraudulent articles are of their manufacture and that they have lowered the high standard maintained for so many years.

Statements in the press and in the reports of the Pure Food Commissioners show that there are on the market at this time many cocoas and chocolates which have been treated with adulterants, more or less injurious to health, for the purpose of cheapening the cost and giving a fictitious appearance of richness and strength. The safest course for dealers, therefore, is to handle goods bearing the name and trade-mark of a well-known and reputable manufacturer. Walter Baker & Co. have behind them one hundred and twenty-six years of successful manufacture, and forty-six highest awards from the great industrial exhibitions in Europe and America.

Cowan's Chocolate.

To exhibition visitors the display of the Cowan Cocoa Company has long been a familiar one. The exhibit this year was as heretofore centrally located in the middle aisle and the attendants were left very little time to rest, answering inquiries and filling the urgent demands for Cowan's Milk Chocolate in croquettes, medallions and wafers, in which direction the taste of the exhibition visitor seems strongly directed. A full line of Perfection cocoa and chocolate was of course also on exhibition and made a fine showing indeed.

For the Handling of Oil.

Standing out prominently in the list of those exhibits which in themselves were alone worth coming hundreds of miles to see, is the oil and gasoline storage system made by S. F. Bowser & Co., Inc., 530 Front street west, Toronto.

The growth of this firm has been remarkable. Established in 1885, they offer a tried and proved success. The merchant, manufacturer, automobilist, railroad official—in fact, any handler or user of all kinds of oils, benzine, gasoline or solution in large or small quantities, were quick to recognize and take advantage of the safe, economical, clean and profit-insuring method which the Bowser system alone affords. In these days of keen competition every device which reduces cost or fire risk, or conserves time, labor and material, is just so much gain and advantage in the battle for supremacy. So broadly adaptable are the Bowser equipments, so complete in detail and so simple and comprehensive in construction that they meet all conditions required. No money or care have been spared in making these outfits the very best that can be produced.

The demand for Bowser four-measure self-measuring outfits of a few gallons to thousands of gallons capacity has increased so rapidly and to such an extent that larger manufacturing facilities have become necessary and a large new two-storey building, 60x180 feet, is being erected at 66-68 Fraser avenue, two squares west of the King street subway, to be ready for occupancy by October 15.

A Canadian Grocer reporter spent an interesting and instructive hour at Bowser & Co.'s display in the Process Building and gained much information from the members of the Canadian organization who were in constant attendance upon the thousands of interested callers. He met the manager, W. R. Hance, and the following salesmen, all of whom are well and favorably known in their respective territories: J. B. Bate, A. E. Moffatt, J. E. Hale, Levi Swartz, C. S. Hetrick, and S. W. Paisley, of Ontario. The representatives who were not present are: Thos. Cragg, of Manitoba and the western provinces, Napoleon Rosconi, of Quebec, and Wm. Robertson and J. H. W. Strubbe, of the Maritime Provinces.

In the handling of coal oil, gasoline, varnishes, glycerine, castor oil, lubricating an dpaints oils, etc., in grocery, drug, general and hardware stores, the liquid is discharged by gallons, half gallons, quarts or pints directly into the customer's can from the tank located on the first floor, or in the cellar, or buried outside in the ground. In garages, public and private the gasoline may be brought directly into the reservoir of the machine ,and in shops, mills, factories, railroad roundhouses, etc., by adjustable measures, accurate quantities, according to size of oiler or other vessel to be filled, may be drawn in minimum time, at minimum labor and with maximum safety, in all cases keeping the gases in and dirt and grit out; preventing all loss by waste so common to the ordinary method through evaporation, overflow, over-measure, spilling, dripping, etc.

A view of the Bowser exhibit is shown below. Among late installations may be mentioned Marks, Clavet, Dobie, Port Arthur, Ont.; the Dominion Automobile Co., Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg; Singer Sewing Machine Co., St. John, Que.; Parke-Davis (Drug) Co., Walkerville, Ont., and London, Eng.; Canadian Furniture Co., Waterloo; Canadian Rubber Co., Montreal. Nearly one-third of a million outfits are in use throughout the world, Mr. Hance told the reporter, and the wonderful part of it all is that such heavy fluids as varnish, paint oils, lard oil and rubber cement, by means of specially designed combination suction and force pumps may be drawn any distance and to any height, and thus distributed for use as needed as readily and easily as the lightest fluids made. And better still by absolutely preventing every drop of waste of whatever kind and doing away with open, sloppy measures and oil-soaked floors, as many gallons are sold or used, as bought, and thus all the profits are secured.

In a word, these outfits pay for themselves over and over during their lifetime. Many in use fifteen to twenty years are still giving satisfactory service. In proof of the great utility and lasting qualities of these systems, your reporter was shown letters from a number of users, all of whom are enthusiastic in their statements that the Bowser is one of the very best investments they ever made. Then, too, they have the unqualified approval and endorsement of fire boards, underwriters and insurance companies. Indeed Bowser outfits possess the peculiar quality and design that comes within the most rigid specifications.

Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited.

As usual the handsome exhibits of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., Limited, in the Manufacturers' Building, were a great attraction to the grocery trade and the general public. Their display consisted of two booths erected in Turkish "mosque" style with large white and blue canopied tops. One of these booths was devoted to showing their well known brands of starch in packages, such as Silver Gloss in pound cartons and six-pound "horseshoe" tins, Benson's celebrated prepared corn, Benson's Enamel, etc., etc., while in two handsome showcases and twelve bottles was a display of all their starches (in bulk), both for household use and manufacturing purposes. The other booth was devoted to their well known brand of corn syrup. This needs no introduction to Grocer readers, Crown Brand syrup being a household word in Canada. They were also showing samples of their latest product, Edwardsburg maple sugar table syrup, which has captured the taste of the public and bids fair to rival their enormous output of Crown Brand. It is made from the finest selected Indian corn and the purest maple sugar, and with such a guarantee behind it as the name "Edwardsburg," is sure to be a large seller. Both exhibits were in charge of F. A. Verey, of the Toronto staff.

Canadian National Exhibition—Edwardsburg Starch Co. Exhibit No. 2.

Upton's Jams.

Upton's jams had a fine situation and one of the most attractive displays in the great building. The public were invited to taste and see that the fruit products of the company were good and the crowds about the booth would indicate that not a visitor had declined the invitation. A staff of courteous young ladies served the jams and jellies and preserves very daintily.

Peterboro Cereal Co.

Here is where the crowd are hot after the sample packages of' "Canada Flakes," which are distributed along with advertising matter in the shape of blotters and match boxes. Great interest is shown in this exhibit and everywhere on the grounds can be seen people carrying "Canada Flakes" cartons. The booth is very prettily arranged and a big sign over the door reads: "Canada Flakes the Food of Quality."

Walter Lowney & Co.

"Lowney's Chocolate Bon Bons," "Lowney's Cocoa." This neatly painted sign greets the eye immediately after entering the main door of the Manufacturers' Building. This exhibit is receiving special attention, particularly by the ladies. Here courteous demonstrators serve cups of cocoa and try to show the good points of their preparations. A very pretty fan is also given away, so the visitor will keep in mind the goods put up by this company. The exhibit is specially attractive and nicely arranged, and should prove very profitable.

The Computing Scale Co.

Walking down the main aisle of the Manufacturers' Building one cannot miss the sign "The Famous Dayton Computing Scales." This is where are shown grocers' and butchers' computing scales and their sterling qualities are demonstrated to those interested by the firms' representatives, who are certainly kept busy. Judging by the interest taken in this display by the trade present it should prove a result-bringing exhibit.

Gowans, Kent & Co.

Situated in the centre aisle of the Manufacturers' Building is one of the most beautiful and costly exhibits at the Exposition, it being the display of cut glass shown by Gowans, Kent & Co. The booth is very tastefully arranged and is brilliantly lighted by electric lights, the large plate glass mirrors in the background adding an extra finish to this fine exhibit. It is highly spoken of by visitors to the fair and should prove a good business getter.

Blue Ribbon Tea.

One of the most familiar exhibits is the booth of Blue Ribbon Tea, and this year, as in the past, the ladies crowded around the booth to get a refreshing cup of their favorite tea. The firm's courteous representatives demonstrate effectively the fine flavor and quality of Blue Ribbon Tea. A striking sign in this very neat and attractive exhibit reads "Blue Ribbon Tea Wins Favor Through Flavor."

Canadian National Exhibition—Cerebos Salt Exhibit.

Reliance Baking Powder.

The International Food Co. started about the first of the year to manufacture high-class food products. The first they have put on the market is Reliance baking powder. The company was organized by E. B. & M. W. Savage, of the International Stock Food Co., of Toronto and Minneapolis, and with this strong financial backing its products are sure of being pushed very energetically. They are already large advertisers. An idea seen in all their ads is that of the two cooks.

The demonstrations at the booth in Manufacturers' Building have been very successful. A chef in spotless white is kept busy baking miniature tea biscuits and other dainties, which pretty girls pass to the waiting crowds, and highly satisfactory business has resulted.

Eby, Blain's Coffee Exhibit.

One of the most noticeable features of this exhibition is the monster coffee pot that stands on the top of the booth which helps to advertise Eby, Blain & Co's "Gold Medal Coffee" and the "Quick Coffee Pot." The demonstrators are kept busy as bees showing the advantages of using their coffee and pot, and serving a nice cup of coffee to any one desiring it. Experience, care and latest machinery have made this firm one of the best known and largest coffee houses in Canada.

Cerebos Salt.

"Push the new thing if its good," is a safe motto for the grocer. Cerebos salt is on that list. Though comparatively recently introduced into Canada, it is the universal table salt in Great Britain, the Toronto agents, W. G. Patrick & Co., assert, and widely used in Europe, Egypt, India and Australasia. "Shortly put," says the Bristol (Eng.) Mercury, "the difference between ordinary salt and the Cerebos preparation is this—the one is a seasoning, the other a splendid food containing the most nutritive qualities absolutely essential to the physical framework."

The British Medical Journal says: "A delicately fine and dry table salt, with which is incorporated a fixed amount of mixed phosphates as found in bran. The object of this salt is to supply to the food an equivalent for the nutritious elements which ought to exist in bread, but which are eliminated from white flour with the bran."

Phosphates are absolutely essential throughout the entire animal economy. The phosphates necessary for blood, bone, muscle and brain are derived from vegetable, fruit and cereal. The bran of wheat contains the phosphate and it is lost in the milling. Cooking deprives vegetables of most of their phosphates. In both cases common salt is substituted. But it is only a seasoning. This is why in so many cases of sickness and ill health phosphates are prescribed in one form or another as a medicine. Cerebos salt, besides being a perfect table salt, provides these necessary phosphates in the ordinary diet and prevents the run-down condition of the system which invites sickness such as tuberculosis, pneumonia, diphtheria, typhoid and other zymotic diseases.

Cerebos salt never cakes. This itself makes it worth its increased cost over common salt. It is put up in two-pound tins handsomely decorated in blue and gold, and in 28-lb. tins for hotel use. The salt was displayed and its qualities demonstrated in a handsome booth in charge of F. J. Blackburn.

Electric Coffee Mills.

The south-west wing of the Process Building housed the display of the A. D. Fisher Co., who had a fine collection of their electric coffee mills fitted either for direct or alternating currents. These mills are compact, handy and handsome in appearance. Mr. Carmichael, who had charge of the exhibit in person, demonstrated to the public the ease and facility with which these mills work, granulating two pounds and pulverizing one-half pound per minute when driven by a ¼-h.p. motor.

STANDARD APPLE BARRELS.

James Innes, of the Sutherland-Innes Company, Chatham, Ont., is one of the strongest advocates of the adoption of the Nova Scotia standard apple barrel throughout the whole of Canada. He gives his reasons to the National Coopers' Journal as follows :

"At the present time the coopers in Ontario are making barrels with 30-in. staves of 1-2-in. bilge, 9-16-in. bilge, 5-8-in. and 11-16-in. bilge, also out of 28 1-2-in. staves of 5-8-in. bilge. In Nova Scotia the barrel is uniform, 28 1-2-in. staves of 9-16-in. bilge.

"Now I think you are sufficiently conversant with the practical part of the cooperage industry to know that either in the 28 1-2-in. or 30-in. staves, where the barrel is going to be used for goods which are packed, with apples or any other commodity which will bruise, 1-2-in. or 9-16-in. bilge is not enough on a barrel ; the objection to a longer barrel with a large bilge is that it holds too many apples, a three-bushel barrel being what is desired at the very outside.

"The law in Canada is that not less than 28 1-2-in. staves with 17 1-8-in. head should be used, but the coopers here have been in the habit of using 28 1-2-in. or 30-in. staves, according to the supply of No. 2 staves.

"Now, my idea is, and it is also the idea of the Department of Agriculture in Canada, that a barrel with sufficient bilge to stand up and not press on the apples is what is required, and to make a barrel to hold the required quantity of fruit and pack the barrel full, that a 28 1-2-in. stave with 5-8-in. bilge on the stave would give what is required.

"I went fully into the matter with Chief McNeill ; we experimented last year in shipping the 28 1-2-in. barrel with 5-8-in. bilge and we got the best possible results, the fruit arriving in splendid condition, and the apples selling for just as much as the 30-in. barrel ; the advantages are therefore, first, increasing the consumption of barrels, on account of the fruit arriving in first-class condition when packed in a good barrel. Secondly, the Canadian manufacturers can use up their No. 2, 28 1-2-in. staves just as easily as 30-in., even with an ordinary small crop year. Thirdly, a uniform barrel would be made throughout the whole of the country."

SUNDAY CLOSING IN SPAIN.

The Sunday closing laws of Spain are very interesting. Certain kinds of establishments are allowed to keep open on the Sabbath. The Government intends, however, that very little manual labor shall be performed on that day, and all mines, quarries, and most all mills are obliged to be closed down on Sunday. The only factories that are exempt are those for making extracts for liquorice, flour mills, ice factories, and breweries. Nearly all places of amusement, including billiard halls, are allowed to remain open. The grocery stores are allowed to remain open all day, as are the dealers in fresh fish, but they are not allowed to have the assistance of any clerks after 11 a.m. Bakeries and confectionery establishments can also keep open all day, but it is against the law to have any clerks at work after 11 a.m. Drug stores may sell drugs, but not perfumery ; barbers must close at noon, while dealers in tobacco are only allowed to sell tobacco, stamps and matches. Fish dealers can keep open until 2 p.m. Persons engaged in renting bicycles and livery stable keepers, also those engaged in renting masquerade costumes, are allowed to do business on Sunday. Other kinds of stores must be closed all day, with the exception of temperance bars and refreshment booths.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HAM.

She sailed into the butcher's shop
With calm and stately mien,
Although her hat was not on straight,
And her face was rather lean.

The butcher came at once and said,
"How can I serve you, ma'am ?"
"Give me," she said, with toss of head,
"A Christian Science ham."

"I want no ham that's sugar cured,
No hickory smoked for me ;
I want one that's been cured by faith,
As all good hams should be."

The butcher grinned as he replied,
"The world is full of shams.
Your Christian Science may cure colds,
But it certainly won't cure hams."

PEELS HIGH FOR FALL.

It is probable that candied peels will be on the high side this Fall. At present the market is very strong, and from present indications lower prices are not within the range of possibilities. The supply of citron peel especially is very limited.

CASTILE SOAP HIGHER.

Owing to the continued high price of oils Castile soap has again been advanced.

PROGRESSIVE RETAILING

Making the Pure Food Agitation Pay—Figuring the Cost of Goods—An Important Study—Push Specialties and Staples will take Care of Themselves—Encourage the Clerk.

When the pure food agitation is passing like a spasm over the English-speaking world, every grocer and purveyor of foodstuffs should try and take advantage of the fact that the public mind is dwelling upon the things he sells. Few grocers, however, are looking at it this way. If any considerable number of the trade were, there would not be so much fruit stacked out on the street. This is about as filthy a practice as detracts from the reputation of the grocery trade. The dust, the dog, the fly, the microbe and the unclean hand all add to the undesirability of foodstuff so exposed. If a grocer would keep his fruit inside and arrange to display it nicely, then display outside a good big sign to the effect that the fruit was inside away from dust, dirt and disease, he would get the discriminating trade at any rate and they are the people who buy the best goods and will pay the price to get them.

Speaking of signs outside, a gentleman formerly in the grocery business in Toronto, stated to a representative of The Grocer this week that he had experimented with a blackboard outside his store and had found that when he neglected to write it up he lost as much as $5 a day.

There is a subject the progressive grocer should study carefully and constantly, that is the cost of doing business. This means in fact the cost of his goods. If the wholesaler's price of an article is a dollar some men would say "I'll sell that for $1.50 and make 50 per cent. on it." Would he? Rent, light, heat, labor, insurance, delivery, his own wages and whatever else goes to making up the cost of doing business will amount in the average retail grocery to say 20 per cent. of the turnover. The article in question then costs $1.20 and freight 5 cents, making $1.25 before the grocer can begin to figure profit. He sells for $1.50 and makes 25 cents, but his profit is 20 per cent. instead of 50 per cent. If he had said in the first place "I'll be satisfied with 20 per cent. on this" he would have sold for $1.20 and lost five cents. Some careful, painstaking men can do business for less than others, but every man in business should know to a cent what it is costing him to do business. Applied science is the dominant feature of present progress in all industry. To know the cost is the only scientific way of carrying on the retail grocery business.

Have you got a telephone? If you have, are you getting out of it all you can? There is one big grocery firm in Toronto that gets as many as 200 orders over the telephone in a day. How's that? The same store gathers in a goodly share of the best trade in the city with one of the clerks specially trained to call for orders. He knows the stock, knows his customers and he doesn't go in a delivery wagon either. He has a nice turnout, rubber tired buggy and the rest of it .

DIG INTO YOUR BUSINESS.

A good profit for the retail grocer is the object sought. It cannot be gained without a thorough knowledge of the conditions and circumstances governing each distributer. The stock may be of a quality to satisfy consumers and the service the best, and yet the capital account will stand still or shrink. If a liberal net profit is to be gained it is essential that the retailer should know the exact relation which the sale of each class of articles bears to the total.

Recently one of the most successful retail grocers in America claimed that unless the sales of coffee were 20 per cent. of the total, the business was defective. That seems an extreme position but there is no question about the average profit being greater as the proportion of staple articles sold is kept at a minimum. When the sales of sugar, flour, butter, and other goods sold close roll up to one-half or more of the total business it will be next to impossible to make money, unless a good net profit is secured on the staples.

The thing to do is to push profit-paying goods and let the other fellow distribute articles sold at or below cost. Every effort should be made to bring up the demand for tea, coffee, spices, dried fruits, crackers, wooden ware, flavoring extracts and such package goods as are quick sellers and afford a living profit. Put the effort right there. Staples sell themselves.

It pays to add new departments as fast as possible. A soda water fountain in connection with light refreshments will make lots of money. In many places a bakery pays handsomely. Several are to be found in large city stores, the oven being located on the main floor, proving a great attraction. This is operated by a baker in spotless white cap, coat and apron, who, with his assistants, mixes the dough and manipulates the materials that enter into pies and cakes, baking them in plain sight and selling fresh from the oven.

New goods are coming on the market every day, many of great merit. Be the first to introduce them, but do not go at it in an indifferent way, but push the article, seeing that its merits are made plain to every patron. Advertise it by handbills, home-made signs, personal effort, even if you have to offer a premium to the boys for making sales.

One firm in Newark so increased the demand for soup in tins by giving the clerks a premium that they were forced to buy in carload lots, securing a discount thereby which more than paid the bonus.

It pays to study details; to know exactly the relation which the units in the stock bear to the aggregate. It takes time and requires patience and persistency, but there is big money in the policy. Try it!—American Grocer.

ENCOURAGE THE CLERK.

A kindly, encouraging word to the clerk now and then goes a long way toward helping make the business pay. It makes the clerk a better workman, gives him more enthusiasm and more desire to so employ his time and talents as to make them of the most value to his employer. An employer who treats his clerks kindly and encourages them now and then will have willing, ambitious clerks. The employer who is constantly grouchy and never has a kind word for his clerks will have a staff of knockers. They will knock their employer behind his back, and they will knock each other. They will not have the interest of the store at heart, and, no matter how good a business man the head of the concern may be, this condition of affairs amongst the clerks is bound to make itself adversely felt in computing the earning power of the store.

In this connection we do not advocate free and easy relationship between the head of the concern and the clerks, although this condition of affairs is bound to obtain to a greater or less extent in the smaller store of the country town. While the employer should always be just and kind and deal courteously with his clerks he should always be able to maintain his position in such a way that familiarity cannot be too easily bred. There is a wide difference between friendliness and familiarity. The employer should make his clerks feel that he is their friend, but at the same time he should so carry himself as to always maintain the exact status of employer and employe.

The man who is cranky and grouchy with his employes usually adopts the plan with a view to getting more work out of them and of keeping them in fear of him. It is possible that he may succeed in instilling a fear of the loss of their positions in the breasts of his employes, but that is all. He loses their respect, and he loses their best earning ability. The just man, who treats his clerks fairly and kindly is the man who will get the best return for the amount expended in wages, be it large or small.

THINGS THAT CAN'T BE DONE.

You can never tell till you try.

The man who didn't know whether he could play the piano or not, had the right spirit.

Lots of things that couldn't be done, have been done.

The earth was flat for a good many hundreds of years. And of course, nobody could sail around the underside of it.

The Alps couldn't be crossed in Winter.

It was impossible for the American Revolution to succeed, but it did.

The Atlantic cable was a mere hair-brained dream, but it happened.

A few years ago, horseless carriages couldn't be built, but now we're in great luck if one of the blasted things doesn't run over us on our way home from the office.

LONDON TRADE DOINGS

A Great Picnic at Springbank to Celebrate the Wednesday Half Holidays—They had Five Thousand People With Them and all had a Fine Time—An Interesting Baseball Match and Sports.

The grocers of London met with unqualified success with their picnic at Springbank on Wednesday of last week.

As mentioned before the retail grocers have closed their stores on Wednesday afternoons during the summer months and not one of them has been sorry. On the contrary they wished to show that they considered Wednesday afternoon a very important occasion and so on the last of August decided to give a picnic for everybody.

Springbank is a 300 acre park that London owns four miles down the river and the resort reached by the street railway. It is the most beautiful civic park in Ontario and an ideal spot for big picnics and as other than grocery stores close on Wednesday during the hot months there were thousands ready to accept the invitation of the grocers to "come on in, the water's fine" (without the water of course).

The Free Press dispensed with its evening edition that day sufficing to make its noon edition the last for the day and gave the newsboys a chance to have some fun. And the Free Press Newsboys' Band, engaged by the retail grocers, helped make the day a lively one.

Perhaps 5,000 people enjoyed the sport of the afternoon and the grocers had the satisfaction of knowing that they had given the best thing of its kind ever held in London. It was certainly a big time and Harry Ranahan, John Diprose, Ed. Ryan and a few others were the busiest men one ever saw.

The feature was perhaps the great ball game between the boss grocers and the clerks. To make sure that they were going to win the clerks got their crack pitcher to put in a few of his evenings for the previous two weeks, as one of the daily papers said, practicing curves in the back yard.

The bosses could not get on to Andy's curves at all, and if it hadn't been for the reckless way in which Harry Ranahan stole bases they would have been shut out. Harry did not seem to care at all how many people walked all over his white straw hat as long as he clutched the bag at second. And then he made a double play, too. Altogether the bosses got two runs and the clerks got 8.

After the ball game the following sports were carried out :

Girls' race, under 10—Ruth Loveless, Helen McFarlane, Tillie Levery.

Boys' race, under 10—Roy Burridge, Gordon Coldwell, Herb Bugg.

Girls' race, under 15—May Parsons, Annie McGregor, Mamie Keyes.

Boys' race, under 15—Stanley Keyes, Clifford Richardson, Ralph Coates.

Clerks' race—A. Crawford, J. A. McLeod, Robert Collins.

Ladies' race—Pearl Bugg, Annie McGregor, Rheta Seur.

Drivers' race—J. Young, W. Clampitt, H. Calhoun.

Girls throwing baseball—Mrs. Williams, Miss Hutchinson, Mrs. Southcott.

Sack race—A. Crawford, F. Stewart, W. Backus.

Three-legged race—McLeod and Shaw, Collins and Trolley, Hayes and Wilkey.

Wholesale fruiters' race—A. Crawford, W. Moore, C. Parker.

Officers' race—Harry Ranahan, J. McKenzie, Gordon Drake.

Travellers' race—H. Nichol, M. Jones.

Watermelon race—Bert Wood, R. Wright, C. Singer.

SEEDED RAISIN SHIPMENT.

W. G. A. Lambe & Co., Toronto, have the following advices from Griffin and Skelley Co., under date of Aug. 29th, re seeded raisins :

"Up to date we have had favorable weather so far as early shipments are concerned. The fruit is being gathered at this time, and placed upon trays for evaporation. If we should have for, say two weeks, dry hot weather, it will be possible to make shipment of seeded raisins in September. On the other hand if we were to have even one rain it would delay shipments considerably. The more rain we have the greater the delay will be."

MELTING THE ICEBERG.

There isn't much in the way of experience that doesn't come handy to the resourceful commercial traveler some time or other. In the current issue of System, F. J. Seldon, in "Stories of a Salesmanager," tells how an offended customer was won back after an estrangement of 12 years. The cause of the customer's anger was that, through no fault of the company's, an order had been delayed, and he had wired to send it by express. They did so and billed him with the extra expense. Traveler after traveler had been "skidooed" or denied an interview, and now the salesmanager sends Manners, who, upon his return, tells this story :

Up I went. I got inside the office. I kind of fiddled around until I saw what I thought was the old man coming outside the office. I stuck out my hand and told him who I was, not being willing to let any little piece of pasteboard go in there and get that man all riled up before he saw my kindly face. He took my hand like a gentleman and while he see-sawed it up and down, he said in that high and squeaky tone of his : "I don't need anything to-day, Mr. Manners, don't need anything to-day," and off he turned, back to his office.

But just then a city collector came in with a bill and handed it to him. And the next thing I heard that squeaky voice calling out on a higher note than ever, "$5 a hundred for that stuff? I would not [illegible] for it"—and so on for five minutes.

I sat there during the whole thing, wondering when fur was going to begin to fly, but with my ears wide open and my eyes looking around everywhere trying to catch something that would give me a hook to hang my case on. Suddenly in the old man's harangue, I heard the word "paste."

Now, I had once been in the paste making business myself and knew all about it. The principle thing in knowing all about paste is in knowing how to take care of the troubles that come up while it's in the making, for paste making consists principally of going wrong. And I judged from the way the old man talked that he had come to that same conclusion regarding the make-up of paste making.

So I leaned up against the wall and was taking in all he said, when along came a young fellow.

"Won't you sit down?" he asked politely.

"No, thank you," I said, "I am just preparing to run. Looks a little dangerous in here for a peaceful man," and I cast my eyes down to the wrangling group at the other end of the room.

"Oh, no, that's all right. There'll be no harm done there."

I thought this young fellow must be the old man's son—at least they told me up at the hotel that he had a son—so I thought it was a good opportunity to just slide in the thin edge of my wedge.

"Judging from the talk I hear, you are having some trouble in getting your paste right," I remarked.

"That's where you're right. We don't seem to be able to get the stuff to come out right. The old man blames it onto the material, but I think that we are just about as much at fault as the stuff we put into it."

By this time the clouds had blown over, the collector had gone out, and just as the old man was finally passing through his office door, I said, rather loud!

"I was in the paste business once myself, and I know about these troubles that you people have to face. I worked out a good many of them myself."

The old man turned, and his squeaky voice spoke up again.

"Been in the paste business, have you?" he asked. "Well, I suppose between the lumps and the cracking and a half a hundred other troubles, you were glad to get out of it."

"Oh, no," I said. "That was not the reason. I took care of the lumps and got rid of the cracking before I got out of the business."

"How did you do it?" he came back quick as a flash.

And then I talked to him for about ten minutes straight, finally ending up with, "Let's go out to the factory, and let me show you just what I mean."

"Oh, no," the young man said, "you will get your clothes all dusty and dirty out there."

"I don't mind that," I said; "I just want to show you that I am not all talk."

So out we went, the old man tripping along in advance, I in the middle, and the young man, still solicitous regarding the condition of my American apparel, in the rear.

We walked through the shop, I sticking my thumb into the pots, glancing at the grinding machinery, testing the constituency of the stuff; and finally I said, "The best way for you to understand exactly what I have been telling you is for me to make some paste for you. Now if you'll just get me a pair of overalls, I'll fix it up for you in a minute."

After some more protests from the son, the father brought me a pair of "jumpers." I took off my coat and enveloped myself in them.

Then I began the manufacture, and when it was done I poured the paste out into the pot. The old man could hardly keep on his feet for joy. He stuck his hand in the stream, put it up against the wall and tried it on a piece of paper to try its adhesive power and its constituency.

"That's fine," he said, "that's fine. This half hour has done more for us than six months of experimenting."

I took off the jumpers, and after the young man had carefully brushed away the flour I still had on my coat, I was allowed to put the latter on again and we wandered back to the office.

"I had said nothing about what the original object of my visit had been, although I had incidentally made an opportunity to bring the fact before the attention of the son, while we were in the factory. Now the old man said:

"I don't know how we should thank you, Mr. Manners for your kindness this morning. I really wish we could show our appreciation in some way."

"That's all right, Mr. Scott," I put in cheerily. "I did it for the love of the game. Whenever I get interested I like to do a thing right. Of course, if you insist on harping on your gratitude, you know what I came for," I ended up quietly—"but," I added, "we won't speak about that. I am very glad I met you in this way."

The old man hesitated. "I am sorry" he said. "I would do anything for you, but I don't see how I can for that"——

"That's all right, that's all right," I repeated, "I don't ask you for anything: I don't want anything."

"You see," the old man continued, still troubled, "I hate that firm. I told your salesmanager I would see myself in an unmentionable region before I ever again gave his house an order."

"I am sure," I said smiling, "that when I report this to the salesmanager he won't blame me for coming back empty handed, for, although he isn't a pious man exactly, I don't think he would want you to journey to any place of that kind just to give me an order. I don't wish you any such bad luck myself."

The old man's face suddenly colored, and he laughed, as he gave me his hand.

"You're all right," he said. "You just write down an order for fifteen barrels in that little book of yours and tell your salesmanager that I have forgotten everything."

NOTES.

Gay Bros., bakers, Niagara Falls, Ont. are about to erect a three-storey building to accommodate their greatly increased business. They have purchased a desirable site. The three brothers purchased the business two years ago and have increased it to ten times what it was. They are a thoroughly progressive trio. David Gay is the head of the firm.

J. T. Braund and R. C. Braund, general merchants, of Peterboro, spent a couple of days in Toronto this week seeing the exhibition and calling on the trade. They are brothers, but each runs his own business, one in the east and the other in the west of the newest Ontario city. Theirs are the only general stores in Peterboro. They are keen buyers and have been very successful.

Harvey Mitchell, dairy superintendent, of Sussex, N.B., states that not so much cheese and more butter is being made in that province this year. The price is keeping up to 22c. wholesale. A great deal of the butter is disposed of locally, but the trade to the West Indies and South America in that line, he says, is rapidly assuming huge proportions.

ISLAND COLONY'S TRADE

Present Situation in Newfoundland— Canadian Goods Preferred and the Trade With the Dominion Increasing— Good Transportation Facilities

(By E. D. Arnaud, Canadian Commercial Agent.)

Newfoundland covers an area of some 42,000 square miles, about one-third of which consists of lakes and rivers. The population is estimated at 220,000 inclusive of the Labrador Coast. Of these about 30,000 are to be found at St. John's, the capital, and 10,000 at Harbor Grace the only two large centres in the colony. The rest of the people are to be found in scattered settlements, and small towns and villages along the coast line mainly engaged in the fishing industry. The larger number of these are settled upon the east coast.

Agricultural Progress Slow.

The interior of the country is to a very great extent unoccupied, the land not being cultivated more than a few miles from the coast line, very little progress has hitherto been made in agricultural operations, and consequently the amount of farm produce raised in the colony has not been at all sufficient to supply the needs of even the limited number of people to be found in the colony. It may be generally stated that the inhabitants have to be fed and clothed by importations from abroad.

Canadian Trade Increasing.

For many years these have mainly been brought from Great Britain and the United States for reasons which are well understood, but which at the present time have not the same force that they once had. The rapid progress of Canada as a manufacturing and exporting country, together with the greatly improved facilities of communication with this ancient colony, is sufficient to account for the fact that the imports from Canada have been largely augmented in recent years, naturally at the expense of our competitors in Great Britain, and more particularly those in the United States.

Canadian Goods Preferred.

Other things being equal, there is, I am satisfied, a decided preference in favor of Canada, and it only remains for the traders of the Dominion to cultivate in a careful way the requirements and good-will of their kinsmen in this colony, not only to retain the large share they now have, but to extend it very materially in the years to come.

The day has gone by when any product not considered good enough to send elsewhere can be sold here to advantage. In recent years there has been a considerable increase in lumbering and mining operations, and the establishment of several local factories, made possible by the customs tariff in force, has of course had some effect in the volume of certain imports.

Colony in Prosperous Condition.

The colony is in a very prosperous condition at present, and the time seems to be an opportune one for the promotion of an increased trade from the Dominion.

The transportation facilities for freight are good, as nearly all the small ports around the coast can be reached by steamer at frequent intervals, while the interior has been opened up in recent years by the Reid-Newfoundland Railway system, connecting the capital city of St. John's on the east with Port-au-Basques on the west coast, whence a fast steamer runs to North Sydney in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, thus completing the link between Canada and Newfoundland.

C. Buckland, of Purnell, Webb & Co., malt vinegar brewers, Bristol, Eng., was a visitor in Toronto this week, calling on the trade and incidentally attended the Industrial Exhibition in company with C. E. Kyle. Mr. Buckland has come from the Pacific and is returning to England shortly.

Fruit, a Short Crop This Year

Jams Will Be a Good Seller

It was difficult for us even to get fruit this year, but we are now finishing putting away a good big share of the best berries and fruits that came to Montreal this summer.

The enormous increase in population this year means that all these people will have to rely almost altogether on the grocers for their foodstuffs, and taking it into consideration that house-keepers have not been able to get fruits to do their own preserving, the demand for a good line of Jams, Jellies, Marmalades, etc., will be ten times bigger than ever before. We think we have provided for this demand in the best way possible. We have secured from one of the best known English houses their head jam maker and placed him in charge of this department in our factory, and we know that, price for price, we can turn out better goods than any other makers in Canada.

As we were early advised of the shortage of berries, our men bought right and left. This gave us a good stock, but we would advise everyone to book their orders as soon as possible as prices are advancing fast.

We have a large assortment of packages in glass, running up to 7 lbs., 14 lbs., 30 lbs. ; and barrels and pails for confectioners in any size.

Send us an order for Standard Brand Jam in 7-lb. pails (6 to crate), at 5½c. per lb., and we will send you something that will please you. We know by testing that it contains from 15 to 20 per cent. more fruit than any other make at the price, and as we bought sugar pretty cheap there is very little glucose in it, and absolutely no chemical preservative. The goods will show a good profit and prove fast and satisfactory sellers.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

The cheese market is, at the moment, slightly irregular, there is apparently a weak undertone, but this seems more like a halt in the steady advance.

Late country markets were somewhat lower than the previous week, but actual settling prices seem to be about the same and on the whole there is no decline in prices and the market may be quoted as quiet but steady.

Cable reports from Great Britain show an increase in stocks there, and in fact larger stocks than at the same time last year. It is, however, an open question whether the total visible supplies of cheese on both sides of the Atlantic are equal to those of a year ago.

The make of cheese this year is undoubtedly larger than last year in spite of the fact that the yield of milk is much lighter than a year ago, but this is due to the relatively higher prices for cheese as compared with butter, the make of the latter product shows a very marked decrease owing to the fact that all factories equipped to make either cheese or butter, were, and are, still making cheese as the better paying product of milk.

Against this increased production of cheese, we have undoubtedly an increased consumption this year and as last year's supplies proved inadequate to the Winter's demand, our present situation does not seem unjustifiable as far as ruling prices are concerned.

Receipts in Montreal were last week 91,885 boxes of cheese and 20,806 packages of butter against 82,959 boxes of cheese and 31,088 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,470,152 boxes of cheese and 442,310 packages of butter, as compared with 1,405,776 boxes of cheese and 535,580 packages of butter for the same period of last year.

Owing to this week's holiday, our shipments were not made up exactly, but the correction in actual figures will appear in next week's issue as far as figures at hand appear at the moment. Our exports of cheese were last week 55,078 boxes, and butter 15,392 packages, against 71,331 boxes of cheese and 28,157 packages of butter for the same week of last year, a total since May 1 of 1,349,484 boxes of cheese and 258,161 packages of butter, as compared with 1,247,974 boxes of cheese and 381,768 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

While there is an increase in the receipts of cheese in Montreal of 64,376 boxes, there is a decrease in the receipts of butter of 93,270 packages, which shows an enormous falling off in the production of milk.

Recent rains have done some good to pastures, but many sections in the Dominion of Canada are so completely dried up with the long continued heat and drought that a number of smaller factories had to be closed for the balance of the season as they could not get sufficient milk to keep open.

The situation is really serious, extra feeding is very expensive and every argument that can be brought forth is decidedly "bullish." The only "bearish" argument is the ruling high prices, which is a warning to be careful about carrying stocks in hopes of a still further advance in prices. If stocks are really accumulating, prices will not go much higher, but as long as British markets will buy our cheese prices cannot decline.

Butter has lately come in for a very sharp advance in prices. It is reported that Siberian supplies are short, and with steadily advancing prices of Danish butter, our Canadian butter is in good demand, but, as usual, we lead in prices, anticipating higher markets in the future and our ruling prices are above a present export basis.

After all, present prices of butter, although they show a considerable advance, are still below the prices of cheese by comparison and butter seems to be the better value of the two, if there is any demand for it to come, while we have a demand for cheese, the demand for butter depends on European supplies.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

August 25, 1906.

The most noticeable feature of the London provision markets during the past few days is the extraordinary manner in which Canadian cheese, in spite of the continued upward tendency of prices, continues to go into consumption. With quotations over the cable from Canada very firm, sellers here have seen fit to put prices up another shilling, and quotations now stand at 62s. for choicest colored and 61s. for choicest white. Although report has it that considerable quantities of cheese are on the water, arrivals during the past week have not been on a very large scale, and stocks in warehouse have shrunk by some 10,000 boxes. Quality is being well maintained, and as the cheese, owing to brisk demand, do not require to remain long in storage, it reaches the public in particularly good condition just now. The weather, too, has not been so hot, a fact which has helped considerably to preserve its condition.

The butter market continues to gather strength, and a large volume of business has passed since last report. Quotations are soaring somewhat too high for buyers, however, and there will likely be some easing off in demand during the coming week. For the most part supplies are short, although some 10,000 boxes of Siberian butter have come to hand, and are passing rapidly into consumption. This being the "off" season for Australian butter, there is naturally very little on offer, although for such small supplies as there are the demand is good, and as much as 112s. is being realized for the very best parcels. No further stocks of New Zealand butter have come to hand, and so the market is quite bare in this respect. Choicest brands of Canadian butter are selling easily at 110s., and some Canadian dairies at 90s. to 92s., but trade is not over brisk and leaves much to be desired. Something more can be done by Canadians to turn out a more uniform quality and to improve in the salting. From 2 per cent. to 3 per cent. of salt is ample, if the taste of consumers here is to be taken into consideration.

Owing to a fall in the price of continental bacon, sellers of the Canadian product have found trade somewhat slower this week, and a fall in price is expected in the course of a day or two. Even continental bacon is moving very slowly, supplies being small, and buyers lacking interest.

Supplies of Canadian pea-fed bacon on the Liverpool market have been very moderate, and prices have advanced accordingly 1s. or 2s.

GOING BACK TO CHEESE.

Weddell & Co., London, England, importers of dairy products, in a communication to the Dominion Trade and Commerce Department, pay a high tribute to the value of Canada's cheese. In their review of the last fiscal year they say that cheese on the British workingman's table was being displaced by frozen mutton and beef until the Chicago disclosures came, which had the effect of driving the people back to cheese. During the last fiscal year Canada sent to Great Britain 95,884 tons of cheese, while all other countries and colonies combined contributed only 33,000 tons. The quality of Canadian cheese last year was not only maintained, but it improved its reputation. The Canadian cheesemaker, like the Danish buttermaker, has become so proficient in his art that it is seldom necessary to unfavorably criticize his work. Butter from Canada is not so successful in this country, Canada contributing only 15,000 tons out of Britain's total of 272,000 tons.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—There has been no change in provisions since last week. Prices are expected to change shortly, from present indications, but just when, it cannot be determined. Business is very good in all lines. Smoked meats are still in good request. Lard, both compound and pure, is selling well. Export business is not large.

BUTTER—Butter is slightly higher than at the time of our last report. The market is very firm. The prices quoted this week are the highest on record for years past. It is doubtful if prices will go any higher, but it is hard to tell whether they will or not. Demand from the other side has been very good.

Choicest creamery, salt	0 23½ 0 24
Medium creamery	0 22½ 0 23½
Western dairy	0 20

CHEESE—Prices are lower this week than they have been for some little time. Ontarios are quoted 12¾c. to 12⅞c. Fair business has been done in an export way, but the orders have not arrived so freely as a couple of weeks ago. The present prices are likely to be fairly well maintained for some time.

Ontarios	0 12¾ 0 12⅞
Townships	0 12⅝ 0 12¾
Quebecs	0 12½ 0 12⅝

EGGS—While prices are unchanged, the market is rather easier this week. Receipts are becoming heavier, and the quality of the eggs arriving is improving with the advent of the cooler weather. Selects are now selling from 20c. to 21c.; good No. 1 bring 17½c. to 18c. There is very little demand for No. 2, which are selling at a very low figure—13c. Trade in this class is very limited, however, very few lots being sold.

TORONTO MARKETS.

PROVISIONS—Street lot hogs are another half cent lower, but there are no other quotable changes. The market still continues somewhat easier, but business keeps up well.

DO A CASH BUSINESS.

There are two ways of doing business, a right way and a wrong way. Doing it the right way results in the survival of the fittest. It does not require a forecast of the finality when doing business the wrong way.

A series of articles appearing editorially and on this page, bearing directly on doing business on a cash basis have caused considerable comment and some action. Whole counties are considering the transformation. Merchants in many sections would shift instanter but for the fear that some trade might be sacrificed. It matters not how drastic the change, it is a fact that the old way of doing business will not meet the requirements of to-day and the merchant who continues to extend credits for a year or more, without interest, will sooner or later find the truth of this statement.

There is a way to do a cash business without insisting on immediate payment. Your jobber does a cash business. He gives you discounts for immediate payment, for payment after ten days, etc., and then after the maximum time on which goods are sold, you are forced to give bankable paper bearing interest to cover your account.

Every large manufacturing concern does a cash business, because on every sale made there is a stipulated time for payment and interest is made on deferred payments.

Every large city store does business on a cash basis and yet no small part of the trade of these stores is done on credit—but this credit differs from that demanded by the farmer. An agreed time for payment is arranged for, and the applicant for credit is investigated as to ability to meet obligations, past record, etc., while there is a distinct understanding as to the maximum amount of credit to be used.

Reputable people, and disreputable people, who had not been discovered in their favorite pose as dead beats, were given credit for any old amount and for any old time.

There was even no limit to the patience of the merchant. Moreover, the collection of accounts worried him not. If a debtor wanted to pay well and good, if not, why it made no difference, and he was as welcome to borrow the goods of the retailer as the cash customer who just happened in.

This habit grew and grew and paved the way for the retail mail order business. It was handicapping the cash customer for the benefit of the time and eternity debtor. It disgusted men with money ready to pay their way to find that the slow and never-paying customers were just as welcome and received the same prices that they did.

The retailers with their limited stocks and with their own slow ideas were moving along slowly, when they awakened to the fact that they had aggressive competitors in the big mail order houses. The difference between the catalogue houses' price and their own startled them.

Many changed quickly to the cash basis. Cash or bankable paper after 30 days. Some to cash outright. Find one of the firms that changed that would ever go back to the mixed method.

We are at the very crest of the catalogue retail trade wave. It will go backward or forward from this time on. It is up to the retailers of this country to give the movement a good swift kick.

You can meet catalogue retail competition only in one way. Do business on as near a cash basis as possible, and above all things have a limit to credit and a date for payment of accounts. The more people who cut out time and eternity credits, the less powerful the mail order competition. There should certainly be a difference in the price of goods sold for cash and on goods sold to be paid for in six months, a year, two years or—perhaps. The nearer a straight cash business you do the better, and there is safety, satisfaction, security and surplus in it, with assurance against the coming of the sheriff. There will be no creditors.—The Hardware Trade.

THE POSITION OF CHEESE.

Explanation of the Unusual Course of Prices in England.

Grocers' Journal, London, Eng., July 28.

The manner in which the price of cheese has kept up this season has been a puzzle to people on both sides of the Atlantic, as quotations have taken a habit of rising just when they should have fallen, and the drop usual with expanding imports has failed to eventuate. The quantity coming in has been so great that the close wind-up of last season might reasonably have been expected to have counted for nought. But that it had considerable effect on the situation is made clear by the rapid manner in which the arrivals were caught up, the seller being able to fix his limits again and again without shutting off demand. There is no doubt that the Canadian article has become the staple in this particular line of produce, and what Canada does is more likely in consequence to influence the course of prices than what any other producing centre does. Therefore the situation becomes complicated when we look at the figures of imports and see that Canada has been trying to double her exports and has nearly succeeded. Other countries, too, have added to their usual output, and we have had landed in England this year up to the end of June 931,438 cwt., against 772,861 cwt., in 1905, and 885,438 cwt. in 1904. The imports last month were exceedingly heavy, amounting to 279,605 cwt., against 185,109 cwt. the previous June, and 206,032 cwt. in June, 1904. There has been a continuous stream of imports this month also, and yet prices have remained on the up grade until the present week, when there has been a set-back of 1s. per cwt. What is the cause of the exceptional firmness of the market for Canadian cheese in face of these enormous imports? There must be a very good reason somewhere, and that very good reason is no doubt the fact that consumption has been able to seize hold of the stuff as it has come in. But the natural increase of the population would not admit of such an addition to our consumptive requirements as is indicated by the figures There must have been an increase in the consumption per capita, and that, we think, is the answer to all the questions on the strong cheese position that has existed. It is customary at this period of the year for the consumption of cheese to go up with a bound; the arrival of green stuff and the change in appetite which comes with the hot weather brings that about. But there have been exceptional causes this year to throw people on to eating cheese. The Summer has been so far a finer one than we usually have, and this takes people out of doors and increases the bread and cheese bill, and a five per cent. increase in consumption, which would be easily accounted for this way, means an enormous addition to our imports. Again, the foreign meat scare has been bound to have its effect. As our readers know very well, when the hot weather decreases the butchers' sales there is usually a rise in the tinned meat trade over the grocer's counter. But this year we have got "Jungle" fever, and the public has been frightened off the tinned comestible. Where can it turn better than to cheese? And to cheese it has turned. But there is an end to all things, and the end to the continuous rise has come this week with a declination in the demand from the country districts. Buyers have been fewer, the make proceeds merrily in Canada, and c.i.f. quotations have been coming over lower and differing and it has been found necessary to lower the London quotation to meet circumstances. It was certainly time the buyer began to have a look in. The English make has not been a heavy one up to now, and the Scotch and Welsh output has been short, but supplies have been sufficient lately, and America has exhibited an intention not to be left out of the competition.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Exhibitions a Fruitful Source of Suggestion—Governor Folk advises Advertising in the Local Papers—A Sample Ad—Hints on Effective Publicity.

From Halifax to New Westminster this is exhibition time.

When you visited the Exhibition did you get any advertising pointers?

Besides visiting the foodstuffs exhibits did you also take in those of general manufacturing—any display where a hint could be picked up?

Did you accept all the literature offered you, and did you bring the same home?

Did you make any comparisons between the effectiveness of one manufacturer's methods over another?

Did you notice any advertising that was new to you?

Did you notice any advertising that you considered too costly?

Did you notice any advertising failures for want of the proper people back of them?

Think over your visit. Remember, you saw the publicity methods of some of the biggest concerns in the country.

Remember, most of these concerns have publicity men.

Remember, they are more apt to be right than to be wrong.

FOLK AND THE RETAILER.

Gov. Folk, in addressing the retail merchants of Missouri at their convention in Jefferson City, July 17, spoke against the mail-order business, and favored advertising in the town papers. He said in part:

"We are proud of our splendid cities, and we want them to increase in wealth and population, and we also want our country towns to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up, but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not believe in the mail-order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and to make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money in.

"No merchant can succeed without advertising in one way or another. Patronize your town papers, build them up, and they will build the town up and build you up increased trade, and greater opportunities. Do not be afraid that business is going to be hurt by the recent exposures of wrongdoing in the commercial world. No man who is doing an honest business can be injured by the light. All business will be better for the cleansing process it is going through, and for the stamping out of evil."

W. O. WALLACE'S ADS.

W. O. Wallace understands what timeliness means in advertising. His reaching out for picnic orders was a good stroke of business.

In specializing on fruit and biscuits he chose lines that were bound to appeal to those talking picnic.

More grocers might take up this "opportune" advertising

BAILEY'S WAY.

Maple, Ont., has a live grocer in H. C. Bailey.

He knows that the post card is neater and easier to handle than the circular.

So he adopts the post card as his store messenger.

Under date of August 1, Mr. Bailey sent out a special notice on jars, with the additional mention of a butter proposition.

Keep up this style of advertising, Mr. Bailey.

A Kansas business man in the course of an address on advertising recently, said:

"If I ventured to advise the advertiser the advice would be largely 'Don'ts,' and something like this:

"Don't expect too much. Advertising may seem to work miracles in instances, but miracles are exceptions and not the rule.

"Don't lie. Live up to your announcements.

"Don't indulge in 'flapdoodle,' and don't 'slop over.'

"Don't be stingy in your appropriation.

"Don't be brusque, gruff, 'smart,' nor exacting with the solicitor. He may be fully as much of a gentleman as yourself, and if he is not you have a fine opportunity to show him an example of a true gentleman's behavior.

"Don't try to tell too much in a small space. Give your announcement daylight and breathing room. A stuffed advertisement is liable to have a short reach.

"Don't overlook the value of well-made, well-printed, convincing illustrations.

"Don't publish yourself as 'cheap,' doing a cheap-John business, by using 'cheap' stationery.

"Don't fail, if not located at a well-known point, always to announce your direction and distance from some well-known point, and the railroads that reach you.

"Don't forget the value of the short and friendly reading notice.

"Don't forget that they cost the publisher money.

"Don't demand something for nothing, especially long-winded puffs of yourself and what you have. Pay your way, and pleasantly. The prompt payment is doubly sanctified. The haggler, the skin-flint, the 'knocker' and 'bluffer' may carry his point at times, but in the long run he will lose out—in standing if not in money.

"Don't, if the publisher makes an error, of commission or omission (and these errors are common to most of us), try to regulate him by rudeness until other means have failed. He may know how to be quite as rude as you, and, besides, he has a club. There are few instances in which a publisher is not glad to rectify in good measure any mistakes for which his office is responsible.

"Don't drop out. Keep something doing. Change your copy and stay alive.

"Don't forget to award the other fellow the same 'square deal' you ask for yourself."—A.A.B.

CHANGES IN WINE AND SPIRIT FIRM.

Acting on behalf of foreign capitalists D. J. Rattray, manager of the Montreal branch of D. Rattray & Sons, Quebec, has secured control of the capital stock of the old-established wine and spirit firm, William Farrell, Limited, Montreal. Mr. Rattray has been appointed president and managing director. It is understood that the capital stock will be largely increased, and in the future the business will be actively pushed along modern lines. The company contemplates the erection of distilleries in the vicinity of Montreal.

Mr. Rattray's new position will not prevent him giving his attention to the various offices of his other firm in the import commission business.

J. H. Galloway, formerly of Galloway & Parnell, brokers and commission merchants, Vancouver, was in Toronto last week. Mr. Galloway has sold out his interest to E. G. Parnell, and intends taking up his residence in the east. He intends taking up agencies for special lines. When in Vancouver he represented a number of Patras, Smyrna, Japanese and other Oriental firms, besides a number of Canadian concerns. In conversation with the Canadian Grocer he said that his firm had also of late been doing quite a business in grain of Alberta product. He says that this trade has grown enormously of late and has great possibilities. Mr. Galloway is an old Ontario boy, having gone to Vancouver a little over seven years ago.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Market Still Waiting for the Oncoming of the New Crop—Cereals lower—Very Little Export Business Doing.

The western wheat crop is still a mystery. The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association went on a tour with a flourish of trumpets to size things up. Upon their return they give out an estimate of 84,500,000 bushels, then a newspaper correspondent writes of it thus :

"Grain men, like other folk in the west, work hard, and when they go out for a jaunt into the country it is hardly to be expected that they will sit at the car window with their eyes glued to strong field glasses and look at nothing but wheat. Anyway, no matter what may be expected of them, they certainly do not do it. This year, in order that the itinerary might include sunny southern Alberta, a number of the most important wheat sections were either omitted altogether or were covered in the night. It is safe to say that their train did not travel over the railway running through even one-half of the wheat areas, and there was practically no driving into the country. A number of men who knew nothing of crops went with them, and in the making of the estimate their votes were counted."

Figuring, though, while waiting for results, is interesting. Here is how some industrious statistican has ascertained that the western farmer will this year get $90,000,000 for his wheat, oats and barley : Wheat, 91,813,900 bus. at 68c., $62,433,452; oats, 80,854,680 bus. at 28c., $22,639,310; barley, 17,735,790 bus. at 30c., $5,320,370; total, $90,393,-132.

Aside from these admixtures of arithmetic and the imagination, things are quiet in the world of cereals. There is some export business and very little local.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—There has been no change in the flour market since last report. Trade is reported as being very good in some quarters, while on the other hand there are some millers who say that business is limited. OUTLOOK IN APPLE MARKET.

Situation as Surveyed by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The fruit crop report for August, issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has this to say of the market conditions in regard to apples :

"The effect of the present hot weather upon the apples must be taken into consideration. It will induce an early maturity which will cause a material depreciation in Winter stock that is stored. Extra precautions should, therefore, be taken by all who store apples to pick them as soon as they are mature and place them in the coldest possible situation.

"The first of the early apples for export to Great Britain have gone forward but no reports of prices are yet available. The confidence which shippers have in this market is shown by the fact that a single shipper has sent forward three carloads. The large dealers in Great Britain do not hold out any prospects of high prices for early fruit, but they unite in predicting a better market for Winter fruit. There is no reason to believe that the market will be as good as last year, but the undoubted shortage in Great Britain of pears and plums, and the very moderate crop of apples renders it highly probable that there will be a very large importation of foreign fruit, probably larger than last year if the prices are somewhat lower.

Situation in the States.

"The Government crop report of the United States shows slightly more than an average crop of fruit that will compete with Canadian Winter fruit. It is, therefore, extremely unlikely that anything but very high prices will induce a large export from the United States of Winter fruit, so that the most probable outlook is for a large importation by Great Britain of Winter fruit at moderately good prices, a large portion of this stock coming from Canada. Should prices go up to a certain figure no doubt it would draw a very large surplus from the United States that will otherwise be consumed at home at lower prices.

Northwest Demand Keeps Up.

"There appears to be no diminution in the demand for apples from the Northwest. A feature of the Northwest trade is the desire of the merchants to make preliminary contracts with dealers in Ontario for direct shipments. The Northwest dealers have refused so far to make contracts for No. 2 apples, inasmuch as this grade was not defined. The recent amendments to the Fruit Marks Act, which give a definition of a No. 2 apple, will undoubtedly establish this trade in the Northwest, but will be slow to affect this year's business, as the only evidence which dealers will accept of the high quality of a No. 2 apple will be the actual shipments sent forward as samples.

"A notable feature of this year's business is that several extensive buyers have come from Great Britain and are buying for direct sale to consumers. There are also two buyers from South Africa: one consignment has already left Nova Scotia for Cape Town.

"In a few instances where the quantity of early fruit grown by each individual is small buyers have not considered it worth while to bid for the stock. It is under such circumstances as these that the co-operative associations of Western Ontario were established. These small lots of fruit could by the co-operative scheme be economically collected into large shipments for which there is a ready sale.

Prices.

"The buyers have been very active in the districts growing Winter fruit and a very large proportion of the fruit is already in the hands of dealers. There has, perhaps,been more than the usual amount of buying orchards by the lump, though there are a few reports of buying by the barrel for firsts and seconds. The prices vary greatly according to the quantity of the orchards. Growers apparently have sold upon a basis of $1.25 per barrel on the trees for Winter stock. Many growers have sold at $1 per barrel for everything in the orchard, buyers picking and packing. Some choice orchards in the Georgian Bay district have been sold at $1.50 per barrel on the trees, which the growers estimate as equivalent to $2 delivered at the railway stations for No. 1's and No. 2's. Prince Edward County growers are delivering Duchess and Red Astrachan on the docks at $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel. British Columbia growers report that their early apples have netted them from $1 to $1.50 per box ready for shipment. The four-basket crates of plums and prunes are selling all the way from 50 to 85c. per crate, the average being about 65c.

Arriving at Montreal.

"The Dominion fruit inspectors at Montreal have sent in reports of the temperature of five carloads of apples in refrigerator cars, all of which are said to have been fully iced at starting. They arrived at Montreal with temperatures ranging from 64 to 82 degrees. Although this fruit was placed in the cold storage of the steamships, it is extremely likely that there will be a very great depreciation in the quality of these apples when they reach their destination. After having been exposed from the time of packing until they were placed on board steamship to this very high temperature, no cooling could prevent a very serious deterioration in so soft an apple as the Duchess or Astrachan. Attention is once more drawn to the fact that, unless fruit is cooled before being put into refrigerator cars there is little chance of it reaching the steamship in good order."

BEAN CROP INJURED.

Sprouted by the Wet Weather—Loss in Quality Placed at $500,000.

A correspondent in the bean growing district of Western Ontario under date of August 25 writes regarding the bean crop :

"This crop is now passing through its most critical stage, i.e., harvesting. One week ago the prospects were fair, but the extreme drought which had prevailed over the entire bean section and which had materially lessened the yield, was broken by excessive downpours of rain, which coupled with the extreme heat caused great damage ; in many instances the pods were driven into the moist ground, causing the beans to discolor and sprout. In some instances where the earlier crop had been pulled but not housed, the damage is very serious. The quality will be materially affected and the merchantable quantity greatly reduced. Conservative estimators claim that the Government report can be cut in two. Owing to the above conditions the new beans will be soft and not fit for shipment for some time after being threshed. Very little old stock remains in dealers' hands and it would not be surprising to find that the new crop would not be sufficient for the domestic demands."

Two days later he adds :

"I have waited until I could give you some definite and reliable information as to the bean crop, the reports in reference to which had heretofore been somewhat mixed. The recent rains and extreme heat have settled the question. Since writing the enclosed we have had another drenching rain and the end not yet in sight. To-day from all quarters the reports are that the beans are growing in the pods. The loss in merchantable quality must mean about $500,000 to the growers."

NOTES OF INTEREST.

G. H. Hasenflug, Teeswater, was in Toronto last week.

A. H. Rae, Teeswater, is visiting his brother in Manitoba.

Mr. Barnard, of Hunt & Co., Montreal, is in Toronto and the west at present.

W. J. Snell, baker and confectioner, East Toronto, will shortly open a branch at Kew Beach.

Mr. Trout, of Hunter & Trout, Wiarton, Ont., was a buyer in Toronto last week and a fair visitor also.

C. J. Halliday, Chesley, Ont., has just returned from New York, where he attended the millinery openings.

F. Oberley, Formosa, Ont., saw his wholesale friends in Toronto last week and was a visitor at the exhibition.

W. H. Thompson, one of F. F. Dalley Co.'s travelers, has been confined to his house in Hamilton for three weeks with an injured leg.

F. M. Ramage, Chesley, Ont., took a holiday last week, visiting between Collingwood and Owen Sound. This week he was in Toronto.

K. Shiratory, manager of the Toyo Tea Trading Company, Japan, who has been visiting Montreal, left for New York end of last week.

D. M. Todd, Oshawa, Ont., has opened his new and thoroughly sanitary bakery. It has cement floors throughout and hot and cold shower baths for the employes.

Maylor Hayne, of Fort William, has returned from a three weeks visit in the east. While in Toronto he purchased a complete new stock for his new grocery store.

J. E. Adams, of Adams & Sparling, grocers, London, has retired on account of ill health. W. B. Sparling is continuing the business and there will be no relaxation of energy or fading of the spirit of progress.

It is asserted at Medicine Hat that an English syndicate has taken over the large lands of the Grand Forks Cattle Co., will irrigate them and place them on the market. The same syndicate propose, it is said, to erect at Medicine Hat the largest sugar refinery in the world.

Ald. Wm. McClarity, a leader in Owen Sound society, visited Toronto this week and the exhibition. He's a great admirer of cats, but they having given place to canines he looked over the King's horses. He was not, however, one of those who stood in line to be kicked by royalty.

Modern Merchandising demands modern methods. The ALLISON COUPON BOOK is a strictly modern CONVENIENCE and SAFEGUARD against mistakes and consequent loss of money. It is better than any pass-book, punch or check system ever invented, and its absolute accuracy makes it the CHEAPEST SYSTEM on this big earth—excepting, of course, the cash system. See here:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Crawford Peach Season is on—Fruit Trade Generally Continues Very Satisfactory—All Kinds of Vegetables Plentiful—Fish trade is picking up.

The Crawford peach season has commenced, and that marks the beginning of the end of the Ontario Summer fruit season. The samples coming forward are of fine quality. Everywhere throughout the Dominion the fruit trade continues to flourish, and the question is rather one of supply than demand. Throughout Canada the volume of business is greater than ever before. Vegetable markets are continuing their normal activity. Cooler weather is acting as a stimulant to the fish trade.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—There will be noticed this week many changes in the quotations, changes necessitated by market conditions. Bananas are strong at prices quoted. Trade is good, especially in the city. Old lemons and watermelons are out of the market this week. Canadian grapes are now quoted, the price asked being 22½c. to 30c. a basket. Another new line is western melons at $1.25 to $1.50. Western plums are scarce this year and the price is high in consequence, being some twenty-five cents above last year's figure at this time.

VEGETABLES—Although the weather is becoming cooler, good business in vegetables continues to be done. There is a very good general demand, there being no call for certain lines above others. It will be noticed that cabbage is advancing, quotations now reading 50c. to 75c. per dozen. From present indications cabbage will bring good money this Winter. Tomatoes, while unchanged this week will probably be higher next week. Boxes are now offering from 65c. to 75c. It is expected that the baskets, which now bring 35c., will have to be raised to 50c. to meet the new conditions coming with the gradual closing of the season. A few small lots of new sage are reported as coming in, but very little is noticeable. It will be some time yet before large lots are offered. Prices are well maintained.

FISH—Recent cool weather has been the cause of a revival of the fish trade. Quite respectable orders have been coming in during the past week and a half. Prices have been very well maintained. Fresh British Columbia salmon continues scarce, but Gaspe salmon, chilled, is taking the place of it to a great extent. Fresh dore and pike continue scarce also, but lake trout and whitefish are arriving freely. Fresh mackerel, too, is coming forward in good quantities. Steak cod is not obtainable in anything like good sized lots. Halibut is lower this week, owing to increased arrivals.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—A very limited supply of lemons is on the market at prices that are very high, but more are expected shortly. Grapes are now on the market in a much improved form than they were last week, and a goodly quantity is coming in. Yellow Freestone peaches, Bartlett pears and plums are arriving regularly, and meet with ready sale. Duchess and Astrachan apples are selling at 20c. and 25c. a basket, and $1.75 to $2 a barrel. Egg fruit is lower, and can now be bought for 20c.

and 25c. a basket. Lawton berries are getting scarce and falling off as well in quality.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are coming down as the season advances, but other vegetables are holding at about the same price as last week. There is scarcely anything new to come on the market now and everything having about struck its regular gate there will hardly be so many price changes for a while. Some nice sweet potatoes are on the market selling at $4.50 per barrel. Some new Spanish onions are due to arrive next week. They will be about 50 pounds to the crate.

ronto. Walter C. Gaden, Montreal representative of T. H. Estabrooks, took his fellow travelers in hand when they reached the city and showed them round. Several of the large business houses were visited in the morning, after which the "round the mountain" trip was taken. Lunch was served at Morgan's at twelve o'clock. With invited guests, the party started out in a special car after lunch to see the district around Montreal. Lachine, and incidentally Lake St. Louis, Westmount, Cote des Neiges and Outremont were taken in, and then the inevitable trip to Dominion Park. Here the sights were seen from the House of Nonsense to the Scenic Railway, after which a dinner was served at Riverview Inn, on the grounds. The table was decorated with Red Rose tea calendars and mottoes, while, to make things complete, Mr. Gaden sang a Red Rose tea song after dinner. Before leaving the table L. W. Cox, senior salesman present, thanked Mr. Gaden in very hearty terms on behalf of the visiting travelers. W. D. McCallum thanked him on behalf of the guests. The car was then boarded for Windsor Station, where the travelers arrived in time to take the ten o'clock train for Toronto, to which a special Pullman car was attached.

The boys all enjoyed their stay in Montreal, which was made very pleasant for them largely through the instrumentality of Mr. Gaden.

The salesmen in the party were: W. C. Gaden, L. W. Cox, W. R. Miles, M. B. Armstrong, J. V. Kierstand, N. D. Leblanc, G. L. Palmer, Louis C. Armstrong, J. A. Trites, H. Sullivan and W. P. Currie. Among the city guests present were: Geo. Lloyd, manager of the grocery department of Scroggie's; A. W. Childs, traveling staff Laporte, Martin & Cie.; Frank Spence, J. F. B. Foote and W. D. McCallum.

CODFISH CATCH SMALL.

Codfish is likely to be high this year. According to the Canadian commercial agent at St. John's, Nfld., the catch this year will be about 300,000 quintals below last year's, but on account of the advanced prices the returns to the fishermen will be about the same.

John Cheesman, a leading grocer of Barrie, Ont., was in Toronto last week calling on the trade.

SARNIA GROCERS' PICNIC

A Very Pleasant Wind-Up to the Summer Half Holidays—Long List of Sports Contributed to a Pleasant Afternoon.

The grocers of Sarnia are a pretty lively aggregate of traders and they have an association that is in fine fettle. They held their annual picnic at Lake Huron Park a fortnight ago as a pleasant wind-up for their Wednesday half-holidays. All day long the crowds they took with them taxed the capacity of the street railway facilities. The Sarnia Silver Band provided music afternoon and evening.

The set feature for the afternoon was a lengthy programme of sports, into the spirit of which the huge company entered with great zest. In addition to the events for the children there were proprietary races arranged by Red Rose Tea, Richards' Pure Soap, Maple Leaf Tea, Comfort Soap and Aroma Tea. Other events and the results were as follows :

Fat men's race, 200 pounds or over, 50 yards—1st, 5 lbs. Red Band tea, A. M. Smith & Co., Harry Lawson ; 2nd, 3 lbs. Red Band tea, A. M. Smith & Co., F. R. Abbs ; 3rd, 2 lbs. Red Band tea, A. M. Smith & Co., E. J. Smith.

Three-legged race, 100 yards—1st, 100 lbs. granulated sugar, Wallaceburg Sugar Co., Cortese Bros. ; 2nd, 50 bars Bee Hive soap, London Soap Co., J. Morrison, W. Ross ; 3rd, 6-lb. box candles, Imperial Oil Co., Cowan and Cortese.

Grocer's boys' race, 100 yards—1st, 5-lb. caddy tea, Elliott, Marr & Co., P. Palmer ; 2nd, 6-lb. box blue, Alpha Chemical Co., Geo. Palmer ; 3rd, 1 doz. Water Still Low in Montreal Harbor —Export Shipping Trade is Brisk—A Good Deal of Wheat Going Abroad and Cheese in large demand also.

There has been little improvement in the wafer situation in the port of Montreal. Since last report the water has fallen again, with more or less serious results to the shipping trade. There is no remedy apparent, however, so that shippers and shipping companies must perforce put up with the inconvenience.

Notwithstanding existing conditions, a good healthy trade is passing in general export lines. There has been a very good demand from the United Kingdom and foreign points for Canadian products generally, so that the export business is considered rather satisfactory than otherwise.

Cheese has been moving out in a most satisfactory manner, despite the high market prices at present demanded. The report issued by the Government for the fiscal year ending last June, gives some idea of the amount of cheese exported. This season's export business promises well also.

Butter has been in good request from the other side recently. While at times orders from England are light, yet on the whole very good business is done. Prices locally have been steadily advancing, resulting in a holding back tendency on the part of buyers across the water.

Meats and provisions generally are in fair to good demand, and some very good shipments have been made recently.

There has been very little activity in hay lately, few lots going forward. Grain has been a strong line, many of the out-going boats taking good-sized cargoes.

One boat bound for London and Antwerp last week carried over nine thousand cases of cereal foods.

Rates this week are not materially changed. A few small lines have been altered more or less, but this is all.

The Virginian, of the Allan Line, sailed for Liverpool with a general cargo August 31.

Among the other boats which cleared the same day were the C.P.R. liner Montezuma, for Antwerp; the Turcoman for Bristol, Dominion Line, and the Allan boat Pomeranian for London and Havre. All these vessels carried general cargoes.

You are as Sharp as the Next Grocer; What He Has Done You Can Do

Only the other day one of my men came across a Grocer whose cigar business had made such strides that he had put it into a clerk's keeping—the young man to devote the best part of his time to cigar buying and cigar selling.

The Grocer himself knows no more about cigars than you do, but he knows enough to select brands like Pebble and Pharaoh and to put confidence in me to use him well.

Exchange cigar views with me and see if we cannot be instructive to each other.

James B. Duke, Head of the So-Called American Tobacco Trust, Gives a Very Interesting Interview—He Tells the Story of His Life, His Humble Beginning and how He Fought His Way to Distinguished Success.

The head of the so-called American tobacco trust, James B. Duke, is an interesting personality. He recently told his story to a New York Tribune interviewer, who recounted it as follows:

While he talked with me Mr. Duke moved around in his chair with energy. He is a tall, robust man, with thin, reddish hair, dark blue eyes and a smooth, florid face. His clothing was as plain as a farmer's. A person who is familiar with him says he never has tasted intoxicating liquor.

"My father," Mr. Duke said, "was the wisest and best man I have ever known. Until he was forty-five years old he had lived in the country, out of contact with the world, save in his narrow community, but he went into business and made a fortune. In his youth he rented land and with his meager savings bought a farm. At the opening of the Civil War he owned three hundred lean acres, but nothing else worth mentioning. While yet a boy he was converted at a Methodist revival, and ever after lived a consistent Christian life. He despised secession, but followed his state into the rebellion. After the war, however, he became a Republican. At the age of forty he sent his children to their relatives and joined the Confederate army.

"On the retreat from Richmond he was captured by the enemy, but soon released. He walked home, 135 miles, and sent for me, Brodie L., my half-brother; Benjamin Newton, my own brother, and Mary Elizabeth, my sister. I was nine years old and Mary was twelve. The whole family went to work. Mary was housekeeper. We always regarded her as being a member of the firm. She was consulted and received her share of the profits along with the rest of us. During his long tramp toward home my father traded a $5 Confederate note for 50 cents in Yankee silver. He bought two blind mules on credit from my uncle. With his thin acres, his children, his blind mules and his half dollar he began the business of growing tobacco on little patches of land near the house. In fact, he couldn't have grown anything else.

"Our crops at first were small. We cured the tobacco in a log barn, under which we had a fire to give it the right color. I have often wondered why the barn wasn't burned down. We granulated the tobacco with a common flail, sifted it and put it in bags. I remember that it took a piece of muslin one yard long and one yard wide to make a bag, and that each bag contained thirty-three pounds. With the blind mules and a tumbledown wagon we peddled the tobacco in Winter to country merchants and others."

"But when did you go to school?"

"I had an opportunity to attend college, but did not accept it. Instead, at the age of eighteen, I asked my father to take me into his business as a partner, and he did so, giving me a sixth of the property and profits. He was then making about $7,000 a year, had given up farming and had started a tobacco factory in Durham, N.C. He would have been better pleased, however, if I had gone to school. While his own education had been neglected, under the pressure of circumstances, he believed in education for others. But while he desired to have me go to school he sympathized with my ambition to succeed in business. Our first factory in Durham was a wooden building 70 feet long, 40 feet wide and three storeys high. We employed fifteen hands, but it wasn't long before our buildings covered ten acres of ground."

"When did you come to New York?"

"In 1883 I concluded that money could be made in cigarettes, and began to manufacture them in a small way. Our capital at that time was $70,000, and the business was owned by my father, his three sons and a man in Richmond. I came to New York in 1884 to give the manufacture of cigarettes my personal attention. I realized that hand labor was too slow and costly, and that a machine would have to do the work. The other manufacturers laughed at me, and were free to predict that I would end in bankruptcy. I spent most of my time in experimenting with a crude machine which I had bought, but—"

"It was at this period, I suppose, that you moved out of a $3 room and took one that was a dollar cheaper?"

"Yes, but I wasn't prompted to do so by avariciousness. I needed every cent I had for my business. I toiled all day at the factory, and at night took my cigarettes under my arm and urged them upon the retail dealers. Therefore, I didn't have much use for a room. No man ever worked harder or longer than I did between the years 1884 and 1890. I am glad to say that my labor was reasonably successful. I became acquainted with a broker in lead tobacco, a shrewd but eccentric man, and he loaned me $40,000. No one else in New York would have loaned me forty thousand cents. But he had faith in my plans and confidence in me and I got the money. I was a heavy borrower in those days, but my plans were laid in prudence and my maturing obligations were invariably protected. I managed the business in Durham as well as here. In 1890 we sold everything we had to the company of which I am now president. We received $7,500,000 in securities. The business we turned over to the new company returned a profit of $1,400,000 the first year."

"The market value of the shares and bonds of your company is $400,000,000. Have you that much visible property ?"

"No. Factories are a small part of the tobacco business—you can build them any time—but brands, or trade names, are everything. It takes years and barrels of money to establish a brand of tobacco and make it profitable to the manufacturer. We have one brand of smoking tobacco which nets us two millions a year. I wouldn't sell the simple right we have in its name for $15,000,000 cash in hand. Moreover, we always have a new brand coming on. We are now sending out our best known smoking tobacco under two names—its old one and a new one. We are pushing the new brand as hard as we can, advertising it extensively and giving away samples, but after a long effort we are selling only four hundred pounds a day and losing a dollar a pound at that. We lost a million and a half a year for four years fighting the men who produced the best plug tobacco in the world. They had a safe and highly successful business, and it would have taken us ten years to make our brand profitable ; even then they would have had their own brand and process and only the worst possible management could have injured them. But they became frightened and sold out."

"A case of pure nerve on your part ?"

"And money. Nerve is all right, but it is not effective unless fortified with money. Nerve with an empty pocketbook is merely bluff, and bluff is the common refuge for cowardice and impecuniosity."

"How do you advertise ?"

"In every way known to modern business. We have college fraternity men, for instance, selling cigarettes. Every male immigrant who lands at Ellis Island has a package of smoking tobacco put into his hand. He sees the name and remembers it, and when he goes to Texas or Alaska carries the memory with him."

"How many persons do you employ ?"

"Eighty-two thousand. Our sales amount to $175,000,000 a year. We have between three hundred and four hundred retail stores in this country."

"What have you to say about the so-called trusts ?"

"Combinations of all kinds should serve the public thoroughly well at only a fair profit and keep on improving the quality of their products. The men at the head of the steel trust could have good times permanently if, contrary to Andrew Carnegie's prince and pauper theory, they fixed a reasonable standard of profit and stuck to it. When a buyer is loaded up with the things he deals in he quits purchasing. Neither has the sugar trust perceived this incontrovertible business truth. On the other hand, the Standard Oil Company is managed with consummate sagacity—it knows the plain rules of trade. Several years ago I laid down the principle that our customers should be taught to buy frequently and no more at a time than was needed. Under this practice the dealer, we find, is easy in his mind, his capital is continuously employed, maturing obligations give him no concern and our surplus stock is in our own warehouses and not scattered all over the country. Business men should work together in maintaining prosperous conditions. A dollar in hand doesn't make up for the certain loss of $10 in the future. There is no sense in selling a dealer more than he can use—you do him no good and you bring a period of stagnation to the market so far as he is concerned.

"Another folly is the payment of dividends overhastily. When my four partners and I were making $200,000 a year in our business we each drew $166.66 a month and no more — I saw to that. There were complaints and on one occasion a threat. 'You own only one-fifth of the concern,' my partners said. 'We shall vote a dividend over your head. We have families and must live.' 'If you do,' I replied, 'I quit.' The dividend wasn't authorized and the money which would have been necessary had it been voted was employed to extend our business."

"Can a man earn a fortune ?"

"Not on a salary nor by the sweat of his brow. Necessarily, one must be economical and self-denying until he has capital with which to begin business. Thousands of men are doing well, but they spend every cent they earn. Having obtained a little capital by industry and frugality, the man who wants a fortune must see some need of the public and then pitch in and supply it, no matter what it costs."

HARD FOR AN OLD FELLOW.

"Medicine won't help you any," the doctor told his patient, according to Everybody's Magazine. "What you need is a complete change of living. Get away to some quiet country place for a month. Go to bed early, eat more roast beef, drink plenty of good, rich milk, and smoke just one cigar a day."

A month later the patient walked into the doctor's office. He looked like a new man, and the doctor told him so.

"Yes, doctor, your advice certainly did the business. I went to bed early and did all the other things you told me. But, say, doctor, that one cigar a day almost killed me at first. It's no joke starting in to smoke at my time of life."

GROCERS THANK THE RAILWAY.

At the recent Hamilton grocers' picnic to Niagara Falls the statement was made that the transportation arrangements provided by the Grand Trunk Railway had never been excelled. This opinion was pretty generally expressed among the grocers and it was agreed that some recognition should be made to the company. Accordingly A. G. Bain, chairman of the picnic committee, has forwarded to Charles E. Morgan, the local ticket agent, the following letter :

"As chairman of the retail grocers' picnic committee I wish to personally thank you and the other officers of the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the splendid service, the good coaches and the many personal attentions extended, which added much towards making this the largest and most successful of any excursion held by us."

S. C. Bartlett, St. Mary's, Ont., manager of F. W. Hutton's grocery department, spent last week in Toronto visiting the exhibition and the trade and gathering ideas for the betterment of his fine grocery trade.

GROCERY TRADE IN OTTAWA

Death of John A. Bryson—Question of Early Closing the Year Round Being Agitated by the Clerks' Association— Personal Notes.

John A. Bryson, Ottawa's leading grocer, died suddenly of pneumonia, at his Summer cottage, Kingsmere, Que. He was highly respected and greatly esteemed both in business and social life. His death came as a shock to all.

Feeling somewhat run down, but at work Monday of last week, he left to bring his family from their Summer residence at Kingsmere, which he proposed doing on the day following. That evening he took ill, and the disease became so deep seated before medical aid arrived that all efforts to save him were unavailing, and he died Friday noon. His body was removed to the city and the funeral took place on Monday of this week, from his late residence, Cooper street, to Beechwood Cemetery.

In Ottawa there has been somewhat of a fraternity among members of the grocery trade, and the members of it feel they have met with a personal loss by the death of one who was such an ideal business man. Expressions of regret are heard on every hand. John Bryson was a most successful grocer, one who had ideas of his own and ideas that were always good. He was a master of detail in every particular, and his system of doing business was unique. If he could be of service in explaining to others for their benefit some of his mottoes it was always a pleasure for him.

Among travelers his loss will be keenly felt. He was always kind and considerate, and for a salesman to be able to tell the trade that John Bryson bought so and so was sufficient warrant that it must be right.

His business staff was a large one, consisting of about 20 or more employes, and they feel very much the sudden change that has taken place by their loss of so considerate an employer. The funeral was a very large one. Most of the city's business houses were represented, and there was a large attendance of citizens in all walks of life.

Mr. Bryson left a wife and three children, the oldest a girl of ten, and two boys. The sympathy of all those who knew the deceased goes out to them in their bereavement.

President Ford, of the Grocers' Association, has left for Old Orchard Beach for a few days.

Wm. R. Finney spent last week in Toronto.

John Everret, the veteran salesman of Christie Brown, called on Ottawa grocers last week.

An agitation in favor of still further shortening the hours of doing business is being pressed among all lines of business, the Clerks' Association being the principal instigators of the movement, their proposal being to close every night at 6 p.m., Saturdays included, during the year, excepting at Christmas Holidays. The Grocers' Association are not in favor of this altogether, although willing to close at 6 p.m. every day but Saturday, which they propose to shorten to 9 p.m. The question will be threshed out at the next regular meeting on the 12th inst., and if carried arrangements will be made for petitioning council for a change in the present early closing by-law.

Trade is brightening up considerably owing to many families returning to the city. Every year it is becoming more noticeable that people are taking to the country more, so that business suffers very much during July and August.

Ottawa's Exhibition will be held immediately after the close of the Toronto Fair, and it promises to eclipse all previous years.

NEW MAN IN WHOLESALES.

James Langskill, President of Weite & Co. Ltd.—A Progressive firm.

Born a Scotchman, reared a grocer, now president of an important wholesale fruit and provision house. That is the history of James Langskill, and he is still a young man. Mr. Langskill has been in business in Toronto fifteen years and his present position as president of White & Co., Ltd., bespeaks his success. He was elected to the position at the first of the year, has since disposed of his fine grocery store and with the first of this month assumed actively his duties in connection with the fruit and provision company. These will be to aid W. H. Despard, manager and secretary-treasurer, whose duties have become too heavy for one pair of shoulders.

White & Co. have been established 12 years and the business has experienced phenomenal growth. Mr. Despard has been with the firm from the start and has the fruit business at his fingers' ends. The firm claim they are the largest in their line in Canada, employing in Toronto 52 men, and besides there is the Hamilton branch established a year ago under the direction of Fred Anderson. The produce department, under C. R. Lucas, is a rapidly increasing proposition and ranks now as one of the largest handlers of produce in Ontario.

TO END GROCERY EVIL.

the National Wholesale Grocers' Association to put an end to the evil resulting from the subsidizing of jobbers' salesmen by manufacturers, it has been learned, says the New York Commercial, is still being pushed with vigor. Many well known manufacturers, it is said on good authority, have endorsed the action of the National Association and are working with the association to end the abuse.

It is rumored in grocery trade circles that the agitation against the practice has brought the situation up to the point where the manufacturers are considering the matter of signing an agreement under cash penalty for infringement to discontinue the "extra inducement to salesmen" plan objected to by the jobbers.

L. Schepp, of L. Schepp & Co., importers and manufacturers of cocoanut products, condemning the practice and including under the same head all prize schemes, said: "Where the scheme or prize package system is in vogue it is not safe to eat, drink or take medicine without endangering the health or suffering the evil effects of this most damaging and corrupting method of doing business. No first-class grocer should encourage scheme or prize-package methods of conducting business in food products for the following reasons:

"First.—Because these methods tend to reduce the quality of food products, encourage adulteration, and thereby endanger the health of the people.

"Second.—It leads to demoralization and corruption in business. No scheme, present or bribe should influence the grocer in the selection of his goods, for his customers rely upon him to see that they get wholesome and pure food.

"No manufacturer should have influence by scheme, present or bribe, over the grocers' salesmen or clerks, as to whose goods they should recommend or sell in preference. The grocer should be the only authority from whom the clerk or salesman should receive orders or directions in anything pertaining to his (the grocer's) business.

"Third.—All first-class salesmen or clerks will understand that it is no compliment to them to be approached by a manufacturer with a bribe or a present, These arguments against the evils I have mentioned are approved and endorsed by all first-class grocers."

BOARD OF TRADE OFFICERS.

The new board of trade of Rapid City, Man., has elected the following officers: President, G. L. Stone; vice-president, J. G. Hindson; secretary-treasurer, A. J. LePage; council, S. L. Head, A. To Maintain a Standard

It costs us more every year to make RISING SUN Stove Polish and SUN PASTE Stove Polish up to "Morse Brothers' Standard." Our increasing sales enable us to maintain the standard without raising the price. We are constantly improving our facilities for the manufacture of our goods on a larger and larger scale and we never allow anything but the best materials to be used in our processes. That is why our goods please the trade and consumer. RISING SUN and SUN PASTE are right every time you sell them.

The Turned-Down Corners

Here and there in the Ledger of Life you have turned down the corner of a page for remembrance sake—you'd forget something if the turned-down corner wasn't there.

To-day, turn down a corner deep and wide to remember this one sure fact : "Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten." Every time you come to that particular page—remember. Every time you try to sell inferior quality, think of the turned-down corner—what it stands for, and what it really means to your success.

"Taylor's" Candied and Drained Peels

THE IMPERIAL CANNING CO.,

KINGSVILLE, ONT.

(Branch of the Canadian Canners, Limited)

"one of the best in the Province"

The following editorial is clipped from the KINGSVILLE REPORTER of August 26, 1906.

The canning factory started up on the 15th of this month, a few days earlier than last year. While this factory is always to the fore front, it IS THIS YEAR STILL MORE MODERN IN ITS EQUIPMENT. CLEANLINESS IS ONE OF THE FEATURES WHICH IS RIGIDLY ENFORCED BY MANAGEMENT, and this year more machinery has been added which will facilitate the cleaning of the raw material, making it still more easy to put up the goods in the cleanest possible manner. THE TOMATOES ARE emptied from the boxes into a washing machine and agitated until the sand or other dirt is washed off. They pass from this into a tank of hot water and are scalded, then they pass out into a chute and are carried in to the peelers. They fall from the carriers into fibre pails which are placed on a revolving platform, around which the women and girl workers are assembled.

As the tomatoes are peeled they are carried in pails to the canning machine and are soon in the cans which are soldered automatically, and pass out into the cooker and cooler and from there are wheeled to the storeroom. Each pail of the peeled tomatoes is carefully examined as they are emptied into the canning machine, and if a worker has been careless and left any spots in them she is reprimanded. Each pail is numbered and is traced by the check given the peeler. A woman is kept constantly at work sweeping up refuse and tidying things up generally. The annual output of the factory is 600,000 cans tomatoes, 90,000 gallons of apples, and this year peaches will also be put up. Employment is given to a staff of 100 people, who will put through, running full time, 2,000 bushels of tomatoes per day. THE FACTORY IS ONE OF THE BEST IN THE PROVINCE, AND PEOPLE NEED HAVE NO HESITATION IN EATING IMPERIAL BRAND OF TINNED GOODS, BECAUSE THEY STAND ON THEIR MERITS FOR ABSOLUTE PURITY, WITH QUALITY OF STOCK THE BEST THAT CAN BE PROCURED IN CANADA.

The remarks as above are equally applicable to each of our thirty factories. In ordering Canned Goods it will pay you to stick to brands as follows, viz.:—"CANADA FIRST," "LITTLE CHIEF," "LOG CABIN," "HORSESHOE," "KENT," "AUTO," "LYNNVALLEY," "MAPLE LEAF," "LION," "THISTLE" "GRAND RIVER" "WHITE ROSE," etc.

"Quality and Cleanliness," our Motto.

Our Factory now boasts the most up-to-date equipment for making Catsup in Canada. We also have one of the best Catsup Cooks on the Continent.

For the last four weeks we have been buying tons and tons of the very finest Rose Tomatoes. These have been washed, scalded, peeled and seeded, then have gone through the process of making them into Crest Brand Tomato Catsup. Nothing of the delicious flavor of the ripe tomato has been taken away, and our chef's blending of the spices and condiments has given it an appetizing piquancy that cannot be equalled.

Put up in large 14-oz screw-top bottle, with an exceptionally pretty label, it makes one of the most attractive packages ever put on the market. We guarantee its purity, and the absolute cleanliness of our factory and methods makes its wholesomeness beyond dispute.

Did it Ever Occur to You to think how much money you could make in the course of the year just by pushing the sale of some of the smaller items of your stock?

Take Jelly Powders and Flavoring Extracts, for example. Goods that never aggregate much money in your stock, but which pay handsome profit in the selling.

Try it and see how many packages and bottles you can sell in a day just by suggesting it to the customers in your store. The result will be ever so much better profits than obtained from the same effort used in selling heavy goods on which your margin is so light.

PARTICULARLY SO if you push high grade lines like Greig's White Swan Jellies and Flavors. Their quality is such that your patrons want more. Your profit on these is especially attractive. Try a sample lot at our risk and see how they go.

Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

We are willing and anxious to acknowledge the service they can render us by rewarding them in direct proportion to the interest they display in pushing these goods. Our method of rewarding is "The Fairbank Plan," which is a system of couponing our specialties in such a manner that the coupons can be easily removed when the goods are sold, and giving for these coupons useful articles, the best that money can buy. Our whole aim is to give the clerks the best value we can secure.

The products embraced in "The Fairbank Plan" are easily sold because they are the best value and give the greatest satisfaction to the consumer. They increase the trade of the store and "The Fairbank Plan" rewards the dealer or his clerks for selling them.

Send for a copy of "The Fairbank Plan" illustrated premium list. It will pay you.

OUR MOTTO:

"Quality Regardless of Price"

This motto peculiarly applies to our Cream of Sugar Corn, which in selection, careful handling, ingredients of syrup, is made to cost much more than the ordinary brands put on the market, but is sold at a very slight advance in price over the ordinary brands. Now, what is true of our Cream Sugar Corn quality is also equally true of Farmers' Brand of Canned Peas, Corn, Beans, Tomatoes, etc. These are all delivered from our own fields to the factory, and packed fresh the same day as they are gathered.

Proof of dealers' and consumers' appreciation being that though our 1906 Pack doubles that of 1905, but very little of the former remains to be sold. We solicit a small trial order that you may be in the swim with dealers who are buying our goods.

Tomatoes Ripened on the Vine, Not on the Fence—That's "Canada's Pride"

There is no vegetable where flavor varies so much as the tomato. The reason for this is the artificial way of hurrying up ripeness. The "hurry up" or "fence" system puts all the life into the exterior of the tomato, and lets the interior take care of itself.

"CANADA'S PRIDE" Canned Tomatoes

you get vegetables that have ripened on the plants and been picked when the flavor was just right. All Canada's Pride Tomatoes have the same flavor, are 1906 pick, full and solid cans, beautifully labelled.

ADVERTISING THAT TALKS

Former Retailer Recounts His Experien ce—How He was Influenced by the Ads in The Canadian Grocer—A Young Man's Allegiance.

I was in the grocery business in B——, a town in Western Ontario; there was one firm of wholesale grocers in Toronto with whom I felt I should like to do business and with whom I gradually learned to do business. The influence which worked for this result was the excellent advertising done by this firm in The Canadian Grocer. As I recall things, the Verigood Co. were the best advertisers in the paper, using a page each week and filling it with the snappiest kind of advertising. Each announcement bristled with business. There were "specials" galore—not necessarily bargains, but mostly specialties—lines of goods distinguished by some excellence. Possibly other firms had just as good lines to offer, but they did not exploit them as did the Verigood Co., the specialties they handled, and I became possessed of the feeling that I wasn't getting the most desirable merchandise in many lines.

It may be asked why I didn't buy where I liked. This question is answered readily. I was loyal to the houses who had sold us goods before my father died, and when I became buyer, I made no change. Thus the representatives of the two Toronto wholesale grocers who had the bulk of our general grocery account continued to sell us and the representative of the Verigood Co., with whom I had a very slight acquaintance, received small encouragement on his occasional calls. At the same time I felt that I was not having access to the best goods and best values—an impression given wholly by Verigood's advertising in The Grocer. I had made up my mind that did I ever have occasion to divert my account, I would become a Verigood customer.

But things changed with the Verigood Co. Their page in The Grocer became dull compared with what it once had been, and, later still, the size of their advertisement shrank considerably. I could not help but feel that there was something wrong with that house, which for so long had stood for the best I knew of in grocery enterprise. About this same time Strikehard & Co., to whom I gave the major part of our business, made a bold bid for pre-eminence, using liberal space and showing by their offerings that they were thoroughly wide-awake in their buying and aggressive in their selling. There was a sense of satisfaction in dealing with a concern that was so manifestly alive.

Messrs. Old & Dignified, who in the days of my father had the biggest part of our account, and with whom, for friendship's sake, I continued to deal, sold us less and less as the years passed. In their warerooms when I called—and I was in Toronto frequently—I received no quick recognition, no cordial welcome. So I seldom called there. I preferred to go to Strikehard & Co's, where several knew me, and called me by name, and where Mr. Strikehard himself flattered me with his interest in me and our business.

To-day this firm's advertisements in The Grocer are in my opinion as good reading as in the old days when I read them for business. They arouse an internal activity, a keenness in selling. The advertisements of the Verigood Co. still appear regularly and are handled with skill, but somehow they do not strike my fancy as did those of former time.

Let me say a word to Grocer advertisers, and to those firms who do not advertise—a word based upon experience. Ten years ago I was 26 years of age, a young man, sensitive, ambitious, daring. I did not know much and was eager to learn. I was credulous, believing much of what I read and heard. I read The Grocer faithfully— every page of it, editorials, contributed articles, advertisements. The advertisements that were new each week, bright and business-like, produced a good impression and made for favor. With such houses I desired to do business. I cannot say that I wrote to such concerns, giving them an order, but I can and do say that times without number I ordered advertised specialties through my wholesale grocer. I did not want a number of $2 and $5 invoices to enter up and to pay for separately. Such small invoices are a nuisance. And so I ordered through the jobbers.

The non-advertising firm I regard lightly. They smelled musty. Doubtless I made many a mistake in this direction, but what do you expect from the beginner? Young manhood is not ripe manhood.

As it was with me ten years ago, so is it to-day, with scores upon scores of others throughout Canada, and if every young merchant reads The Canadian Grocer as faithfully as I did when I wore the apron, my word of advice to wholesalers, manufacturers and distributing agents is advertise, and put red blood into every advertisement. There is money in it.

LICENSE THE GROCER.

Dairy and Food Commissioner of Ohio Advocates that Course.

In England there has been considerable agitation, says the Inter State Grocer, of St. Louis, regarding the examination of grocers as to their fitness in handling foodstuffs, a matter which interests everyone, and a strong effort has been made to have all handlers of such articles licensed by proper authorities, the license to be granted only after the applicant has shown that he is thoroughly conversant with the technical points of the trade.

State Dairy and Food Commissioner Horace Ankeny, of Ohio, who has taken an active part in the prosecution of food adulterators in his State, says in an interview that all grocers in this country should be licensed, and gives good reasons for his opinion.

"In the hands of no other class of people do the public trust their very lives, as they do the men who furnish their food," says Mr. Ankeny.

"In many States barbers are compelled to pass a rigid examination before they are permitted to work at their trade. Engineers are universally licensed, and in many cities plumbers and other mechanics carry a certificate of their fitness. Anybody who can get backing for a few hundred dollars can start a grocery or meat market. It is not even necessary to do that. A peddler's license is cheap and an outfit and stock does not cost much more.

"Many of those engaged in these trades are totally ignorant of all requirements except to charge a higher price for the goods than they pay for them. They know absolutely nothing of the indications of spoiled meat. In handling canned goods, they are completely at the mercy of the manufacturer and wholesaler.

"Recent arousing of public sentiment by disclosures of wholesale meat and food adulterations will result in a wholesale and uniform strengthening of the pure food laws of the country. It is not at hand now, but the time will come when it will be necessary for a dealer who has in his keeping the health of his customers, to be compelled to know the goods he handles, and be held responsible for them as well as the manufacturer. That is nominally done now, but it is only in an extremely rare case that the retailer is actually guilty of intent to defraud. He depends upon the man from whom he buys, and is deceived about as often as the public."

DELIVERY DIFFICULTIES.

Cardinal Merchants have Trouble in Securing Prompt Delivery.

Frank Rogers, of Adams & Rogers, Cardinal, was in Montreal recently, and dropped in upon The Canadian Grocer. Cardinal merchants, said Mr. Rogers, have considerable trouble during the Summer in securing satisfactory delivery of supplies, particularly in the case of bananas and other perishable goods. They have a ten thousand dollar Government wharf there, but the boats do not stop regularly. Consequently goods they order shipped on a Thursday by G.T.R. they do not receive until the following Tuesday, which causes much inconvenience and sometimes loss. The business men of the town are in the hopes that something will be done by the transportation companies in the near future towards bettering conditions.

MOULDY BUTTER MOULDY.

The London (Eng.) correspondent of The Canadian Grocer writes: "Some Canadian factories are shipping butter in a disgraceful condition. Nothing but mould, shipment after shipment. The particular factories are known and their names have been handed to the Canadian Government commissioner here."

He was 30 years of age and had been with his firm 10 years as a traveler until sent to manage the Regina branch a year ago. He was a bright business man and very popular.

The Goderich Signal's Port Albert, Ont., correspondent writes: A good business chance. As Mr. Grinton is leaving the store at Port Albert there will be a good opening for some live man. What we need in Port Albert is a bakery in connection with a grocery store, and the place Mr. Grinton is leaving is especially suited for the purpose.

J. A. Munger, Chicago, superintendent of the premium department of the American Cereal Co., manufacturers of Quaker Oats, was in Toronto with his daughter during the last week of the Exhibition. He called at the office of The Canadian Grocer and expressed himself pleased with the great Fair. It was Miss Munger's first visit to Canada.

The Inland Revenue Department has issued a bulletin containing results of the analysis of samples of milk collected throughout the country, which are more unfavorable than the proportions recorded in former bulletins. Out of 319 samples 189 were pronounced genreal has 8 doubtful and 6 adulterated Toronto is shown to have the worst record, there being 11 doubtful and 7 adulterated out of 31 samples. Montreal has 7 doubtful and 6 adulterated samples out of a total of 29.

J. Russell-Murray, known in commercial circles in Montreal as a West India commission merchant, was, last Saturday afternoon, the victim of a painful shooting accident. Mr. Murray was spending a few holidays at Father Point, and Saturday afternoon went duck shooting. While lying on the ground waiting for a good shot, the gun he carried, in some unaccountable manner went off, the charge of buckshot entering his left foot. He was at once removed to Montreal and later to Dr. Springle's, where he is now undergoing treatment.

J. B. Ridge, the Hamilton grocer, had a narrow escape from being killed early Labor Day morning. Mr. Ridge was on an open street car and a lady got on and he offered her his seat, at the same time stepping out on to the inside running board. As he did so another open car approached from the opposite direction and he was struck and knocked off, being twirled around the rear of the car. Had he been at the centre of the car instead of near the end he would probably have been killed. As it was, he was rendered unconscious, but revived shortly afterwards. The ambulance removed him to the city hospital, where it was ascertained his injuries consisted of several cuts on the head.

IMPROVED APPLE BARREL.

Its Features— Growers' Centralization Scheme Approved.

"A great many apple exporters this year are using a new style barrel, which will do away, to a great extent, with the crushing of the fruit, which is now the bane of apple exporters." So spoke Mr. James Innes, of the cooperage firm, the Sutherland, Innes Co., probably the largest firm of its kind in the world, to a representative of The Grocer at the Windsor, in Montreal. "This barrel has eight hoops, two more than the barrel now generally used. You know that the present barrel when rolled, is rolled on its bilge, much to the damage of the apples inside. The new barrel will roll on the two extra hoops, which are placed in such a position as to insure the bilge of the barrel being three-eighths of an inch above the ground when the barrel is being rolled. The new barrel was demonstrated in Ottawa this Summer before several fruit growers and exporters, as well as some of the Government officials. All but one of those present were in favor of the new barrel being adopted, and this one was soon convinced. The Government, I have reason to believe, is contemplating the passing of a law next session, making it compulsory for exporters to use this style of barrel."

Speaking of this year's apple crop in Canada, Mr. Innes said that while it certainly was not as large as it was expected to be, yet it was large enough to meet the demands of trade. He thought that export trade this Fall would be good. Mr. Innes spoke of the "centralization scheme" adopted by the apple growers in Ontario, and expressed himself very strongly on the good points of the idea. All the growers in one district bring their apples to a central point, where they are graded and then packed, each barrel being marked according to the grade of apples contained therein, and then stamped with the association's stamp. Then they were exported. Exporters were, by this plan, able to guarantee their apples. When buyers on the other side were purchasing, they knew that any apples stamped by the Fruit Growers' Association were exactly as represented to be and felt safe in paying the price asked for the apples.

Mr. Sutherland of Liverpool, was also stopping at the Windsor. He said that the crop in England was very satisfactory this year. He also spoke of the growing favor with which Canadian apples were regarded in England.

Both gentlemen left for Toronto and the west the beginning of this week.

GROCERS NAME OFFICERS.

Montreal Association do Well With Their Picnic Nominations.

Last Thursday evening the Retail Grocers' Association, Montreal, held a meeting in their quarters, 270 St. Catherine street east. President Daoust presided.

Secretary Beaudry read the minutes of the last meeting, which were adopted. The report of the picnic held recently was then read. It was shown that there was a balance, over and above expenses, of $309.57. At the request of the president, the secretary spoke of what had been done at the meeting of the Retail merchants in Sherbrooke in July. At that convention some ten or twelve cities in the Province of Quebec had been represented, and matters of common interest were discussed. The collection of small debts through the Circuit Court, and the possible reduction of expenses involved through this mode of collection was one subject brought up.

Officers for the ensuing year were then nominated, following being the results:

President—J. A. Maynard and A. Laniel.

First vice-president—J. A. Dore, acclamation.

Second vice-president— Thos. Pleau and E. P. Guilmet.

Treasurer—H. Laniel and M. de Repentigny.

Secretary—A Sarazin, acclamation.

Auditors—P. Bruneau, Landreville, and Decarie.

The elections will take place at the next meeting, which will be held the first week (Thursday) in October.

There was some discussion of the business and water tax problem, and it was decided to appoint two committees to study the question and report to the association.

BROOM CORN.

Broom corn prices have been at the top notch for some time now, there being practically none on the market at present, and it will likely be some few weeks before the new crop will be ready to move. The United Factories, manufacturers of Boeckh's Standard Brooms, when seen by The Canadian Grocer representative in regard to market conditions stated that notwithstanding this unfavorable condition of the market, they had not only not increased but had actually reduced their prices, that being possible owing to their foresight in contracting for a very choice lot of corn recently, at considerably less than the prices being demanded to-day.

They predict that there will be no further reduction this year, as good quality corn will be firmer for some time to come, and they do not use or handle inferior grades which are discolored, brittle, and make very poor brooms.

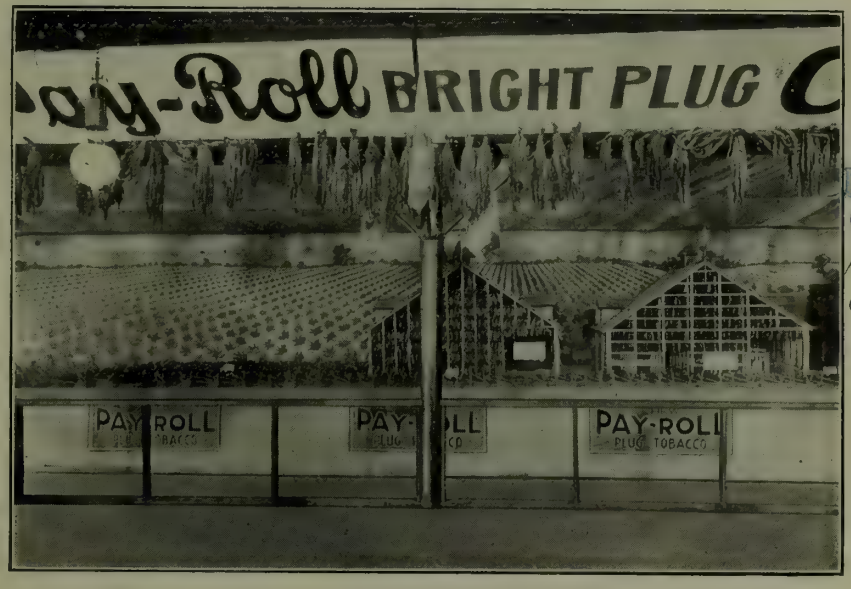
A fine sample of ripe strawberries, grown at the Brandon (Manitoba) Experimental Farm, was on exhibition in that city during the last week in August.

AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

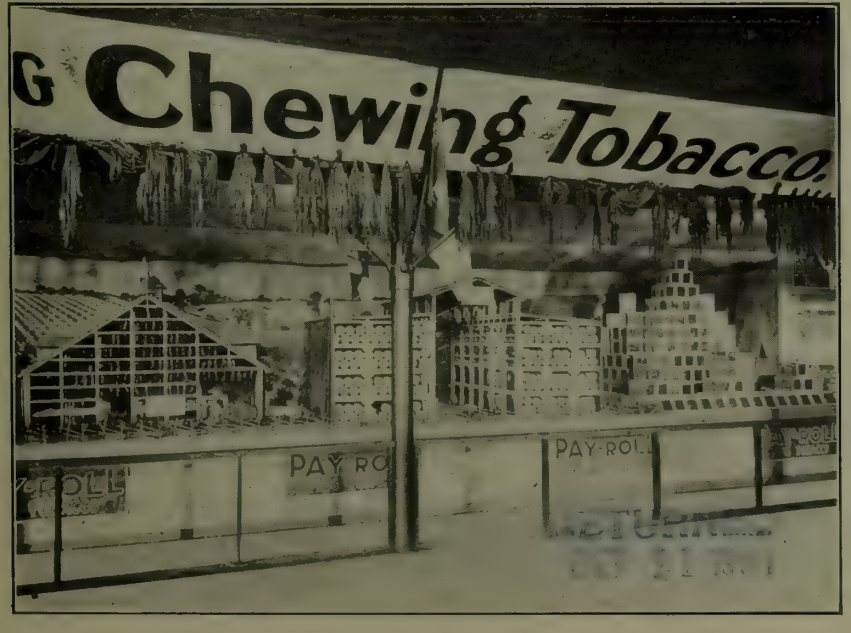
Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Pay Roll Tobacco—Section I.

Another Toronto Exhibition is passed and the institution is still more firmly established in the commercial and social life of Ontario. Anywhere from a quarter to half a million people gather there every year. For the retail merchant it is an opportunity for education in the art of display that too few sufficiently appreciate. But to every visitor it is a place to gather information about Canada, its scenery, its agriculture, horticulture, dairying, stock raising, and manufactures.

One of the most interesting features of the Fair were the displays of the three great railways. They would have been much more effective if they had been housed together in one building. The C.P.R. had one of its own for the display of western products truely wonderfully arranged. The Grand Trunk and Intercolonial displays were in the Natural History Building. The former was a very interesting picture gallery of large photographic views illustrating the scenery of the lake districts of central and Northern Ontario. The latter, and much the larger exhibit, showed the scenic hunting and fishing attractions of Eastern Canada from Montreal to Sidney, C.B.



Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Pay Roll Tobacco—Section II.



Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of Pay Roll Tobacco—Section III.

Model Tobacco Farm.

To the dealers in tobacco a particularly interesting exhibit in the industrial department is the Model Tobacco Farm. It is a representation, in a practical way, of the different processes to which tobacco should be subjected by the farmer before he sells his leaf to the manufacturer.

The right way of growing, harvesting, drying, curing and packing tobacco leaf is there shown on a large scale. By studying the different model buildings, and other parts of the exhibit, one can obtain an accurate idea of the proper methods of dealing with the crop, so as to get it into condition for the market.

This exhibit is particularly appropriate at the Toronto Exhibition, because it is in the Province of Ontario, especially in the Counties of Essex and Kent, that the culture of tobacco is most successful within the Dominion. The fact was mentioned in Parliament during last session. Early in the present year a special train of 31 cars, all laden with the fragrant leaf, was made up in St. Thomas, Ont. The weight of the tobacco contained in these cars reached the large total of 1,211,351 lbs., about 31,000 bales, all grown in Ontario. It is said that farmers in Ontario are raising crops which bring them in from five to ten thousand dollars annually.

The association is indebted to the manufacturers of "Pay Roll" plug chewing tobacco for this remarkable feature at this year's exhibition. The firm are themselves large users of Canadian leaf, and to their factories was consigned the record shipment referred to above. Not only was it a record in size, but experts stated that in quality it was the best ever grown in Ontario. To this fact may be attributed the increase in popularity of Pay Roll plug chewing tobacco.

The display was situated just opposite the space allotted to the Cobalt silver exhibit and crowds thronged the aisle between most of the busy hours of the exhibition, and it is doubtful if the clever and instructive exhibit of the Model Tobacco Farm did not attract more attention than the wealth of the Cobalt mines. To thousands of visitors the possibilities of the Essex and Kent tobacco fields were a revelation, which will remain associated with Pay Roll tobacco in their minds for many a long day.

St. Charles Condensing Co.

There is a great opening for the retail grocery trade to supply a want that is very keenly felt in some places all the time, and in all places some of the time —pure cream and milk. Very young children are the principal sufferers, because their food is almost entirely milk. But they are not the only sufferers, for milk is one of the food stuffs most susceptible of contamination by disease germs. This is largely why condensed milk and cream are coming into such general use in districts where ordinary fresh milk is easily available, and why the booth of the St. Charles Condensing Co. in the Manufacturers' Building was constantly besieged by fair visitors anxious to sample and learn about their evaporated cream and milk.

The gentleman in charge of the booth, speaking to the representative of The Canadian Grocer, said :

"St. Charles Evaporated Cream is prepared from the best milk obtainable, from selected dairies, scientifically fed under our strict supervision in the finest milk-producing sections (the famed Elgin, Ill., and Oxford County, Ontario, districts) in the world, particular pains being taken to see that all sanitary conditions are perfect. The utmost care is taken in every detail during its preparation, the result being absolute purity. The milk is reduced to the consistency of very rich cream by evaporation, and by the scientific application of heat we destroy all disease germs and those that cause milk to ferment, so that it will keep indefinitely.

"Physicians and nurses recommend it highly and we have quantities of testimonials regarding its merits from professional men and mothers. The results of analysis taken by prominent expert chemists show that St. Charles Cream when properly reduced with pure boiled water is almost identical in every respect with human milk.

"We devote fully as much attention to the manufacture of our cans as to any other department, using nothing but the finest tin plate and the most improved machinery for treating same, consequently our package is far preferable to glass jars."

Tobler's Chocolate.

In this candy-eating age of the world probably no confectionery is more widely known than Tobler's milk chocolate. It is one of the purest, most delicious, most healthful and most nutritious of sweet meats. As it is very generally handled by grocers everywhere a few facts about the makers will be of interest.

Tobler established his business in Berne, Switzer,and, in 1845. That is 61 years ago. The capital of the company is now 8,500,000 fr. They are the largest manufacturers in the world of exclusively eating chocolate. The factory is situated in the centre of the dairying district of Switzerland. They use eight thousand gallons of milk daily. They manufacture just three different lines—Swiss milk chocolate, hazel nut chocolate, an admixture of nuts and sugar chocolate, and vanilla chocolate, a plain sugar chocolate flavored. Each of them, of course, is put up in many different forms and packages.

Unlike most chocolates, Tobler's products are scarcely handled at all in the process of manufacture. Machinery has been devised to do practically all of it.

Canadian National Exhibition—Exhibit of The St. Charles Condensing Company.

The great plant is operated wholly by electricity.

The Swiss Government is very jealous of the dairy industry of the Republic. It sees to it that all cattle are kept in a thoroughly hygenic manner and strict supervision is maintained regarding the health of dairy cattle and the method of handling the milk. Tobler's chocolate gets the benefit of all that.

Just a word illustrative of the factory methods. McClure & Longley, Toronto, are the agents for America, and a little while ago Mr. Langley was taking a large order from a Boston merchant. Something was said about the cleanliness of the product, and the Bostonian replied: "I spent a week with the Toblers, and I wouldn't be afraid to eat anything made on the floor of their factory."

Canadian National Exhibition—Corner of Intercolonial Railway Exhibit.

The People's Railway.

The Intercolonial exhibit was in charge of A. H. Lindsay, a very capable Maritime newspaperman, now with the advertising department of the people's railway. He had, as last year, two rooms, one partly shown in the accompanying photograph, the other a grotto bark-lined with lighted water boxes containing an interesting array of living fish. The larger room was completely walled with bark, a fountain played in the centre and the walls were covered with large photographs of scenery and trophies of the gun and rod. One picture of unusual interest showed a salmon leaping a 14-foot waterfall on the Sevagle River, N.B. The snapshot was a triumph of skill and patience on the part of a Government fish inspector, who spoiled several dozen plates before securing the salmon actually on the leap. The salmon made the fall about once in every five attempts, the inspector reported.

Imparting Instruction.

Much instructive literature and advertising matter was given away by Mr. Lindsay and his assistants. All of it told of the attractions of Eastern Canada for the tourist, the hunter and the historian. Comparatively few Ontario people have traveled in the Maritime Provinces. Looking at the map that illuminates every folder, the primary reason is obvious. From Toronto to Sidney is just about four times the distance from Toronto to New York. Nevertheless the exhibit and the literature, finely printed and profusely illustrated, must defuse among the people of middle Canada a knowledge of the Atlantic seaboard and the great railway system owned and operated by the Dominion Government.

The deep red line on the maps from Montreal to Sidney shows a thousand miles of railway through a country that the world cannot surpass for picturesqueness. Some of the great forests of New Brunswick abound in game large and small. If some Ontario sportsmen would take their hunting holiday on the Intercolonial they would have the time of their lives. The tourist and hunting rates, too, are wonderfully cheap.

E. W. Gillett Co.

There was no dearth of artistic exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building, and a booth which comes under that heading alone failed in the purpose for which it was intended. More preferable would be a display designed entirely from a practical standpoint, and devoid of all features pleasing to the eye of the general public. It would at least have a certain distinction that would catch the attention of interested parties. The aspiration of every exhibitor who has studied the matter is to combine these artistic and concrete qualities. E. W. Gillett Company have come very near to attaining the point of perfection in this respect, with the result that their showing ranks high among the best in the building.

The accompanying illustration gives a much clearer idea of the arrangement than could possibly be written. There is no superfluous decoration—everything is an advertisement for Gillett's Lye, Magic Baking Powder, etc, made doubly effective by being well displayed, and the booth brilliantly illuminated.

A point strongly emphasized is the substitution of a red for a blue label on Magic Baking Powder. This is an important change, and the fact that it is being made is impressed upon visitors to the exhibition in many ways. The alternate rows of red and blue packages will be noticed on every hand in the booth. A large card bearing the words "Notice the change of label" calls attention to the dusky magician who presides at a table in the centre of the floor and has proved a big drawing card. He lifts a silk cap and exhibits a package of Magic Baking Powder bearing a blue label. The cap is lowered again, the magician waves his wand, and, presto! when he again removes the cap the red package appears. For a while, until the public become familiar with the change, Magic Baking Powder will be sent out in red-labelled cans, with a blue label wrapped around it, with a notification that the goods will hereafter be known by the red label.

The following is a complete list of E. W. Gillett Company's lines: Gillett's Perfumed Lye, Gillett's Washing Crystal, Gillett's Cream Tartar, Gillett's Caustic Soda, Royal Yeast Cakes, Magic Baking Soda, Magic Baking Powder, Imperial Baking Powder and Cream Yeast Cakes.

The Gillett factory building has a frontage of 80 feet by a depth of 300 feet, facing on three streets. On the fifth floor is located the baking powder room, with its large revolving mixer, taking a ton of material at a time, and also the paper box department, where in the neighborhood of 100,000 complete packages are turned out daily. On the fourth floor is the machinery for making Royal Yeast, including the machines, which each turn out 1,460 yeast cakes every minute. Drying rooms, with a capacity of over 15,000,000 yeast cakes, also take up part of the fourth floor. It has been calculated that at the lowest estimate possible each batch of yeast which the company turn out will make 2,600,000 loaves of bread, and from four to six batches are turned out per week the year round. A striking feature is the fine arrangement of every detail looking toward the careful and expeditious preparation of the goods.

REJECTING DRAFTS.

When a merchant away from a wholesale centre gets a notice that a wholesaler with whom he has an account will draw on him for a certain amount on a given date, what does he do? If he intends to and does accept the draft we're not concerned with what he does, but if there is a mistake in the amount or he wants longer time, or if for any reason he doesn't intend to accept the draft, what does he do? He should write at once and explain. Most retailers do, but some are too busy, that is, they think they are too busy; others intend to and forget. They know, of course, that accepted or not the draft costs the wholesaler fifteen cents to a quarter; but that of course isn't much for a wholesaler. But a wholesaler has many customers, and when a considerable number of them play him this trick, the cost, which is so much money tossed into the dust heap, mounts up, and most wholesalers are just as keen as the best retailers to minimize the cost of doing business. But in addition to the cost there is the annoyance. If the retailer knew how much trouble and ill feeling his thoughtlessness causes he would think hard enough to send the wholesaler word not to draw. Anything that will increase the aggregate good feeling in the country is worth while.

MANUFACTURERS AND PURE FOOD.

The National Association of Manufacturers of the United States have a committee on pure food. At the last annual meeting in May they presented a report which gives briefly the manufacturers' position in regard to this very important subject. That was before Congress passed the pure food law, but their views are interesting. They say in part:

"The question of pure food consists of three distinct parts, viz.: 1. Food adulteration; 2. Preservation of food; 3. Artificial coloring of food.

"As to adulteration, it must be admitted that the addition of substances other than those used for preservative purposes may in some instances be absolutely necessary. It is as yet an open question, however, where beneficial mixing ends and adulteration commences.

"The preservation of food is a still harder matter to legislate upon than the matter of adulteration, owing to the disagreement of very eminent authorities as to what should and what should not be allowed in the preservation of food. The fact must be borne in mind that it is utterly impossible for any manufacturer to put up certain articles of food for the trade without a preservative. Here then we have the most perplexing part of the whole question.

"The question of artificial coloring of food is an easier one. In the butter and cheese trade, for instance, artificial coloring has long been established. Highly colored goods find favor in some markets, uncolored or faintly colored goods in others. Interference with the customs of the trade in this respect is hardly necessary. Restrictions, however, are necessary where rank poisons are employed in the coloring process, as is the case in the preparation of certain candies, sauces, etc."

The committee asked for a commission to consider the subject, composed of "one physiological chemist, competent as to the testimony of chemists and the technical terms used in such testimony; one bacteriologist, competent as to the testimony regarding the quantitative employment of preservatives; one pathologist, competent as to the testimony on histological lines; one toxicologist, competent as to the testimony in regard to poisonous substances; one pharmacologist, competent as to the testimony in regard to the effect of drugs on man and beast; and two manufacturers of food articles, to safeguard the interests of an industry in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested."

GREAT BRITAIN'S BUTTER.

If an egg in the last stages of decay were broken in a small apartment a person depending solely upon a keen olefactory observation might in his haste declare that all hens were depraved. The London Times in an article on "Dairy Products" suggested by the revelations of the Parliamentary committee on butter, says:

As a matter of fact, this is largely a margarine-eating country, and figures given in statistics under the head of dairy products are decidedly misleading, because, through adulteration, butter and cheese form only a proportion of the article so scheduled. There is a comparatively limited market for the highest quality butter, but margarine and margarined butter, from their lower price, have claimed the majority of English consumers. In view of the fact that the country has learned to satisfy itself with sophisticated fats sold openly as margarine, or less openly as a mixture of butter and margarine, and with the deliberate intention of deception in cases where methods are employed with such scientific skill that analysts have to confess that a considerable quantity of foreign fats may be introduced without the possibility of their detecting them, it is difficult to see that the farmer errs in not materially adding to his cow stock. This country imports a vast quantity of 'stuffed' cheeses—that is, cheeses made from separated milk—the appearance of richness in cream being given by working into them cheap fats of the margarine type. Lard is not a dairy product, but it comes into competition with butter for cooking purposes, and imported lard is not free from margarine.

Now, according to the British Government returns butter importations have increased as follows, the record being in cwts.:

1900	3,378,516
1901	3,702,890
1902	3,974,933
1903	4,060,694
1904	4,241,905

Margarine, on the other hand, has little more than held its own:

1900	920,412
1901	962,127
1902	966,170
1903	882,123
1904	960,278

During the same period cheese margarine has almost disappeared from the record, diminishing from 12,132 cwt. to 1,997 cwt. Unless these figures are misleading the Times' conclusion was arrived at in haste. Undoubtedly the Parliamentary inquiry disclosed a great range of fraud; but was it in the aggregate quite as widespread as the Times pictures it?

Port Limon, Costa Rica, is the largest banana port in the world, the shipments being 10,000,000 bunches for the year ended June 30, 1906, and the value $4,000,000.

MAKING THE WINDOW TALK

Some Pointed Matter that is Easily Read—A Technical Demonstration in Foodstuffs—An Exhibition Fruit Window—The Height of Simplicity.

Make the window talk. Of course every window talks in proportion to the passer's capacity for observation, but a window can be made to talk in good English words. This is a feature of window display that is not neglected by the largest stores, and those with the most expensive and many would think the most attractive displays. For example, here is a card that kept company with the most expensive jewelry and the finest china in the window of a store the fittings of which cost $40,000 :

"Your presence is cordially invited to our handsome and well-equipped crystal room, which contains hundreds of high-class wedding gifts. We gladly give information to all inquirers, and there is no obligation to purchase because you wish to price. The crystal room is for your convenience. Articles are marked in plain and reasonable figures."

Any wideawake grocer could write far more interestingly than that about the things he has to eat. The old Greecian desire for some new thing, some new knowledge, some new fact, is just as keen to-day. Without giving away all he knew, why couldn't a grocer attract attention to his window and incidentally to his own fitness for his business, by telling the public something about foodstuffs.

Take an example. Suppose the grocer got a few cocoa beans and placed them in his window with this explanation : "These are cocoa (or cacao) beans. They are the raw material for chocolate and cocoa. They are about 50 per cent. oil. The countries from which the main supplies are drawn are, in the order of production, Ecuador, Saint Thomas, Brazil, Trinidad, Venezuela, San Domingo. All are American except St. Thomas, which is a Portuguese island off the coast of Africa. The annual production is about 280,000,000 lbs., and the United States is the largest consumer."

Wouldn't a lot of people stop to read that and go away with the impression that the grocer knew something and that it ought to be a pretty good place to buy foodstuffs.

Here are a few mottos, plainly printed, that illuminate an aggressive grocer's window, or did, yesterday morning :

"Tea for the million and the millionaire."

"We guarantee the quality of all the goods we handle."

"Only the best quality of hams and bacon and cooked meats sold here."

These are just samples; there were a lot more. But think over this matter of making the window talk.

EXTREME OF SIMPLICITY.

There is a custom bootmaker in New York, whose invariable rule it is to display in his two windows a single pair of shoes, one shoe having the entire space in each window. The "display," if it can be so designated, which virtually amounts to the single boot, never fails to catch the eye of the passer, no matter at what pace he may be going, for the boot is a triumph of the maker's art. That lone shoe usurping a commodious window and standing out in solitary glory for the obvious purpose of being looked at, not only takes on dignity and a certain air of distinction, but more than that, never fails to leave a clear-cut impression on the mind.

This is undoubtedly going to extremes and would be avoided by the up-to-date trimmer because window space is valuable and it is the trimmer's duty and mission to make advantageous use of it, to fill it artistically, to make it a paying asset, says Men's Wear. The instance above cited is, nevertheless, illustrative of the good effect to be gained by an avoidance of "packing." The eye cannot see or the mind grasp a multitude of small objects. The general idea gained where many objects appear is only one jumble and confusion.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE WINDOW.

Such a fruit and vegetable window as this is perhaps not possible for any but a store handling a very large business. But doesn't it look good? Gibbons Bros., 742 Queen street east, Toronto, give a lot of attention to their windows, make a specialty of it, in fact, and they were good enough to dress a window with fruit and vegetables at the request of The Canadian Grocer. Good as it looks, the photograph does not do it justice. The shadows veil the top of it and the reflections are confusing. These, however, are photographic difficulties that are hard to overcome.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—

Sugar—Advanced 10c.
Fish—Revised.
Honey—Advanced.
Maple Products—Advanced.

Montreal, Sept. 12, 1906.

All grocery lines are firm at present with an upward tendency. Business passing is reported as being very satisfactory; it is said that Fall trade is beginning to boom in all articles demanded by the grocery trade. The feature of the market this week is the advance of 10c. which has taken place in sugar. The higher prices do not come upon the trade unexpectedly. An advance was mentioned as probable in The Grocer last week. Prices on tomatoes and corn are expected to be out this week. There is considerable speculation as to what figures will be asked. Rumor says that tomatoes will be anywhere between $1 and $1.10, while corn, according to the prophets, will be sold at 90c. To what extent these ngures may prove true remains to be seen. Trade in canned goods generally is fair. Syrups are beginning to sell owing to the cooler weather. In tea the point of interest this week is the closure of the Japan market. Activity in that market is just about over. Buyers are purchasing small lots of Japans locally, now that they see there is hardly likely to be a drop in prices. China greens are moving out very well at present.

There has been no cessation in the advancing of prices in the dried fruit market. Raisins are away up and still going. It is said that the jobbers are laying in large stocks of California raisins, since Valencias are so high. Currants continue high. The first direct steamer from Greece is now on its way to this continent. There is some activity in spices, but there is nothing new in coffee. Honey and maple products are higher. The former article continues very scarce.

Collections are reported as being good.

CANNED GOODS — There is little change in the situation since last report. Montreal jobbers have not yet received price lists for corn and tomatoes, but the lists are expected this week. Rumors are flying about as usual. One which is current is that tomatoes are destined to open at $1.10 and corn at 90c. This, however, is certainly only a rumor, and while the new prices may be near these figures they are just as likely to be much lower. Salmon are selling very well, mostly old stock being delivered. Orders for the old stock are taken at lower prices than for new. Last year's salmon is rapidly becoming cleaned up. Very little is being done in corn and tomatoes, merchants evidently preferring to await the new prices, buying, consequently, only for actual wants.

SUGAR — According to expectations, and as predicted in The Grocer last week, higher prices are now demanded for sugar. There has been a general advance of 10c. The state of the raw market, which is higher, and the existing conditions in American markets, may be held responsible for the advance. Business is reported as being fairly good.

TEA—Reports from Japan say that the market there is practically closed. Very little of interest is taking place at present, the season being to all intents and purposes over. Locally there is nothing new in Japans unless it be the fact that buyers are coming forward better now that they begin to realize that there is no likelihood of a drop in prices. Japan tea is hard to get at the moment, although it is said that there are some lots in transit. China greens are selling a little more freely at advanced prices, prices which are a little higher because of the high figures asked for Japans, low grades. Congo teas are dear, and in good demand where sold. Few lots are sold in Canada, however, although there are some houses doing a little in this line. Japan siftings are quoted 8¼c. to 9c., and 10c. to 13c. is asked for Japan fannings, laid down in Montreal.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—The general upward tendency in this market continues a feature worthy of note. Currants continue very stiff. Last week, it will be remembered, there was an advance of one shilling; this week prices have been put up sixpence. Buyers are not coming forward very eagerly, according to dealers, but it is probable that if they do not buy pretty soon they will have to pay even higher prices than are now asked. The first direct steamer with a cargo of currents is reported having sailed from Patras, September 8. The portion of the cargo destined for Canada is very small. It is expected that the second and last direct steamer will clear Patras about the 25th of this month. No doubt buyers will place more or less for shipment by this boat. At the present moment they are buying only for immediate use, and are taking the risk of losing a chance to have their orders delivered by direct steamer, at a reduction of about ½c., which would have to be spent for currants arriving via Liverpool or other port. Sultana raisins are also high, being up two to three shillings. Cable advices received from Malaga under date of September 8, report damage to the crop as being 50 per cent. It is easy to imagine the effect of such news on prices. California raisins are also advancing. Some wholesalers say they will have to use California raisins in place of Valencias this season, because of the high price demanded for the latter. Tarragona almonds continue to advance. Reports received relative to walnuts say that the crop is being damaged by the very warm weather: in many cases the nuts are reported dropping off the trees.

Brazils are dear. The crop in Brazil is just about exhausted, and the market has been advanced. These nuts now cost the grocer 16c. to 16½c.

SPICES—For all lines there is a very fair demand, which will probably be increased shortly on account of the steadily advancing prices. With the coming of the Fall trade more spices will be required, and grocers will buy before prices get too high if they are wise. Peppers are advancing, while cloves, being in small supply, are also upwards inclined. Nutmegs are about steady, while gingers are firmer.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 13, 1906.

Business continues in fair volume, with no lines moving specially, and the absorbing features of the present market are sugar and dried fruits. The advance in sugar was not unexpected, but most wholesalers here feel surer of a further advance than they did of this one. The market is very firm. Dried fruits are a problem, especially for the wholesaler. All markets appear to be climbing. General crop shortages are everywhere the cause except in the case of California prunes, and there it is demand to make up crop shortage in Europe. Paper bags have advanced, but in that commodity it is a question of discounts.

CANNED GOODS—Dealers are waiting for prices on corn and tomatoes, which are expected this week. Plums are very scarce. Lombard 2's, light syrup, are now quoted from $1 to $1.25, and the list has advanced on that ratio throughout. The usual quotations are omitted this week.

SUGAR—The market tone is very firm and a further advance of ten cents before this writing goes to press would not surprise the trade here. The advance which it was stated last week was thought by some to be imminent, came on Tuesday, and on Wednesday New York advanced another ten cents. The same day beet advanced a farthing in Europe to 9s. 8½d, and Wednesday's cables quoted a farthing more.

The New York Journal of Commerce, Sept. 1, the day before the advance, said:

"While quotations (for raws) are largely nominal in view of the apathy shown by both buyers and sellers, the tone of the market is decidedly firm and Cuba is said to be pretty well cleaned up with Europe as a buyer. Quotations, however, are left unchanged upon the basis of 4c. for 96 deg. test Cuba centrifugals duty paid New York.

"The market for refined sugar is particularly firm, and the impression prevailed yesterday that prices would be advanced to-day in view of the steady consumption and heavy withdrawals, added to the strong position of the raw market. All refiners with the possible exception of the Federal are considerably oversold and are proportionately behind in shipments, so that considered from every point the situation leads one to look for higher prices."

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, Sept. 13, 1906.

BUTTER—Market rather dull. No change in prices.

CHEESE—Prices about steady. Little change in market.

EGGS—Situation remains unchanged.

PROVISIONS—Market steady. Smoked meats in good demand. Dressed hogs selling $9.75 per 100 lbs.

Willett & Gray at the close of last week stated:

"The supply of sugars remaining unsold of the Cuba crop has now reached a point so small that the offerings for sale have nearly ceased, creating a very dull and lifeless market for raw sugars. At the same time these conditions naturally produce a steady, firm tone to the market, which is held up also by the continued upward tendency of the European beet sugar markets, caused especially at the moment by the outlook in Cuba, which, owing to the insurrection, throws some doubt on to the coming crop of sugar.

"As a matter of fact, it is entirely too early to borrow trouble over the next Cuba crop.

"The insurrection may be nipped in the bud at any time, and for several months the cane fields are safe from burnings, which are the only dangers of important effect.

"Preliminary estimates of the European beet crops are beginning to be made, but will not prove of especial value until a few weeks later. As far as now appears the statistical position of sugar taken altogether is favorable to steady firm markets at home and abroad with a further gradual improvement in values.

"Our Java cable reports shipments to Europe and the United States of 61,000 tons by steam and 3,000 tons by sail, practically all of which has United States options. The East took 114,000 tons, making the total shipments for the month of August 178,000 tons, against 205,000 tons last year, and for the campaign thus far 369,000 tons, against 538,080 tons last year.

"Visible Supply—Total stock of Europe and America, 1,866,434 tons, against 1,404,028 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 462,406 tons, against an increase of 523,167 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together, show a visible supply of 2,106,434 tons, against 1,784,028 tons last year, or an increase of 322,406 tons."

TEA—The market has advanced somewhat, especially for choice grades, but commoner teas also are slightly higher.

Thompson's tea circular, commenting on the effect of the reduction of the duty in Great Britain 1d a pound, says: "As it is now more than three months since the duty was reduced, some idea of its effect may be gauged from the tendency of prices during that period. As was expected, the basis of values has undergone no change, though there has been a further widening of the range, consequent on the ever increasing taste for good tea on the part of the public."

The use of Indian and Ceylon tea in North America, says Gow, Wilson & Stanton, London, appears to be expanding, the quantity taken during the first six months of this year showing a large increase over the corresponding period of any previous year.

COFFEE—The market in New York is quiet after some spirited advances late last week.

"The talk in the trade in reference to coffee valorization," says the Journal of Commerce of Sept. 11, "is skeptical concerning the immediate closing of negotiations while at the same time it is generally believed that the scheme will be put through in some shape. Local coffee people seem to believe that the matter will be held in abeyance until November, when the new Congress convenes, and that new propositions will then be made with the final result of a modified scheme. If this line of thought is correct it will mean that valorization in some form or other will not be an accomplished fact for at least two or three months. At the same time it must be said that friends of valorization are as firm as ever in their expressed belief that the present law will soon be in working force and of course some definite news may be received at any time concerning the negotiations for the loan."

DRIED FRUITS—The situation is unique. Prices are abnormal and going higher. Sultana raisins have advanced 20s. within a month, about 5c. a lb. Considerable sales were made here before the opening of the market by speculative sellers on a basis about 20s. below the present market price. The tendency in the primary market at present is towards higher prices, and if shippers make good their contracts they will do so at a heavy loss to themselves. Meanwhile the high prices have completely stopped business here. Buyers are waiting the result on the orders already placed.

Valencia raisins are about 50 per cent. higher than at the same time last year, with apparently no prospect of a decline.

Currants have advanced about 4s. per cwt., or about 1c. a lb., within a few weeks. Importing brokers find it difficult to get any offers, as owing to the great damage to the crop, the extent of which has not been fully ascertained, shippers are very busy trying to get fruit to orders already in hand, and are not seeking new business. Prices are about 50 per cent. higher than last year.

Prices of raisins are being determined by short crops in all producing countries and a very good demand all over the world. The price of currants is not based upon a short supply, as they have a very good crop indeed, and under normal conditions we should have very reasonable prices. The situation in Greece is, therefore, not controlled by supplies, but by the action of the Currant Company, coupled with outside manipulation of the comparatively small quantity available for export, and the situation is such that no one can give a well-founded opinion as to whether the price is likely to advance still further or decline, and the more conservative decline to commit themselves to any opinion on the future of the market beyond stating that the immediate tendency is towards higher prices.

APPRECIATED IN THE WEST

H. G. Harris, proprietor of "The Advertiser," Kentville, N. S., writes to the MacLean Publishing Company "I wish to compliment you on your fine August 24th number of THE CANADIAN GROCER, which has reached me. It is a very interesting number to all us delegates who attended the Maritime Board of Trade at Amherst. I need not wish you success for you are working in the way that will bring it to your various publications."

On California raisins advances have taken place in the last week in San Francisco, and it is difficult to get confirmation of orders owing to the very great demand resulting from the knowledge of the conditions in Europe and from a growing conviction on the part of buyers that the California crop, which was at first estimated to be between 80 and 100 million lbs., is not over 50 million lbs., and will be inadequate on the present basis of prices to supply the market demand.

California prunes have advanced about ½c. at the coast, and are difficult to buy before November shipment.

Locally prices for both currants and raisins are advancing and supplies are very short.

NUTS—In foreign nuts generally there is nothing new to report beyond a little higher level on the primary market for Tarragona almonds and walnuts and the settled conviction that prices for fruit required for the Christmas trade are not likely to be at lower prices than those ruling to-day. Consequently buyers are supplying their wants rather freely.

At the present time the dealers in many parts of the west are considering the plan of shutting off all credit from November to April. In response to a letter of inquiry, W. G. McLaren, of Souris, Man., writes The Canadian Grocer as follows on the subject:

"Souris, Man., Sept. 1, 1906.

"Editor Canadian Grocer,

"Winnipeg, Man.

"Dear Sir: Yours to hand re credit system and in reply would say that the merchants in Souris discussed last year the proposal to shut off all credit from November to April. We finally decided that we would not shut it off entirely but advised that it be curtailed as much as possible. This has been done fairly well, I think. We also agreed that when a customer was slow in paying his accounts we would hand his name to the secretary of the local board, in order that all might know the circumstances and this slow pay customer could not go from place to place for credit but would have to make arrangements with the merchants who had been supplying him. In this way we have fewer bad accounts.

"As a merchant of 18 years experience in Manitoba, I strongly advise dealers to form their local boards in each town and village to curtail this kind of credit. Of course there are many other matters with which local boards may deal and which it is not necessary for me to outline here. The best result of the organization of these boards is the better feeling among the merchants.

"To give a candid opinion, I believe it would be almost impossible to shut off credit completely from November to April. You cannot very well refuse goods to a customer who can pay in a week or two, and yet you would have to do so, if you made a hard and fast rule, in order to refuse it to the next who could not pay for two or three months.

"The credit evil is growing less and less each year and should continue to do so if crops are fair. Even in a hard year credit would not be very heavy as a large number of farmers have accounts to their credit in the bank.

"Yours truly,

"W. G. McLAREN."

* * *

Mr. McLaren lives in a well settled part of Manitoba where conditions are fast approximating those in the older parts of Canada. As the country grows older the evils of the credit system disappear and Souris merchants are to be congratulated on the prosperous condition of their section of the country. But in the newly settled sections of the Far West the dealers have their troubles with credit as they have to sell to newcomers who are entirely dependent on the crop of one year for the money with which to pay their bills. Such dealers should find it to their advantage to make a determined effort to shut off credit during the Winter, and this can be accomplished only by united effort.

In order to assist its members in dealing with this troublesome question of credits the association are issuing coupon credit books which are supplied on request at the actual cost of printing. The plan is this: When a customer wants credit the dealer sells him a coupon credit book for say $25, receiving from him his note promising to pay in three, four or five months from date with interest. In each coupon book there is a blank note to be filled out and signed. The advantage is that the debt is secured and the merchant has paper which he can offer to the banks as collateral if he wants to raise funds. Many dealers are using these books. Full particulars may be obtained by writing the secretary of the association.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, 1906.)

There are few quotable changes of importance this week, values holding steady in most lines. Business is very active, the turnover for last month being much larger than for the month of August in any previous year. Collections are also reported much better than at this time last year.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — New Valencia raisins will be very expensive this season. As yet the market is in a very unsettled state, and it is impossible to predict with any degree of accuracy what the opening prices will be. The indications are that muscatels will be cheaper and that much of the demand which is usually for Valencias will be diverted to the Muscatels. NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 11, 1906.

The volume of trade in the grocery business is good, and the outlook could not be more satisfactory. The farmers throughout the province have had a prosperous season so far, the fishermen are making good catches and obtaining splendid prices for their fish, and the prospects all round are bright. With regard to prices, the market is steady, no change of importance being recorded since last report. All dried fruits are very scarce on this market just at present. Valencia raisins are about cleaned up, and Californias are now quoted at 9c. here. Jobbers say there will be high prices asked for the new pack of salmon, as the pack is considerably under that of last year.

FRUIT—Apples are slow in coming on the market, and those now coming from Nova Scotia points are of the poorest quality, being for the most part windfalls. They sell all the way from $1 to $1.50 per barrel. No good Gravensteins have yet been marketed, but they are expected to be along shortly. Pears are very scarce, both Nova Scotian and American, and the price is high. Good fruit is selling at $7 per barrel. Plums are very scarce, being quoted at $4 per bushel. Last year they sold for $1.25 per bushel. Blackberries were a drug on the market this week and jobbers found it difficult to dispose of them at any price. Some sales were made at 5c. at the opening of the week.

EGGS—The egg problem in Halifax just at present is somewhat perplexing, and the commission men are at a loss to understand where all the fresh stock is going to. It is certainly not coming to Halifax. The receipts here are very small. Good stock is worth from 20c. to 22c., but it is hard to obtain. Prince Edward Island eggs are in fair supply, but they are not of as good quality as one might expect. It was predicted early in the season that there would be lots of eggs and poultry this season to supply the home market, but so far these predictions have not been borne out by facts.

BUTTER—The receipts of good butter are very small at present. The hot weather in the early part of the season dried up the after feed and dairymen are now feeling the effects of the drought. Cows are giving small allowances of milk and butter is scarce. The recent heavy rains are bringing along the after now, however, and dairymen are looking for better results.

BEEF—Beef is very scarce in some parts of Nova Scotia just now, and has been selling at eight and nine dollars per hundredweight. Halifax meat dealers are now buying up salable cattle throughout the Cornwallis Valley in preparation for the coming Dominion Exhibition, when beef will be in good demand.

The large vegetable and fruit evaporator at Port Williams, N.S., is about completed, as is also the vinegar factory, which is to be run in conjunction with the evaporator. Both of these industries will be of immense value in the Valley fruit growing country and should prove to be great successes financially.

TOMATO PACK UNCERTAIN.

Prices in a Fortnight— Weather the Determining Factor.

A meeting of the Canadian Canners, Limited, was held at the company's office in Hamilton Wednesday and it was thought the prices on corn and tomatoes might be announced. They were not, however, and inquiry elicited the information that they would probably be forthcoming in ten days or two weeks.

Nothing was vouchsafed regarding the probable pack of these two great canned goods staples. Tomatoes seem to be a problem. There appears to be a comparatively large acreage, but the pack is still in the making and the weather for the next week or two will have much to do in determining its size.

William Galbraith & Son, Montreal, are offering to the trade one hundred barrels of choice Labrador herrings. The lot is the first of the season, and the quality is particularly good.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

The cheese situation at present is a puzzle. The two opposing parties, the bears and the bulls, are each doing their utmost to make the British public come over to their ideas, and the result is a waiting attitude on the part of the British public, awaiting final developments.

It is not our part to support either side. We will give facts as nearly as they can be given and the review of the present situation is about as follows, viz: According to all conservative reports from the different British centres, there has been a larger natural consumption of cheese so far this year than previously on account of the canned meats scare. We have had a hot, dry Summer, not only in Canada and the United States but also in the United Kingdom, which has seriously affected the production of milk everywhere, and now, when the extent of the Fall make of cheese is to be considered for next Winter's requirements, we find in many sections dried up pastures, lack of water for the stock and very high prices for feed. We are told that the farmers, in spite of the higher prices obtained for their milk, are not getting nearly as good returns for their product as they did last year when prices were lower; in other words, the expensive extra feeding is not able to keep the flow of milk up on account of the climatic conditions.

Against this we find an actually increased production of cheese and high prices, which are generally supposed to check consumption. The increased production of cheese is due to a much decreased production of butter on account of ruling comparative prices of these two products of milk, but if our Fall make of cheese will now decrease as extensively, as is said in some sections it will, we see no reason why prices should not advance further to such a point that the consumption may be checked to make "both ends meet," as with a continued large consumption and a reduced production, we would have a serious shortage in supplies.

Receipts in Montreal were last week 71,562 boxes of cheese and 21,887 packages of butter, against 84,830 boxes of cheese and 26,622 packages of butter for the same week of last year, and since May 1, of 1,541,714 boxes of cheese and 464,197 packages of butter, as compared with 1,490,606 boxes of cheese and 562,202 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Our shipments were last week 85,026 boxes of cheese and 23,051 packages of butter, against 46,286 boxes of cheese and 20,178 packages of butter for the same week of last year, and since May 1, 1,434,510 boxes of cheese and 281,212 packages of butter, as compared with 1,294,260 boxes of cheese and 401,946 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

We have therefore an increase in receipts of cheese of 51,108 boxes and an increase in shipments of cheese of 140,250 boxes, which would naturally mean that we have 89,042 boxes of cheese less in stock in Montreal this year as compared with last year, or, correcting receipts, we might safely assert that our stocks of cheese in Montreal are fully 100,000 boxes less than at the same time last year.

In butter we find a decrease in receipts of 98,005 packages and a decrease in exports of 120,734 packages, which would leave us a surplus over last year's stock at this time of 22,729 packages.

But a falling off in receipts of butter of 98,005 packages against an increase in the receipts of cheese of only 51,108 boxes, means a serious loss in the production of milk. It takes over twice as much milk to produce a pound of butter as it does to make a pound of cheese.

Meanwhile there is still a demand for cheese from Great Britain, although it must be admitted that the market is rather quiet, which is, however, principally attributable to "bear" circulars, advising British buyers to go slow at present prices, which are called high and dangerous. Prices are undoubtedly high, but whether they are dangerous or whether they will still further advance is a question only to be solved in the future.

PROVISION SITUATION.

The provision situation is not greatly changed this week. Packers have been somewhat disappointed in receipts of hogs. There seem to be a fair number of hogs in the country, but they are not yet ready. The packers are paying this week $6.15 to $6.25 f.o.b. at country points; that is $6.65 to $6.75 weighed off cars at the factory.

The demand for smoked meat keeps up, and a falling off is not looked for until November. Stocks all over the country are reported by the packers to be small and no decided recession from the present high prices is looked for. The packers, however, feel that the limit in the matter of price has been about reached.

DAIRY EXHIBITION.

A Big Annual Dairy Exhibition in January or February is Projected for Toronto.

J. N. Paget, Canboro, representing the Western Dairymen's Association; H. Glendinning, Manilla, representing the Eastern Dairymen's Association; Wm. Stewart, Menie, and Alex. Hume, Menie, representing the Ayrshire breeders; A. C. Hallman, Breslau, and James Rettie, Norwich, representing the Holstein breeders, and a representative from the Jersey breeders, waited on the manager and board of control recently, asking for accommodation, and the matter is now under consideration. The deputation said that there was $100,000,000 annually represented in the business for which they spoke, and that Peterboro and Guelph wanted this exhibition.

The North Western Packing Co. has been incorporated in Winnipeg, under Manitoba charter, with $10,000,000 capital stock.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS — Lard is lower this week, but otherwise there is no change in the prices. Business is fairly good. Dealers say that there is a very fair jobbing trade passing in general lines, with no call for any one line in particular.

BUTTER—Butter this week is quiet. The last advance made in the country was not maintained, and as a result purchases have been made in the country at prices half a cent a pound lower than the previous week's figures. Demand from England has not been very large, but it is not expected that prices will decline much lower, since the home trade will soon begin to lay in Winter stock.

CHEESE — The market at present rules quiet, with business somewhat restricted on account of higher prices. Advices from England are all bearish in their nature, so that orders are none too plentiful. With the advent of the September make, however, prices are not expected to decline for the next three weeks. Shipments during the past two weeks have not been heavy, and stocks are accumulating in consequence.

BUTTER—The market is pretty firm and prices are stiffer than a week ago. While 24c. to 26c. is quoted for creamery prints, 25c. is about the price. For solids 22c. to 23c. is about the quotation, but some houses have wiped out the lower price. Dairy butter is especially scarce and choice prints are quoted a cent higher to 23c. Supplies come along freely but the demand is pretty heavy. If hot weather continues to dry up the pastures a decided advance is looked for.

WHALE MEAT.

An Increasing Industry on the St. Lawrence.

It is expected that in addition to the whale oil, bone, etc., at present shipped from the whaling station at Sechart, says a Quebec despatch, the Whaling Company will soon commence the shipment of whale meat. Small trial shipments were sent to Japan and elsewhere some time ago, and it has been developed that there is a market for the meat of the mammals. The steam whaling stations in the Gulf of St. Lawrence have for some time made a business of the preservation and exportation of whale meat; in addition to other whale products. For some time past the fishermen of Gaspe have been in the habit of salting down portions of the meat of the whale for their own use when short of other food, but now it is found that the article is eagerly consumed by some of the South American peoples and consequently it is becoming quite an article of commerce. Two species of whales are taken, the humped back and the sulphur bottom. They are so plentiful that there is no difficulty in killing and towing to the factory one a day, which is all that the present capacity of the factory can accommodate. Each whale is valued at about $2,000, so that the business is a very lucrative one. Formerly all the flesh went into guano, which is worth $30 to $35 a ton. Now, however, the prime meat is all salted down for food, and excellent eating it makes, too, for those who like it, many contending that it is superior to the coarser grades of beef salted in barrels, especially when used in stews and hashes, or served up as corned beef. China is said to offer an excellent market for the meat, but at present the initial company in the St. Lawrence, which is likely to be soon followed by several others, has a demand for all that it can ship to South America.

GREAT FAIR OF MIDDLE EAST

Splendid Exhibition at Sherbrooke, Que. —Expectation that Next Year it will be the Dominion Exhibition—Many American Visitors—Some Interesting Displays.

The annual Exhibition of the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association, held in the picturesque City of Sherbrooke, P.Q., has this year just closed its most successful event. To Canadians generally this Exhibition may not be as well known as the National Exhibition in Toronto, but to the Province of Quebec and Eastern Ontario the E.T.A.A. Fair is the most important event in the industrial and agricultural life of the community. From a purely local and Eastern Townships Fair it has developed through the activity, enterprise and public spirited ideas of its directors into an annual exhibit of such importance that it can lay claim to aspiring for the holding of the Dominion Exhibition in 1907, and efforts are now being made to induce the Government's decision to this end. Toronto, Winnipeg, and this year Halifax, had been selected, and it is meet and proper that the Province of Quebec should be honored with its turn at Sherbrooke in 1907.

Sherbrooke, Que., Exhibition—Display of "Bobs" Chewing Tobacco

Situated, as Sherbrooke is, in the very cradle of the agricultural and dairying district of Eastern Canada, with railway and hotel accommodation equal, if not superior, to any city of its size, large machine and iron works, woolen industries, and the centre of a large wholesale distributing trade, it is amply able to do justice to its claim to the Dominion Exhibition for 1907. From an advertising point of view of the resources of Canada, the Dominion New England farmers that patronized the fair "guessed" they would take a look over things out there. The propaganda of the C.P.R., with its splendid exhibit of the grains and farm products of the west, under the charge of Mr. Freer, was a most satisfactory one, while that of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, received a record attendance.

The display of manufactured articles was most extensive and comprehensive and in every department a great improvement was noted over previous Sherbrooke, Que., Exhibition—The Ozo Co. Exhibit.

Fair could hardly be located at a better point. The American State line is only about sixty miles distant, and the number of visitors to Canada's Great Eastern Fair runs into the thousands. From Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, New York, Massachusetts, and even "Little Rhody," come keen, up-to-date Americans, ever alive to see what Canada can show them. The inquiries this year at the booths of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. in the Main Building showed the interest that Americans are taking in the Great West, and many of the hardy year's shows. The live stock exhibit was the largest and best ever seen in the east, and the accommodation was severely taxed, although the management had provided for an increased display.. In the horses, and no Eastern Township man is worthy of discussion unless he owns a horse—a trotter or pacer, or can talk "horse"—there was a very fine display, and more accommodation will have to be provided next season. In poultry, swine and sheep a very large number of entries were noted, while in the dairy department, for which the Eastern Townships are noted the world over, a big exhibition was provided.

What the Great Eastern Fair lacked in our mind was a Process Building, where, as in Toronto, exhibitors can demonstrate in an educational way the manufacture of their products or show the practical operation of their machines and instruments, and this feature is also under consideration by the directors. If the Dominion Exhibition is selected for 1907 this feature will be an absolute necessity. In the Main Building, octagonal in shape, there were few food exhibits, nothing in the line of tea, coffee, starch, milk products, cocoas, etc., being noticed, and a grand advertising opportunity was lost this year by many a firm catering to the grocery and purveying trades.

Effective Exhibit at Sherbrooke.

The above is a photo reproduction of one of the most effective stands at the Eastern Exhibition at Sherbrooke, Que., which was held from September 1 to 8. The tasteful arrangement of the caddies of Bobs plug chewing tobacco received many favorable comments, and there was a great demand for free samples, which were lavishly distributed.

A cage of monkeys formed a unique and interesting feature at this exhibit. "Come on and see the monkeys" was heard on all sides as the people came into the building, and the vicinity of the Bobs stand was always crowded with an eager throng.

The manufacturers of Bobs plug chewing tobacco are continually devising new ways of attracting the attention of the public, and their exhibit at Sherbrooke was certainly most effective in this way.

To the people of the Eastern Townships—of which Sherbrooke is the capital—Bobs' has a particular interest, for the manufacture of this popular tobacco is one of the principal industries there. The factories are at Granby, and in the Townships this thriving town ranks next to Sherbrooke itself in importance. That Granby has attained this position is largely due to the growing trade in Bobs plug chewing tobacco. The exhibit at Sherbrooke is one instance of the way in which the public demand is stimulated.

The Ozo Co., Limited, Montreal.

The display that was a credit to not only the exhibitors but to Canadian industry and enterprise was that of the Ozo Co., Ltd., of Montreal, whose display of pure jams, pickles, catsups, sauces, fruit flavors, etc., in the Main Building was a revelation to visitors. The enterprise shown by the Ozo Co., Limited, in placing upon the market goods of a quality unequalled and unsurpassable from the standpoint of purity, cleanliness and design of package, is highly commendable. In the line of pickles a feature so interesting and desirable from the standpoint of the dealer and consumer alike, was the display of the new large sealing stone jars varying in size from 3 to 10 gallons. These jars are a guarantee to the purchaser of an always absolutely correct and perfect pickle and cleanliness in handling — no chance of exposure to air, light or dirt being possible. "Since the introduction of this jar to the trade," in the words of Mr. John Lefebvre, the company's representative in charge of the exhibit, Sherbrooke, Que., Exhibition—Comfort Soap Exhibit.

"we have been absolutely unable to fill our orders. It is a feature that has long been looked for and in this jar the dealer feels that, aside from the guarantee of perfection in the pickles themselves, he can always rely upon uniformity and cleanliness in filling consumers' demands. These jars are used solely for bulk goods and are superior to the old style wooden bucket from not only a sanitary point of view but the fact that the dealer is at no loss or expense whatever in keeping them properly filled and in good order, our company, who, by the way, retain control of the jars, attending to this."

In the line of jams and fruits the Ozo Co., Ltd., stand unique in Canada, as they are the only concern in this line of manufacture that have the services of an experienced English jam maker from one of the largest and best known firms in England. The Ozo Co., Ltd., pride themselves upon the fact that they are supplying the trade of Canada to-day with a line of jams and fruit preserves that leave no room for adverse criticism and the sale of which is bound to bring profit and trade to the dealer. Inquiries addressed to the Ozo Co., Ltd., Montreal, in reference to their patent sealing pickle jar, etc., will receive prompt attention.

Comfort Soap Exhibit.

Striking exhibits were a feature of the Main Building, but the display of the Comfort Soap Co. (Pugsley, Dingman & Co., Toronto) was one that is deserving of very special attention. This, too, not solely on account of the size of their booth, which covered three sections of one of the octagons of the Main Building, but also on account of the great display of premiums made, and the huge bar of Comfort soap which occupied a prominent position in the centre of the booth. That large crowds were the rule goes without saying, as the reputation of this household article is known far and wide, and many users honored the show with their presence and took a guess at the weight of the mammoth bar of soap. That the merchants of the Eastern Townships were interested in the display was evidenced by the number that called to express their congratulations to Mr. F. D. Cockburn, the Montreal representative of the company, who designed and was in charge of the exhibit, assisted by Mr. Fred E. Perry, representative in the Eastern Townships, and a staff of four young ladies. The confidence of the grocery and general store trade in Comfort soap was also shown by the placing of a considerable number of very satisfactory orders. As one merchant expressed himself to Mr. Cockburn in The Grocer's presence, "Soaps may come and soaps may go, but Comfort goes on forever," a parodied quotation of Tennyson's that brought a pleasant smile to the countenance of the Comfort soap representative. As an advertisement the effect of the exhibit on visitors, both merchants and consumers, was one of the best of the exhibition.

McAlpin Tobacco Co., Toronto.

An exhibit in the Main Building that drew to itself the attention of visitors was that of the McAlpin Tobacco Co., Toronto. To visiting merchants, and particularly grocers and tobacconists, Sherbrooke, Que. Exhibition—McAlpin Tobacco Co. Exhibit.

the display of the company's products was a guarantee that the public should know all about British Navy, Twin Navy, King's Navy, and U & I tobaccos. The quality of these well advertised and selling brands of tobaccos has become proverbial in the trade and the McAlpin Tobacco Co., recognized as it is as one of the oldest and most progressive makers of tobaccos in Canada, in this exhibit have demonstrated still further their up-to-date goods. In conversation with Mr. L. J. Warnecke, the Quebec Province representative of the company, who was in charge of the exhibit, The Grocer learned that the increase in sales of his company's tobaccos was phenomenal and demonstrates that the Canadian tobacco users appreciate to the fullest extent the superior qualities of the finest Kentucky and selected Canadian leaf used in the manufacture of McAlpin goods. Samples of British Navy chewing tobacco were distributed by the attendants at the booth. In this connection a bright idea in advertising was carried out by Mr. Warnecke in having seven young men dressed as typical British tars distributing samples of the British Navy chewing tobacco throughout the Main Building and fair grounds, and the parade of the company in their bright, clean uniforms was favorably and admiringly commented on by visitors. The McAlpin Tobacco Co. certainly deserve congratulations for their striking exhibit, and no doubt the advertisement will redound to good business in the Townships and province generally.

A PROGRESSIVE MERCHANT.

R. L. Corlett, of Williamsford, Ont., Takes Over a Cannington Business.

Richard L. Corlett, of Williamsford, Ont., who has just purchased from the executors the old-established business of the late Hugh Wilson, of Cannington, is the type of young Canadian who succeeds.

Twelve years ago, while a lad of 14, he had his initiation into mercantile life in the store of H. Hunt, at Dornoch, Ont., where he spent a year. Mr. Hunt was a subscriber to The Canadian Grocer, and the young clerk was a diligent student of its pages. "Indeed," observed Mr. Corlett to the editor of The Grocer, "I have been a constant reader of your paper ever since. Wherever I have worked The Grocer has been taken, and since I have been in business for myself I have been a subscriber."

After a year in Dornoch Mr. Corlett entered the employ of M. M. Hills, now of Attwood, but then at Williamsford, from whom he went to A. A. Parks, of Williamsford. The business of Mr. Parks seemed to about satisfy the young ambitions of the youth, for he continued in Mr. Parks' employ until five years ago, when, together with A. M. Ledingham, he bought out his employer and continued the business under the style of Ledingham & Corlett, Mr. Parks entering the firm of John McQuaker & Co., Owen Sound, as partner.

In the last five years business has thrived, largely, Mr. Corlett thinks, on account of their effective advertising.

Their business was conducted along general store lines, with dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes and millinery as the chief lines.

The firm made a novel use of their millinery department for advertising purposes. They held their opening shortly after the Fall fairs, imported an orchestra and made the occasion a district festival. Handsome badges were printed bearing the date of the opening and distributed at the Fall fairs. As a result all the young men and girls for miles around were at the opening, and the store was filled to the doors. Its fame spread and trade grew.

Credit was given, but judiciously. A system of monthly accounts was inaugurated. At first "perfectly good" people objected, but when they found the rule was general it was accepted cheerfully, much to the good of the business.

In taking over the Hugh Wilson business in Cannington, Mr. Corlett will retire from the Williamsford business, and he is confident of success. As compared with opportunities in the west, he believes that, run on progressive lines, a business in Ontario can be made to pay well, and if not so lucrative as in the west much safer, while the advantages of the older province for living are not at all inconsiderable.

RICHARD L. CORLETT, Cannington, Ont.

The store in Cannington is being renovated, new double shelving put in, a new office built, and a spick and span new stock of groceries and boots and shoes will be shortly ordered.

LITTLE JOHNNY HUCKSTER.

(A Fairy Story)

Now the ways of Little Johnny Huckster and the things that he does and the way that he does them are quite as queer as the stories you may have heard of Br'er Rabbit, therefore, listen my children, while I tell you some of his tricks.

Once upon a time Little Johnny Huckster decided that he was not divorcing the dear public from as many shekels as he desired, so he cast about for some way to loosen the purse strings, and cause them to pass forth the coin gladly and joyously. He thought so long and so hard that he even forgot to shave himself, for as much as a week. At the end of that time as he caught sight of himself in the glass, he gave a loud whoop of joy and exclaimed, "Lo, I have found it." Whoever heard of a "country jay" who knew enough to get ahead of his city cousin? Go to, I also will be a "simple and honest countryman."

So he hied himself unto the second-hand store and bought a dark shirt and a pair of broken down overalls. He then took his load of truck, let down one side of his overalls, tucked a big wad of tobacco in his mouth, let his whiskers meander over his breast and started out in his little farm wagon, a "poor, but honest" farmer. "Yes, ma'am," says he, "me and my wife we raised this here garden sass by honest toil, and the sweat of our brows, and we thought we could sell it to you good people, because we knew you wouldn't take no advantage of us like them there grocerymen do!" Then said the guileless housekeeper: "Go to, when did a country jay ever have a chance beside his city cousin? Let us now go forth and buy our produce of this farmer. We can do him up while he thinks we are doing him good. We shall also get ahead of the groceryman and benefit our own pockets." So the "poor, but honest," etc., sold all his "garden sass" for spot cash, and the guileless housekeeper got short change and short measure, but they did not know or care, for they had "helped out" a poor countryman.

They had likewise gotten ahead of their groceryman, so they went in to supper, feeling very virtuous, and as if they had done unto others as they were done.

Did Mr. Grocer get onto Johnny Huckster's little game? Nay and likewise nit. He was back at his desk, trying to figure out how much the guileless housekeeper really owed him. — I. C. U. in Grocer and Butcher.

GREEK CURRANT TRADE EXCITED

A private letter from Patras, Greece, says that the trade there is in quite an open state of excitement over the action of the Chartered Company in openly selling currants, which under the law were destined to be used for wine and distilling purposes only. These sales are made to the foreign markets through two prominent shippers, who are now being ostracized by other members of the trade. The Board of Trade of Patras has deposed from his official position in that body the head of one of these firms and is taking immediate steps to induce the Government to put a stop to the alleged fraud that is being perpetrated by the Chartered Company.

THE STRENGTH OF VINEGAR.

The mean acetic acid content of 242 samples of vinegar examined by the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department, Canada, was 5.66 per cent., although the range was considerable. Samples containing less than 3 per cent. of acetic acid are objectionable as being too weak, while those that contained more than 8 per cent. are fortified by the addition of acetic acid and therefore factitious. The question of possible metallic impurities studied, it was found that 12 of the samples examined contained traces of lead and 2 traces of zinc.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Northwestern Wheat Crop Estimate—Oats are Higher—Cereal Demand Picking up at Home and Abroad—Flour Improving.

Last year's crop of wheat in the west has been placed by the Winnipeg Free Press upon a very careful estimate at 84,506,855 bushels. The Government estimate last Fall after all threshing returns were in was 84,175,226 bushels. The average price received was 63c., aggregating for the 175,000 farmers of the west $53,300,065. Eighty per cent. of the crop graded No. 2 northern and better. It was a banner year, both as to quality and quantity. The crop of oats was 75,000,000 bushels. Most of the barley was fed on the farm.

What this year's crop will be is still a matter of estimate. There has been no check to the harvesting. Already a good deal of grain is moving, but the market can scarcely be said to be fairly under way. Oats were quoted in Chicago on Tuesday as high as 43½c. and Canadian manufacturers look for an advance here. In view of the price in the States, they say, there will be a demand for all Canada can spare.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GRAIN—The grain trade continues quiet here. Last year's crop of western is all gone and No. 1 hard is again listed. Oats seem to be moving higher. Very little Ontario wheat is coming to market. It is thought that the scarcity of labor is responsible for the retarded movement, farmers being too busy with the Fall work to haul wheat.

WANT CANADIAN WHEAT.

That Going via American Ports Said to be Doctored.

"Canadian wheat is very much sought after by millers in the north of England," writes J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Hull, Eng., "and I am of the opinion that Canadian exporters do not realize the immense possibilities of the north England ports in this regard. Exceedingly large flour mills are located at Hull, Grimsby and York, and one firm of importers at Hull last year imported over eight million bushels; one of the mills above referred to buys in the neighborhood of 50,000 bushels of wheat per week. Firms similar to these should make most valuable customers, not only to individual Canadian firms, but to the Dominion itself. The principal drawback is the want of direct transportation from Canada to Hull, and for that reason, the principal wheats brought into Hull are from Argentine, India and the Black Sea ports.

"I have met with many complaints that Canadian wheat, or so-called Canadian wheat, shipped from New York to Hull, appears to be 'doctored,' and for that reason the Hull importers will only buy on sample.

"One large merchant at present interested in importing wheat from South Russia, makes the statement:

" 'Canadian wheat does not come up to the quality it is stated to be when it arrives in this port, and, therefore, causes dissatisfaction to the buyer. This could be prevented if we could have our Canadian wheat shipped direct from Canadian ports.'

"The latest available statistics show that the imports of wheat into Hull since January 1, 1906, to June 30, 1906, were a little over twelve million bushels."

RUBBER FROM WHEAT.

Artificial rubber was foretold at a recent meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. It has come, and an English syndicate has offered the inventor $1,000,000 for his rights. It is made from cereals. It is obtained by treating any cereal with phyalin, which acts in solution as a ferment, turning the strachy matter in the grain to destrose. Another chemical is used to check the process of fermentation at any stage, making it possible to produce the artificial rubber of different grades suitable for anything from waterproofing to golf balls.

Asked if the use of wheat for rubber would advance the price of bread, the inventor replied: "There is no danger. The new linoleum will be a new reserve food supply. In the event of a famine it can be boiled and reconverted into food."

CEREAL NOTES.

The Calgary Milling Co. have completed the largest shipment of flour ever sent from there to the Orient—10,000 sacks for China and 1,000 sacks for Japan.

Alexander McLean, Canada's commercial agent in Japan, writes to the Trade and Commerce Department, stating that the wheat crop in Japan is about 98,000,000 bushels, or 15 per cent. more than the yearly average.

A movement is afoot at Port Arthur, Ont., to establish an oatmeal mill there with a capacity of 75 to 100 barrels a day. Mr. Wedell, who for 10 or 12 years has been in the oatmeal milling at Elora, Ont., is behind the scheme. He is compelled to abandon Elora because of the difficulty of getting oats there.

One of the most notable improvements in the fare on battleships is in the character of the bread served. Nearly every modern vessel is equipped with a baking outfit, and the men receive fresh bread daily instead of ship's biscuits, or hardtack, of former days, which was so hard it was almost necessary to use a hammer to break it up. In this connection it is interesting to note that the sailor's dietary formerly consisted almost entirely of pork and biscuit, relieved sometimes by a floury mess nicknamed "duff," and an occasional issue of dried fruit.

TRISCUIT TRUTHS

TRISCUIT is shredded whole wheat, made the same as Shredded Wheat Biscuit--except that it is compressed into a wafer and baked by electricity.

TRISCUIT is not a " breakfast food." It is a substitute for white flour bread and is used as a TOAST with butter, cheese or marmalades.

TRISCUIT is an ideal food for flat-dwellers, light house keepers, campers, for picnics, for excursions on land or on sea. The best of all wafers for chafing dish ookery.

TRISCUIT should always be heated in an oven before serving. It is made by The Canadian Shredded Wheat Company at Niagara Falls, Ont., makers of shredded wheat products. The TRISCUIT booklet is sent free.

CANADIAN WILL BOOM.

Canned Meats Situation in England—Cheese a Favorite.

P. B. MacNamara, Canadian commercial agent at Manchester, Eng., writes: "The onslaught made by the English press on American canned meat has had a reactionary effect upon canned meats from all countries, and to some extent on canned fruit and vegetables. The consumption has fallen off almost entirely in the case of meats, and the stocks of same held by the merchants prior to the disclosures, are still in store awaiting more favorable times. This district, representing as it does a very large population employed in mills, offers a very fair index of the effect on the use of canned meats, and regrettably so to the dealers.

"Cheese is now more extensively used by the mill workers, and probably will be until the cold weather induces them to resort to foods with greater caloric properties. Fortunately the public memory is not long lived, and the revulsion that now possesses it in this matter, caused by a much exaggerated recital of conditions, will pass away.

"One of the large Chicago packing firms is now advertising extensively in the English press, that its food products are eminently wholesome, and that their cleanly mode of packing was never questioned, in order to offset the very strong prejudices at present existing. It has been suggested that canned meat packages should bear the date at which packed, but the adoption of that would, it is said, seriously interfere with the sale, and is strongly condemned by all the large dealers here. The use of these foods cannot be forced at the present time, the warm weather adding its weight as against their use, but when the cold weather sets in, Canadian canned meats will experience a boom, as there is an abiding faith in its superior quality, in the minds of the great consuming public of this Manchester district."

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Peaches a Heavy Crop in the Niagara District—Grape Crop Also Heavy—Fish Business Retarded by Hot Weather.

Peaches are now the feature of the fruit business. Reports from the Niagara district indicate a heavy crop of fruit of fine quality and none of the peach-growing districts indicate a shortage. The grape crop also promises to be heavy. Lemons, because of their scarcity, and high price, continue a feature and the September hot spell accentuates the situation.

The vegetable market offers nothing unusual for comment. No shortages are reported and business everywhere is heavy.

The fish business is retarded by the hot weather. Dealers regard this as the opening of the season, but unless the weather changes it is likely to be slow. An expert on the upper lakes says the fishes have taken to deep water and are staying there and he prays for a blow to stir things up and improve the fishing.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Business is fairly good at present, although demand is not particularly strong for general lines. Grapes are arriving in good quantities, but as it is yet a little early for them, trade is not brisk. Next week, however, dealers expect some good orders. Peaches and plums, owing to the short crop, are high in price. Small arrivals also affect the prices. Pears are selling very well, while oranges are in good request. Lemons continue a feature in the market, excellent trade being reported. Apples are beginning to come in quite freely. Crabs are offered at 40c. to 50c. a basket.

VEGETABLES—Vegetables continue in very good demand. Prices during the week have been very well maintained. Potatoes are strong at prices quoted. Receipts are not by any means heavy. No car lots yet offered, and the market is in consequence at the mercy of farmers, who will not sell unless they get their own price. Consequently they can do almost as they wish with the market, and they generally get a good margin over the ruling price. Cabbage is selling very well, while there is a fairly good demand for tomatoes. Stocks of the latter are not large and arrivals are small. The price has an advancing tendency. Carrots and cucumbers are rather slow. Lettuce is in good request, but stocks are low. New potatoes are quoted this week.

FISH—Business continues to improve with the coming of cooler weather, dealers reporting favorably on the size of orders being received. There are few changes in the price list this week, lake trout and Gaspe salmon being practically the only lines changed. The former is ½c. lower, while the salmon is 1c. higher. New kippered herring are quoted this week, the price asked being $1.25 a box. Haddock are in good supply, but steak cod are scarce. Halibut continues to arrive in good quantities. It is still a little too early for dore and pike, but some fine fresh stock is expected next week. At present dealers are offering chilled stock in place of the fresh. Considerable trade is passing in skinless cod and Labrador salmon, prices asked being quite reasonable.

TORONTO MARKETS.

The fruit business continues heavy. Peaches and grapes are expected large crops. Peaches are coming in in considerable quantities and some splendid samples arrive every day. On account of the shortage of small fruit earlier in the season the demand is expected to be very heavy. The lemon market is still very high, from $8 to $9.50 a box. The demand for oranges is a little bit off at present and business in that line is slow. Canadian plums are scarce and bring from 75c. to $1.

thousand cases, and the remaining two hundred and thirty thousand cases will be from the numerous cannery points along the northern British Columbia coast. This is about a third the pack of last year, about two hundred and twenty-six thousand cases less than the pack of 1902, the corresponding season in the four-year cycle.

"The demand is good in Canada, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. Since the introduction of preferential treatment between Canada and New Zealand shipments of salmon to the latter country have increased quite measurably. The sales in all these markets have been good this year.

"There are probably between a hundred and ten and a hundred and twenty thousand cases of half-pound flats unsold on the Skeena and Fraser Rivers, but there are not to exceed twenty thousand cases of pound flats unsold."

APPLE MARKET.

P. B. MacNamara, Canadian commercial agent at Manchester, says of the apple market in Great Britain:

"The reports from Holland, Belgium and Germany all indicate the crops to be good average. The total imports from the United States and Canada into the United Kingdom during the past season were 1,877,000 barrels, as compared with 2,140,000 barrels in the previous season, and 3,053,000 in 1903-4, and 2,330,000 in 1902-3. The supplies after the holidays were rather meagre, the bulk being from Canada, and the demand excellent and well maintained, and very satisfactory prices were realized. As regards the prospects for the coming season, it is evident that a large proportion of the English crop will be marketed early, and will thus come into direct competition with Fall fruit from Canada. On the other hand, crops of pears and plums are exceedingly light, which will doubtless help the demand for apples, but if the domestic half crop is gathered, it will go a long way to supply the demand in the early part of the season, and probably will thus militate against a high range of prices prevailing."

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

The Right Location of a Store—How the Price Hatchet was Wielded at Woodstock—The Circular—Question of Space in Retail Grocery Advertising.

There are many instances to prove that a merchant can make a success of business in a wrong quarter of town or on the wrong side of the street, but no number of successes in spite of adverse conditions can prove the desirability of those conditions.

There is one great physical law that underlies all business promotion. It is in effect that a body can be moved with the least force when pushed along the line of least resistance. This should be borne in mind in the selection of a location for a store as well as in booming the business afterward. You cannot push anything through a stone wall.

As to changing location there are many things to be figured on before putting the plan into execution. If you are running a store where there has been such a business for many years so that outside people who come to your town to shop know right where to come for such goods as you sell, it may be unwise to move even though an apparently much more desirable location is open.

If yours is a store that can make more out of the outside trade that knows and likes its present location than it could out of such additional local business as might be gained by moving, then a removal might be foolish.

One thing that you have to consider in changing is whether or not some other dealer would be ready to drop into your old stand with the goods and capital to take your old trade right up before it had time to get accustomed to the change. This, of course, might be remedied by holding the lease to the property vacated long enough to prevent it. You could sub-let to save loss, thus making sure of a desirable successor in the old store.

There can be no hard and fast rule that will hold in all cases about the location question. Every merchant must decide for himself, though certain general principles always hold good. A drug store has other things to consider than those that a dry goods and grocery store would have to take into account. A market must look out for still other points and might succeed where nothing else would pay at all. Every class of trade requires for success conditions a trifle different from every other class.

For a general sort of store, though, a store that carries a large stock of dry goods and some other lines, a store that might fairly be called a big store, one that aspires to be a department store, there are certain considerations that cover about all cases.

The Two Sides.

In every town one side of the main shopping street is much more traveled than the other and does much more business. There are always successful stores on the wrong side of the street, stores that have made a success in spite of their situation, but there is no store but that could have been far, far more successful across the road.

That means that if you could have succeeded better across the street ten years ago or some other time, you could also succeed better to-day. Why not go across? No opening? Get busy and find out. In some cases there would not be what you would be willing to take, perhaps, but you might be surprised to know what could be had if you inquired a little on the quiet.

If you can't rent, why not BUY? Talk in bigger figures of bigger things than you've been talking. The man who talks right off about large figures if he does it reservedly can put up more of a front and make more of an impression than he thinks, without becoming a braggart.

If you know of a store that you want, and if you think that it might be had for what you could raise, get your hands on the money and go to the owner for a proposition. Be ready for him if he makes an offer that you can take, and don't give him a chance to back down or to raise his figures because he thinks he has a buyer.

There's no use talking, it is worth a good deal more money to be in the right location than to fight against a handicap, and you can't get any profits out of your arguments in favor of the off side of the street. It's all right to stand up for what is, but that needn't keep you from trying to improve conditions.

You are doubtless in business to stay. You have plans for getting more trade next year than you got this year. If you can't improve your location to-day, look ahead. Keep your eyes open and be ready for the chance that some day in the future is to put your store where everybody in town will have to go past it all the time, instead of having to be dragged across by main force. Suppose you are successful in getting people to come across the street and have a look at you? Wouldn't more of them look if you were on the other side yourself?

Of course the man with no more money than will just keep his business going is not in a position to take advantage of anything. He has to cut all the corners, and it is a long shot if he keeps from going to the wall. We cannot expect such a man to follow very closely any line of conduct laid out for a success. If the man is the success sort, he will be ahead of the game before he has been at it so very long. If he isn't, he is not to be considered.

In the Centre.

It may as well be admitted, then, that in locating a store that aims to be a BIG store, it ought to be on the big side of the street. You may succeed over the way, but you'll succeed better and quicker on the popular side. In choosing a location for opening a store, aim for the centre spot and get as near it as possible. Always shoot for the bull's-eye in whatever you are doing. If you are already in business on the small side get over on the big side as soon as you can. You will lose little by the change and the loss will be all at first and will be paid back to you many fold with very little delay.

Just think of this. Suppose there are people who would rather you had stayed where you were; if there is no store there after you move they have got to follow you or go to the other fellow whose location may not be as good as your new one. Admit that some other man starts a store like yours, right where you move out, aren't you going to drop right in among somebody else's customers and aren't they going to help you replace the particularly finicky few who are bound to do business back in that one location or not at all? The man who drops into your old stand has on his hands the same old up-hill fight that you've just got rid of.

If there were no exceptions, there would be no rules, and every merchant knows well enough whether his case is an exception to this rule, but that does not do away with the rule that there is more business to be had on the busy side of the street than on the quiet side.

No outside authority can decide what the best locations are in the town of any merchant, except in a very general way. You know what effect the situation of the railroad station or the post office or the car lines has upon location. Figure all these things out carefully and unless you are in the best place you can get, plan for a removal at the earliest opportunity.—Selected.

A SLAUGHTER SALE CIRCULAR.

Isaac Kaiser, who has a general store at Woodbridge, Ont., believes that when a merchant is going to have a slaughter sale he should have a good one.

So from August 23 till September 1 Mr. Kaiser used the price hatchet on $3,000 worth of general merchandise. A large circular was issued and with this circular this department has principally to deal.

The circular is well gotten up, considering its function. There is not too much matter. Despite a smattering of sensationalism the sentences are clear-cut and unswervingly to the point.

The detailed list of goods is strongly presented and could not help being read if the circular itself was read.

It is just on this point of size that Mr. Kaiser might look for improvement. As the back of the circular is a dead waste the same amount of paper could be shaped into booklet form — say, on eight pages. The different departments of the store could get a hearing on the different pages and any other space could be used for an exposition of the sale.

The big circular may appeal quickly in some cases, but thrown into a door with the printed matter on the inside fold it is apt to be regarded as a stray sheet of plain white paper, quite handy for that black article that stands on four legs in the kitchen.

USE OF ADVERTISING SPACE.

It is a fatal mistake for a storekeeper to be niggardly in the use of advertising space. An advertiser should always be fairly liberal, though never wasteful, for waste of space, since it costs money, is the same as waste of actual money. The retailer is the best judge of the proper amount of space for him to use. He knows best the limitations of his business, whether his general public are gen-

BISCUITS AND CONFECTIONERY

Travelers out with Christmas Goods—Some Very Attractive Lines—The Importance of Proper Display for a Confectionery Department.

Confectionery travelers are packing their trunks with Christmas goods. The novelties are mostly in the way of new box cover designs. One oddity is a cover in the form of a framed picture, which may be used as a handsome wall decoration. Another is an adaptation of the interesting brass plate motto. The thin brass plate bearing the motto or verse in decorative black type is nailed to the lid of the candy box. Some of the baskets sent out, satin lined ladies' work baskets for instance, are very expensive.

Week after week in this column the importance of display has been urged as the basis of a profitable confectionery trade for the grocer. The manager of Stewart & Co., Toronto, who make a specialty of manufacturing high-grade confectionery, in conversation with a representative of The Grocer, took exactly the same view. A display, not necessarily large, of fine confectionery, in a modern silent salesman will sell a pound of chocolates or bon bons to many customers who otherwise would not have thought of them. Not only that, but such a display educates the people where to go for good candies when they want them. The higher grades of confectionery carry a good profit for the retailer and a small up-to-date show case for a confectionery department would soon pay for itself.

SELL CANDY.

These are the days when the retailer must put forth his best efforts to make money on as many things as possible. These are the fat years. The people have money, and with material prosperity they are in a generous mood.

Push the things that bring profits.

There is good money in candy, if handled with care and with attractive displays. The stock should, of course, be kept under glass and should not be permitted to become untidy.

When it comes to a matter of liberal selling, candy moves as freely as many household commodities. Chocolates have proved their right to be considered as a leader in sweets, therefore sell chocolates.

The retailer who does not make money through selling candy is negelecting an opportunity. The suggestion to sell candy is a good one. Try it.—Ex.

A CONFECTIONERY WINDOW.

The pretty effects that can be obtained with the use of bob-bons and other confectionery in window dressing are numerous and varied, nothing else in the store can compare with them in attractiveness, and nothing else can be arranged so indicative of what you would wish the general tenor of the store to be.

It is said that clothes do not make the man; that may be, but they certainly have their place in forming the first impression. So the dressing of the window goes far to give an impression of what may be found behind that window.

It is not necessary, and perhaps not advisable where one's window space is limited, to give it all up to the display of confectionery, but at least a part of the window can be profitably appropriated for this purpose. The use of fancy baskets is one of the prettiest and latest ways of exhibiting sweets. These baskets should be shallow and not too large. They may be square, round, heart shape, or, in fact, any shape the dealer chooses, and the more attractive they are of themselves the greater will be their value in bringing out the beauty of the display. A layer of colored paper shavings is first placed in the baskets, and on top of this are laid the bon-bons in symmetrical rows. The advantages of these shallow baskets are two-fold. On account of only one layer being used, a small amount makes quite an elaborate display; and for the same reason the contents of the basket may be easily changed from time to time without fear of any under ones being marked by pressure.

The deck of the windows should be raised, say six or eight inches for an exhibit of this kind in order to take away the appearance of any flatness which might result from the use of the shallow baskets.

If only part of the window is used for this display, it had better be placed on an elevation in the centre, and surrounded by the other things that are to be shown, which, of course, must be something which will be in harmony with the confectionery—say, nice, clean-looking fruit, either domestic or imported.—Ex.

CORNER IN COCOA.

Operations Said to be in Progress to that End.

A news despatch from Mexico City says that dealers in Mexican cocoa have bought up all the available supply of the product in that country and have advanced the price 25 per cent. in the last few days. It is reported that these dealers are working in conjunction with a New York City commission firm, which is seeking to control the world's supply of cocoa.

The consumption of cocoa and chocolate has more than doubled in the United States in five years. Less than eight years ago the United States held only fifth place as a manufacturer of cocoa and chocolate, England, Germany, Holland and France taking precedence in about the order named. Today the United States holds first place, both as manufacturers and consumers of cocoa and chocolate, by a comfortable margin, and manufacturers can scarcely keep up with orders. In 1905 the United States consumed nearly four hundred and sixty thousand bags of cocoa, or about one-third of the world's entire crop.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING.

erously responsive to his announcements or only fairly so, and whether he can afford to spend more than a certain percentage of his receipts or profits in advertising. The retailer knows all these things better than any outsider can possibly know them, but for the storekeeper who doesn't give as close attention to the details of advertising as perhaps he ought to, a few suggestions from one who has devoted years to studying store publicity will not come amiss :

Never try to advertise groceries in an inch space—unless in such favorable and valuable position as at the top or in the middle of a column of pure news matter on a news page.

Don't use four inches when three can reasonably be expected to produce just as good results. That extra inch would represent just so much loss.

When you use "readers"—little headless paragraphs scattered through the paper—use them liberally, and have them short, crisp, direct.

It is usually inadvisable to use full newspaper pages. In most instances, a half page will be fully as effective, especially if the other half be live reading matter. No use paying for a great big page for nothing, you know.

The same way, don't use a half page when a quarter will answer the purpose. Cut out some of the "wind" in the ad. and it will be found that a quarter-page will do well enough.

In display advertising don't use such space that the ad. will be lost, buried among a lot of bigger ones, unless the position given it is especially favorable.

In conclusion, never insert an advertisement without first giving careful thought to the amount of space it is to occupy. Don't be wasteful and don't be niggardly to your own disadvantage. Use your head in judging for yourself how much space the occasion or the goods advertised call for. Remember that newspaper space costs money, and that you must get returns to a certain amount, and that, falling short of it, your expenditure for advertising is a loss.—Trade.

ATTEMPTED CORNER FAILED.

A Pennsgrove, N. J., despatch says: A company was organized at this place by Walter M. Stanton to buy and transport tomatoes from points along the Delaware River to Baltimore. Wharfage was rented, with the object of a monopoly. At the time contracts were made with the farmers at 15 cents a basket. There seemed to be mismanagement early in July, when there was a glut and thousands of baskets rotted before they left the farmers, or before they reached Baltimore. At one time 25,000 baskets were awaiting transportation.

The attempt to monopolize the wharves resulted in the building of other wharves, and many of these have not been used because of the lack of transportation facilities. Late tomatoes are now coming in, and what the next two weeks will bring forth is a question. The demand at present is not great.

A car of 723 melons, averaging 51 3-4 lbs., was shipped from Oaktown, Ind., recently. It brought $216 at auction.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

Business Normal—Provision Shipments not Heavy—Larger Shipments of Fruit —Grain is Moving—Water in Montreal Harbor Still Low.

Business in shipping circles during the past week has been normal. Butter is moving out very well, but shipments have not been so large recently owing to the high prices demanded. Inquiry from the other side shows that while more or less butter is needed, yet importers do not feel like paying what is in their opinion too much. and the consequence is they are buying only what they must have at once.

Cheese has been on a little better footing than butter and the number of boxes sent out of the country lately has been large. Despite the record prices now ruling general demand has been good.

Meats are not very strong in an export way, local shipments being few in number. Such cargoes as have included meats, however, have had good sized bookings.

A noticeable line in the export trade lately has been fruit. Outgoing boats during the past couple of weeks have nearly all of them taken more or less in this line. Plums and pears with a few barrels of apples are chiefly exported. Apples have not yet begun to go out in anything like quantities.

Some very good shipments of grain have left port recently. Wheat and oats, with some corn, are the principal lines going out, chiefly to England and Scotland. Flour has not been very brisk in an export way, but is picking up a little.

Hay shipments have not been large. Very little is offering in the country even for local buyers, and, of necessity, export business has not been good.

The water in the harbor has not dropped up to the time of writing lower than the level last week end. Still, with the water at its present level it is not possible to load boats as much as shippers would wish, owing to the restriction enforced by the port warden.

Rates this week show no change.

The Nord Amerika, of the Hamburg-American line, reached port September 7, with a cargo from Hamburg.

The Mount Royal, C.P.R. line, cleared for London and Antwerp with a general cargo on September 8.

Among other boats leaving on that date were the Manchester Trader, with a general cargo for Manchester, Devona for London, Montfort for Bristol, and Kensington for Liverpool.

STORM NEEDED.

C. W. Turner, general manager of the Booth Co., Duluth, speaking to the Port Arthur Chronicle recently about the fish situation, said that never in his experience had he witnessed such a scarcity of fish all over the great lakes. "That light catches prevail not only on Lake Superior," he said, "but they are prevalent on the whole chain of lakes. I think, however, if a storm or two were to shake up the lakes, there would be some good fishing. This Summer the weather has been so hot that the fish have not been running, and they have been lying in the deeper water. They should commence to run again shortly, and then I think the fishing will be good."

TOBACCO AND CIGARS

Keeping Cigars Damp—A New Device for Business Men—Effect of the Cuban Rebellion on the Tobacco Trade.

W. H. Steele & Co., 27 Melinda street, Toronto, have adopted a device to catch a good kind of cigar trade in the business district that might be adopted by many grocers to improve their trade. Near the door he has 24 drawers, each with its own Yale lock. A man buys a box of cigars. It is placed in the box, he is handed the key, and thereafter the box is at his sole disposal. He drops in and gets a cigar when he pleases.

The grocer who gives some attention to his tobacco department and has a modern showcase for its display, should see that it is kept moist enough for the proper preservation of the cigars in the best condition. A simple device for this is a perforated cylinder of tin filled with asbestos. The asbestos is kept saturated with water. These can be secured at a very small cost.

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

U. S. Tobacco Journal.

The possible effects of the disorder in the Island of Cuba on the Havana tobacco trade is a question that is agitating the minds of importers, and while some are inclined to think that nothing serious is involved, others, including several of those who are most familiar with Cuban conditions, consider the situation as highly perilous.

By such it is stated that the Government may have a long and arduous task in putting down the revolution, even if they ultimately succeed in doing so, and it is possible that it may be many months before order is restored. The standing army available consists of a mere handful of men, some thousand or so rurales, not all of whom by any means are to be relied on. On the other hand dissatisfaction with the Government is widespread and has been deep-seated for some time, so that it may well be that if properly led, the revolutionists may be too powerful for the Government to subdue. Should such be the case, the struggle will be a prolonged one, and the tobacco growing industry must necessarily suffer.

As matters stand the disorder is most acute in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido sections, though there is also trouble on a smaller scale in the Remedios district. The planting of the new Vuelta and Partido crops is due in about a week or so, and should the disorder continue, say till November 1, it is to be feared that planting operations may be hindered if not entirely stopped. Apart from the effect on the farm hands, some of whom would doubtless take part in the uprising, capitalists and merchants would undoubtedly fear to invest their money in a country subjected to the perils of warfare; and without financial aid few of the farmers, who are mostly without means of their own, would be able to stand the expense of planting operations; should such be the case, it would be difficult to overestimate the gravity of the consequences for the leaf trade. The present supply of tobacco will be barely adequate to carry the trade over till the next crop comes on the market, and should the latter be eliminated an unprecedented famine must prevail, and prices already abnormal soar to prohibitory figures.

As far as Remedios tobacco is concerned, the outlook is not quite so serious as while the planting in the Vuelta and Partidos districts must take place within a short time, that in the Remedios section can be deferred to a later date.

As for the year's packings, they can be but little affected, for while considerable packing of Remedios is yet to be done, there is but little disorder in that section as yet, and the Vuelta and Partido packing is almost completed. None the less should the revolution be prolonged and the Vuelta and Partidos planting be prevented, in view of the prospective shortage, prices on present holdings must necessarily begin to advance straightway.

FATHER OF SUMATRA LEAF.

Mynheer J. Nienhuys, the father of the Sumatra tobacco, celebrated recently his 70th birthday. It is about 39 years since Mynheer Nienhuys succeeded in demonstrating the possibility of raising an exceptional leaf on the Island of Sumatra, and about 37 years when the first crop of 3,922 bales sold for 750,000 guilders. Last year's crop was 230,000 bales and sold for approximately twenty-six millions! And its limit has not yet been reached by any means.

Frank Siddal, foreman at the Andrew Wilson cigar factory, Toronto, and an active member of the labor circles, died recently in the Toronto General Hospital of typhoid fever.

Cultivating Weeds

wouldn't be considered very profitable by the farmers, yet thousands of merchants are cultivating the weeds of business by continuing the Old Style Pass book—errors every day. Forgotten charges. Hundreds of little things make a big aggregate amount. Adopt the modern ALLISON COUPON SYSTEM and throw away your time wasting devices. Look here—for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Let us send you a free sample.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

WHEN BUYING CURRANTS

tell the traveler that you must have fruit packed by

W. MEYER & CO.

Patras and Hamburg.

You can experiment with other brands, but Meyer & Co's. are the only ones you can be sure of year in and year out. A fancy or fictitious name does not enhance the quality of currants one iota, but the name "Meyer" on the case is a strict guarantee that the contents are sound, true to name and the best quality of its growth obtainable.

You can get MEYER'S currants if you insist.

Don't Have To Argue.

The Fall trade in stove polish has begun and you can't afford to allow your stock of RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in Tins to run low, when there is a good profit on these goods for you and only a suggestion to your customers is required to immediately dispose of a package of RISING SUN or SUN PASTE in almost every family that buys of you. The merits of the goods are known—you don't have to argue—it pays you to push the RISING SUN and SUN PASTE.

Earn More

Earn more money by buying goods of standard value—Doubt less when choosing. Think more of quality than price. How about those dusty, dirty, fly-specked packages up there on the shelf? What did it, quality or price? "Doubt Less and Earn More."

Sell Goods of Known Quality

"Shell" Soap

Containing 67 per cent. of pure oil as against 60 per cent. in ordinary brands. Packed and shipped in cases and boxes in bars of 1 pound each and upwards. Pressed Cakes in boxes also. "Earn More" by selling it.

Cox's Gelatine

Best and goes farthest—always produces sure results. Oldest and most trustworthy. Quality always the same—always highest quality. In powdered and shredded form.

Codou's Macaroni

Made only from the real Taganrog Russian Wheat—no other wheat produces quality so superb. Full weight—unvarying quality. Every package tastefully packed and labelled.

Prejudiced in Favor of Old Homestead Canned Goods is every housewife who has displayed before her the handsome, richly lithographed package of Old Homestead Canned Goods.

She doesn't know for a fact that because the label is a beauty that therefore the contents are delicious. But she rightly infers that a firm so careful with the label they use, will likewise be particular with every other detail in the canning business, and the result—perfection.

That is the reason we advise all retailers to bring to the front. They will bear inspection. Inspection means a trial order, and a trial order means a permanent user of Old Homestead brand. It means greater consumption of canned goods, more sales and greater profits for you.

Old Homestead Brand Canned Goods will better repay pushing on your part than any other brand, because they are thoroughly reliable, always delicious, will please your customers, will sell more readily and more largely than any other brand.

Insist on Having Old Homestead, the Brand of Quality.

ALLSPICE, GROWING AND MAKING

One of the Best Known Spices and is Produced Almost Wholly in Jamaica—Other Sources—The Pimento Groves a Favorite Resort of Natives—How the Berries are Harvested and Cured.

To all in the trade the spice commonly known as "allspice" is very familiar, says Ivor Etherington in the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. The name is merely a conventional trade term for the small, cured berry of the pimento tree (Eugenia pimenta); and the spice is so called because of its flavor resembling a compound of cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg. The tree is indigenous to South America and the West Indies, although it has been introduced into Ceylon and other spice-growing countries; but the West Indian Islands, especially Jamaica, are the principal place of production. In fact, this spice is also known to the trade as "Jamaica pepper," though it is far more aromatic, having a real flavor which can hardly be accredited to the simply pungent pepper.

Eugenia pimenta is a handsome, moderate-sized tree, reaching at maturity a height of about 40 feet, with the glossy, dark green leaves of the myrtle family. The essential oil of pimento, which gives the flavor, is present in the leaves, as in some other spice trees, and these when crushed and broken give out a strong, aromatic scent.

Jamaica the Centre.

Jamaica, as stated, is the centre of its cultivation, and one writer in 1892 stated that there were nearly 10,000 acres of pimento trees under cultivation in the island. If a plantation be near a town it usually forms a favorite resort for the inhabitants, who love to saunter along the "pimento walks."

There is little cultivation required for the plant, and in Jamaica it seems to thrive without much attention.

Seed, to be used for sowing, has to have the external pulp removed by washing, and then dried before it will freely germinate; otherwise the pulp dries to a hard outer covering or skin and hinders germination for a long time. But most of the trees in Jamaica are naturally sown in bird droppings.

The Tree and its Berries.

Writing in Cundall's "Jamaica in 1904," Mr. Roxburgh says:

"In Jamaica, where labor of a kind is comparatively cheap, we can gather in the spice at a price which allows of considerable profit to the grower and yet gives the laborer a very fair wage for his time. An erroneous idea respecting pimento is that it will not grow if planted by hand, but must be dropped by birds on the ground. The birds certainly are very fond of the ripe berries and it is a fact that nearly all our pimento trees are planted in this way, but it is a great mistake to suppose that it is necessary for the seed first to be planted by a bird, for if a ripe seed is washed and cleared of the external pulp and then planted it grows readily."

The pimento trees come to a fruiting age at about ten years old, but it is another six to eight years before it is full bearing, and then it lasts for a lengthy period of years, giving its crop regularly. The flowers are on racemes or in small bunches, and when these are fertilized the fruit forms small, green berries in bunches. It is interesting to note that pimentos are of two kinds, known as the male and female trees, the latter of which alone bear fruit. It is maintained by some that the male, or barren, trees are useless and not necessary for the fertilizing of the blooms on the fruiting trees; but others differ from this and state that if the males are cut down the yield on the fruiting trees is diminished.

Harvesting the Berries.

The berries darken in color as they ripen, the green changing to olive brown and finally to a shining black. The essential oil giving them their flavor is most abundant just before they are fully ripe, and it is then that they are harvested. The plucking of the bunches of berries is done by boys, who climb the tree armed with long crooked sticks. They break off the small fruiting branches, dropping them to the ground, where they are gathered in baskets by women and children. The tree is thus pruned by the process of gathering the berries, and without being thus "thrashed" or "broken" will not produce abundant crops.

Process of Curing.

The baskets of berries on being brought to the factory are spread out on cement or paved courts, called the barbecue, such as are used for drying cacao beans on cacao plantations. Here they are exposed to the heat of the sun for drying, and are thoroughly dried and cured in eight to ten days, being turned or raked over each day. No rain must touch the drying berries, and they must be taken in or protected from dews or moisture at night. Wet damages the berries, spoiling the bright brown color which is the mark of good quality. The berries are thoroughly dry when they rattle on being shaken, the kernel being loosened from its woody shell. They are then stored until the whole crop is cured when they are passed through a fanning machine for clearing out all dirt, dust, twigs, dried leaves, etc.

Average Production.

"The average production of pimento in Jamaica," says Mr. Roxburgh, "is about 50,000 to 60,000 bags of about 150 pounds weight per annum for the whole island. When sold in the island, the price is calculated per 100 pounds, and the average price for the past five years has been 15s. per 100 pounds. We have known pimento during the last twenty years as high as 40s. per 100 pounds, and for a good many years 25s. to 28s. ruled as the value. Plantation pimento will, of course, always fetch a higher price than settlers' produce, owing to the quality being superior—not from any fault on the part of the spice itself, but from the careless manner of curing on the part of the settlers, as a rule."

A very high value was formerly set upon pimento berries, probably because they were difficult to obtain in Europe. The name "pimenta" was given to the spice by the old Spanish navigators, who thought it resembled in appearance and pungent taste the peppers of Spain. It was known in Britain in the early part of the seventeenth century, for the writer Parkinson says it was "being obtruded for amomum, so that some more audacious than wise put it in their compositions instead of the right," showing that food adulteration is no modern trick. Parkinson's "Amomum" is probably the Cardamom spice. Allspice is now a very general and favorite flavoring agent in the United States and Europe, for it is inexpensive and wholesome.

RAPID TRANSIT DESIRABLE.

Council of Board of Trade Think Trade Requires it.

A meeting of the council of the Board of Trade, Montreal, was held September 13, F. H. Matheson presiding. A letter from one of the members was read, which advised application to the Montreal Street Railway Company to increase their surface tracks. The city had grown considerably, and the traffic demanded more car lines. The writer suggested that it might be a good thing for the board to agitate for either elevated or underground tracks, or both. The council will take the matter up at a future meeting.

Notification was received from the British Chamber of Commerce, Paris, stating that a special Canadian section had been arranged with the object of devoting special attention to the Franco-Canadian trade. The chamber is of the opinion that there is in France a splendid field for Canadian manufactures and products.

A report was submitted by the delegates sent to the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire recently held in London. Full details of the work done were given.

The council decided to send a letter of thanks to the Postmaster-General for his prompt action in making arrangements for an additional mail from Canada to the Old Country on Saturdays.

BOILED "ROAST" BEEF.

American canned roast beef will continue to bear the label of "roast beef" notwithstanding the fact that it is really boiled beef. This decision was reached after the matter had been fully considered by President Roosevelt Senator Hopkins, of Illinois, and Thomas Wilson, general manager of the Nelson Morris Packing Co., of Chicago. The method of preparing canned roast beef is to parboil the meat fifteen minutes and then put it in cans and subject it to steam heat for three hours. It is of particular value to the packers to keep the term roast beef, otherwise Australian and South American packers, who had copied the method would profit by the American packers being forced to abandon it. The cans may be labeled as roast beef; it must also be stated on the label how the contents were prepared and cooked. The decision was entirely satisfactory to the packers.

BRIGHT TALK ON THE WINDOW

A Feature of Window that May be Made Profitable—Get Thinking About the Store Window—Interior of a Halifax Store—Some Ideas on Store Ventilation.

Last week the subject of window cards was broached in this page. Here are some ideas compiled by an American editor:

Show cards in the windows and placards in the windows and throughout the store may be made attractive and useful. Where the merchant has a sense of the witty, combined with business tact, he may make these cards and placards very bright and excite more or less curiosity as to what he will do next.

"Ten Dollar Tom," of Chicago, is the most expert card merchant in the business. When the daily procession passes Tom's windows, the crowds stop and read its latest signs. When you have the people reading your ads you are in a fair way to get part of their business.

In the days of old Rameses, king of Egypt the grocers and saloonkeepers used a sign something like this:

"To Trust To Bust—No Trust—No Bust."

Saloon men adopted from this the bolder document:

"To Trust To Bust—To Bust is Hell—No Trust No Bust—No Bust No Hell."

Occasionally this somewhat profane placard appeared:

"In God we Trust—All Others Cash."

In modern times the cards are more dignified and progressive in gentility. Note these two:

"Pay for it Now, and You Get it, and So De We."

"Thank You; We Knew You Would Not Ask For Trust."

Here are a few more that will attract a little attention and cause a little laugh, if nothing more.

"Trust Makes Enemies— We are Looking for Friends."

A saloonkeeper in a Massachusetts town places a large card bearing the following in his window every Saturday night:

"Get It To-Night, Boys—We Must Close To-Morrow."

A barber across the way, evidently favorably impressed with the liquor store card, places this one in his window each Saturday night:

"Better have a shave to-night, Boys.

IN A HALIFAX GROCERY.

Looking at the accompanying illustration the reader is in the store of C. E. Choat & Co., Halifax, N.S., and thousands of Canadian Grocer readers will be hundreds of miles from home. This rapid transit of the imagination via the optic nerve is neither unpleasant nor unprofitable. "As far as the east is from the west," said the Psalmist, whose knowledge of distance was limited to Bible geography; what would he have said had he been a Canadian? But the enchantment of distance is for the purpose of reproducing this picture. Choat & Co. are hustling grocers of the progressive type. A little while ago they renovated their store throughout, put in hardwood floors, metal ceilings, new counters with pivotal bin and silent salesman front. "Our staff now numbers eight," said a member of the firm to a Grocer representative recently, "and we are kept busy all the time." The business of the firm has increased and is increasing very rapidly.

If grocers looking at this picture have a suggestion of a better arrangement of the stock, or part of it, they could increase the value of the illustration to the owners of the store and the readers of The Grocer by writing and telling the editor about it. If grocers could oftener look into other stores it ought to tend strongly to improve the standard of their store keeping.

A BUSINESS MAN FOR MAYOR.

In the attitude of the fire insurance companies towards the acceptance of risks in Winnipeg the citizens of the western metropolis have a practical example of the results that are sure to follow when the direction of the affairs of a great and growing city is entrusted to a number of professional politicians. The fire insurance companies are afraid of Winnipeg risks because of the inadequate water supply and the water supply is not what it should be for the simple reason that the men in charge of the civic administration were not big enough to plan for the future. For years the leading business men of Winnipeg have shirked their civic responsibilities. When pressed to stand for election to the city council they have answered that they could not spare the time, and, as a result, the control of affairs has fallen into incompetent hands. The civic administration for years has been marked by vacillation, hesitation and unnecessary delay, with the result that the extension to the various public services has not kept pace with the rapid growth of the city. The inadequate water works system is not the only example of the inability of the council to realize the necessity of providing for the future and, in a word, the civic administration has been one of blundering incapacity. Affairs have been badly muddled.

Now the management of the affairs of the most rapidly growing city in Canada is a task that requires trained ability of the highest kind. The position is no sinecure, it demands a business man of proved ability, tried integrity and indomitable energy and resource. Happily the citizens of Winnipeg seem to realize this truth at last.

In the present civic crisis the citizens in general are turning to J. H. Ashdown, and on all sides is heard the remark that if only Mr. Ashdown were mayor a thorough civic housecleaning might be expected and a broad progressive businesslike administration would undoubtedly be inaugurated. A man of broad outlook and proved business ability of the highest type, Mr. Ashdown is undoubtedly the man whom the people of Winnipeg desire to "honor," and whose assistance is required at the present juncture.

Will Mr. Ashdown consent to be a candidate? We do not know. He is not the class of man who seeks popularity or who desires public office, and to be mayor of Winnipeg would necessarily involve great personal and financial sacrifice on his part. But Mr. Ashdown has always shown himself a public spirited citizen—witness his effective work on the Transportation Commission and on the Water Commission—and it may be that if he is shown convincingly that his fellow citizens want him for mayor, and that it is essential that some one should inaugurate a businesslike administration of the affairs of Winnipeg—it may be that he will consent to make the big sacrifice that the acceptance of the position would involve. Winnipeg needs the services of Mr. Ashdown, and it is to be hoped that she will succeed in convincing him of the fact.

COMING TO THE FRONT.

Canada is rapidly coming to the fore among the nations of the world. The day has passed when those upon the other side of the water on hearing of Canada conjure up in their minds pictures of a savage country, populated by people who are scarcely civilized. Rather does the name bring before them a country which gives promise of developing into one of the greatest of nations. The mention of the name to a business man arrests his attention. Never before has this country been given as much attention. As a convincing proof of the interest taken in the Dominion by business men of other countries, it is but necessary to look up the trade inquiries from abroad received by the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa. That department is in receipt of an average of one thousand inquiries a month from business men in Great Britain and elsewhere. When this is considered — over thirty inquiries a day—and compared with the number of inquiries received a few years ago, some eight or ten a week, the growing interest displayed in Canada is at once manifest. Up to the end of August this year there have been received over eight thousand inquiries, as compared with three thousand during the same period last year. And it must be remembered that these inquiries receive the best attention of the Government, which encourages them. Quite frequently the inquiries are for agents wanted, and result in the appointment of a Canadian representative. Again, some foreign firm wishes to hear from houses in Canada desirous of placing their goods on certain foreign markets as yet uncovered by them. These are only instances known to every merchant, but the volume of such inquiries cannot but show that the Dominion of Canada is rapidly acquiring an enviable place among the commercial countries of the universe. Her wonderful growth, particularly in the west, is attracting the attention of the world. Her commercial development this past few years has been astonishing, compelling outsiders to sit up and take notice. Business men are beginning to see in Canada a country possessing apparently unlimited possibilities in a commercial way, and are anxious to get in on the ground floor, as it were, to share in the general prosperity.

FISH AND GAME PROTECTION.

A valuable and public spirited work is being done for all sections of the community by the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association, of which Mr. A. Kelly Evans, of Toronto, is the energetic secretary. To the hardware and grocery trades, however, the work is of particular interest, and where local associations are formed merchants can well afford to help along the movement to the extent of active membership at least. The platform of the association deals with many important interests and is worthy of considerable study.

(a). That game, fish and game, through the attraction they form to tourists are a most valuable financial asset to the province and that therefore their protection should be encouraged.

(b). That the food fish in our waters should be conserved and regulated for the good of the masses of the people and not wasted or used for the benefit of one small class of the community.

(c). That certain game birds and song and insectivorous birds are an immensely valuable friend to the farmer in destroying harmful insects, weed seeds, rodents, etc., and the lack of knowledge by the public on such subjects should be combatted steadily.

(d). That the wild lands of the province suitable to game and the waters suitable to game fish should be ever kept the property of the public and that the association must always endeavor to prevent the acquisition by individuals or groups of individuals of large tracts of territory for the purposes of forming private game preserves.

(e). That the association should have no connection with politics or any political party.

Canada is favored in having splendid hunting grounds and fishing waters, and by wise regulation the supply of game and fish can be kept up and the tourist trade developed to a much greater extent that at present. In this tourist trade there is profit not only for the supply merchants in the larger cities, but also for the local merchants in the lake districts. One Toronto grocer issues an extensive catalogue and makes a large annual profit on its trade with campers, hunters and fishermen, while several Toronto handware and sporting goods dealers find their trade in fishing tackle and shooting materials one of the best paying branches of their trade.

The development and perpetuation of fish and game means an increased population in the Summer resorts and remote districts where sport is most easily found. This means an increased consumption of canned goods, cereals and other foodstuffs, as well as additional hardware for the cabins and cottages erected. Extra labor will be required to erect these buildings and manufacture canoes, boats and launches for use in the rivers and lakes. Even the farmers will benefit by the increased demand for the products of the farms and factories.

The proper regulation of the taking of food fish in our lakes by fishermen and fishing companies also has its interesting possibilities, and the association does well by including under its protective wing commercial fish and useful birds. Much educational work is possible pointing out the dangers of destroying such valuable friends of mankind, and the information given on these subjects in our public schools might be extended considerably to the advantage of both students and parents.

In declaring for non-political action and in favor of conserving the public domain the association protects itself against being used by political wirepullers, in addition to maintaining a principle which will win the appreciation of all citizens desiring to see Canada continue, as it now is, one of the happiest spots in which to enjoy life to be found on the world's map.

BANK SOUNDS A WARNING.

A period of prosperity such as has been experienced in Canada for some years past is not an unmixed blessing That is to say, while it affords wonderful opportunities for betterment to men of shrewdness and foresight, it also increases the temptation to spend prodigally money which is easily made. Going a step farther, it also creates an inclination to assume financial responsibilities, to borrow money in unusual amounts, because prospects for meeting these obligations appear to be good.

A mania for speculation is another circumstance attending "good times." In the Great West this has been carried almost to an extreme in these days of rapidly advancing land values. Merchants frequently complain that farmers instead of using the proceeds of a season's harvest to reduce their liabilities, sink them in land speculations, buoyed up by the hope that they will quickly realize large profits.

Similar conditions prevail in the east. Expansion is everywhere the watchword. Those who cannot enlarge their capacity on their own resources have found the banks competing with each other to supply the necessary money, and debts have been incurred which would cripple many of these expansionists should the "growing time" receive a sudden check.

Under the circumstances, a memorandum which was recently sent out to branch managers by the general manager of a leading Canadian bank will be of considerable interest and we feel justified in repeating it, for the benefit of our readers.

This well-known financier speaks as follows:

"Now that the time is drawing near for the harvests of Ontario to be marketed, I consider it an opportune time to draw your serious attention to the existing conditions of business in all its branches throughout Ontario, and to impress upon you the fact that the management of this institution insists that you exercise the utmost caution in the granting of credits, and unceasing watchfulness over credits already granted, during this period of what might be termed a 'revel of prosperity.' Merchants. manufacturers. cattle buyers, grain merchants, and, in fact, all classes of the commercial community are apparently straining at the leash of credit and it is the duty of every banker, not only to his bank, but to the country at large, to judiciously control this financial impetuosity. I would have you see that as far as possible the returns for all goods marketed this Winter go to reduce your customers' existing liabilities, urging on them to 'put their house in order' while this period of rich production lasts, and to exercise economy in order to start with greatly lessened liabilities next Spring, in case bad harvests should be Canada's lot next Fall."

Technical education for clerks and assistants in the grocery and provision trades is making rapid headway in England. It is carried on largely by local societies in the various towns and cities. The Manchester and Salford Society has been going two years and the classes have been attended by 400 students. One of the founders of this society, W. P. Bowman, has donated a prize of £500 to be competed for throughout England two years hence. The prize will be given in the form of a thoroughly equipped grocery store.

In addition to the Brazil Government's valorization law to control the price of coffee, it is said the railroad interests of the State of Sao Paulo, the largest coffee producing state of the republic, have got together and decided to so regulate traffic as to limit deliveries at the seaboard to exceed 1,000,000 bags a month. The coffee market, however, seems to rely more upon the assurance of Lord Rothschild that money for the $75,000,000 loan to carry valorization into effect will not be forthcoming.

BRIGHT TALK ON THE WINDOW.

(Concluded from page 23.)

Then You'll Look Like Somebody on Sunday."

In a butcher shop the owner displays this sign:

"You Save Money Here. You'll Be Out If You Don't Come In. You'll Be In If You Trade With Us."

A fish dealer has this sign in his window:

"Our Fish are Weighed Without the Scales."

A grocer in a Connecticut town, having been visited by thieves three times within a month, placed this sign in one of his windows where the light showed it up clearly:

"There Is NO MONEY IN The Safe or Register. Please DO NOT Break The Doors or Windows As They Cost Money. If You Must Get In, Call For The Key at 10 L—— street, It Is Yours For The Asking."

SILENT SALESMEN.

The vital principle of successful retailing is to "show the goods." It has been frequently said that "goods well displayed are half sold." The negative of this would be, "goods poorly displayed will not sell well."

With the passage of the years the necessity for the display of merchandise, recognized with each succeeding day, has led men into the manufacture of store fixtures as a business, thus displacing the carpenter, who was about the only maker of fixtures— counters, shelving, etc., in the years that have gone.

It matters not in what line of merchandising you are engaged, it is necessary to show the goods.

When a shopper goes to the city or country retail store the goods must be placed where they may be examined.

Goods frequently sell themselves and the high grade modern fixtures that display an article to such advantage that the passerby stops to examine it and perhaps, as frequently happens, to enter the establishment and purchase the article, is an inexpensive, silent and yet aggressive salesman, working overhours uncomplainingly for the establishment.

With a steady advance in the art of merchandising the retailer has come to recognize the show windows as the very best "fixtures" to show goods to the passing throngs. Salesmen cannot exert their art in disposing of merchandise until the "prospect" enters the store. The window is a coaxer of trade, it is a begetter of business. And the up-to-date merchant uses it to the utmost.

The decoration of the show window has brought out the art of the maker of fixtures for this department, just as the necessity for the display of certain lines inside the establishment has given him ideas and suggestions for interior fixtures.—Commercial Bulletin and N. W. Trade.

HERE AND THERE WITH THE TRADE

Happenings Among Foodstuff Dealers of Your Brother Grocer From the Atlantic to the Pacific—News in all the Provinces.

T. Kinnear, Toronto, was in Peterboro last week.

Colgan & Wilson, grocers, Dundalk, Ont., have gone out of business.

A cold storage plant for the halibut fisheries is about to be established at Nanaimo, B.C.

Williams & Purcell, Seaforth, Ont., successors to B. B. Gunn, are preparing for a big Fall trade.

Boyd, Hickling & Co., Flesherton, Ont., are dissolving partnership. Mr. Boyd will continue the business.

Armand Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, was last week on a business trip to Quebec and district.

Durham, Ont., is enjoying a boom. The C.P.R. is building east to Teeswater and west to Preston to connect up their lines.

Lew Walsh, with John Welsh, St. Mary's, Ont., took in the Toronto Exhibition and got as much of it under his hat as most of them.

E. S. and Mrs. Ford, Mitchell, Ont., were in Toronto at the recent millinery openings. They didn't neglect the wholesale grocers either.

Ed. Walsh, of Walsh Bros., Stratford, Ont., and his nephew, Sandy Walsh, were in Toronto, Exhibition week and saw the wholesale trade.

J. Pattison, Fergus, was in Toronto Exhibition week and saw most of his wholesale friends. Everybody, they say, is always glad to see "Jimmy."

W. T. Stenberg, formerly a grocer in London, now a traveler for Mayell & Co., manufacturers of grocers' sundries, Toronto, was in Toronto on Saturday.

Kennedy Bros., Georgetown, Ont., are building a new block adjoining their premises. It will be occupied by the Bank of Commerce.

W. R. Smith, of Seaforth, Ont., successor to the late A. Young, says trade with him is very good and the outlook for the Fall is satisfactory.

R. Robertson is the latest addition to the traveling staff of T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto. His territory will be the North Shore.

Couch & Schneider, Mitchell, Ont., have been making extensive preparations for the Fair. They know what is good for the community and push it along.

Norman Gates, Galt, Ont., was married on Labor Day to a lady of St. Catherines. They have returned from their wedding trip, and Norman is again at work.

Jno. McEachren, Inglewood, after a few days visiting in Toronto and Hamilton is concluding two or three weeks' holidays on the shore of Lake Simcoe, near Beaverton, Ont.

A. E. Wenger, Ayton, Ont., is putting a new glass front into his store and making other improvements. When the work is completed the store will be one of the finest in Northwestern Ontario.

R. E. A. Stinson, Moorefield, Ont., has been in Toronto making purchases for his Fall trade, which promises to be better than ever.

The Jamieson Confectionery Co., Galt, Ont., have recently purchased the wholesale, retail and manufacturing business of Campbell & Spittal. Extensive improvements are being carried out.

W. Biggar, formerly with McFarlane, Stafford & Co., Markdale, Ont., is opening a grocery of his own in that thriving village. Mr. Biggar is enterprising and progressive and is sure to succeed.

A Kingston, Ont., despatch states celery-growers' report that the crop this year has been greatly damaged by blight. It has been in evidence for two years. One grower stated he would not sell $20 worth out of 7,000 plants.

Peter Anderson's marvellous tea store, Guelph, Ont., is reputed among travelers to be one of the nicest stores in Western Ontario, and Mr. Anderson has the reputation—one of the Up-to-Dates; anyway he keeps his store in fine shape.

C. M. McCollum, Brampton, Ont., while in Toronto recently is reported to have ordered a size larger hat. It's like this: They have a girl of five, but the first boy arrived lately. He's a dandy, and if any one doubts it ask his pa. Charlie is very convincing on the subject.

W. R. Cole, Mitchell, Ont., is a star bowler and is delighted at the success that has attended the Mitchellites this season. They won several trophies and were one of the few clubs to hold their own against the gentlemen from the Old Country.

A. D. Kirby and W. H. Wherry, Detroit, and W. Bong, Dr. James Sampson and A. H. Clarke, Windsor, have been incorporated as the San Diego Fruit Co. with share capital of $150,000. The head office of the company will be at Windsor.

Albert Ahrens & Co., Chicago, are receiving from three to six cars of Canadian turnips per day, and will continue until the season is over. Mr. Ahrens says the stock is very fine this year, and meets with a ready sale.—Fruitman's Guide.

Ald. W. H. McClarty, a leading grocer of Owen Sound, Ont., is one of the busiest men in the trade. Last week, when seen, he hadn't time to talk he was so taken up with hetping to make the Owen Sound Exhibition bigger and better than ever. It was he got the performing elephants that were the chief attraction before the grand stand at Toronto. The grocer alderman knows a good thing when he sees it, sure 'nough.

CENTRAL CANADA EXHIBITION

Great Fair at Ottawa—Some Needed Improvements—Large Attendance and Many Interesting Exhibits—Management are After the Dominion Fair Grant for Next Year.

The Exhibition of the Central Canada Fair Association held at Ottawa, Sept. 7 to 15, closed its doors upon the best attendance since its organization. A number of new and large buildings had been erected, notably the new Dairy Building and the auditorium, the latter no doubt the largest and best arranged public edifice of its kind in Canada. While the Exhibition directors are to be commended upon the improvements in their latest buildings they are certainly open to censure for neglecting the grounds proper. The Fair has gone beyond village and township shows and it is high time that the management paid attention to laying out the grounds in proper roadways, sidewalks and paths. Another, and still more chilling sight is the patched-up, ungainly and ugly grandstand. Such a monstrosity might well be made the sport of a charitable bonfire some night with Chief Prevost and his brigade on hand to protect the other buildings. On the other hand the fine Main Building is a credit to the association, barring the inefficient ventilation. This was a complaint on the part of nearly every exhibitor and must be remedied in the future. There are ample opportunities, with the lovely park and canal bank and pond, at hand for making the Fair grounds an ideal show spot. The management aspire for the Dominion Fair grant of 1907.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Battle Creek Health Food Co.

Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa—Comfort Soap.

As regards the exhibits proper, the number shown was given out as in excess of those of previous years and on the whole were most satisfactory and from an educational point of view, highly instructive. A process building is also a necessity, as the wind-tossed, unprotected sheds along the banks of the canal have outlived their usefulness. The attendance was large and Secretary E. McMahon and Treasurer T. Cameron Bate were busy officials throughout the Exhibition. To these gentlemen The Grocer representative is indebted for many kindnesses. Next year, it was stated, the public would find many improvements and as the Central Canada Exhibition is an established event and an annual outing for the whole of Eastern and Central Canada, the greatest encouragement should be given to these gentlemen, the president and directors, in their efforts to make the Ottawa Fair the Mecca for all Canada.

Pugsley, Dingman & Co., Toronto.

Pugsley, Dingman & Co., Toronto, proprietors of Comfort Soap, have had many and handsome exhibits at Canada's leading Exhibitions, but the one at the Central Canada Fair in Ottawa this year will stand out as a rare achievement of artistic arrangement and effective advertising. A glance at the photo will show the excellent position of the display, the huge bar of Comfort Soap in the centre, the guessing of the weight of which was attempted by thousands every day. And the effort to guage the weight of the monster cake was worthy the thought of all as the five handsome premiums for the winners were valuable enough to make the short-weight guessers envious. The cottage in the centre in bright and cheerful colors and draperies was hung with an array of the handsome premium pictures that go to savers of Comfort Soap wrappers. As at the Sherbrooke Fair, visitors brought thousands of wrappers for redemption of pictures, silverware, jewelry and useful household articles. F. D. Cockburn, Montreal representative, assisted by the two Eastern Ontario and Ottawa representatives, the latter of whom being the designer of the booth, worked like the proverbial beaver to keep up with the inquiries for premiums, guessing slips, while a number of most satisfactory orders were secured from visiting merchants. That "Comfort Soap was all right" was evident on all sides, and the entire display in its conception and artistic arrangement well deserved the Exhibition Association's diploma for the best design and exhibit in the class.

Battle Creek Health Food.

Near the eastern entrance of the Main Building the exhibit of the products of the Battle Creek Health Food Co., Limited, Canadian factory, London, Ont., was one of the most striking, attractive and best patronized booths. The arrangement was one that brought out clearly the various health foods, Life Chips, Granose Flakes, Granose Biscuits, Granola and Caramel cereal coffee. These foods, so extensively advertised throughout the United States and Canada, have received the most favorable consideration on the part of the consumer, and the grocery trade of Canada is extending its support to them in a manner that is not only profitable to itself but also a reflection of the consumers' appreciation. Life Chips, a blend of the choicest white Winter wheat toasted and mixed with best quality of malt, contains body and brain-building elements, and as a breakfast food is a necessity to every well conducted household. Served with cream and sugar by the young lady demonstrators, it elicited highly commendatory remarks. Granose Flakes and Granose Biscuits, two dainty, flaky wheat products, are especially prepared as a food for invalids, dyspeptics and infants, and eaten with cream or fruit juices, make a unique and healthful diet. Granola is a health food pure and simple, and is a mixture of the most nutritive grains, thoroughly worked, dextrinized and granulated, and its introduction by the Battle Creek Health Food Co., Limited, has received the praise of the most eminent physicians and nerve specialists. Put up in 1-lb. cartons to retail at 15c., it is a line that should interest profitably every grocer. In their search for healthy articles of diet, the Battle Creek Health Food Co., Limited, have not hesitated to attack the drinking customs of the public and after a thirty years' close study of the effect of tea and coffee drinking on the human system, have secured in their caramel cereal coffee a substitute for the nerve-racking tea leaf and coffee bean. It is a purely cereal preparation of different grains producing a very fragrant, flavory and rich beverage, having the appearance and general characteristics of coffee without its deleterious effects on the body and brain.

The exhibit was designed by and was under the direct personal supervision of E. A. Shoebotham, the representative of the Battle Creek Health Food Co. He was assisted by Mrs. Taylor, the company's head demonstrator, and a staff of three young ladies, whose training assisted in placing the qualities of the various products appreciatively before visitors. The leading grocers of Canada can make no mistake in placing these excellent foods on sale. Same are obtainable from the leading grocery jobbers from Halifax to Vancouver.

Motard, Fils & Senecal, Montreal.

The exhibit of Motard, Fils & Senecal, Montreal, located in the Main Building, drew to itself the attention of visitors in a manner that should prove advantageous to the company. Its singularity consisted in being the only exhibit of the famous wine of the Trappist Fathers of Oka, P.Q., known as "Vin Phosphate au Quinquina." This tonic wine, for which Motard, Fils & Senecal are sole agents throughout the world, is coming rapidly to the front as an almost indispensable article to sufferers from anaemia, asthma, rheumatism and stomach troubles. Its endorsation by leading physicians places it at once in the category of indispensable tonics, and the grocery and wine merchants will find it to their advantage to recommend and sell it. Messrs. Motard, Fils & Senecal also displayed the famous Fournier & Co. Brandy (V. Fournier & Co., Cognac, France) whose reputation is world-wide, it being a celebrated medicinal brandy and possessing properties that appeal to every connoisseur and epicure. Since the introduction of this cognac by Motard, Fils & Senecal, the demand has increased in a remarkable degree, the trade judging it to be of especial merit and favor. Orders for both the Vin Quinquina and Fournier cognac are shipped from the Montreal warehouses of Motard, Fils & Senecal, 5 Place Royale. The American agency for Vin Phosphate au Quinquina is at Rouse's Point, N.Y., from which point the wine has been introduced and placed on sale in Boston, New York, Providence, Worcester, Springfield and other Eastern States business centres. so long on the Canadian market as to become a household word. The land is covered with Packard's shoe shining stands and particularly in large cities is it evident that people use Packard's shoe dressings. The booth, which was in charge of James William Strike, advertising manager, and H. Walter Daly, representing the company between Quebec and Winnipeg, and well did they demonstrate the quality of their Black-O, Tan-O and French glycerine. With their selling privileges the demand for Black-O was remarkable, and although ample stock was thought to have been provided, it was found necessary to wire for more supplies. Packard's shoe dressings are growing into greater favor day by day and as only the very best materials are used in their manufacture an absolutely safe polish is always guaranteed. "The grocery trade will find Black-O a winning 10c. shoe polish," said Mr. Strike. "The only trouble seems to be that we cannot keep up with our orders, despite the fact that L. H. Packard & Co. have to-day the largest and best equipped shoe dressing and polish plant in Canada."

Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal.

As usual at Dominion and Provincial Exhibitions, the Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal, exhibit was one of the most striking. At this Fair, the exhibit, which was located in the new Dairy Building, occupied a prominent position, being located at the right hand side of the main entrance. The display of the company's products was splendidly arranged and showed in an effective manner the maple sugar confections, maple sugar syrups, etc. The putting up of maple products in this way ensures hygenic conditions that appeal to the consumer. In addition to the maple cream chocolates, maple cream frosting cremo, etc., the Canada Maple Exchange have received ah ETAOIN SHRDLU h have secured the sole control of the output of the Quebec Maple Co., whose products number, among others, the "Habitant" brand of Beauce County maple syrup. Many dealers have a demand for a cheap line of syrup, and the Canada Maple Exchange is in a position to supply their requirements in a manner to satisfy every dealer and consumer. The cheaper grades of maple syrup are guaranteed to be made from pure Beauce County sugar and the fact that the demand for same is growing rapidly is an evidence of their good qualities. The brands of the Canada Maple Exchange have obtained a reputation that extends not only through Canada, but also in England, South Africa and other foreign countries. The booth at the Ottawa Fair was designed and arranged by Mr. Hanam, local representative, and with the assistance of several saleslaadies a large business was done.

Minto Bros., Toronto.

The only exhibit of tea at the Canada Central Fair was that of Minto Bros.' "Melagama." The booth in the centre aisle of the Main Building was one so unique and strikingly attractive that it in itself drew to it constant crowds. Aside from the booth effect the sampling of Melagama tea was an event to every lady visitor and housekeeper attending the Fair, and the merits of the tea were appraised at high value. One of the features of the booth, and a splendid idea, was the lady fortune teller, clad in a bright Mother Hubbard costume lettered with the legend "Melagama tea." Many a fortune she was called upon to decide with the lingering tea leaves, the greatest fortune to all being that the drinking of Melagama tea was essential to success and health and happiness. The reception that Melagama tea has met in Ottawa and the Valley towns must be flattering and satisfactory to Messrs. Minto Bros., and F. J. White, proprietor, whom The Grocer met during the week, expressed himself most optimistically as to the future prospects in Eastern Canada. W. Men, representative, and who designed and planned the booth and campaign during the Fair, was most assiduous in his efforts to show the public the good tea that Melagama is. It is a feather in his cap that his booth was awarded the diploma for best display and design. Assisted by Mrs. Brown, chief demonstrator, and two young ladies, he gave to visitors to the Fair the closest attention. That profitable results will follow is a foregone conclusion. Good work with good goods always wins out.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—
Rice—Advanced.
Fish—Revised.
Currants—Advanced.
Evaporated apples—Declined 1-2c.

Montreal, Sept. 20, 1906.

Trade is in a healthy condition, and few complaints as to lack of business are heard around either wholesale or retail establishments. The upward tendency in grocery lines is still noticeable more so in certain lines than in others. The dried fruit market particularly illustrates the tendency of the trade at present. California raisins have been advanced, while Valencias are such that no one cares to say anything about them. Currants are higher than at the time of our last report, while nuts continue their flight. Canned goods prices for tomatoes and corn are not yet out, as it was thought they would be by this time. However, everybody has a story to tell as to what prices are going to be, but no person is in a position to state for a certainty what figures will rule. There has been on change in sugar since last report, and jobbers say they are doing a good business. Molasses is unchanged, while coffee is little different to what it was last week. Spices remain about the same. Tea presents no new feature other than the advance in flavoring Ceylon blacks. Evaporated apples are easier this week, as is also honey. Rice has been advanced ten cents since last report.

There is said to be little trouble in making collections, jobbers being quite satisfied with the way the money is coming in.

CANNED GOODS—Contrary to expectations prices were not given out on tomatoes and corn as a result of the meeting of the canners last week. It cannot be said that there is a great deal of disappointment in the trade in consequence, but nevertheless merchants are desirous of having prices as soon as possible. Many wish to buy in these lines, but prefer waiting for the new prices, to taking old stock at figures now ruling. Rumors as to the probable price of tomatoes are still going the rounds. Every person has his own version of the situation, so that it is hard to learn anything definite and at the same time authoritative. As a matter of fact there is probably nobody in a position to speak of prices with any degree of certainty, since the canners themselves did not deem it advisable to fix them when they met. It is likely that lists will be out in ten days or so at most, before which time it would be difficult to state anything in the way of reliable information. In the meantime there is no surplus of old stock on hand, fish, and salmon in particular being scarce.

SUGAR—Very good business has been done under last week's advance in price. Country orders for Fall trade are very good, while business in the city is also satisfactory. The only complaint made by jobbers is that they cannot obtain the sugar to make deliveries, but this is being gradually remedied with the coming forward of supplies.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Molasses is unchanged, the market being about firm. There are some who are surprised that the state of raw sugar has not affected the market. To date, however, the advancing tendency of this article has not been felt in the molasses market.

Syrups are picking up for Fall and some good orders have been booked recently.

TEA—There is very little that is new in the tea market at present. The only feature this week is the advance in Ceylon blacks. Cable advices from the island say that there has been an advance of a penny a pound on flavory blacks. Ceylon and Indian greens are a little dearer. There is a good inquiry for all grades of Japans, including siftings and fannings. Of the latter two there is very little held, however. China greens are going very well at about last week's figures, while blacks are on the quiet side.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS— Prices are still upwards inclined in nearly all lines. Valencia raisins are unsettled. Watt, Scott & Goodacre, in their report of September 18, say of the situation:

Shippers of Valencia raisins are very conservative in accepting orders, and will only act in a cautious manner; while we have no positive advance to report, it would not surprise us to see one at any moment. Sultanas are strongly held at the latest advance. The prognostication of our last circular regarding currants is verified by an advance of 1-6 per cwt. to-day, with a strong market. We have advised our friends to secure fruit from the very opening and we still do so. The Jacona (the last direct steamer) will reach Patras about 20th, so prompt action is necessary.

California raisins are advancing, being now half a cent above the opening price. The market is strong according to advices received. Packers are troubled by lack of labor. The wet weather will produce a noticeable effect on prunes of the cheaper grades, and buyers of these lines may be prepared to meet with damaged stock when making their purchases. In nuts, the upward tendency continues. Shelled almonds are now quoted 30c. to 30 1-2c.; shelled walnuts, 24 1-2c.; grenobles, 14c.: Tarragona almonds, 14 1-2c. to 15c.; Brazils, 16 1-2c. to 17c.; filberts, 9 1-2c. to 10c., and French walnuts from 9 1-2c. to 10c.

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKETS.

Montreal, Thursday, Sept. 20, 1906.

BUTTER—No change in market situation.

CHEESE—Prices slightly higher. Demand very good.

EGGS—Nothing new. Prices hold steady.

PROVISIONS—Sales of smoked meats continue fair to good. Prices unchanged. Dressed hogs quoted $9.50 to $9.75 per 100 lbs.

EVAPORATED APPLES— The market this week is easier in tone. Dealers are quoting 8c., at which price there is fair business passsing.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—Rice has been advanced ten cents. This is the feature of this market, otherwise there is nothing new. Trade is fair to good. Tapioca is not in very strong demand, owing, of course, to the high price asked.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

FLUCTUATIONS—
Sugar—Still firm.
Dried Fruit—Scarcer.

Toronto, Sept. 20, 1906.

Business is generally good in the grocery and foodstuff trade, with no new features. The interest in dried fruits continues and eack week the market is barer. There are some indications of a panicy feeling among the retailers, showing itself in the manner of their buying. There is of course the possibility that this market may go short, and the opinion is strong that prices will not go lower, at anyrate not until after the heavy demand for Christmas trade; yet the wholesalers here are buying very sparingly, and the cautious would advise the retailer to go slow also. There are reports of retailers buying at the present high prices pretty heavily of fruit so poor that a little while ago they would not have had it at any price. The gain is not with the risk.

New pack corn and tomatoes are in all the jobbers' hands, but prices are not yet forthcoming. The packers want to see the end of the pack. A sudden frost might put the cover on in a hurry.

Sugar is less interesting, not to say easier. Collections are pretty satisfactory.

CANNED GOODS—No changes are reported and prices on corn and tomatoes are looked for daily to launch a big trade. Initial shipments of the new pack of sockeyes went out this week.

SUGAR—Due it is said to reassuring news from Cuba, European beet turned easier on Monday and went from 10s. 3d, the Saturday price, to 9s. 10½d. Tuesday, however, showed a recovery to 10s. The market in New York is still firm, and there are very few offerings. The recent course of the market has been as follows:

Sept. 12.—European beet, 9s. 10d, f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 4.06c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees.

Sept. 13.—European beet, 9s. 11½d, f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to a shade on 4.09c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees.

Sept. 14.—European beet, 10s. 3d, f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 4.16c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees.

Sept. 15.—No change.

Sept. 17.—European beet, 9s. 10½d, f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 4.07c. duty paid New York.

Sept. 18. — European beet, 10s., f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to 4.10c. duty paid New York for centrifugals 96 degrees.

Willett & Gray, at the end of last week said: "The immediate end of the insurrection would scarcely recover the losses already occurred, while the fact of its occurrence at all will tend to set the island backward several years in its prosperity. Sugars therefore of the world must be considered as on a low basis generally and liable to a more marked improvement than has taken place in years. As bearing upon the present situation in Cuba the parallel case of the Spanish war may be cited.

The crop of 1904-95 was 1,031,097 tons and the anticipation for 1895-96 was for 1,200,000 tons. Under the proclamations and acts of the insurgents in destroying the cane fields a million tons of this disappeared and only 231,180 tons were made."

The total stock of Europe and America is 1,737,794 tons, against 1,191,482 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 446,312 tons, against an increase of 462,406 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together, show a visible supply of 1,987,794 tons, against 1,681,482 tons last year, or an increase of 306,312 tons.

TEA—Prices in primary markets are firming up on improved quality coming forward. Locally low grades are receiving some more attention. McMeeking & Co. in their review of the London market for the month of August say :

"Although the quality from Darjeeling and Assam was generally good, and of a few marks specially so, it did not approach the exceptional level registered during August of 1905. There was a very strong demand for everything of stand out character, and the average prices made by the teas from those two districts were close up to the level of August last year. The quantity offered at the close of the month proved too great for the demand, and there was slack bidding with a fall registered on most kinds. The demand for poor and indifferent liquoring sorts was very limited, and those continued to recede in price."

W. J. & H. Thompson's mail advice from London, of Sept. 6, says :

"The statistical position of Ceylon tea is shown by last month's London figures to be steadily improving, for the stocks in bond on 31st August were some two million lbs. less than in 1905, and, though imports were smaller, clearances were 400,000 lbs. ahead of the corresponding period last year; in view of these facts the slightly lower average price now obtainable is apparently entirely due to the reduced quotations for common tea. On the other hand, heavier deliveries of Indian tea have failed to keep pace with the increase in imports, with the result that stocks at the end of last month were fully 8,000,000 lbs. in excess of 1905—a somewhat unsatisfactory position, especially when it is remembered that the poorness of the quality compared with last year's standard has been to a great extent responsible for the fall of over 1d. per lb. in the average price."

COFFEE—Locally the market is unchanged. The speculative market abroad has experienced a drop, but authorities continue to assert that prices for the real article are going higher. Speculators in a body, it is said, are on the shut side, and the Brazil crop has suffered severely from drought.

DRIED FRUITS—Primary prices on Turkish natural figs have advanced one to two shillings within a week. The price of Comadra figs, a Portuguese variety, is unchanged, but in view of the general advance on all fruits it is thought not unlikely they will follow suit. Locally, Sultana raisins are practically unobtainable. The market for the new crop continues firm and there is no indication of any backward movement. Currants are somewhat of an enigma. High prices are not thought to be justified by the natural conditions, but the advance continues nevertheless. The situation is not a natural one, the first factor after the crop being the retention law of Greece. The Valencia raisin market continues firm without indication of any concession in price. The local market is practically bare of prunes. One house has some Austrians and a quotation is made for them, but the other quotations are merely nominal.

HONEY—The supply is very limited and, as expected, prices are considerably over last year. Honey, however, is a luxury and as prices advance the demand falls off and people turn to other things. N. B. MARKETS

St. John, N.B., Sept. 19.

The markets generally have not shown much change since last report. A fair volume of Fall trade is in progress. The root and grain crops in this province will be short this year, owing to the drought. The lumber trade continues active. In the wholesale trade there is considerable interest now in green and dried fruit and canned goods. In the fish market there is no change except that smoked herring are quoted higher at 10c. to 10½c. Cheese and butter continue at a high level.

OIL—There is no change in quotations in this line. The demand for burning oil is increasing as the Autumn advances. Gasoline is still in good demand and stocks light. In other oils business is quiet.

SALT—The price of coarse salt here is governed by the price in England. Last year the price was 53 cents ex ship here. Last Spring the combine was broken, with the result that the price fell to 47 cents. It has for some time now been 49 cents, and this will continue for the present season. As the English combine has patched up its differences, higher prices are expected for next season. There is a fair volume of trade here.

CANNED GOODS—Corn is very low in stock and in few hands in this market. Tomatoes and peas are firmly held. Salmon are very strong, and prices are stiffer than in the Spring. Trade generally is fairly active. As before stated, sardines are a light pack this season and oysters also scarce.

GREEN FRUIT — Regarding apples, the fruit inspector here states that Nova Scotia Gravensteins and Pippins are not up to the mark this year, and it looks as if the proportion of No. 1 would be about one in four. Winter apples look well. Some Ontario apples have been received here. Ontario grapes, pears and peaches are now on the market. Ontario plums are rather high for this market, but Nova Scotia supplies a few. Some California grapes are still arriving, at reasonable figures. Oranges and lemons are in fair supply at firm prices. There is a good trade in bananas.

DRIED FRUIT—Higher prices are asked at the coast for California prunes and both loose and seeded raisins. Fairly good stocks had been purchased for this market before the advance. The currant market is reported decidedly strong. American Silverskin onions in bags are now on the market, and may be landed here almost as cheap as Canadian. The tendency is therefore a little easier.

SUGAR—There has been an advance in price in sympathy with other markets. Dealers here are well supplied.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION NEWS

"The Canadian Grocer" the Official Organ.

Address all communications for this department to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 511 Union Bank Building, Winnipeg, Man.

Midsummer has long been known as the "silly season," the time for seaside flirtations which run their brief and passionate course, seldom or never resulting in matrimony, the time when the magazines are filled with the lighter class of fiction supposed to be suited to the literary tastes of the people during a foolish part of the year, the time when the newspapers are at a loss for news of interest and when as a consequence their otherwise dull pages are filled with improbable but interesting stories which masquerade as fact but are really the product of the fertile imaginations of reporters and news editors at their wits' end for "features."

With the beginning of September midsummer is a thing of the past, according to the calendars, but the hottest weather of the year came in the early part of the month, and it is therefore not surprising to find a Winnipeg contemporary still suffering from the effects of the "silly season."

In a silly editorial this contemporary goes out of its way to cast doubts upon the fact that this paper has been appointed, and is at the present time, the officially recognized medium for news of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada. In a very foolish editorial which reveals considerable editorial excitement caused by the extreme heat, the assertion is made that our contemporary seeks no "puppet" title, but is best qualified to be given a "puppet" title. The rash remark is made by our contemporary that it has the authority of the leading officials of the association for the statement that they recognize no paper as their official organ. Evidently some of the officials have been testing the credulity of a credulous reporter during the "silly season," and this editorial is the result. The trade are too well aware of the relations existing between the association and The Canadian Grocer (and of the reasons which led to the establishment of this relationship) to be at all disturbed by the editorial in question.

During the hot weather and before the opening of the Fall trade association business has also been quiet. Secretary Coulson has visited several country points helping to adjust local differences and assisting in effecting local organization. Money is reported "tight" in all quarters and perhaps this is not the best time of year to press for the collection of fees; but it must not be forgotten that the association is helpless without the "sinews of war," and that the fees of many members are still unpaid.

A splendid example of the benefits which it is possible to derive from a strong local organization of dealers is furnished by the success of the association of the retail grocers in Winnipeg. Winnipeg grocers are now meeting regularly and giving each other information that is of great value. Poor pay customers are now pretty well known and the "delinquent list" is kept up to date. Members wonder now how it was that they did not have their association years ago.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, 1906.)

General business continues very active with few changes in price. Money is reported "tight," and it will be some little time before conditions will be much improved by the marketing of the crop.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 18, 1906.

The grocery markets continue quite active, trade being good all around with prices steady. Dried fruits are very scarce and the prices high. Valencia layer raisins are quoted at 8c. and 9c., and the price of Sultanas is higher than ever before. New canned goods are very slow in arriving and jobbers are at some loss to understand the present condition of affairs. Poultry is not very plentiful yet, and the stock marketed brings high prices, chickens and ducks selling at one dollar per pair for fair sized birds. Fresh pork is also scarce. Beef is in fairly good supply, but lamb is scarce, being quoted at 10c. and 11c. The first shipment of Nova Scotia apples was made during the close of the week when the steamer London City took 3,500 barrels for London direct.

FRUIT—Native apples are coming on the market more plentiful, but the stock offered for sale is of very poor quality. It is thought that the late varieties will be better. Gravensteins will be scarce this season and it is expected that the best quality will bring very high prices. Dealers are still complaining of the high prices and the scarcity of oranges and lemons. Jamaicas are worth about $8 per barrel and Valencias $6 for 200 count. Lemons are $9.50 per case. California Bartlett pears are $5 per box, American Bartletts $5 to $7, per barrel and Nova Scotia the same. Cranberries are now on the market and are selling at $3.50 per bushel. Notwithstanding the early reports regarding the shortage in the plum crop, a great quantity was marketed this week. The cheap varieties, such as Moore's Arctic, are selling at 30c. to 40c. per basket, while the better varieties, like Lombards, green gage and egg plums are quoted at 50c. to 60c. per six-quart basket. Bananas are selling at $1.75 to $2. Potatoes advanced in price during the week, caused by the partial failure of the crops raised by local farmers who supply the market until the late crop arrives. They are quoted at 70c. per bushel.

BUTTER AND EGGS—Both butter and eggs are moving upwards and the prices are expected to go still higher before the close of this month. The receipts of both are very limited just at present, and with the approaching exhibition the demand will be heavy. There is very little good dairy butter on the market now and what there is available is quoted at 21c. to 22c. Creamery is quoted at 25c. and large tubs of fair quality are worth 20c. There will be very little local made dairy butter placed on the market while the exhibition is on. Eggs of fair quality are quoted at 20c. and guaranteed strictly fresh eggs are fetching 25c to 30c in small lots, the latter price being obtained by the market people who come to the city once a week to retail their stock.

FISH—There is considerable movement of fish just now and the market is a little unsettled. High prices are being quoted by those who hold codfish in stock. One firm has refused an offer of $6 per quintal for a thousand quintal lot.

W. H. Stone, Winnipeg, was in Toronto this week and called upon The Canadian Grocer.

.. TRIP FOR THE WORKERS.

Toronto Retail Grocers' Association Reward the Active Ones.

The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association cleared in the neighborhood of $200 on their annual picnic. This success was attained only by much painstaking effort on the part of some members of the committee. To show appreciation of the work done a resolution was passed at the last meeting of the association that $100 be devoted to giving the deserving members an outing, and Vice-Chairman Snow appointed a committee to name the deserving ones. The little company took their outing last week end. It consisted of a trip to Alexander Bay and return by the splendid R. & O. steamer Toronto. They left Toronto Saturday afternoon and returned Monday.

Those who went were: Thos. Clark, Fred Thorne, J. S. Bond, F. W. Johnston and Mrs. Johnston, President R. Van Loon, Vice-President R. B. Snow, R. H. Stewart, David Bell, D. Panter and D. McLean. H. D. Kelly and C. T. Cootes were among those selected to go but were unable to get away.

They all had a very enjoyable time and were enthusiastic in their praise of the comforts afforded on the steamer Toronto.

OVER THE 100,000 MARK.

Following is a copy of a letter received by the New York branch of the Salada Tea Co., and speaks for itself.

"Salada" is always forging ahead.

Toronto, Sept. 14, 1906.

Messrs. The "Salada" Tea Co.,
198 West Broadway,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs,—You will be glad to hear that at last we have gotten over the hundred thousand pound mark for one week, including black, mixed and green tea. One week recently we put out 100,709 lbs., and every ounce of this was in "Salada" packets. We hope before very long to keep up to this rate every week.

As the total importations of tea into Canada during the past fiscal year, ending June 30, 1906, were twenty-five million pounds, we will do this year close on one-fifth of the entire tea business of Canada.

Yours truly,
P. C. LARKINS & CO.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Our last week's cheese puzzle is being rapidly solved by a substantial further advance in market prices. There seems to be no pressing demand to cause this new advance, but it seems quite evident that September made cheese have been sold "forward" and these contracts must be filled at any cost.

This has been truly a remarkable season. Prices have ruled high right along. Everybody engaged in the cheese business on either side of the Atlantic has been timid to operate for higher prices and many operators sold goods ahead, expecting declining prices in the near future. Instead we had steadily advancing markets and the "short sales" have been a losing game all along the line.

We have pointed out the real situation in these articles right along, viz., a very much decreased production of milk, on account of the unusually prolonged hot and dry Summer, and an increased consumption of cheese on account of the canned meats scare in the United Kingdom.

Recent cable advices report lower markets in Great Britain, but in the face of this our markets show a substantial advance in prices, which simply adds to the puzzling situation, and it means that if the cheese are really wanted in Great Britain, the importers there must pay current market prices here to obtain the goods.

On September 1 the stocks of cheese in London, Liverpool and Bristol were reported at 337,000 boxes against 222,000 boxes last year, showing an accumulation of 115,000 boxes, but the consumptive demand is still on and our stocks in Canada are fully that much less.

Our receipts in Montreal were last week 81,402 boxes of cheese and 21,914 packages of butter, against 90,775 boxes of cheese and 25,306 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,623,116 boxes of cheese and 486,111 packages of butter, as compared with 1,581,381 boxes of cheese and 587,508 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Our exports were last week 61,467 boxes of cheese and 12,156 packages of butter, against 50,125 boxes of cheese and 26,599 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or a total since May 1 of 1,495,977 boxes of cheese and 293,368 packages of butter, as compared with 1,344,385 boxes of cheese and 428,545 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

The above figures mean increased receipts of cheese in Montreal of 41,735 boxes, increased shipments of 151,592 boxes, leaving 109,857 boxes of cheese less in stock in Montreal than a year ago. In butter we find a decrease in receipts of 101,397 packages and a decrease in shipments of 135,177 packages, leaving 23,780 packages more in stock in Montreal than at the same time last year.

With approximately 110,000 boxes of cheese less in store in Montreal and 115,000 boxes more in store in the three principal centres in Great Britain, the statistical position regarding visible supplies is not much altered at present, but last year's Fall make of cheese was undoubtedly larger than what we can expect this year on account of the enormous shrinkage in milk, and adding an increased consumption of cheese this year, the situation seems decidedly "bullish" and higher prices seem inevitable.

Butter is also in a puzzling position. It has been cheaper, comparatively, than cheese the whole season, yet stocks have accumulated here over last year as prices have been above an export basis, in spite of a much reduced make, but the weather in European countries supplying Great Britain with butter has also been hot and dry this season, and our short shipments of 135,177 packages so far this season may soon be felt so that further orders will be sent here.

THE PROVISION SITUATION.

The quantity of Danish bacon being marketed in England at the moment is less than at the same time last year, and the indications are that for a few weeks they will run fairly light in quantity. After that the reports that come from Denmark are to the effect that there will be a lot of hogs marketed there, which will mean a lower price for bacon. In Ireland a larger number of hogs than ordinary are being marketed on account of the potato crop shortage. The tendency will be to get them off this to other feed. Ireland's output has been from 25 to 30 thousand hogs a week, of which 8 or 10 thousand were cured and the rest shipped live to Great Britain for slaughter. That means probably a million hogs in the island for which the owners will be seeking a new food.

Then, again, the quantities of bacon coming from Belgium and Central Europe are larger than usual. Trade conditions in England and the demand for bacon, all things considered, is good. The factor that has made the market disappointing and upset the calculations of Canadian packers, has been the increased supplies of American. The consumption of bacon over in England has been remarkably good, stimulated as it has been by the decrease in the consumption of canned meats, the sale of those products having fallen off almost entirely. The people have returned to bacon, and consumption has been greater than in any Summer in recent years. It has now, however, been sufficient to absorb the American bacon on the market. There has not been, as a result, what would be called a firm market this Summer. The Canadian packer has been steadily above the market in the cost of his raw material anywhere from one to ten shillings per cwt. during the past season.

There is, of course, an increased quantity of hogs being taken all the time for domestic purposes, which has materially helped to decrease the exports of Canadian bacon. The number of hogs utilized now for the domestic trade in Canada is now running about 5 to 8 thousand a week the year through. Six or seven years ago this number was only a thousand. The total killings in Canada have been running from 15 to 20 thousand a week, which means that a very important percentage of it is going into Canadian trade. The demand for Canadian meats has been active and has resulted in the price of hogs being unduly stimulated.

The immediate situation is that the packers are getting almost no hogs in Ontario. Conditions are probably natural, farmers not having had time since threshing to get hogs ready for market. Receipts at the packing houses have been less than ever before in September. Advices are, however, that, beginning next week, there will be more hogs to come out, but there will be no liberal supplies for 5 or 6 weeks to come. That would seem to indicate that prices will remain pretty nearly the same as they are for some time. For export the price of hogs is still too high, but the packers hope that the small quantity of Canadian bacon on the English market 6 weeks hence will lead to higher prices, but that depends on the supplies of Danish and American.

OUR LONDON, (ENG.) LETTER.

London, Sept. 5, 1906.

A large quantity of Canadian butter has recently reached this market in a very bad condition. This is a matter which calls for most thorough investigation, for if Canadians are determined, as they say they are, to build for themselves a reputation for their butter over here, they will have to do a great deal better than they are doing at present. There are, it is readily admitted, certain Canadian shippers, whose butter is of a very high standard, indeed a butter expert told the writer that he had handled Canadian butter equal to the best Danish, but this fact is far from being sufficient to establish a first-class reputation. There must be greater uniformity in quality. There are certain Canadian factories, who are persistently turning out mouldy butter, and it is such as these that are undoing the good work done by those Canadian factories whose reputation is favorably known in Britain. The names of the culprits are known, and, it may be said, their butters have been examined by the Canadian Government inspector here in London, and the matter will be taken up further in Canada. The Canadian officials will be doing neither more nor less than their duty in watching the defaulting shippers very closely, and in seeing that no mouldy butter is sent this way.

Canadians know best themselves how this evil can be prevented. In the first place, all factories should see to it that their refrigerating apparatus are cooled, not by ice, which damps the air, but by cool air, which can be regulated in temperature to suit occasion. Of course there will be those who will argue that this involves no small expense, but it is a question of reputation versus small expense, and as reputation means ultimate success it is not difficult to see which alternative to choose.

If Australia can sent to the British markets butter free from mould, why cannot Canada? The Canadian Government should have greater powers in the supervision of creameries, in the same manner as the New Zealand Government has control over its butter exportation, and nothing should be permitted to pass, about which there is any doubt. When a man in London buys No. 1 New Zealand grade he knows he is getting a first-class article.

A London importer of considerable standing and practical experience, has declared his opinion that in Canada the cream is not collected sufficiently frequent. It should be gathered at least three or four times a week. The difficulty of these frequent collections is not being overlooked but in an industry of such vital importance to Canada's commercial standing, details of this kind should be carefully studied. To mix Monday's cream with Wednesday's cream is, on the face of it, a very bad principle.

To quote once more a London importer, "We feel, as regards ice in the freight cars, that this is a mistake. The cars should be refrigerated in one way only—by cool air. Canadian butter deserves greater care both in transit and in making, for it is of an excellent texture."

CURE FOR MOULDY BUTTER.

Government Inspection—G. A. Putnam's Comments on London Letter.

When shown the letter of the Canadian Grocer's London, England, correspondent regarding mouldy butter, G. A. Putnam, Toronto, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes for Ontario, agreed almost entirely with the writer. He said:

"Yes, we should have Government inspection at the point of export. I don't see how we can be certain of uniformity in our goods and high quality unless we have some method of Government inspection either at central points throughout the provinces or at the point of shipment. Butter should be graded, and if the future is to be considered, a minimum standard should be fixed. Anything below that standard should not be allowed to be shipped out."

"We are doing all that we possibly can with our facilities, to better the quality, but since the introduction of cream separators, it seems impossible to get the quality as fine as it was a few years ago. The reason is that the creamery men are making butter at as low a price as they can and they are gathering the cream only a few times a week, in some cases only twice. What can you expect? Unless you get a raw material right you cannot expect to get your butter right. The real cause of the trouble is the lack of quality in the raw material. This is partly due to the producers not taking proper care and partly to not gathering the cream often enough. Blame, too, rests with some of the creamery men who are not clean and particular enough in the handling of their milk. It is not so much the case now, but at one time separator agents told farmers that separators need be washed out and scalded only every other day and that the rest of the time rincing would do. I believe it is possible to get all our creameries to put out a good quality of butter. Our Ontario butter is not as good as Quebec butter because down there they gather the whole milk, cream and all, just as we used to do here and the creamery has control of the cream from start to finsh."

"Is it possible to go back to the old system of collection in Ontario?" Mr. Putnam was asked.

"We could probably by that means, get a butter that would bring a cent or two more, but the farmers would rather take one or two cents less and have the sweet milk for his calves, and likewise save the increased cost of hauling the milk to the creamery."

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—With prices unchanged, the situation remains as it was last week. Locally there is some trade passing in a jobbing way, but otherwise things are inclined to be quiet. Export business is very small, where any is done.

BUTTER—This week the market is quiet but firm, with unchanged prices. From England the demand is slow, particularly has it been so during the past two weeks. Until that market moves one way or the other, we shall not likely see much alteration in the prices here. Shipments have not been heavy, showing that export orders have not been numerous.

Choicest creamery, salt	0 23½	0 23½
Medium creamery	0 22½	0 23

CHEESE—Another advance has occurred, and with the marketing of the September make, continued high prices are looked for. While stocks in England are accumulating, here they are less than usual, shipments having been very liberal right along this season. Present prices are expected to be maintained, if not improved upon, as the trade seem to think there is a lot of September cheese sold for forward shipment, on which orders will have to be filled. Shipments during the past two weeks have been on the light side, but this, apparently, has not been sufficient to curtail the upward movement in prices.

EGGS—During the past three weeks the market has remained practically without a change. This week is the third, and prices quoted are just about the same as were asked three weeks ago. Selects bring 20c. to 21c., while No. 1 will bring 17½c. to 18c. Consumption is just about equal to receipts.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—What changes in prices there are this week are downward and they are not very important. Long clear pea meal backs are somewhat easier. Short cut is $1 a barrel less. Lard in tierces has backed up 1-4c. The consumptive demand continues pretty good. Packers argue that even at the high prices pork products are cheaper buying than fresh meat.

PROVISIONS — Barrelled pork and beef are steady, but fresh beef if easier, and the like is true of lamb and fresh pork. Smoked meats and lard are steady. Some western fresh beef is coming on the market. It is said by some farmers that because of short crops in some sections of the province more than the usual number of live stock will be marketed this Fall, but this may be far too gloomy a view of the situation.

Gilchrist, John Sheridan, Alex. McIntosh, Jos. Luness, A. C. Sparrow, F. Hunnissett, and John Brown.

NOTES.

Wilbur Gordon, Tweed, Ont., has secured a patent for a cheese vat support.

A capitalist has offered to put up $4,000 to start an abattoir and pork packing plant in Arcola, Sask., if five others will add $2,000 to amount.

With the object of meeting with the wishes of the members of the dairymen's association and of exporters, the Provincial Government of Quebec has erected the new dairy school building at St. Hyacinthe. It has been furnished with the most modern machinery and is claimed by the people in Quebec to be one of the finest and best fitted buildings of its kind in America.

GROCERY TRADE IN OTTAWA

Some Fruit and Vegetable Prices at the Capital—Proud of Cheese Quality—An Opening for California Raisins—Grocers' Association— The Exhibition—Trade Notes.

Business with retailers is reported quite brisk ever since the first of the month, quite a change having taken place compared with July and August.

At present there is a scarcity of butter; prices are ranging high. Creamery blocks, 25 1-2c., solids 25c., dairy in tubs 21c. to 25c. for choice. The cheese market is still firm, a shortage of the milk supply has been felt during the past week partly owing to the Exhibition and also a falling off in quantity received.

On the local market potatoes are selling from 75c. to 85c. this season, owing to so much dry weather the run is small. There is also a prospect of a shortage in vegetables for Winter use.

The past week has seen an over-abundant supply of peaches, receipts being beyond the regular demand, so that prices dropped on the local exchange from 75c. to 85c. to 50c. and 60c. for No. 1 Crawfords, and from 45c. to 50c. to 25c. and 40c. for No. 2. This week, however, the market is expected to become better. Grapes, both Concord and Niagara have been selling at 22c. to 26c. Rogers, 30c. to 35c. Apples, No. 1 stock, $2.50 to $2.75; No. 2, $1.50 to $2.00. Plums are very scarce and when offered bring about 55c. to 65c. Bananas are plentiful and prices very low according to quality.

The opening price for raisins is a quandary to retail buyers, and altogether will have the effect of dealers handling and pushing California package stock.

On the local cheese board, Friday last, some 2 011 boxes were boarded, 898 white and 1.113 colored; practically all were sold excepting some 200, which arrived late. The price at this sale was an advance on the previous week, being 12 5-8c. and 12 11-16c. against 12 3-4c.

Some 94 cheese that was on exhibition at the Fair was offered separately and brought 12 5-8c. for 56 packages and 12 11-16 for the balance. This goes to show that the quality of cheese boarded at Ottawa is of the highest grade.

The Retail Grocers' Association held its regular meeting last Wednesday, but owing to it being Exhibition week the attendance was small and nothing of importance was done. It was decided to take up the Saturday closing at the next regular meeting on the 26th inst., and with the whole of the grocery trade in the city to be present, whether members of the association or not.

There is talk of the Ottawa grocers holding a pure food show this coming Winter.

The Gilmour Hotel, Banks street, a house well known to the traveling public, was completely gutted by fire on Friday night last. So quick did the flames spread that nothing was saved, not even the hotel register. Up to the present time some five or six people are missing, but as it was impossible to start clearing the debris until to-day, owing to the smoldering ruins, the actual loss of life is unknown and it is doubtful if it will ever be found who perished owing to the records being destroyed. Hotel accommodation is fairly well crowded at all times in Ottawa so that this catastrophe makes matters worse.

The Central Canada Exhibition is over and the usual comments are to be heard. In one respect the attendance was all that could be desired. Every day was ahead of previous years. The changes made in the plan of entertainment satisfied most people, whilst others were disappointed. One feature that certainly was not what it might have been was the main building, and it is to this building that the crowds mostly go. Some of the exhibits were identical as they have been for years. It is unexplainable why more Canadian manufacturers do not take advantage of the opportunity of displaying their goods at so important a point as Ottawa is fast becoming, and whose exhibition ranks next to Toronto in attendance and attractiveness.

Messrs. Provost & Allard, wholesale grocers, received a carload of Salada tea last week, which was loaded on the Transport Co's wagons and carted through the principal streets to their warehouse. It proved quite an attraction to the public. It is getting to be a frequent occurrence for Messrs. Provost & Allard to receive Salada this way.

Bryson, Graham & Co. have taken over the grocery department in connection with their store, which was recently owned and operated by the late John A. Bryson.

W. H. Seyler, of the Montreal branch Canadian Grocer, was in the city for exhibition.

DISPLAY YOUR STOVE POLISH.

The hint of Fall in the air should be a suggestion to the wide awake grocer to get ready for the stove polish trade. Within a week or so hundreds of thousands of stoves will be set up throughout Canada and fresh stove polish will be required in the majority of cases. Stove polish is a small thing in itself, but the grocer who hustles can make it amount to a tidy sum. Care should be taken, however, that the polishes sold contain no explosives. Every Fall the newspapers contain accounts of disastrous results from using inflammable stove polishes. The manufacturers of "Rising Sun" and "Sun Paste" stove polishes have always made a strong point of the thorough safety and reliability of their polishes, and the increasing sales of these lines would go to show that the point is one that has weight with the public.

CALIFORNIAN GOODS HIGH.

Opinion of Representative of Packing House on the Coast.

"Owing to conditions out on the Coast, I think all Californian goods will be high this year." So spoke a representative of a large packing house in San Francisco, when interviewed by the Grocer.

"In the first place," he continued, "the markets in Canada and the States are absolutely bare, which is not often the case, and consequently are in a very receptive condition. Then, there is sure to be a strong demand for Californian raisins this year owing to the fact that Valencias opened at a high figure, and appear to be keeping up. With perhaps the exception of apricots, our crops this year have been good. Prunes have turned out wonderfully well, although there may be some little trouble about them owing to the scarcity of labor. Raisins are a good crop, and sufficient to take care of orders. Peaches are good but migtht have been better. Estimates of the raisin crop turned out to be too large and now the estimate generally accepted is about fifty thousand tons. Of this amount probably half is now booked. Demand for Californian raisins and prunes has been larger this season than for years. As I have already said, Valencias opened high and buyers naturally looked elsewhere for stock when this price continued held. More than one Californian house is completely sold up for September, October and November delivery, refusing to take any business at all for shipment before the end of the last named month. Prunes, I think, have been as low as they are going to be this season. Buyers were inclined to hold off at first, but are coming forward, now that prices have begun to climb."

"Nuts continue upward in tendency, and I can give you no better idea of the situation than by telling you I have been ordered to desist making bookings of walnuts although the firm has had prices out but ten days. As regards salmon, the pack this season is the smallest in years.

"Yes, the San Francisco earthquake naturally affected the trade out there very much. The packers felt it, too, but it is just now that the jobbers are beginning to feel its effect most. Having no warehouses or other place to store their goods, besides poor transportation facilities, the jobbers are in a quandary. Then, this block on the railways is a great nuisance which cannot be helped. From San Francisco to Los Angeles and to Portland the blockade extends. The railway companies are doing the best they can to solve the problem, and will succeed in time. As it is, many houses are loading cars standing on tracks laid alongside their temporary quarters. Business men are working under very adverse conditions. There are strikes on every hand, and these affect business very materially. Then the scarcity of labor is a problem which is giving those on the Coast much thought."

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Wheat is Higher and the Opinion is Held that the Bottom has Been Touched —Change in Flour Quotations—News of the Trade.

The opinion is held by some grain men that the lowest price for Canadian wheat this season has been passed. Western wheat is now coming east in considerable quantities, 200 cars or so a day leaving Winnipeg. But the farmers are not selling. Thousands of western farmers can now ship their grain by the carload. A car reaches Winnipeg, is graded, goes on to the elevator at Fort William ar Port Arthur. The farmer takes his bill of lading to his local bank and gets what advances on it he needs. He is still holding his wheat if the market doesn't suit him, and he has the money, too. This is modern business organization.

Within the week the Chicago market spurted up. Wednesday of last week the opening was 69¾c., and the closing the same. Thursday it opened at 70 and closed at 70⅝; Friday opened at 70⅞ and closed at 71⅛; Saturday opened at 71⅛ and closed at 71; Monday opened at 71⅛ and closed at 70⅝; Tuesday it opened at 70⅝ and closed at 71¾, ¼c. below the highest for the day.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GRAIN—Oats are higher this week by one cent. The advance is caused by the scarcity of spot holdings. Trade is rather quiet at present, being just between seasons. No new grain has yet arrived in Montreal, while nearly all old crop has been cleaned up, leaving the export market practically bare.

FLOUR—Since last report there has been an all-round decline in the price of flour. For some little time past there has been considerable cutting going on, so that the lower prices are not received altogether in the light of a surprise. Trade is said by millers to be picking up wonderfully well. Export inquiry is strong, while home consumption is increasing every week.

ROLLED OATS— Rolled oats has advanced thirty-five cents. Dealers say that buyers have been holding off in the hopes that something would turn up to their benefit. Owing to crop reports, however, it is thought they will come forward more readily now, especially since holders have put up the price, as if feeling that there is something in the current rumors about the crop this year not being as large as that of last.

HAY—Locally the feeling is a little easier than last week. Farmers are willing to be tempted and in some cases have accepted prices a shade lower than formerly. The Montreal market is said to be practically the highest in America and for that matter in the world, at present. If the easier tone felt this week continues this will not long be the case.

The tone of the markets in the U.K. is firm, but prices are still too low for good export trade from Canada. Liverpool quotations average 70s., London prices rule from 72s. to 73s., while on the Bristol market from 60s. to 61s. is obtainable.

CEREAL NOTES.

Chas. B. Keighley, former manager of Ogilvie's elevator at Treherne, Man., has accepted a position as traveler for the same company. John Ford assumes the position of manager at Treherne.

There is considerable talk "on the street" in Montreal about a supposed milling deal which is to be put through by two big milling companies and an elevator company in the west. Nothing definite has been given out, however, and it is probable that the talk is nothing more than rumor.

A company, formed by farmers in Western Canada with a view to mutual profit, has been organized under the alliterative title, Grain Growers' Grain Co. It is proposed to sell the stock to 8,000 farmers distributed from Port Arthur and Fort William to Edmonton. It is said that 3,000 farmers have signified their intention of taking stock.

T. J. Elliott, miller, Williamsford, Ont., has purchased the premises occupied by Liddingham & Corlett. As a result this enterprising firm has dissolved partnership. Mr. Liddington will continue in other premises in Williamsford, and Mr. Corlett has purchased the general store business of the late Hugh Wilson at Cannington, Ont. Mr. Elliott's general store manager will be M. D. McClure.

The big Fall rush of wheat to the east at Fort William and Port Arthur is on and it may be said without exaggeration that never before in the history of these ports has there been handled anything like the volume of freight traffic that is converging here at the present time. From the west approximately 200 cars of new wheat are arriving daily at Fort William alone, and to Port Arthur about 100 carloads.

Edmonton and Calgary are going to get the flour trade of China, says John MacDougall, a leading merchant of Edmonton, who has recently returned from a tour around the world. He also explains his preference for China over Japan as a possible field for the flour trade, because Japan is colonizing Manchuria with the idea of growing her own wheat. She is meeting great success in this line and in a few years there will be no market for foreign flour in Japan.

HAVE NOT DECIDED.

C. M. A. Executive Undecided About Exhibit on SS. Cambroman.

Last week the executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held a meeting, and one of the chief topics of conversation thereat was whether or not it was advisable to exhibit on the S.S. Cambroman. This boat, as mentioned in The Grocer some time ago, will leave England in November for a tour of the British colonies throughout the world. It will be a practical show room containing samples of British art and manufactures. It has been asked of the C. M. A. that they take space for an exhibit. Space would cost £3 a foot, and £250 would be charged for a representative traveling with it. There was much discussion but no decision was arrived at, and so the matter stands.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Business Continues Heavy Without Unusual Changes in Prices—New Lines of Fall Fish Coming in, but Hot Weather is yet Against Demand.

Fruit has been passing into consumption in Canada in greater volume this season than ever before. This is the unanimous opinion of the leaders in the fruit trade. Next week at latest the peach crop will be on the ebb, though much good fruit is yet to come. The grape harvest in Ontario is just nicely under way and the crop promises well. The apple crop is still in the making, but the outlook is encouraging for a good average crop. There will be no such yield as in 1896, when the trees in Ontario averaged 9½ barrels of fruit. There has been no indication of it from the first. Plums have been the only real failure this season and it is not unlikely that some California fruit will be preserved in Ontario. They come in crates holding a basket and three-quarters and will sell at $1.50. The cranberry season is just opening. The crop promises well both as to quantity and quality. Jamaica and Valencia oranges are arriving freely.

The vegetable markets have developed no unusual features and prices have varied but little.

The fish market is still waiting for cool weather, though the oyster has made its appearance.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Trade is brisk in most lines this week. There has been considerable business done with merchants in the country, while city trade is getting larger as people get home from the Summer resorts and their holidays. Lemons are lower this week, as are also bananas. The latter are more plentiful than they have been for some little time past. The quality of the stock offering is first class. The cool weather has made it necessary for dealers to use their ripening rooms to a certain extent. Spanish onions have been advanced, and are likely to advance again as the crop is short and the demand heavy.

VEGETABLES—Prices have been very steadily maintained throughout the week. Business passing is fairly large, dealers reporting good demand from most sections of the country. Corn is selling in good quantities at prices quoted, while there exists a good demand for cucumbers, carrots and beets. Some really excellent tomatoes are now offering at prices which are very reasonable, considering the quality of the goods. Fair trade is passing in cabbage.

FISH—Dealers report continued improvement in the state of trade. Orders from points in the country are larger in volume than they have been for some time past. City trade is also beginning to be noticeable in its improvement. In looking over the quotations it will be seen that several lines are out of the market this week, while new stock is being quoted to take their places. Fresh salmon is scarce, but orders in frozen fish are easily filled as stocks are large. Lake trout is arriving in good quantities and trade is brisk. Dore is also coming in. Pike has not yet appeared but supplies are expected next week. New Labrador herring in barrels and half barrels are now offering. Skinless cod is lower this week. In smoked fish kippers may be said to be arriving freely. Haddies continue in small supply.

TORONTO MARKETS.

FRUIT—Among commission men the impression prevails that the height of the peach season was passed last week. This week the market here is a little firmer and the price, according to size, color, quality, quantity and pack, varies from 30c. to $1.25 a basket. They might be divided this way: Small Crawfords, 30c. to 40c.; good whites, the same; good medium Crawfords, 50c. to 70c.; fancy Crawfords, 85c. to $1.25. Grapes are coming forward in fair quantity, but the maximum does not appear to have been reached. The market for all fruits is keeping up well in Toronto this year. Last week at Leamington grapes were selling for 15c. that in Toronto were bringing 25c. Jamaica oranges are now coming to hand.

VEGETABLES—Valencia onions are arriving freely. Sweet potatoes of very good quality are coming to the market and the demand is good. Prices are about normal with a natural downward tendency just now. Growers of Canadian onions are said to be holding back for higher prices because for a year or two back they sold too cheaply. The commission men think the growers will miss it again this year. Tomatoes continue to arrive at the market in large quantities. Citrons and spinach are added to the list.

FISH EATING HABIT.

To increase the consumption of fish in Canada is essential to the development of the industry. It could easily be done if there were more men like the Toronto traveler who when on the Atlantic coast gave the following interview to a Maritime paper:

"A thing that has surprised me very much as I travel through the provinces is the large amount of meat and the small amount of fish served to traveling men by the hotels. I expected when I came down here that, in a fish country, we would get fish as often as we felt like it, but instead I find that it figures small, except in certain houses. One of the latter is the Royal at St. John, another is the King Edward at Halifax. I had a boiled kippered herring at the latter a few days ago that was better than the best piece of beefsteak I ever tasted. It was nicely cooked, and I couldn't help thinking at the time that if every hotel man in the country would go in for similar dishes, the public who live at hotels would be healthier and the consumption of fish, as a diet, would be greatly increased. Occasionally I hear traveling men say they don't like fish, but I can tell them that had they tasted that kippered herring I got at the King Edward their opinion would undergo a change."

NEW LINES OF FISH.

An opening has been made in the Fall and Winter fish business. The F. T. James Co. have received a car of Labrador herrings. They are No. 1 stock in half barrels and will sell at $3.25. They report also the opening of the season on oysters. The quality is good and prices are much the same as last year. Some finnan haddie are already on the market and they and other smoked fish will soon be in full swing.

FRUIT NOTES

LeMoine Bros., fish merchants, North Sidney, C.B., have purchased a property there for $16,000.

Owing to a shortage in fruit baskets it is feared there will be a heavy loss in peaches this year, the Crawfords being ready. This is due mainly to the Williams Co., in Thorold, Ont., closing down their basket forge.

It is announced by the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa that as a result of the work of the Scotch herring curing expert, J. J. Cowie, a new industry will be established in Nova Scotia in the curing of Spring herring, heretofore used only as fertilizer. It is said $10 to $12 a barrel can be had for them in New York, cured as Mr. Cowie cures them.

Because of the small pack of sockeye on the Pacific Coast this year, dog salmon, which are running very freely, will it is said, be packed in considerable numbers. Until a few years ago dog salmon were thrown away, then a few were packed for the South African market and the Japs took to salting them for shipment to Japan. This year, because of the high Japanese protective tariff since the war, for the protection of the home industry, they will pay only 5c. The average price obtained by the fisherman thus far has been 8c.

A St. John's, Nfld., exchange says: The Atlantic Fish Co., a Canadian concern, the manager of which is Mr. W. Duff, of Lunenburg, son of W. Duff, of Carbonear, has recently established a branch at Bay of Islands and intends packing 7,000 barrels of herring there this Fall, for export to Canada and America. This will be a big factor in the question of the disposal of the catch of herring taken by gill net fishing, from which the Americans are virtually excluded, and it is said that some other mercantile concerns there and in his city will also go into the business.

AFTER THE BANANA TRUST.

The United Fruit Co., of Boston, through whom the bulk of the Canadian trade gets its bananas, is being sued by the American Banana Co., under the Sherman anti-trust law on a $2,000,000 damage claim. Under the Sherman law the injured party may collect triple damages, so that the alleged liability of the United Fruit Co. is $6,000,000. The complainants received a large tract of land between Costa Rica and Columbia and started growing bananas, but their large force of workmen was forced to quit work by Costa Rican soldiers, at the instigation, it is alleged, of the United Fruit Co. The crop was ruined. In addition, it is alleged a shipload of bananas were seized and the company were discriminated against by the United Fruit Co., who operate a line of steamers between Central America and the United States.

FLORIDA ORANGES.

Florida oranges have commenced to move from the state in carloads and a conservative estimate of the season's crop of oranges and grape fruit would be between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 boxes.

Mr. High, a well known fruit dealer of Jacksonville, Fla., reports that the grape fruit are much larger than last season, and of a better quality, that the oranges are mostly brights, but later will rust and will then be known to the dealers as the golden russet, which is as good as the brights in flavor. This season's crop is ten days earlier than last year and the fruit is all in fine condition and will be moving rapidly by Oct. 15.

PRUNES CLIMBING, TOO.

Advice to J. L. Watt & Scott Indicates Strong Market.

The J. K. Armsby Co., Chicago, in an advice to J. L. Watt & Scott, Toronto, under date of Sept. 10, says:

Gentlemen,—The prune market in California is considerably stronger, owing to the heavy increased demand from American buyers and the unusually heavy demand from foreign buyers. Our foreign agents cable us that the French prune crop is running from 25 per cent. to 30 per cent. short of the early estimates; that the market is from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. higher and is advancing very fast; consequently, prices on California prunes are out of line in comparison with French prices; in other words, much cheaper, which explains the heavy foreign demand.

Possibly some of our American buyers do not realize that the prices of French prunes dominate the European market, when the French crop is short or prices high, the foreign buyers all look to the California article to supply their wants and year in, year out, big or little crops abroad, the foreign buyers take more California prunes than the American buyers. Furthermore, the shorts in California who figured that the market would never stop declining, are tumbling over themselves to buy goods. Many of the eastern buyers had the same opinion as the California shorts, with the result that they are coming in fast. The whole situation indicates a gradual advancing market during the Fall. There is a large crop in California this year but it has not been gathered and curing conditions during the Fall may play a very important part in the deal. We have had bad weather before and it is not impossible for the present California crop to be cut in two. The bulk of the operators have sold their full shipping capacity to a finish. We are practically at a point where it is not a question of price but simply ability to get goods out. There is shortage in California of box shook, owing to the sailors' and water front strike in San Francisco. There is a shortage of labels, owing to the destruction of the lithographer's plants. There is a tremendous shortage of help; consequently the California operators are doing business under about every difficulty it is possible to put up against them.

The people who procrastinate much longer will get their prunes about next January, as December delivery will be the earliest that any operator will take their business.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Some of the Essentials—The Writing of an Ad—Much Depends upon the Printer—Individuality Counts——Harmony With Store Policy—Value of System.

A good deal has been said and written about preparing advertisements, but to the retailer, in the small town especially, looks and addresses do not always appeal. When the capital is small the methods are necessarily small. It is principally to the merchant of small capital, therefore, that these remarks will be addressed.

You are not going to spend much money on advertising because you have not got it to spend, and you are going to be solicitous about results. Also you have no time to look into "reason why" styles except that you hope to develop along this line by persistent practice.

Any person who has a knowledge of the English language can write, though there are a number of people who write without that knowledge. The number of words necessary for everyday conversation has been placed at 3,000. Ostensibly this means plain language, but the number or size of words is never as important as the way the words are formed into clauses, then into sentences. And clarity of statement is so essential to a successful interpretation of an advertisement that it is well worth some study. By "study" I do not mean the perusing of books or the probing into theories, but simply working with a consciousness of weakness, holding to the task with the conviction that "anything will not do."

If you can, in your store, convince people that your goods are meritorious, you can convince them of the same thing through the press and reach an infinitely larger number of people. It is a matter of presenting what you have for sale in the best light.

Must be Well Set.

The value of artistic typography has been both over-estimated and underestimated. The writer who goes to the trouble of marking type names all over his copy puts too high an estimate on typography, and the writer who never asks to see a proof puts too low an estimate on it.

A good deal can be entrusted to the average compositor. He knows more about type and display than the average ad writer. When a writer has served his time in the composing room and made good use of the knowledge gained he is able to talk authoritatively.

But the real trouble arises not so much from leaving the choice of type to the compositor, but from leaving everything to him. Perhaps he gets a piece of wrapping paper on which is scrawled some names, some prices and general statements. The compositor has first to size the copy up, next to make it out, and last to display it advantageously.

Now, the fact is an ad writer can map out his advertisement as he wants it to appear in print. When he does this he gives the compositor a good chance to select suitable type faces and to devote his talent towards getting balance, chasteness, etc.

Advertisements in manuscript look a hundred per cent. better when written within a ruled space. The edge of the paper is clear and the rudiments of a design is suggested. It does not matter what size of an advertisement you are going to write, rule off a space with your lead pencil (larger than the space you are going to have in the paper because your writing will "spread" more than type) and write within that space. Of course, when the compositor is helped in this way, and the particulars are legibly written, a proof is not absolutely necessary.

Must Have an Individuality.

Make your advertisements distinctive. Do not take too much notice of what competitors are saying, for then their expressions are apt to get intermixed with your own. It would be impossible for me to suggest to you ideas that would be individuality. The moment they left me they would cease to have an individuality. I cannot talk through you and neither can you talk through your clerk. But a theme satisfactory to you can be taken up by a clerk and it is surprising how much of your individuality can be wrapt around it.

You never take much notice of how other merchants talk to customers. Each merchant has his own way. Why shouldn't it be the same when it comes to advertising in a newspaper? If you approach your patrons in an off-hand way in the store adopt an off-hand style of writing. If you employ clear-cut business tactics as a store salesman let the same characterize your advertisements, and so on.

From having seen some half dozen of their advertisements I believe I could select certain merchants' announcements even if their names were not on them. Nothing but the individuality of the advertiser pervading his writings could enable me to do that. It is because writers select first one style and then another that their advertisements are robbed of impressive characteristics. And it is because other merchants choose to be themselves always that the people entrust their confidence to them.

Must Agree With Store Policy.

There is a great tendency in modern-day publicity, to misrepresent goods. It grows upon a writer to exaggrate virtues and gild weaknesses. But while plausible statements read nicely, truthful statements usually get the business. By being moderate in your newspaper enunciations you keep in better touch with your store—maintain harmony between your outdoor and indoor policies, as it were. Did you ever notice how certain goods have been advertised with tremendous enthusiasm and how the clerk who sold them was lifeless: The enthusiasm of the advertising was not misplaced, but some of it might have been engendered into the clerk.

It is absolutely necessary that salesmen should follow the wording of the advertisement to the letter. I have gone into a store where a clerk has confessed he didn't know certain goods were being advertised at a certain price. Imagine the amount of business such a clerk would personally gather in!

Must Follow Up Systematically.

That sounds like mail-order house phrasecology, doesn't it? But by "follow up" I mean that you should form some estimate of sales made from advertising and should always be preparing to push another line of goods "next week."

What you will principally be governed by is reason, and while this somewhat limits your scope, you can accomplish a lot by being timely. The moment it is opportune, advertise certain lines, then pass on to others. Articles that sell at a very low price, and sell quite frequently, will not have to be advertised to any great extent unless your competitor makes some move.

If you are announcing a special sale through the papers you can form some estimate of what the announcements did for you by looking into the orders. If you think the patronage extended to you was not representative, then it is time to get out a circular.

You cannot perfect your advertising policy, but you can and ought to know if you are appealing to the people by way of "needs," if you are presenting your case in the best light, and, most important of all, if you are gradually but surely building up a permanent list of customers.

ADLETS.

Don't wait till to-morrow. Put your ad in to-day.

Rhyme and reason—be sure of the reason.

Remember, all's well that begins well as well as ends well.

Don't forget consistency is a jewel in advertising.

Follow the lead—but be sure it's the right lead. A.A.B.

SOME FANCY ADVERTISING.

Some first-rate specimens of the printing, embossing and writing arts are being mailed to their friends and customers by the Copeland-Chatterson Co., Limited, Toronto. J. S. O'Higgins, advertising manager, prepared both the composition and drawings. A fly-leaf in brown and green extends an invitation to visit the company's offices, where paper and ink and the services of a stenographer will be at guests' disposal. An ivory white embossed card is devoted to an analogy between the mosquito—cause of uncomfortable nights; small worries—cause of uncomfortable days. A folder is given over to Grocer's Salesman's Creed, and a coverlet boasts one or two of the "C.C." phrases. As has been noted before in this paper, Copeland-Chatterson's advertising matter is well worth preserving. If you didn't receive a batch send in a request for them.

However it may be with other Cocoas, you can make a fair profit in selling Lowney's, and we promise you that we will create a larger and larger demand for Lowney's every year by generous and forcible advertising as well as by the superior and delicious quality of our product.

In Lowney's dealers have a guarantee against any cause for criticism by Pure Food officials.

SOMETHING IN A NAME.

A bill in equity has just been filed in the Chancery Court of New Jersey by Walter Baker & Co., Limited, of Dorchester, Mass., the old chocolate manufacturers, against a recently organized New Jersey corporation—the Walter E. Baker Chocolate Company—and Walter E. Baker, of Newark, one of the incorporators.

The bill alleges that Walter E. Baker has been engaged in the hotel and liquor selling business on the outskirts of Newark, and that the company incorporated under his name is engaged in a scheme for selling chocolate upon the reputation of the well known house of Walter Baker & Co., and the reputation it has established for the name "Baker" in that line of business.

EASTERN APPLE CROP.

A gentleman from the Annapolis Valley, Nova Scotia, states that the apple crop this year, while not exceptionally large in quantity, is of fine quality. And the quantity will be greater than last year's.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce, in its annual preliminary report of the apple crop, says that a canvass of the New England States shows that Fall varieties, are in excess of last year; Winter varieties, however, do not promise to be quite as plentiful. The supply of Baldwins will be smaller than last season.

In Western New York the crop will be 50 per cent. greater than last year, while in the Hudson River district the crop will be one-half of last year. The Michigan crop will be heavy, and in the middle west the crop will be exceptionally large and mostly of the Ben Davis variety. West Virginia and Virginia will produce 25 per cent. of last year's crop, and California and Oregon will turn out about the same as in 1905. The Canadian crop will be somewhat in excess of last year, and Fall varieties will be plentiful, but Baldwins will probably be in no greater supply than last year. Great Britain will produce a moderate crop, while Europe's crop will be decidedly in excess of last year. With scarcely an exception, the quality of all the apples this season promises to be fine. Sections reported as producing less than last year are unimportant when compared with other localities, and the total harvest is expected to be greatly in excess of last year.

TWENTY YEARS OF PRUNES.

Growth of American Industry—Crop and Curing.

More then 100,000,000 lbs. of prunes are eaten yearly in the United States. Prior to 1886 the supply came almost wholly from France and the Danubian provinces, and sold under the designation of French or Turkish prunes.

According to What to Eat, most of the American prune supply is from the southern part of California. In Santa Clara County alone there are 3,700,000 trees growing on 37,000 acres, 100 to the acre. The quantity of prunes raised there exceeds 110,000,000 lbs., more than enough for the requirements of the whole country, but the excess is needed to supply the export demand.

In September the fruit ripens and is gathered by spreading sheets under the trees and shaking the branches. The green fruit is taken to the warehouse, where it is graded in size and passed through a boiling hot liquid, in which process it is cleaned and the outer skin softened. It is then spread out in trays eight feet by three feet in size and exposed to the heat of the sun for three to eight days, depending upon weather conditions.

Ten thousand trays of fruit spread out in one unbroken tract may be seen in Santa Clara in the drying season. When sufficiently cured the prunes are stored in separte bins and there allowed to sweat, this process taking from 10 to 20 days, when they are ready for marketing.

MALAGA CROP SHORT.

Cables received last Saturday, at New York, from Malaga stated that a regular panic prevailed in the raisin market there on account of the discovery of a heavy shortage in the crop. The reports stated that a large portion of the expected output had been destroyed by rain and named prices so high as to be hardly understandable by the trade here.

GRAPES AND PEACHES.

The grape output of the Niagara district this year will be about 4,000 tons, says the St. Catharines correspondent of the Toronto News. He continues:

At present there are about one thousand acres of land in Lincoln, Welland and Wentworth counties planted in grapes, each acre yielding an average of about four tons. The acreage and yield have doubled in a few years, and there is no telling what the possibilities of the future may be.

A good percentage of the grapes grown around here are used for immediate consumption, and for transforming into jelly, but the biggest part of them are shipped to Quebec Province to be converted into wine.

The grape crop this year looks splendid, and as in the case of every other fruit but plums, which are scarce, the yield will perhaps break all previous records.

A gentleman who travels extensively through the district told the News correspondent last evening that there is a tremendous peach crop this year. Though the dry weather kept back growth of the fruit, leaving peaches smaller than usual, the trees are fairly loaded down, the quantity more than making up for the discrepancy in size.

THE INCOMPARABLE "CAMP."

There was a time—and that but a few hundred years agone—when the English Parliament levied a ta[illegible] pence per gallon on all coffee m[illegible]de t[illegible] be sold. Let who will bewail the passing of these good old days; we, personally, are glad to be quit of them.

Coffee is undoubtedly growing in the public favor, growing fast; but, even yet, we are but half awake to the possibilities that lie within this cup of cups.

The fact that so much coffee is marred in the making accounts, to a great extent, for our sleepy appreciation of the beverage, which, under ideal conditions, stimulates the flagging nerves, cheers the drooping spirits, does us all manner of good and no vestige of harm.

Housewives do not generally grasp the fact that boiling utterly spoils coffee. To boil coffee for an indefinitely long period—say ten to fifteen minutes,—is almost as bad as to boil tea leaves, throw away the liquor, and eat the leaves minced up with butter, pepper and salt, as did that bewildering old lady who lived in the days of our great grandmothers.

The careful housewife of to-day is apt to stew her coffee, thinking, good soul, that she is drawing out the flavor. How little she knows that the essential volatile oil, which gives to coffee its delightful aroma and exquisite flavor, is vanishing up the chimney or diffusing itself upon the air of the kitchen all the while the coffee is boiling.

Messrs. R. Paterson & Sons, coffee specialists of Glasgow, have long had upon the British market, and have now introduced into this country, a really delicious coffee—a revelation of ease and economy to all true lovers of this delightful beverage.

"Camp" coffee, as Messrs. Paterson name their specialty, retains its full fragrance and freshness for any length of time in any climate. Not the least advantage of this most highly enjoyable "Camp" coffee is that it requires no cooking whatever, merely the addition of boiling water.

Prepared from the purest and finest coffee berries, under the most approved modern processes; of guaranteed uniform strength, flavor and quality, it is impossible that those who try a bottle of the incomparable "Camp" should be other than delighted with it.—Contributed.

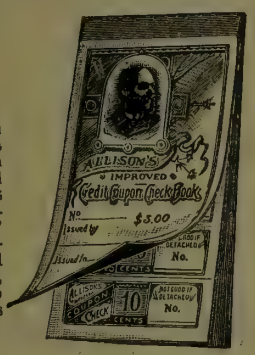
But enough Allison Coupon Books to last a year won't cost as much as the amount you will lose by the carelessness of your clerks in forgetting to "charge up" numerous small purchases; and disputed pass-book entries, where you have to allow your customer's kick, or lose him.



IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? TOBACCO EXHIBITION.

Some Interesting Features of the Show Now on in New York.

The Tobacco Exhibition in New York would be an interesting place for every handler of tobacco. The New York Commercial says of it :

Smokers will have an opportunity of judging which is the better and best of tobacco, by visiting the Tobacco Trades Exposition at the Madison Square Garden, where 108 exhibitors will try to prove the superiority of their goods in the ensuing fortnight.

This is the first exhibit of independent tobacco growers, manufacturers and dealers, and if the crowd that filled the garden last night is any criterion, the show will be a success. As the visitor enters the garden and pays 50c., he immediately makes money. Attached to his ticket are seven coupons, each one entitling him to a package of 25c. cigarettes, a 10c. cigar or a package of smoking tobacco. On the whole he gets $1.35 worth of smoking material, ranging all the way from "Mrs. Miller's Best Chewing and Smoking" to cigarettes, such as are said to be smoked by the King of England.

One finds entertainment on every hand. An Indian band from the Government reservation at Onondaga plays excellent music, while Turkish girls, Parisienne girls, and cigarette-making girls from other countries strive for the prize in the cigarette-rolling race. A Virginia tobacco plantation, with genuine southern darkies, attracted a great deal of attention, particularly when the negroes stopped working to indulge in singing and buck-dancing.

The ideas in the booth building are all clever. A large English cigarette firm has built a reproduction of Windsor Castle, a native Sumatra hut has been imported for a tobacco house of that island; Cuban and Porto Rican houses are plentiful. The most artistic work of the whole exhibition perhaps, is the large meerschaum pipe, the carving representing the landing of Columbus. This is a magnificent piece of work.

Finally the cigar-smoking contest, that is held three times every evening, is worth the price of admission itself. This is held on a raised platform and is open to all, the contest lasting one hour, and the prize of a box of cigars goes to the man who can smoke the greatest number in that time.

Many of the old men can smoke like an engine burning soft coal, while the beardless youth knowing only his pallid cigarette strives to his utmost to cope with the black Havannas, only to grow paler with each puff until the perspiration comes and the cigar drops from his trembling fingers.

TOBACCO LEAVES.

Uncle Sam's smoking outlay last year was nearly $300,000,000. It included over 7,689,337,207 cigars. The United States have led in tobacco-growing since the day when tobacco was used as currency in Virginia. To-day they raise just six times as much as their nearest competitor, Russia, and one-fourth the world's whole crop.

THE STREET DUST NUISANCE.

A novel street-cleaning appliance is at present in use in the City of Washington. It consists of a hand sweeping machine, which is worked somewhat on the principle of the carpet sweeper. The city employs 115 men, who work with hand-brooms, while 75 men operate hand-sweeping machines.

Each man handling one of these sweepers is required to sweep 10,000 square yards of pavement, going continually over the area during the day and depositing the sweepings at stated distances along the curb. To every sweeper there is a bag carrier, equipped with a pick-up machine, gathering the sweepings in bags.

This device is a two-wheeled vehicle, holding a bag upright, and fitted with a scraper attached to the handle resting on the ground, and when filled inverted into the sack. The sacks, when filled, are collected by the 10 wagons owned by the department, and hauled to the public dumps, of which there are eight.

Each sweeper is also provided with a sprinkling pot holding five gallons, with which he is required to sprinkle the area before sweeping. The force is divided into six districts of about equal extent, with 35 men in each. Every district is in charge of an inspector, provided with a bicycle, whose duty it is to see the work properly done and make a daily report of men employed, area covered and number of loads of sweepings removed.

The Industrial Transport & Storage Co. has been incorporated by Ontario charter with share capital of $25,000. The provisional directors are Geo. Cleaver, C. E. Rowell, Geo. Thurlow, and H. B. Sproat, Woodstock; Scott Gillespie, Toronto.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

Shipping Business Pretty Good at Present—Movement of Grain Scarcely Begun as Yet—Some Apples in Outgoing Cargoes—Low Water Still Causing Inconvenience.

This week has brought forth few changes in the shipping situation. Business generally is very good, cargoes leaving the port of Montreal being of fair size.

Low water in the harbor and rivers, of course, prevents boats being loaded as they have been in previous seasons when such conditions did not exist. The end of last week the water in the harbor was 26 feet 6 inches deep. This necessitated the restriction of outgoing boats, according to size. Take the Victorian, of the Allan line, which cleared September 14, for instance; this vessel was restricted to 24 feet 6 inches.

Cheese has not been moving out very well recently owing to market conditions Butter has been somewhat the same. Although prices on the latter are a little lower, demand has not been any larger on that account. Nevertheless, there are some shipments going forward in both lines which are fair to good in size.

There is not a great deal of grain being shipped at the present time. Wheat, which may be called the staple line, is just between seasons. The amount in the elevators of the port is not large. Old crop wheat is almost cleaned up, although there is still some held. It is yet a little too early for the new wheat, which will not begin to arrive for shipment in earnest until about the end of this month. Barley, oats and other grains are moving out to a certain extent, but trade is not large.

Apples are commencing to occupy a place in outgoing boats. Several shipments have been made during the past week or two, which show that there is some inquiry from the other side. The crop of apples in England, however, is sufficient this year to take care of all trade until the time our Fall apples are ready for export, which will not be for some little time yet.

There have been no changes in the rates this week.

The Egwanga, of the Elder-Dempster line, with a cargo of sugar from the West Indies, docked at the St. Lawrence sugar refinery last week.

It is remarked in shipping circles that the number of sugar boats arriving in Montreal this season is larger than last year, considerably. To date, according to reports from McLean, Kennedy & Co., and Elder-Dempster & Co., whose boats are engaged in this trade, the number of boats, and the tonnage, entering the port this season are in excess of last year.

The Sarmatian, of the Allan line, cleared for London and Havre, with a general cargo on September 14.

The Manxman, of the Dominion line, with a general cargo, left for Bristol on the same day.

BEATING THE PEDDLER.

At the recent annual meeting of the retailers of Pennsylvania a speaker, Mr. Bloom, of Sunbury, on the peddling question said :

"Years ago when any man took an active interest in anything they called him an enthusiastic worker ; later on they called him a crank, and to-day they call him a fanatic. That is what the Sunbury people call Bloom on the question of peddling. The business of your town belongs to you, not by right of possession or inheritance, but because you pay your tax on occupation as a merchant, you pay your tax or license for being a merchant. You are expected to head the list on all subscriptions for any and all charitable purposes. You are the financial backbone of your town. You have invested your money in merchandise and are giving your time to serve the people. Is it right for peddlers to come in and do the business that belongs to you ? There is a remedy. Have your borough or city council pass an ordinance that carries a penalty without a license for each and every one, including your own merchants. Make the fee high enough that it will not pay the peddler to take out a license. Go to your county courts, have a man licensed as a county detective. By having this officer, the cost of suits outside of attorneys' fees, if you lose the case, will fall upon the county. Get your merchants together and agree to stop soliciting orders from house to house. Cut down your expenses of this employe. Notify your customers of this change and have them come to your store. Educate your people to this new order of business, and in two years' time you will not have a peddler where you now have thirty. This is the experience of the Sunbury merchants. And what we have done you can do. By doing this you protect yourselves and protect the unwary or the "easy mark."

Mr. Bloom here gave an illustration of where a peddler had come into his store, purchased a lamp and sold it at a considerable profit. Continuing he said : "There are thirty-five merchants in Sunbury doing business who were there when I went there, but of all that vast number but two quit business, retiring with a competency. I attribute that to the fact that you sell your goods without a profit."

ALLSPICE GROWERS COMBINE.

Herbert L. Northey, of Kingston, Jamaica, told an interviewer in Montreal recently that the growers of allspice, or pimento, had formed an association to secure themselves an increased share of the price paid by consumers for their product. Allspice is grown almost exclusively in Jamaica.

"Though substitutes for allspice," said Mr. Northey, "have been and can be manufactured—chiefly by the combination in proper proportions of pepper, cloves and cinnamon—none of them can compare with the real article. Foreign consumers will therefore be always ready and will even be compelled to purchase pimento, unless the prices are run up to an unnatural figure.

"Although very little pimento has been sold in New York of late, the manufacturers drawing upon their reserve supplies instead of buying more, they will soon be compelled to follow the market in Europe, and buyers are even now preparing to pay 5 and 5 1-4c. a lb. instead of 4 and 4 3-8c., as was the custom before the formation of the syndicate. This is proof conclusive of its good effects, and the advance will not stop there. Before long the price will go to 5 and 5 3-4c. per lb., and even 6c.

Our Factory now boasts the most up-to-date equipment for making Catsup in Canada. We also have one of the best Catsup Cooks on the Continent.

For the last four weeks we have been buying tons and tons of the very finest Rose Tomatoes. These have been washed, scalded, peeled and seeded, then have gone through the process of making them into Crest Brand Tomato Catsup. Nothing of the delicious flavor of the ripe tomato has been taken away, and our chef's blending of the spices and condiments has given it an appetizing piquancy that cannot be equalled.

Put up in large 14-oz screw-top bottle, with an exceptionally pretty label, it makes one of the most attractive packages ever put on the market. We guarantee its purity, and the absolute cleanliness of our factory and methods makes its wholesomeness beyond dispute.

OUR MOTTO:

"Quality Regardless of Price"

This motto peculiarly applies to our Cream of Sugar Corn, which in selection, careful handling, ingredients of syrup, is made to cost much more than the ordinary brands put on the market, but is sold at a very slight advance in price over the ordinary brands. Now, what is true of our Cream Sugar Corn quality is also equally true of Farmers' Brand of Canned Peas, Corn, Beans, Tomatoes, etc. These are all delivered from our own fields to the factory, and packed fresh the same day as they are gathered.

Proof of dealers' and consumers' appreciation being that though our 1906 Pack doubles that of 1905, but very little of the former remains to be sold. We solicit a small trial order that you may be in the swim with dealers who are buying our goods.

MANUFACTURERS IN WINNIPEG

Notes on the Annual Convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association Held in the Western Metropolis—President's Plea for Higher Protection.

In many respects the recent convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held in Winnipeg was the most successful in its history. The attendance was much larger than a year ago at Quebec and a vast amount of business of an important nature was disposed of in the businesslike style of the best business men of Canada. It was decided to open a permanent office in London, Eng., to act as a commercial intelligence agency for the association members, to assist in securing skilled labor for the members, and in other ways to promote the interests of the organization. Important steps were also taken in promoting the scheme for the mutual fire insurance of association members, and, taken as a whole, the meeting was remarkable for the new departures which were decided upon.

For the first time in the history of the association the annual convention was held west of the Great Lakes and the event was looked forward to with keen anticipations by the citizens of Western Canada, who, rightly or wrongly, united in considering it a most important epoch in the history of the newer Canada. The west wants manufacturers and is determined to have them, her citizens being thoroughly convinced of the unwisdom of shipping raw materials east and bringing in the manufactured product. The west wants manufacturers and preferably Canadian manufacturers, and hence the keen interest excited by the visit to the west of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Winnipeg received them with open arms and everything possible was done to show the visitors the advantages offered them by the metropolis of the west. In the excursion westward which followed the convention the principal western towns have been visited and in all an effort has been made to show the visitors what the west has to offer them. It may be confidently expected that one result of the western visit of the manufacturers will be the establishment in the west of many branch factories and the opening of many more branch warehouses.

The manufacturers' special train arrived in Winnipeg late on Sunday night, September 16. The visitors were met by the officers of the Winnipeg branch and were at once escorted to the palatial Royal Alexandra, the convention headquarters. Winnipeg's new palatial hotel challenges comparison with the King Edward in Toronto, the Windsor in Montreal or the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec, and the visitors were delighted to find themselves in such pleasantly luxurious surroundings. The sessions of the convention were all held in the Royal Alexandra.

The recently appointed secretary, J. F. M. Stewart, was a busy man during the stay of the manufacturers in Winnipeg. Ex-Secretary R. J. Younge, now sales manager of the Canadian Rubber Co., was a familiar figure at the convention and it was evident that he appreciated to the full his freedom as compared with other years.

At the opening session a hearty welcome was extended the visitors by Mayor Sharpe, Hon. R. P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, and E. L. Drewry, the Manitoba vice-president. C. C. Ballantyne responded with the president's annual address, which was in part as follows :

When our good friend, Mr. Drewry, at our Quebec convention, extended an invitation to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to meet this year in Winnipeg, there was no dissenting voice. Perhaps the invitation was accepted so unanimously because of Mr. Drewry's oratory, or perhaps it was the pressing messages he brought from the Manitoba branch of the Manufacturers' Association, His Worship the Mayor of your city, the Board of Trade, and the Builders' Exchange ; or again it may have been the inducements held out by the Canadian Northern for a trip to Edmonton, or by the Canadian Pacific to occupy their fine new hotel. No matter what the reasons, the members of the association were deeply grateful, and I think the large number who have traveled two, three and four days to be with you is sufficient evidence of their appreciation. My own opinion is that the impression is firmly installed in every one of us that Winnipeg has already reached the threshold of greatness, and that this whole western part of our country is advancing by such momentous strides that we have to see for ourselves before we can understand, and we are here to see.

National Development.

The growth of your city is marvellous, the extent of your business transactions amazing, but on every side we are given the assurance that this wonderful development has but begun. We, your fellow-countrymen, wish you all success. You cannot be prosperous without permitting us to share in your prosperity. Our country has become so immense, our prosperity has made us so contented, our aspirations have so steadily developed along national rather than provincial lines, that we have assumed the task of working together for the good of our vast heritage, with nothing on the horizon to interfere with a continuance of united and successful advancement.

Opportunities for Canadians at Home.

The growth of this country is so rapid that we must guard against the possibility of becoming engrossed with the enormous work of to-day, without placing a proper estimate upon the future.

Agriculture is the corner-stone of Canadian industry. All our provinces are more or less agricultural. With the development of our farms, we have built railways, established banks, and opened trading houses, all of which are most necessary. We thought at one time that certain of our eastern provinces were destined to be chiefly agricultural provinces. We improved the land and grew larger and better crops year by year. This was all well and good.

After a few years we discovered that we were lacking in big cities, in consuming centres ; we discovered that our sons and daughters born on the farm would not all be farmers, some would not because of their temperament, others would not because they saw greater opportunities elsewhere. The result was that Canadians went south by the thousand. Most of them went to the cities, not the farms ; to where there were factories ; they had seen enough of the fields. This continued for a number of years. In 1900 there were 1,180,000 persons of Canadian birth living in the United States. I feel safe in saying that the most of these Canadians were lost to our country because we had not the towns or the factories—in other words, the inducements and the opportunities.

To-day the situation is completely changed. We have begun to study our own resources. What do we find ? Not only that nature has fitted us to be a great agricultural nation, but that our mines, our forests, our streams, and our waterfalls destine us to stand in the front rank of the manufacturing countries of the world ; that here, within our own borders, we have all the raw materials for the world's great industries, the necessary industrial opportunities for all our sons and daughters, and the greatest and best market for the products of our farms. Our neighbors to the south have recognized this even sooner than we ourselves. To-day they are returning to us our own.

It is for us to say whether we will continue to purchase our manufactured goods in the United States, or put just a little more tariff on certain lines, and make the factories in the States build plants in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Regina, Edmonton, or any other of the many centres in our great western prairies which have advantages to offer, and by this means keep the population we are getting. Last year our dutiable imports from the United States amounted to $94,200,167, the large percentage of which was manufactured goods, and might just as well have been made in Canada. As it is the United States farmers, workmen, manufacturers and other citizens have just that much of our money that should have been kept at home.

Canada's Opportunity.

It is only within the last decade that we have begun to properly appreciate our rich resources, but now we are all full of confidence in the future of our vast Dominion, and the outside world is beginning to learn what great opportunities we have to offer. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's striking phrase, "Canada is the country of the twentieth century," has gained wide currency because it gives apt expression to the growing belief that no other country contains such great resources of natural wealth ready to be developed. It is very important, then, for us to adopt a policy that will assure to our own people, to those who settle in the country and thoroughly identify themselves with its interests, the full benefit of this coming development. Many millions of dollars will be realized annually from the crops produced in our rich soil, many millions more will be taken from our forests and our mines. Shall this wealth remain in the country, shall the money which represents it circulate in the Dominion for the benefit of the people who develop these resources, or shall we by a mistaken fiscal policy allow it to go abroad for the enrichment of other nations ?

The future of Canada largely depends upon the way our statesmen decide.

Canadian Tariff Attitude.

It must be a matter of gratification to all patriotic Canadians that the fiscal policy has ceased to be a matter of partisan controversy. The leading politicians of both political parties now recognize the necessity of protecting Canadian industries of all kinds, and we may hope that when the members of our Dominion Parliament are called together in November to consider the revision of the tariff they will set aside all old prejudices and look at the question from the broad standpoint of Canadian interests, that they will consider what policy will best develop the varied resources of our country, give profitable employment to all classes of our people, and maintain and advance the prosperity that now exists.

Imperial Preference.

When a number of members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association visited the United Kingdom last year the leaders of the party took pains to make our position regarding the question of a preferential tariff clear to the British people. We told the merchants and manufacturers of the United Kingdom that it was our ambition to make in Canada everything which we could advantageously produce, and that, while we did not desire a prohibitive tariff against Great Britain, we would insist upon sufficient protection to at least put our Canadian manufacturers on an equivalent footing with those of Great Britain, but that we were anxious to divert into British channels, as far as possible, the trade we now did with foreign countries. In other words — that when we must go abroad to buy goods we would prefer to buy them from our fellow-citizens of the British Empire. The leaders of the tariff reform movement in England expressed approval of our attitude, and I am glad to be able to say that when the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire assembled in London in July of this year a resolution in favor of mutual preference within the Empire, moved on behalf of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the boards of trade throughout the Dominion by our ex-president, Mr. Geo. E. Drummond, was carried by a vote of 104 in favor to 41 against. This is very significant when it is known that Mr. Drummond was very explicit in his statement of the Canadian attitude in the speech which he made in moving the resolution.

The true preferential policy has been aptly expressed by two little stamps, one of which bears the words, "Keep your money in circulation by buying goods made in Canada," while the other says, "When you can't get what you want at home buy within the British Empire."

An Equalizing Tariff.

We are sometimes asked what we mean when we say Canadian manufacturers do not demand a prohibitive tariff against the United Kingdom, but that we must at least have sufficient cient protection to put our Canadian manufacturers on an equivalent footing with those of Great Britain. Perhaps our meaning may be better understood when I cite the case of one of the members of our association who had large factories in Montreal and London, England. The difference in the wages paid in these two great factories of England and Canada is remarkable. Figures taken from the pay-rolls, and strictly accurate, show that:

Common labor is 82 per cent. higher in Canada than in England.

Gang leader or sub-foreman, 70 per cent. higher.

Boys (16 to 18), 85 per cent. higher.

Machinists, 64 per cent. higher.

Carpenters, 40 per cent. higher.

Girls (by the hour), 33 1-3 per cent. higher, and girls (piece work), 66 2-3 per cent higher.

Are not these figures alone sufficient to show the necessity of maintaining an equalizing tariff against British goods? But if, while giving our manufacturers fair play in competition with British manufacturers, we make our tariff so high against all foreign countries that our surplus requirements, above what our own factories can supply, will be obtained from British manufacturers, a vast amount of money which now goes to enrich foreign nations will be turned into the pockets of British manufacturers and their workingmen.

The Value of Foreign Trade.

During the past eight or nine years the world at large has been enjoying a period of extraordinary prosperity. Never before was business so generally good throughout all civilized countries and Canada has been getting its share of the good times. Indeed, the country has been so prosperous that many of our people have failed to see the necessity of providing for future years when the world's commerce may pass through a period of stagnation as it has so often done in the past after periods of great activity and general prosperity. They have failed to see that, by sending abroad annually many millions of dollars for manufactured goods which could be made just as well in Canada, we are draining the country of wealth which will be sorely needed when the bad years come. We all take a certain pride in big trade figures. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, Canada's trade with the world at large amounted to $552,000,000, an increase of over eighty millions over the previous year. Ten years ago it was only a little over $239,000,000. Canada per head of population has a greater commerce with the outside world than the United States, but we should not be too ready to congratulate ourselves on this fact. A writer on this subject has pointed out that if the Americans would buy all the iron and steel and all the cotton now manufactured in the United States the figures of foreign trade would be enormously increased. If the raw cotton and the iron ore used in American mills and furnaces were shipped abroad to be used in the cotton mills and blast furnaces of Germany and Britain the total exports of these raw materials would bulk largely in the trade returns, and when the finished products were brought back to the United States they would swell the figures of imports. Yet no one will argue that it would be better for the people of the United States to close their cotton factories and shut down their iron and steel works, in order to thus increase the foreign trade per head of population.

If the United States manufacturer was not permitted to dispose of his wares quite so easily in Canada, our foreign trade might not be so great but our home trade could be very greatly increased. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, imports from the United States for consumption in Canada, exclusive of gold and silver, amounted in value to $152,431,626, while Canadian exports to the United States, exclusive of gold and silver amounted to only $53,498,642. We hope that the tariff which the Government will bring down at the coming session of Parliament will effectually prevent future annual importations from the United States amounting to three times the value of our exports to the United States. The Canadian west is getting thousands of American farmers as settlers every year. Why not, by means of our tariff invite American manufacturers to follow them in and build factories in the towns of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan? I am convinced that the great majority of Canadians in the great west would approve of a policy that would bring this about. Why should the Canadian farmer be regarded as antagonistic to a policy which would develop the great Canadian west? Is it not much more reasonable to assume that his ambitions are identical with the ambitions of the farmers in the Western United States? These farmers declared for a policy of all-round protection, and they got it. Now there are hundreds of manufacturing and consuming centres throughout the great west, and western farmers have markets at their doors for their enormous harvests. I read in the Winnipeg Free Press of December 16, 1905, a memorial presented to the Dominion tariff commission by the board of trade of the town of Medicine Hat. This memorial says:

"The demand for manufactured goods throughout the Northwest is already very large, and is increasing every year in an amazing way. We think, therefore, that if the Canadian tariff were made high enough to shut out the American goods that flood this country, many of the manufacturers of the United States would start branch factories in Medicine Hat. In asking for a high tariff against the United States we are not moved by any feeling of hostility to that country. Many of our best settlers come from the United States, but they came here to better their condition because land is cheap in a new country, and they will be glad to have a home market near at hand such as will be created by the establishment of manufacturing industries in the Canadian Northwest. We think that the American settlers generally will be pleased to see the tariff raised as high as that of the United States, because they know that the development of the United States has been greatly assisted by high protection, and they naturally desire the country in which they have settled to grow and prosper."

Medicine Hat is only one of the towns in the west which would secure factories if the tariff were raised. It would be difficult to exaggerate the possibilities of Winnipeg as a manufacturing centre when cheap electric power is brought here from the rapids of the Winnipeg River. This enterprising and ambitious city, with its splendid geographical situation at the gateway of the Canadian west and its unrivalled railway facilities, will not be content to be simply a distributor of foreign goods to the people of the west. It can never attain the importance to which its geographical situation and the enterprise of its people entitle it, unless the factories are as numerous as the warehouses. I believe that in the very near future the great bulk, if not all, of the manufactured goods that are required in these western provinces will be manufactured in Winnipeg.

Some of our members who are large manufacturers in the east are building branch factories here now, and a great many more are contemplating doing so. If manufacturers wish to take full advantage of the growing trade in the west, it will be necessary for them to establish branch factories in Winnipeg and the other enterprising western centres.

To accomplish this we want a strong Canadian policy that will benefit both east and west. What action the Government will take at the coming session of Parliament, we cannot say, but we believe that the Government will give us the best and strongest Canadian tariff that we ever had, and one that will give thorough protection to every Canadian industry.

At our last annual banquet, held in Quebec, the Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the course of his eloquent and patriotic speech, made this striking announcement, when referring to the coming revision of the tariff. After the premier had referred to these great western provinces as being the "Garden of Canada" and to their great future, he went on to state that he hoped before long, with our great farming population, which is increasing rapidly each year, that every shoe that would be worn in these prairies would be a Canadian shoe; that every yard of cloth marketed there would be a yard of cloth produced in Canada, and so on and so on.

This is the policy of our worthy prime minister; this is the policy of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and it is the policy that the people of Canada demand to-day. "Made in Canada" is popular and this association has done its share in bringing this happy state of affairs about. The manufacturers of Canada will admit that twenty-five or thirty years ago their products may not have been equal to the manufactured products of older and more experienced nations, but that is not so to-day—"made in Canada" products are equal to the best in the world, and this strong, patriotic desire on the part of all to demand goods that are "made in Canada" is one of the most promising features for the further development of this great country. Remember, that every workman employed in the factories of Winnipeg and other western cities will eat food grown by the farmers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and thus the farmers of the west are as much interested in the growth and prosperity of the cities as the townsmen themselves.

Water Transportation.

The great development of our foreign commerce naturally leads us to the consideration of Canada's water transportation facilities. This great west, although far removed from our ocean ports, is nevertheless vitally interested in improvements to steamship lines, and the many routes, rivers and harbors of our great country. To get the best price for our products, whether of the farm or factory, we must have easy access to the world's markets. As a signal improvement we welcomed, a year ago, the new Allan turbines, and this year we point with pride to the two grand Empress boats put into commission by the C.P.R. The service from Canada to Great Britain is now just as comfortable and fast as from New York.

Another great improvement has been made by our great national transportation company, the C.P.R., of which we are all so justly proud, and that is that the mails are now carried from London to Hong Kong and from Hong Kong to London in twenty-nine days by the inauguration of the over-seas special mail train connecting with the magnificent Empress boats on the Atlantic and the Pacific. The building of a second great transcontinental road —the Grand Trunk Pacific—and the extension of the Canadian Northern, which we hope before long will make a third transcontinental line, together with double tracking of the C. P. R. line from Winnipeg to Port Arthur, and increasing the fleet on the Upper Lakes, and the vast improvements the Dominion Government have made by deepening the channel and improving the waterways in the St. Lawrence, transportation facilities are being rapidly improved, not only for the benefit of the west, but of the country as a whole.

* * * * * * *

Probably the greatest need of manufacturers at the present time is skilled help. The association has not hesitated to express its disapproval of the immigration policy of the Dominion which discourages skilled mechanics from coming to Canada. In addition to this the alien labor law is designed to prevent manufacturers from bringing such men to Canada; and further, no steps are being taken to train such men at home. The technical education committee presented a memorial to the Dominion Government, asking for the appointment of a commission for the purpose of indicating a national system of technical training. This is greatly needed in Canada, and if we are to keep pace with the United States and European countries we must give our people every opportunity to attain skill.

Insurance.

The investigations conducted by the insurance committee throughout the year into the cost of fire insurance protection, is of the utmost importance, and their suggestions that in mutual fire insurance there is to be found economy and safety are appealing with force and power to our members.

During the year the committee has reported fully to the executive council the conclusions they have reached in this matter, and I am safe in saying that in no case has a recommendation been made without a most exhaustive investigation and full and careful consideration. As a result there is now filed in the insurance department records of great value; they are open to inspection at any time, and the more clear and convincing will be the conclusion that a remedy for existing evils and burdensome rates is to be found in a well-organized system of mutual insurance of and by the manufacturers of Canada, just as the success of the same principle has been demonstrated beyond the slightest doubt by the manufacturers of the United States.

Railway and Transportation.

The value to our organization of an expert in transportation matters has been emphasized more during the past year than ever before, and I know that the report of the department will bear testimony to this fact.

The members of our association must be gratified to note that the Government has taken action along the lines of the resolutions passed at the Quebec convention, by bringing express companies under the railway act and making more adequate provision for the interchange of traffic between railways.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows:

President—Harry Cockshutt, of the Cockshutt Plow Co., Brantford.

First Vice-President—Hon. J. D. Rolland, Rolland paper mills, Montreal.

Provincial Vice-Presidents—Ontario: L. Harris, Brantford; Quebec, G. A. Vandry; British Columbia, John Hendry, Vancouver; Manitoba, L. C. McIntyre, Winnipeg; New Brunswick, Chas. Macdonald, St. John; Nova Scotia, T. M. Cutler, Halifax; Alberta, A. E. Cross, Calgary; Saskatchewan, E. J. Brooks, Regina. Treasurer, Geo. Booth.

The convention was brought to a fitting close by a brilliant banquet at the Royal Alexandra, on Wednesday night, Sept. 19. At its close the special excursion train left for the west carrying the manufacturers on their western tour.

The show will be held Jan. 15, 16, 17, 1907.

Up to last Monday, according to Southern Pacific freight officials, 4,000 carloads of green fruit had been sent from California to points east of the Rocky Mountains. They expect an additional 1,500 cars before the season ends. In their opinion these 5,500 cars of deciduous fruit represent a market value of $5,500,000, or an average of $1,000 per car. Each car sent contains 12 tons of fruit. So far this season the total shipments east will aggregate 66,000 tons.

H. Heitman is building for himself a large general store in Feversham, Ont.

R. A. Dalton, Peterboro, Ont., attended the Oddfellows' gathering in Toronto.

Mrs. J. F. East, of Kleinberg, Ont., who has been ill some time, is recovering.

W. Ellison, of Penville, Ont., was in Toronto last week calling on the wholesalers.

J. Saddler, Wiarton, Ont., has sold out his grocery and flour and feed business.

Sulphur has been advanced materially, and is now costing 10c. to 12c. above Spring rates.

Fred Urstadt, of Waterloo, Ont., was in Toronto last week calling on the wholesale trade.

F. A. Haddie, Bowmanville, Ont., was a grocer I.O.O.F. who was in Toronto for the big meeting.

Major Orchard, Toronto manager of the American Tobacco Company, was in Montreal during the week.

Frank Brown, of Port Hope, Ont., wound up the trout season with a nice catch of twenty-two of the best ever.

Six grocery travelers found themselves sitting in a row in the Brown House, Lindsay, Ont., Thursday of last week.

Peels are also climbing in the English market. Citron peel is particularly scarce and the price consequently higher.

Jack White, of Midland, Ont., a foremost grocer and prominent in the I. O. O. F., was at the demonstration in Toronto.

T. A. Fisher, of Lindsay, Ont., was in Toronto last week with the I.O.O.F. and figured large as life in the big procession.

Geo. Winters, Sr., of Geo. Winters & Sons Co., grocers, Brantford, has been enjoying a six weeks holiday among the Muskoka Lakes.

Alphonse Archambault, a Montreal grocer, dropped dead from his delivery wagon while driving down St. James street on Monday.

W. H. Denton, Camilla, Ont., has opened a store in Horning's Mills and will reside there. He is continuing the business in Camilla.

Leonard Wallace, of Wallace Bros., Woodbridge, is highly pleased with the general condition of business. He looks for a fine trade this Winter.

Geo. Mills, of Lindsay, Ont., was in Toronto last week visiting his daughter and swelling the attendance at the I.O.O.F. Sovereign Grand Lodge.

Mrs. H. Armstrong, 18 Eastern avenue, Toronto, has sold her grocery business and is retiring. She and her mother have had the business 23 years and it has paid them well.

A. L. Vanstone, of Brantford, Ont., has put new plate glass fronts in both his grocery store and china store. They adjoin, and the improvement adds greatly to the appearance of the premises.

Ald. Wm. Potter, grocer, Chatham, Ont., was a visitor to Toronto last week. Ald. Potter, besides being a progressive grocer, is an energetic member of the city council and prominent also in politics.

J. B. Egan, formerly of Ceylon Station, Ont., has gone into the grocery and flour and feed business at Dundalk, in the store formerly occupied by Colgan & Wilson.

J. J. Clark, who for years has conducted business in Wiarton, Ont., has removed to Toronto and started in the grocery business there. For the time being he continues his store in Wiarton.

John Goyne, formerly an Ontario traveler for Mathieson Bros., Montreal, is now a member of the traveling staff of Warren Bros & Co., Toronto. He is on the Grand Trunk east and the Midland.

E. C. Clark, of Orangeville, has just returned from a trip to the west. He was greatly pleased with mercantile prospects out there and is thinking of transferring his stake to the land of wheat.

J. H. Ringer has purchased G. H. Robinson's grocery business at Bloor street and Dovercourt Road, Toronto. Mr. Ringer has been a clerk at W. J. Gill's high class fruit and fish store, Yonge and College streets.

Mount Forest's recent fair was the first held there in a number of years, but it was a great success. The merchants worked enthusiastically for it. J. S. Ireland, G. P. Bateman and others made fine exhibits of their goods.

Bracebridge pretty nearly closed up last week and came down to see their team win the lacrosse championship in Newmarket. Mr. Hutchinson, of Hutchinson Bros., and Mr. Hockins were among those who came down to cheer "our boys" and help carry home the championship.

Geo. T. Morris, Oshawa, Ont., came to Toronto Wednesday of last week in an automobile, did business on the fruit market and with the wholesale grocers, and was home in good time that evening. We're not saying anything about the time he made—there are speed laws in this country.

Phil Brown, city traveler for John Sloan & Co., Toronto, lives in Mimico, and Friday of last week entertained his three confreres at his home. He killed a duck or two from his own flock—you see, it was in Mimico—and he and his friends made merry while the day lasted. The entertainment was so good they're going again soon.

Frank Britton, representing the Imperial Extract Company, Toronto, was a caller upon the Montreal trade during the week, in company with the local representative, W. S. Silcocks. Mr. Britton has just returned from a trip through the Province of Quebec, and reports very satisfactory business all along the line.

W. G. A. Lambe, one of Toronto's leading grocery brokers and commission merchants, passed through Montreal on his way home to Toronto this week, after a visit to Atlantic coast points, where he spent a few holidays. Mr. Lambe was accompanied by Mrs. Lambe. A representative of The Grocer had a short talk with him while he was in the city.

While getting into his buggy last Sunday to go for a drive, Joseph Ethier, of the firm of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, fell backward onto the hind wheel of the vehicle, owing to the horses unexpectedly starting. Mr. Ethier was severely injured internally, and is confined to his bed. The doctors expect to have him around in ten days, however.

Titerington Bros.' large fruit warehouse at St. Catharines, Ont., was totally destroyed by fire on Tuesday. There was a large quantity of fruit and baskets, among which the fire spread with lightning rapidity. The loss is about $2,500, of which $800 is insurance. As soon as new premises are secured business will be continued as usual.

Dan Bohlander, who up to a short time ago was manager of the Co-operative Bakery Co., Guelph, Ont., has gone to Berlin to go into partnership with his brother-in-law, August Schneidel, who conducts a successful grocery business in that town. Mr. Bohlander is a man of good business ability and he has the sincerest wishes of success from his friends.

Mr. Charles Hartman, grocer, Brantford, has decided to sell out his entire grocery stock. It is Mr. Hartman's intention to go into the cigar and tobacco business on a large scale and devote his whole attention to it. After extensive alterations have been made in his present store, he expects to have one of the finest tobacco stores in Brantford.

Charles Grand, a Canadian traveler known to many of the trade throughout the Dominion, has identified himself with Beeman & Co., Winnipeg, as sales manager, and will have general supervision of sales for the entire Dominion. Beeman & Co. are manufacturers of a very convenient style of office files and they are meeting with success on this side of the line.

The first cargo this season of currants and raisins for Montreal left Patras, Greece, Saturday, September 8, by the Thomson Line steamship Bellona. On her way through the Mediterranean she will call at Denia, Spain, to complete her cargo of raisins, sailing from that port on September 18. According to Grecian laws currants are not allowed to be shipped until after September 1.

Geo. Dawson, of Dawson & Co., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has returned from his annual Summer outing. George is one of the wide-gauge, big-hearted chaps whose chief pleasure is in seeing others enjoy themselves and joining in the sport. He has acquired the habit of organizing each Summer a party of young folk and taking them off on a camping expedition to some favored spot in the north country. He never had a better time than this Summer, and pleasant rumors of it have reached even to Toronto.

Torrence & McPeik are a new grocery firm in North Bay, Ont. They are just now fitting up their store with fixtures that will be the finest in Northern Ontario and probably means in Ontario. A good many men in the trade in the older parts of the province would be surprised at the size and elegance of some of the grocery stores in the northern towns. Both members of the firm are thorough grocers. Mr. Torrence was in the business in North Bay some years ago, but retired to direct his energies along other lines for a time.

TRADE ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Big New Abattoir at Vancouver—The Salmon Hatcheries—The Fall Pack of Fish—Whale's Tails a Delicacy—Potatoes for Australia—Market Notes.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 22, 1906.

The abattoir and packing plant being erected by the P. Burns Co. in this city to handle their big trade, is to be the most complete of its kind in the west. It is also to be a very extensive plant, as a review of the dimensions will show. The site covers ten acres, and on fully five acres, the buildings will have no spare space. Nearly all these buildings are to be fireproof. The dimensions in detail are: Boiler room, 80 x 40 feet; ice factory and cold storage, 130 x 90 feet; four storeys and basement; killing floors, 90 x 100 feet, four storeys and basement; rendering house, sausage making and refining sections, each of the three, 50 x 50 feet, three storeys and basement. There will also be a fertilizer building three storeys and basement, and a bone house of the same dimensions. All these buildings will be connected by covered corridors, and in the centre is a vestibule 20 x 30 feet, in which will be located the stairways, elevators, drops, and conduits for pipes and wires. A big reservoir capable of holding 25,000 gallons, will be placed above this building. In connection with the offices and other buildings there will be an elaborate provision of bath and dressing rooms for employees. On the waterfront side of the property will be the stockyards and wharves. The foundations for all the buildings are most substantial, being set five feet below the surface of the ground and rising 17 feet above, while they are so wide that two men can easily walk abreast on them. The brick walls are now being erected on these foundations, from brick supplied by the Vancouver Clay Co's new yards at Clayburn. The sanitary arrangements for the new plant are most elaborate and well-nigh perfect. A septic tank of large dimensions has been installed. Every portion of each carcase handled will be utilized to the last extremity, as in the big stock yards of the United States, and the plant is designed to facilitate this. Geo. A. Binney, formerly of the Kansas City stock yards and a man of wide experience in such work, is the designer of the plant, while J. S. Pearse, specialist in the same line, is architect of the buildings. Mr. Binney will superintend the erection and completion of the whole establishment. Its capacity will be 250 head of cattle, 500 sheep and 500 hogs per day, caring for all by-products.

The salmon hatcheries of the Fraser River have had an unfortunate experience through heavy rains just at this time, when the spawning beds and pounds were full of fish. A large quantity of the fish were liberated through the breaking of the pound fences. The three Dominion hatcheries at Harrison Lake, Bon Accord and Pemberton will likely be able to repair the damage sufficiently to secure a catch of the late run of fish. But the Provincial Government's hatchery at Seton Lake, on the upper waters of the river. There a regular cloudburst damned up the creek and the weirs broke, letting out thousands of impounded fish, which will spawn in the upper waters, but the hatchery will have no spawn, unless perhaps a few from late runs which may make their way up to Seton Lake.

On the other hand, the reports from the Lakelse hatchery, Skeena River, show that that farthest north establishment has had a splendid season. The spawning is earlier there, and the hatchery is full of ova, over 4,000,000 eggs being the estimated amount. The manager of the hatchery remarks that the fact of sockeyes from a new spawning ground being ready three weeks earlier than on the usual grounds, indicates that there were two distinct runs of salmon this season.

The Fall run of salmon is keeping up well, and the ending of the close season on sockeyes is marked by re-establishment of prices, 20c. per fish for sockeyes and cohoes being set. There will be ten or eleven of the canneries on the Fraser and tributary waters packing Fall fish. Some of these have been kept running during the close season of sockeyes, on cohoes, humpback and dog salmon.

* * *

The joint sessions of the International Fisheries Commission are being held this week in Vancouver, behind closed doors. The situation on the Fraser River is the chief topic of discussion, but reports of the sessions are being handed out.

* * *

Several hundred tons of potatoes and a large quantity of onions formed part of the cargo of the setamer Miowera, sailing for Australia this week. It is, of course, the opposite season in the Antipodes, and while the new crop is being sold here as low as $10 and $12, so large is the supply, there chances to be such a shortage in the southern commonwealth, that the price is away up to $30 per ton and over. That leaves a handsome margin of profit, provided the spuds reach their destination in good order. The long sea voyage across the tropics is hard on them, and unless the stock is good to begin with, and carefully selected and packed, the percentage of loss in transit is likely to be large.

Onions are frequently imported from Australia in our off season, so that the present exports are but a return of the compliment. Large shipments of apples were also sent out, but unfortunately most of these were from the States of Washington, Oregon and California, fully 3,000 cases being sent. It is possible that further shipments of potatoes may go on the next steamer. The last to sail, the Maheon, had a small lot, but it was rather too early to have the potatoes ready after digging.

* * *

Pickled whale's tails are a delicacy produced as a by-product from the whale fishery established on the west coast of Vancouver Island. A recent shipment of 40 barrels was made o Japan, where the odd article is in demand. The steamer Otter brought the consignment from the whaling station at Sechart, and at the same time 600 barrels of whale oil for shipment to England was also delivered. The whole consignment went on the Blue Funnel steamer Telemachus, which sailed this week.

* * *

At New Westminster weekly market last week, prevailing prices of beef were somewhat lower than usual, 4 1-2c. in quarters being the range for front quarters, 8c. for hind quarters. Mutton was scarce, selling readily at 10c. Veal in large carcases sold at 7c. and in small carcases at 9c. Poultry offerings were liberal. Prices were, for broilers, $3.50 to $4 per doz.; roasters, $5 to $6; hens, $6.50 to $8 per doz; ducks, $7 to $8 per dozen; geese, $1 to $1.45 each.

* * *

Dairy supplies from local sources are fairly liberal yet, but in butter the demand is not met from local sources. Eastern and Northwest receipts are light and prices are going up. It looks as if butter would be a fancy price this Winter. Local creamery is worth 30c. now, and dairy is quoted at nearly as much, though the supplies do not as a rule pass through the hands of jobbers, going direct to the retail trade from the producers. Eastern creamery is quoted at 27c. to 28c. Eggs are scarce as to local fresh supply, which are quoted at 40c., while eastern case stock brings 24c. to 26c.

Fresh fruits are plentiful as to range, though the supply of plums, pears and peaches is not large. Quotations are: Peaches, Okanagan, $2 to $2.25 per crate, Washington $1.20 per crate; pears, local, $1 to $1.25 per box; Bartletts, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; apples, Gravensteins, Wealthy and Greening, $1 per box; plums, 60c. to 75c. per crate; oranges, late Valencias, $5.50 per case; pineapples, ex SS. Miowera from Honolulu, $4 per dozen.

* * *

Potatoes are coming in very plentifully. prices having gone down in some cases to $10 and $12 per ton. Shipments to Australia have caused a little activity in the market for potatoes, but the supply is not yet as large as it will be, and prices are likely to remain low for some time. Tomatoes are still very plentiful, ripe ones selling at $1 to $1.25 per crate. Onions are 2c. to 2 1-4c. per lb., cabbages 1 1-2c., carrots, etc., 85c. per hundred.

BARRED FROM THE MAILS.

Many a doubtful enterprise has masked its obliquity behind a fair name. At length deeds speak louder than words — but there are the profits. A fraud order has been issued by the U. S. Post Office against the McLean Publishing Co. of 88 Walker street, New York, barring them from the use of the mails. The story is told by the New York Times as follows :

The concern advertized in the cheaper magazines, offering large prizes for the solution of a puzzle. These puzzles were always easy to solve, and many persons sent in the answer and demanded the prize. Instead, they received a circular announcing that "the present which will be given you is a very beautiful set of table silverware, consisting of an A1 silver plate flatware coffee set, including sugar shell gold bowl, carefully packed in an elegant double-sealed box, all fully warranted."

The prize winner was also informed that he was to receive four volumes of the Arlington Edition, a series of cheap reprints. The winner was requested to send "shipping directions, with a remittance of $1.35 to cover boxing and packing charges."

Many persons took the bait, and it is said that the McLean Publishing Company was overwhelmed with mail. However, the outgoing expresses were not taxed to anything like the same extent in carrying books and coffee sets to the persons who had sent in their $1.35. As a result, many letters of inquiry were sent to the post office Moreover, in Canada there is a MacLean Publishing Company, which is a thoroughly reliable concern. It publishes seven trade newspapers in Montreal and Toronto. Its president, J. B. MacLean, was for some years commanding officer of the Duke of York's Own Canadian Hussars, the crack cavalry regiment of Montreal. His company found itself accused of its namesake's derelictions. When a Canadian sent his $1.35 to New York and failed to receive the articles he had expected he called the Montreal firm to account. So it, too, began to make complaints.

The post office authorities made an investigation. The manager of the company admitted some of the goods had not reached their destination, but put it down to insufficient addresses. That didn't satisfy the inspector and the company was barred from the use of the mails. To the reporter of the Times all the manager would say was that it was "a dirty mean piece of business."

MONTHLY COMPETITION.

Window dressing, we believe, is one of the most important parts of the grocery business. It needs encouragement in Canada. For that reason The Canadian Grocer has decided to hold a monthly window dressing competition. Three prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be awarded each month. Those wishing to enter the competition will send photographs of their windows to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front St. East, Toronto, accompanied by a written description.

This is practically a chance for the clerk. An illustration of this is shown in the case of J. M. Thom, of Gibbons Bros., Toronto, referred to in another column. No department of the grocery trade offers larger opportunities for advancement than window dressing. If you don't know what you can do, try. If you don't surprise yourself the effort will be a great advantage in any case. No grocer is up to his business if he cannot dress a window. Get into the competition.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

Throughout Great Britain a propaganda is being carried on in favor of technical education for grocers' assistants. It is a very promising development for the trade. At a recent meeting in Leeds of the National Association of Grocers' Assistants, an address on the need for technical education was delivered by the general secretary of the association, J. Aubrey Rees. In introducing him the chairman said the system of apprenticeship was non-existent, and they did not find one assistant in twenty who had gone through the proper form as assistants did years ago. He joined the trade in 1873, and served for a term of years with a man who was the soul of integrity and who explained every detail of trade, which, unfortunately, was not done to-day. There was, he said, too much handing of goods from under the counter or off shelves all ready packed. Referring to the course of classes to be held in the city, Mr. Wood said the Leeds Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association had helped them nobly to get these classes arranged.

Mr. Rees' address is thus reported in part : "The grocer's shop had been the dumping ground for all kinds of extraordinary specialties. Mr. Rees referred to the way grocers of this country had suffered by the recent scandals and scares. They wanted to change the condition of affairs and say to the grocer that he should be able to inform his customers that goods were full weight and of good quality, but behind that simple knowledge they should be able to also tell their customers what was a suitable human food. They should also see that the goods sold were a credit to the salesman and the trade. Dealing with the period over which the technical education to entitle assistants to submit themselves in the national examination for the big prize was carried, he added that technical education was going to have a distinct bearing on the assistants and would bring about much better conditions in the trade. In concluding, Mr. Rees said his ambition was to see every grocer's assistant and qualified man master of his trade and proud to be connected with it, and receiving in return for efficient service such remuneration as would enable him to lead a happy and comfortable life, and able to take his place as an honored and respected citizen in this England of ours. Technical education was one, and certainly not the least, means towards this end being brought about."

REFUSE THE BONUS HUNTER.

The bonusing of wildcat industries has loaded a good many Ontario municipalities with debt. This anxiety of towns and villages to get factories is played upon, and wily promoters pursue the game of pitting municipality against municipality. A recent glaring example was the hawking about of a proposition to start a sugar factory in Western Ontario. A statement submitted in court indicated that the company had a good deal more vigor and assurance than money. Bonus hunting has proved in many cases a very profitable amusement. With favorable terms and municipal backing in some form a concern gets going. It keeps going till the term of its bonus expires then asks another. If the people seem to hesitate, visits are paid to other places and it is judiciously noised abroad that this and that municipality are likely to get the industry. Of course, the folk in the home town wake up and pass over their money. There are very many instances most of them differing in detail where municipalities have practically furnished the funds to operate industries. It's time the bonusing system was stopped. It is bad for business in general and bad for the municipalities. Municipal councils will do well to give no heed to the appeals of crafty bonus hunters.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS.

ABBREVIATIONS—
Fish—Revised.
Currants—Advanced.
Canned goods—New prices.
Honey—Advanced.

Montreal, Sept. 26, 1906.

Fall business is reported satisfactory by the jobbing trade, who find that, while conditions might be improved, nevertheless they are satisfactory. The feature of the market this week is the new price lists which have been issued in canned goods. Tomatoes are quoted at last, and it may safely be said that the new prices will surprise nearly everybody. According to the canners we must pay now $1.15 and $1.17½ for our tomatoes. Corn is also higher, 90c. and 92½c. being asked. Plum prices show an advance pretty nearly all along the line, while apples are on about the same basis as last year. Sugar is firm. There is not so much business passing now that the preserving season has about finished. In teas there is nothing particularly new. As grocers know, the market is bare of Indian and Ceylon greens. Ceylon blacks are up again this week. Japans are firm. Coffee and spices are not changed. Currants are still upwards in their flight and raisins are little better. In fact, the tendency of the market in all lines is upward. Not much is being done in evaporated apples, while molasses is quite unchanged. Rolled oats has been again advanced.

Jobbers are satisfied with the manner in which collections are coming in.

CANNED GOODS—Price lists on tomatoes and corn are out at last, and feeling in the jobbing trade is of several kinds. Said one merchant to The Grocer: "There is no reason in the world why the canners should have made the price of tomatoes $1.17½ and $1.15. They cannot claim that the pack was small this year, because it was a large one. I hear that in some districts farmers are talking of suing the canners for not taking their tomatoes from them according to contract. It seems to me that there is no justice in these prices. There is no room for an advance later in the season, so that it is just a question of the jobber and the retailer making practically nothing worth speaking of on tomatoes this year." Perhaps this jobber expressed himself a little strongly, but there is certainly a feeling that the situation in tomatoes did not justify such a high opening. Last year tomatoes opened at 95c. Corn is also higher, the prices asked being 92½c. and 90c. In fruits, plums are higher in all lines except two, in the green gage variety prices being slightly lower. Apple prices are also out and compare favorably with last year's. These new prices go into effect at once, of course, but orders taken will in most cases be filled with new goods, since old stock is practically cleaned up.

SUGAR—Business this week was not so brisk as it has been lately. The preserving season is just about over and demand is consequently lighter. Prices are firm, and any change is not looked for at the moment.

The situation in sugars in Cuba, according to Willett & Gray's report, owing to the political situation there at present, is decidedly stronger. It is considered by planters that the intervention of the United States Government is the only solution for favorable crop prospects. The market is very strong, and it is expected that at any moment the conditions will be still further strengthened.

TEA—Japans are very strong locally, and are scarce. Some tea men claim that there are a few odd lots of Japans arriving but the prices are high and the teas are poor values, the drawing quality being very poor. Buyers are coming forward now since they are realizing that lower prices are out of the range of possibilities. Japan siftings, which last year most people would not look at, sold this week for 10c. China greens are unchanged. Ceylon greens are up again, this time a penny. The market, as is known, is bare of Ceylon and Indian greens. This fact is more plainly indicated when it is understood that one of the largest import agents in Montreal, who usually carries several thousand packages, is at present without a package.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—In this market the upward tendency in prices continues a feature. Currants, according to latest advices, have been steadily advancing in Greece, and the price here has gone up in consequence. The figure asked for barrels is now 7¼c. It is not thought that currants will be lower in price until after the arrival of the two direct steamers, when there may be a slight easing off in the market. Owing to conditions since the opening, and considering the fact that the crop was short in the first place, it is thought by many that Malaga raisins are as low as they will be. This remains to be seen. Steamers have left the Persian Gulf with new crop figs which are now on the way here. They will probably reach Montreal about October 25. New crop figs are now half a cent higher than at the opening, and are advancing. The Turkish Government has control of the situation and will allow the shipment of not more than 100 camel loads a day, which has had the effect of stiffening the market. Early shipments of prunes are now on the way to this market and are expected to arrive in about a week. Advices state that in some districts prunes have been considerably damaged by the rains, so that buyers should exercise care in purchasing the cheaper lines of this fruit. The tendency of the market is still upward. Raisin shipments from California are expected to begin in a week or ten days. While it is difficult to obtain shipment for October, yet many of the larger houses are booking orders for November delivery. In peaches, pears and apricots prices continue to advance. Conditions are bad in California and packers are working under great difficulties. Labor is very scarce, as has been stated before this, while there is a shortage of supplies. This is particularly noticeable in boxes, which this year will add to the price of prunes by 1 to 2 per cent. This illustrates existing conditions on the coast as well as anything could. There has been practically no change in nuts since last report. Tarragona almonds now cost 14½c. to 15c.; Grenoble walnuts, 14c.; marbots, 12½c., and French dried walnuts, 10c.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

ABBREVIATIONS—

Prices on new dried fruits.
Prices on canned corn, tomatoes, apples, plums, etc.
Sugar market firm.
Rolled oats higher.
Dried fruits still rising.

Toronto, Sept. 27, 1906.

Trade in all grocery lines continues good and collections are satisfactory. The interesting feature was the new prices on canned corn and tomatoes and a number of canned fruits. Tomatoes are $1.15 and a good many people thought that comparatively high price was not justified. But the pack is still at a precarious stage. At the end of last week the canners had packed only 55 per cent. of their requirements. If the weather continues favorable the packing will go on until November, but that's a large "if." Then again, the extremely warm spell of a few weeks back ripened the tomatoes so rapidly that the canners could not handle the tomatoes brought to them and many thousands of bushels rotted in the field. Then again, the can factories have been unable to keep abreast of their orders. Solder and labor are both costing more, solder a great deal more. These considerations submitted by the canners convinced some wholesalers that the price was not unreasonable. Sugar continues firm, but consumption is not as lively as it was. Dried fruits are still an interesting feature, though getting so high as to be almost out of reach. The trade is taking hold of the new crop very gingerly. Tapioca is a little easier.

CANNED GOODS—The new prices are the feature. They have been given on corn, tomatoes, apples, plums, peaches, pears. Corn at 90c. and tomatoes at $1.15 are regarded as high. The explanation is given above. Plums in view of the crop failure are naturally higher than last year. Peaches and pears are unchanged.

The only canned goods on which new pack prices have not been issued are cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, parsnips, pumpkin, squash, succotash and turnips.

TEAS—The market seems generally to be getting into a better position. Ceylon prices especially are developing the hardening tendency. A mail advice from London under date September 13 says: "The exceptionally heavy re-exports of low priced leaf during the past few months are gradually beginning to have some effect on the stocks held by the trade and this week a distinctly better inquiry has been noticeable, which may develop into an upward movement later on. Arrivals of Indian tea last month were some 6 millions ahead of 1905, otherwise the statistical position would not be unsatisfactory, for deducting this increase, an expansion of 10 millions in imports since the beginning of the year has been met by a similar advance in deliveries, whereas last year the decrease of 1 million lbs. in shipments to this country was followed by a falling off of some 5 millions in consumption." Supplies of Ceylon are on a diminishing scale and of better quality.

COFFEE—The actual position of coffee at present prices, say Willett & Gray, remains sound and healthy, one of the strong features being the heavy short interest, while it is pretty certain that there has been a good cleaning up of tired long holdings. But apart from the expected practical outcome of valorization, the strongest element is the dangerous outlook for the growing crop, and in relation to the influence this must have upon the present crop.

The long continued fine, dry weather in Brazil has offered greatest possible advantages to the farmers in picking and drying out the present crop, the unprecedented heavy movement so far being partly attributable to these good harvesting conditions, combined also with the fact that many planters have sent their coffee to the seaboard as soon as possible, hoping to avail of the advantages of Government purchases under the valorization scheme.

The necessities of consuming countries are worthy of the closest consideration, the purchases so far made in Brazil this season representing the close requirements as indicated by the deliveries.

Considering the price of the article has been forced down to an absurdly low basis by discounting over and over everything construed to be adverse to the market, ignoring everything else, the time is ripe for a healthy reaction on the price itself, on the very unfavorable reports about the growing crop and the nearness of the application of the valorization law.

SUGAR—The market continues strong but there is no talk here to indicate expectation of an immediate advance. The Cuban situation is probably responsible for the fluctuation in European beet prices. Willett & Gray at last week end said: "The markets of the world for raw sugar are now directly under the influence of Cuban news from day to day. Europe, which is highly speculative, is particularly effected by the Cuba situation, beet quotations rising during the week to 10s. 3d. and falling at the close to 9s. 6d. for prompt with corresponding decline for futures."

A movement of 4d. or 5d. in a day seems easy for beet now. A year ago it was 2s. higher than now and refined in Canada is 30c. lower than a year ago, showing a differentiation of about 75c.

Visible supply.—Total stock of Europe and America, 1,366,176 tons, against 1,111,388 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 254,788 tons, against an increase of 446,312 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together show a visible supply of 1,596,176 tons, against 1,486,388 tons last year, or an increase of 109,788 tons.

DRIED FRUITS—All the quotations given below are on new fruit to arrive. Fine Filiatras currants would cost to import to-day more than the lower quotation given, so it is pretty evident that the price must advance from the lower level anyway. There has been a further advance in primary markets of 2s. on natural Turkish figs. The price of Sultana raisins also has gone still higher. The Valencia market continues very firm and no concessions are obtainable. Crop estimates are now as low as 800,000 boxes, while an average crop is 2,500,000 boxes. Prices of California seeded raisins on the coast have advanced ¼c. to a cent above the opening prices and holders are firm. Currants are now from 6s. to 7s. above the opening of the market and merchants who hesitated to buy then are hesitating still. The spot quotation for Valencias in Toronto is 8c.

DRIED FRUIT TROUBLES.

Some Features of the Situation in California.

Letters received by Messrs. W. G. A. Lambe & Co. from Messrs. Griffin & Skelley Co. under date of September 18 and 21 report that they are having great difficulty at the coast in California in getting out cars on account of the disturbed conditions there, brought about by the scarcity of labor, scarcity of cars, scarcity of box material, scarcity of labels, and in fact everything that is needed to complete shipment is difficult to get hold of.

Griffin & Skelley also report that the first shipments that will be made of Santa Clara Valley prunes will not be of the best quality, as they are the first dropping of the plum trees, and often the fruit drops early on account of some defect in the fruit.

To give an idea of the difficulty that shippers are having in filling orders for the larger sizes of prunes, the following result showing the per centage grading of 100 tons of Santa Clara Valley prunes is furnished: 30-40, 3.4; 40-50, 12; 50-60, 23.3; 60-70, 21.8; 70-80, 19.3; 80-90, 7; 90-100, 5.7; 100-120, 5.6; 120 and over, 1.7.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 27, 1906.)

General business conditions are reported favorable by the wholesale trade, collections being in much better state than at the corresponding period last year and the demand for goods from the retail trade being so large as to leave the sales managers in the wholesale houses no reason to complain. There are few quotable changes, values being steady in nearly all lines.

CANNED GOODS—New prices are announced on tomatoes and corn and the corrected quotations will be noted below. We quote:

GOOD WINDOW DRESSING

Canadian Grocer Will Hold a Monthly Competition—Useful Training for the Clerk—How an Amateur Won First Prize Last Year—A Window in Vancouver.

In this page a fortnight ago a picture appeared of a fruit window by Gibbons Bros., Toronto. The photographer was not very successful, but he had his troubles. On either side of the entrance the sign "Fruit" was easily seen, but the photographing apparatus caught only part of the signs. The rest of them is to the effect that the fruit is kept inside the store out of the dirt and nastiness of the street, and invites the public to come in. This method of handling fruit combined with frequent window displays, Mr. Gibbons declares, after a season's trial, to be thoroughly satisfactory and a very great improvement on the old method of putting the fruit on the sidewalk.

"Aside from the sanitary considerations," Mr. Gibbons said, "the fruit keeps better; people don't handle it as they do when it is on the street. We get more of the better class of trade and our fruit business has increased."

Gibbons Bros.' window dresser is J. V. Thom. He didn't know he could dress windows till last Christmas, when pictures of the holiday windows and interiors were sent to The Canadian Grocer and was awarded first prize in a competition. Gibbons Bros. did not even know there was a competition and Mr. Thom's surprise and appreciation when the notification of the award reached him is only to be understood by a window dresser. A young man and, luckily, married, Mr. Thom was brought up to the grocery business. He entered Gibbons Bros.' employ in June of 1905 after two years on the wagon for another firm. Of course, he likes window dressing and decorating, but when he found he was a prize winner it made an enthusiast of him. He now dresses both windows every Monday morning. Mr. Gibbons has given him every opportunity and he is thoroughly grateful for it. Pictures of the windows and interior, which won the prize competition will appear in the Special Fall Number of The Canadian Grocer of October 19.

Does window dressing pay? was asked of Mr. Gibbons, and he was very positive in his reply that it did. When The Grocer representative was talking to him there was a display of jam in the window and among their called-for orders were two requests for jam "like that in the window."

A MANUFACTURER'S WINDOW.

This illustration shows a manufacturer's display in the window of P. F. Wright, Vancouver, B.C. That's a long way removed from the subject of last week's illustration which was of the interior of the store of C. E. Choat & Co., Halifax, N.S., but the east and west shake hands in The Grocer. Somewhat similar displays of Gillett goods are known in every province of the confederation, and this is a particularly good sample, partly because the dresser had such a fine window to work in.

A live salesman for a big American soap manufacturer was trying to sell a Brooklyn grocer an order, but could make no impression. Being a cracking good window dresser himself, he offered to make a window display for the man, and with that inducement the grocer took a dozen boxes. It was one of the best known American soaps. The salesman came in the evening and fixed up the window. Pretty soon he had a dozen requests from grocers for soap display windows, and the traveler got working so hard he had to cut it out, and a special man was engaged for the work.

This is a good line. Such a display as the one shown here could not but increase sales, and in addition gives the public an impression of the store that means money to the grocer right along. Next to cleanliness and good goods and fair dealing, there's nothing pays better than window dressing.

Arthur J. Leamen, a Moncton, N.B., grocer, is to be married to Miss May Quartermain, of Fredericton.

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Since our last report a still further advance in prices for cheese has to be recorded, However, at the recent extreme prices paid in country markets there seems to be another halt in the upward movement, but conditions remain as before reported. There is an undoubted shrinkage in the make and as the English make of cheese is reported light also it is extremely probable that high prices will prevail right along.

Meanwhile, we are having record prices, but, after all, there is good reason for it. Going back to the beginning of the season we find that we started with bare boards both here and in Great Britain. Cheese is an acknowledged article of food and a necessity for the British working classes, prices were high, but the goods were wanted. After an almost snowless Winter, many pastures were "Winter killed." It needed plenty of warm moisture to bring these pastures up; instead, we had an unusually hot and dry season to follow the last Winter. Pastures never were good and the flow of milk has been below the average the entire season.

Cheese, being in more regular demand than butter, felt the shortage in supply of milk quicker than butter and prices were in consequence more favorable for the production of cheese. Many factories, equipped to make either cheese or butter, made cheese and there was an apparent increase in the make over last year's make, but even now, with a larger number of cheese factories through the Dominion of Canada, the long continued hot and dry Summer has caused a most serious shrinkage in the flow of milk so that our Fall make of cheese will undoubtedly be far short of last year's Fall make.

The unsold stocks of cheese of the Summer make and the extent of the Fall make generally rule the market for the Winter months. We have hardly any Summer-made cheese here unsold, and with a light Fall make, there is every prospect of ruling high prices for the coming Winter months.

Our receipts in Montreal were last week 83,026 boxes of cheese and 14,576 packages of butter, against 79,225 boxes of cheese and 26,589 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or since May 1, 1,706,142 boxes of cheese and 500,687 packages of butter, as compared with 1,660,606 boxes af cheese and 614,097 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Our exports were last week 65,747 boxes of cheese and 9,936 packages of butter, against 87,609 boxes of cheese and 31,920 packages of butter for the same week of last year, or since May 1, 1,561,724 boxes of cheese and 303,304 packages of butter, as compared with 1,431,994 boxes of cheese and 460,465 packages of butter for the corresponding period of last year.

Receipts of cheese show an increase of 45,536 boxes and exports show an increase of 129,730 boxes, which leaves 84,194 boxes of cheese less in stock in Montreal than at the same time last year. The receipts of butter are 113,410 packages less than last year and the shipments are 157,161 packages less, leaving a surplus stock of 43,751 packages over the same time of last year.

Statistically, cheese is in a strong position. There is, however, some well-founded opinions that present high prices will check the consumption so that after all the short supplies may be sufficient for the coming Winter's trade, but, considering other food products, particularly bacon, cheese is not abnormally high.

Butter is in a very peculiar position and may have a very sudden advance in prices at any time. It has been cheaper than cheese right along and the production has been much lighter than last year. The market is ruled by supplies of other countries in Great Britain, but with hot and dry weather in Europe it is an open question whether our butter will not be wanted later on. Of course, we must consider the Australian supplies for next Winter, and we do not know at present the extent of this, but under normal conditions, we are inclined to believe that butter will advance in prices.

PROVISION SITUATION.

Stocks of Canadian pork products to be in somewhat small compass, particularly hams and breakfast bacon, and prices continue firm. The reason alleged is that packers have been giving more attention to export trade. No radical change in prices is anticipated for some weeks yet.

Prices on the English market, according to latest cables, are unchanged though reports were received of an advance of two to three shillings. Last week the average price paid for best Canadian bacon was 61s. per long cwt., 112 lbs., and it cost the packers considerable more than that.

The price of live hogs is up 10c. this week and the packers are paying at country points $6.25.

CANADIAN DAIRY EXPORTS.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has received the figures of the exports of dairy produce to the Mother Country for the year ending the 30th of June last. The total quantity of cheese imported into the United Kingdom for the year was 130,062 tons, of which Canada sent the splendid total of 98,884 tons, as compared with 10,676 tons from the United States, 11,364 tons from Holland, and 5,870 tons from New Zealand. The report says that the consumption of cheese has been unusually heavy, due largely to the scare in connection with the Chicago canned meat scandal. Canada's exports of butter for the past year to the Mother Land show an increase of 2,300 tons over the year before. The total U. K. importations of the year amounted to 215,493 tons, of which Denmark sent 81,261 tons, Russia 25,327, Australia 26,950, Canada 15,745, and New Zealand 15,177 tons.

OLEO HOLDS ITS OWN.

(National Provisioner.)

The total output of oleomargarine in the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1906, was 53,146,659 lbs. an increase of 3,265,015 lbs. over the year previous, according to advance advices from the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The figures alone are one of the strongest arguments for removing the burden of an iniquitous discriminating tax from this industry, if there was any chance of securing just a little justice from Congress on the subject. Forbidden by law to be colored except under a crushing tax, though any other American food product may be harmlessly colored, the demand for oleomargarine on its merit alone is so great that more than 50,000,000 lbs. of it are sold annually, and the statistics show a material increase in the output. It is little wonder that the Creamery Trust, foreseeing the day when oleomargarine would meet butter on equal terms, whipped the farmers into line against the purer, better product.

A. J. Matthews, son of Geo. Matthews, of George Matthews & Co., pork packers, Peterboro, Ont., is establishing a packing house at Halifax, N.S. The new plant is being equipped with the latest machinery, and Mr. Matthews expects to do an extensive business. The supply of hogs will be obtained principally in the Maritime Provinces. Packing operations will be started the latter part of this month.

BUTTER—This week the butter market is a little firmer on account of an advance of half a cent a pound on the other side. Prices locally are about unchanged, for at the advance asked trading is somewhat restricted. Shipments have been fairly liberal of late, and with lighter receipts holders are independent and are not forcing sales. Home trade requirements for the coming Winter will have to be catered to very soon, so that an advance is not anticipated.

Choicest creamery, salt	0 23½	0 23¾
Medium creamery		0 23

CHEESE—Cheese has advanced slightly again, but prices have reached such a height that business this week has been curtailed. The demand last week was for September make, and as a good many of these orders were shipped, the shipments this week were inclined to be smaller. Prices are now at a level which is certainly the highest ever experienced in the Canadian cheese trade, and it is very doubtful if any further advances will be realized; in fact, one dealer, speaking to The Grocer, gave it as his opinion that recessions, though perhaps small, were more likely.

EGGS—Eggs are slightly higher this week, dealers asking 21c. for selects. This price is easily obtainable as good eggs are none too plentiful. No. 1 bring 18c. Receipts are fairly heavy and the quality of the stock arriving is considerably improved with the advent of cooler weather. It is expected that there will be some cars offered next week, but at present the eggs seem to be held by western shippers. Dealers are putting away small lots every day, but dispose of the greater part of their receipts on arrival, as yet.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—The market continues firm. Lower prices are anticipated later in the Fall. Meantime, stocks off car to be none too large in some lines and a good demand continues. Heavy mess and short cut are higher. Hindquarters of beef and choice carcasses are a shade lower. So is lamb.

DEATH OF CHARLES P. GRAHAM.

Toronto Manager for the Edwardsburg Starch Co.

Charles P. Graham, Western Ontario sales manager for the Edwardsburg Starch Co., died at his home in Toronto, Thursday afternoon of last week. Few men were better known to the grocery trade throughout Eastern Canada and none was more thoroughly liked or more highly regarded. News of his sudden death will come as a shock to many readers of The Grocer who counted him a personal friend. Thursday morning he was taken with a violent pain in his head and early in the afternoon was dead, the result, his physicians said, of the bursting of an artery in the head.

The funeral took place to St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church on Saturday morning and thence to Mount Hope cemetery. Requiem mass and the service at the grave were conducted by Father Minnehan, parish priest of St. Peter's, and Father Jeffcott, of Adjela, Ont., sung the high mass. The pallbearers were J. Beck, superintendent of the Union Station, Toronto; N. A. Medland, of Medland & Jones; W. A. Kavanagh and John Hayden, traveler for John Sloan & Co. There was a very large attendance of friends and business associates, among them Flem Hayes, Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto; J. S. Donaldson, sr., Toronto; W. F. Morley, of the Canada Brokerage Co., Toronto; Wm. Campbell, of T. Kinnear & Co., Toronto; Geo. F. Benson, president of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., Cardinal; Alex. Milne, of W. T. Benson & Co., Montreal; ex-Mayor Thos. Urquhart, Toronto; Frank Campbell; Geo. Stanway, Toronto; L. Harris, of the Hamilton Herald; A. Hutchison, of the St. Lawrence Starch Co.; M. H. Seed, of St. Leon Waters, Limited; J. T. Paul, of the Brantford Starch Works; A. S. Cadow, of C. S. Landon & Co.

Mr. Graham was only 61 years of age, and he was much older than he seemed at that. So genial and happy was his disposition that the years rested lightly upon him and few would have taken him to be in the last decade of the Psalmists' allotted span.

Mr. Graham, born in Clapham, England, came to Canada in 1872 and entered the employ of the late Hon. Sir Frank Smith, then a wholesale grocer in Toronto. After nine years there as shipper Mr. Graham went to Montreal for the Walkerville Syrup Co., becoming a traveler and eastern representative of the company at Montreal. After a short term with the Toronto Syrup Co. he joined the sales force of the Edwardsburg Co. 19 years ago, becoming their Western Ontario representative.

So successful was he that Western Ontario became practically the only market in Canada for high grade starch. When he came upon the stage for the Edwardsburg Co. the demand in Ontario, as elsewhere, was for common grade bulk starch. He urged the advantage of the package goods and better quality, with the result that to-day the company's sales in his territory are 60 to 70 per cent. highest grade package goods. This bespeaks the persistent enthusiasm of Mr. Graham's salesmanship.

In the early days Mr. Graham sold as far west as Edmonton when Winnipeg was the jumping-off place for the railways. He was known and liked of the trade from there to the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Graham was a staunch Conservative, though never an active politician. In religion he was a Roman Catholic and a member of St. Peter's congregation. He married in 1897 Miss Margaret E. Ross, of Toronto, who survives him.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.

"Baking Powder, and Other Leavening Agents" is the name of an interesting book just published by the Spice Mill Publishing Company, New York. F. N. Foot is the author of the volume, which deals with the composition of baking powder, the chemical action resulting from the use of various kinds, and other matters appertaining to the commodity. The process of manufacture is dealt with in an interesting manner, while there are many suggestions which manufacturers might find of use. All in all the book is one which should prove good reading for those interested in baking powder and its manufacture.

Wheat and Other Grain Markets Advanced—Some Figuring on World Crops—Flour Market Steady—Oat Products Advanced Sharply.

Wheat continues to rise, but some dealers look for a reaction. The advance, however, has been general in the grain markets. Some export business has been doing in Manitoba wheat, but Ontario Winter wheat has not yet begun to move. The market generally is still in the hands of the mathematicians to some extent. An "expert" writing in the London Daily Mail estimates the world's surplus of wheat at 23 million quarters. He figures the surplus by districts thus: Canada and United States, 30 million; Russia, 13 million; Roumania and Bulgaria, 12½ million; Austria-Hungary, 3½ million; Chile, North Africa, Turkey, 1½ million; Argentine, 12½ million; Australasia, 5 million; India, 6 million; total, 84 million quarters. The requirements are: United Kingdom, 26 million; Germany, Belgium and Holland, 15 million; Italy, 5 million; Switzerland, Greece and Scandinavia, 4½ million; France, 1½ million; Spain and Portugal, 1 million; other countries, 8 million, total, 61 million.

Another estimate gives the world's wheat crop as 3,501,000,000 bushels, against 3,336,000,000 bushels last year. This navigator of the wheat market says:

"Not since the year 1900, when the wheat imports of the world were 439,000,000 bushels, were the requirements of deficit countries so low as they are this year, by virtue of excellent crops. Fourteen importing countries have an increase in yield of 88,000,000 bushels this year, compared with their aggregate production in 1904 and 1905. Their deficit will be correspondingly less, making a total to be supplied by the exporting countries of 469,000,000 bushels compared with 557,000,000 bushels in 1904 and 1905.

"This decrease in the demands of importing countries is accompanied by an increase in the supply of exporting countries which have an estimated increase of wheat crops of 218,000,000 bushels above those of 1905, or an available surplus of 765,000,000 bushels. In other words, there are 88,000,000 bushels less to be supplied and there is more by 218,000,000 bushels to supply the deficit than in 1905."

Oat products have advanced sharply. It was anticipated and one big mill is booked ahead two months.

FEED—The feed famine continues, and with the demand large as it is the condition of the market is strained. One dealer remarked that so far as quotations went it were just as well to quote $30, since no supplies were obtainable at any price. This may be putting it too strongly, but it illustrates the situation.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FLOUR.

Mill Capacity Now Sufficient for Home Demand.

There's an interesting milling situation in Great Britain just now, is the view of D. A. Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Co., Toronto Junction. Mr. Campbell is a son of Archie Campbell, M.P., and returned Sunday from a two months' trip to Europe. After seeing something of Italy, France, Germany, and other parts of the continent, Mr. Campbell got to Great Britain and looked over the largest mills in England and Scotland.

In conversation with a representative of The Canadian Grocer who caught him very busy at the big mill, where millwrights are now at work installing a lot of new and thoroughly up-to-date plant to bring the capacity up to a thousand barrels a day, Mr. Campbell said in part:

"During the last five years milling in Great Britain has been very profitable. Capital has been attracted to it and within a year the mill capacity has been increased 3,000,000 barrels. The result is that the present mill capacity is more than equal to supplying the entire domestic consumption of flour and the big millers are now looking pretty blue. Competition has so increased that some of them are running at a loss rather than allow the plant to lie idle.

"The importing flour brokers also are feeling the stress of the situation. They fear that mill competition at home will so reduce the price of flour as to put a stop to importation altogether.

"Are the British mills up-to-date? They have some very fine mills there, but I don't think they are as up-to-date as we in America. They didn't seem to me to dress and grade their flour as well as we do. They put so much capital into buildings and plant that they can't afford to keep up with improvements. Their buildings are very substantial and their plant is proportionately heavy. I saw a mill in Glasgow that had been steadily in operation without a change for fifty years. Even the engine was the one first installed.

"The British millers draw their wheat from every exporting country. I was in a mill in London that was grinding wheat from fifteen different countries.

TRISCUIT TRUTHS

TRISCUIT is shredded whole wheat, made the same as Shredded Wheat Biscuit--except that it is compressed into a wafer and baked by electricity.

TRISCUIT is not a "breakfast food." It is a substitute for white flour bread and is used as a TOAST with butter, cheese or marmalades.

TRISCUIT is an ideal food for flat-dwellers, light house keepers, campers, for picnics, for excursions on land or on sea. The best of all wafers for chafing dish ookery.

TRISCUIT should always be heated in an oven before serving. It is made by The Canadian Shredded Wheat Company at Niagara Falls, Ont., makers of shredded wheat products. The TRISCUIT booklet is sent free.

QUAKER OATS BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

The manufacturers of Quaker Oats report that during the six months ending June 30 they made and sold more Quaker Oats than ever before in any similar period. This is remarkable when it is known that the first half of the year is not considered nearly so good for oat products as the last half.

There is probably no brand of rolled oats in the world so extensively advertised as Quaker Oats, and the fact that the sales have shown great increases from year to year is conclusive proof that it is a sure repeater. Judging from reliable information from the leading jobbing centres, based on the rapidly increasing demand, the sales of this popular cereal during the last half of the year will be 30 to 50 per cent. greater than they were during the first six months.

It is now a question as to whether the Quaker Oats Company will be able to fill all orders promptly during the coming months. Notwithstanding the increased milling facilities the unusual demand is likely to require all that the mills can possibly produce. The manufacturers state that there will be many times during the next few months when they will be oversold, and in fairness to the trade have decided to fill orders in rotation—it will be a case of first come, first served.

It is desired by the manufacturers that this condition should be fully appreciated by the dealer in order that he may protect himself and his customers against disappointments in not receiving the goods when he needs them most.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Peach Market on the Wane—Grapes the Feature Now and Interest Reviving in Imported Fruits—The Apple Situation —Fish Trade Quiet.

Fruit, vegetable and fish markets have not undergone this week any change not in keeping with the advance of the season. Peaches are on the wane, grapes are taking the stage. Fall apples, Alexanders, Calverts, St. Lawrence and Jenettings, continue scarce and the price remains at $2 to $3 a barrel, compared with last year's price of $1.50 to $1.75. For the next three weeks the Niagara grape crop will come upon the market in large quantities. The crop is large and prices will be moderate. Oranges will soon be a feature again. Jamaicas are beginning to arrive and Floridas will begin to move about October 1 and will arrive in Canada about October 10. The lemon market is still occupied by Verdillas, but new Messinas will be available about October 25. An important grower of California oranges was in Toronto this week and he said everything looked very favorable for a crop about the same as last year, when the output was 25,000 cars as against 28,000 cars the year before. Last year's was a good average crop. The Canadian pear crop is about over except for some later varieties. Good demand for vegetables continues. Fish are still slow but the receipts from the lakes are improving.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

GREEN FRUITS—Continuance of the warm weather has had the effect of keeping prices from advancing materially. Trade is about fair to good. Cranberries are quoted this week, the price asked being $8.50 to $9 a barrel. Bananas are in very good demand at unchanged prices. Dealers, some of them, are using their ripening rooms almost all the time. Apples are coming forward quite freely, but the recent warm weather has done a great deal of damage to stocks held. The writer was shown one barrel from a lot, and in it the apples appeared to be more rotten than good. Such apples are being sold for what they will bring.

VEGETABLES—There has been little change in the vegetable market since last report. Business continues very good, while prices have been altered more or less, according to market conditions. Tomatoes are arriving more freely and the prices asked by dealers are considerably lower. For boxes 25c. to 40c. is obtainable. New sage and savory is now on the market, selling at 60c. a dozen bunches. Turnips and carrots in bags are offering in good quantities. Some carloads of potatoes have been sold recently, although such lots are not coming in freely yet. The price asked this week varies, being anywhere between 90c. and $1. FISH.—Fresh fish are probably of more interest in the fish market than any other line at present. The close season for brook trout begins Monday, so that after this week this line will be out of the market. During the week arrivals of brook trout were rather heavy and good trade was done. Whitefish, dore and pike are still very scarce, few lots coming forward. There is considerable activity in lake trout, supplies of which are sufficient to take care of orders received. Prices are firm on cod and haddock, which are also in good supply. Mackerel at ten cents is now being offered, while grass pike is again obtainable at 8c. In smoked fish, haddies and kippered herring are arriving in good quantities. Dealers expect to receive bloaters next week. New green cod in barrels is beginning to arrive.

TORONTO MARKETS.

GREEN FRUIT—This week sees the peach crop pretty well harvested. Now for grapes. The crop is a good average. Lemons continue high. Jamaica oranges are in and there is 25c. off the top price for Valencias. Jamaicas will probably be lower next week. The apple situation is unchanged. Fall apples are scarce but a good average crop of Winter apples is promised. A good business is passing in this fruit. The outlook is good, as the north country and the great west are and will be drawing large supplies. Cranberries are arriving. The crop is good and prices are moderate. A car of Idaho plums, known as Idaho prunes, have arrived and on account of the short crop in Canada it is expected they will be in demand for preserving.

VEGETABLES—New Brunswick Delaware potatoes are now arriving by the carload and are selling at 85c. to 95c. They are not, of course, as well ripened as they will be a little later, and are intended for immediate consumption. They are very fine stock. Sweet potatoes are plentiful and are cheaper. Onions are lower and cabbage is going by the barrel. There are no complaints of shortage in any line and demand is heavy.

THE SALMON PACK.

Particulars of the Pack in Different Districts.

There was not one of the salmon districts on the Pacific Coast in which the salmon pack did not this year fall below the record of 1905. Reports to hand from districts, in which are situated the canning factories, show that this year's pack on the whole Pacific Coast is about a million and a half cases below that of 1905, which was the by-year.

In British Columbia the pack was fairly satisfactory. At Rivers Inlet, in that district, full packs were put up. On the Fraser River there was just about one run of sockeyes, while on the Skeena River the run was equally inclined to be disappointing. Packers expected that in the Puget Sound district the pack would be a good average off-year pack, but in this they were disappointed, only about 175,000 cases being obtained. A good average pack was obtained in the Columbia River, however, and the feeling in that and the Alaska district, where the pack was also fair, is that the canning factories came out as well as could be expected, even though the fish secured did not come up to expectations in quantity.

There is expressed, on many sides, a fear that the sockeye salmon will become extinct if there is not enacted a law or laws to ensure the preservation of the Columbia River and Puget Sound fisheries.

Following will be found the estimate, in cases, of the 1906 pack of salmon on the entire Pacific Coast:

Sockeyes—Puget Sound	175,452
Sockeyes—Fraser River	185,500
Sockeyes—North British Col.	255,000
Red Alaska—Alaska	1,700,000
Cinooks—Columbia River	257,500
Total	2,572,452

CAPE COD CRANBERRY CROP.

This year the cranberry crop, Cape Cod, is reckoned to be in the neighborhood of 235,000 barrels. There are some who place the figure at 250,000 barrels, but this is thought to be over-estimating it.

An organization known as the American Cranberry Company handled the entire crop of cranberries last year, but this season the competition will be very keen, since one of the interests which was in the combine last year has broken loose and is shipping its own fruit. This concern has been offering higher prices than those who stayed in the combine, and it is said that they have, to date, shipped more cranberries than any two other shippers. As a result of the fight between the independent company and those who stuck together, there is going on a regular war of campaign literature which is having the effect of keeping the price low.

In Montreal cranberries are offering this week at $8.50 to $9 a barrel.

NOTES.

Titterington Bros., wholesale fruit merchants, at St. Catharines, Ont., have been burnt out.

Word has been received from the B. C. Packers' Association that their pack of salmon for the year exceeds the 150,000 cases formerly expected.

The Ontario Sugar Co. has commenced to harvest in its thirteen-acre plot near the factory and in another ten days the growers of this district will begin pulling. The beets tested show a percentage of sugar about equal to that of last year, though the prolonged drought has not been as conducive to sugar building as would have been warm days with cool nights and occasional rains.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

Clipping Inquiries Continues Good and Without Special Features—Flour Moving in Larger Quantities—New Boat on the Cuba-Mexico Line.

There has been practically no change in the shipping situation since last report. Business has continued, in general lines, just about normal. There is no special activity noticeable.

Butter has not been moving out any too well recently, owing to market conditions, which have not yet changed for the better. While there is some demand from the other side, there is not much, since the figures ruling here are above an export basis. At the present moment there does not seem to be any improvement in sight.

High prices in cheese continue, and consequently the amount being exported is not as large as it would be otherwise. Still, some very good shipments have been made, even at the prices asked.

Apples continue to come forward, some very fair shipments having been made during the past couple of weeks. Other fruits are falling off in shipment, since their season does not last long.

Provisions are not moving out very fast, although some of the outgoing boats have contained packages of lard and meats. More or less through goods are carried by boats leaving the port.

Flour is livening up for Fall trade. Considerable quantities have been sent out lately. Hay shipments have been fair to medium.

Grain is not yet moving out freely, but everything points to a bumper season, once grain begins to arrive.

The Elder-Dempster people have placed their new boat, the Sokoto, on the Cuba-Mexico line to replace the Angola. The boat left on her first trip September 20, carrying a general cargo. The evening before she left port a number of prominent business men, principally those interested in the shipping trade, were entertained on the new boat by the company.

The Dominion, of the Dominion line, sailed for Liverpool September 22, carrying a general cargo.

Rates this week show no change.

PEARS IN NORTH ENGLAND.

J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds and Hull, writes :

The full confidence in the packing and quality of Canadian apples shown by local importers should be of material advantage in assisting Canadian fruit-growers to cultivate a valuable export trade in pears, and numerous inquiries are being made in this direction by Leeds and Hull fruit merchants.

After having carefully gone into details as to the methods of packing adopted by foreign shippers, I find the best system in vogue is that used by French growers in the export of "French William pears," the main points of which are as follows :

(a) Forty-eight pears are packed in one box.

(b) These are put up in two layers with about two inches of wood shavings between the top and bottom layer.

(c) A sheet of doubled notepaper is placed at the top and bottom of each layer of fruit, prior to nailing down the box.

(d) An average size of this box is 15 inches long by 10 inches wide, and the thickness of the wood is about ⅜ inch.

(e) These forty-eight pears average about 12 pounds, in the box, and the price asked by the English wholesaler on the day of writing is from 3s. to 3s. 9d. (70c. to 90c.) per box.

The prospects for this trade are extremely bright, but to create a ready demand, Canadian growers should carefully note that the two most important points on the English market are the appearance of the fruit and also the weight. The fruit should be as uniform as possible and well colored.

Yorkshire fruit merchants declare that providing Canadian pears come up to the same standard that Canadian apples do, they could obtain higher prices than those at present asked for French and other foreign varieties. It is also suggested that in the interests of each individual packer, and in the interests of developing this branch of Canada's fruit trade, each box should be stencilled "Canadian Pears" in letters of not less than two inches in length.

I shall, on request, be pleased to refer any Canadian growers to Leeds and Hull firms who are making inquiries for this fruit at the present time.

INCREASING BANANA FIELDS.

United Fruit Co's Agreement With Dutch Guiana.

The United Fruit Co., of Boston, who control the banana business in America, are now extending the production of the fruit to Dutch Guiana. They have contracted with the Government of the colony for the purchase and transportation of the bananas and the planters have bound themselves to start planting on 2,470 acres and to increase within three years to 7,410 acres. For a minimum of 20,000 bunches a boat will make fortnightly calls. The needed labor is to be imported from India.

The prices to be paid for bananas in American currency are fixed as follows : (a) For a bunch of nine hands, 35 cents during March, April, May, June, November and December, and 20 cents during the other months. (b) For bunches of eight hands, 23 cents during March, April, May, June, November and December, and 13 cents during other months. After the first two years, for a bunch of nine hands, 35 cents in March, April, May and June ; 30 cents in November and December, and 20 cents in other months ; bunch of eight hands, 23 cents in March, April, May and June : 20 cents in November and December, and 13 cents in other months ; bunch of seven hands, 17 cents in March, April, May, June, November and December. In other months they are not bought at all. Thirty-six hours after arrival of steamers will be given to planters to cut and transport the bananas.

Attempts are now being made to turn the sardine, which is caught in such numbers along the coast of Japan that the surplus catch is used for manure, to some profitable use. Canning establishments have been started at various places notably Chiba and Noyago, with a view to ascertaining whether the Japanese product cannot in far eastern and American markets at least compete with the Mediterranean product. The chief drawback at present is that the olive tree is not cultivated by the Japanese and at the same time the customs levies a duty on imported oil. This could easily be overcome by the Government allowing a rebate to canning establishments. There is said not to be much to choose in the matter of taste and quality between the Japan and European product.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

The Grocer and His Local Paper—Directly Mail Advertising—Its Possibilities —Suggestions for an Advertising Letter—The Value of Clarity.

I have always thought that a series of mail ads would prove a profitable means of advertising for the grocer.

Why, in the world, shouldn't it?

Nearly every grocer advertises in his local paper.

A grocer who failed to use his local paper would be considered a kind of rarity, if he were considered at all.

So the grocer who puts his ad in his newspaper simply "follows suit" and does just what every other grocer in his town does.

For that very reason he fails to make much of a noise.

Everybody expects to see every grocer in town in the local paper.

It's nothing remarkable.

It's a regular thing.

If the grocer wants to attract special attention to himself, he must do something different from his competitors.

He might appear in his store, wearing his nightie.

That would certainly attract extra attention.

But it might be apt to prove an attraction of the wrong sort.

He might put on his Sunday clothes and go round town and have a personal talk with every family in his town.

That would also attract special attention.

If he could do it often enough and long enough, he might get a whole lot of patronage in six months or a year, providing his people didn't get to consider him a bore and resent his calls.

There is a way to accomplish just about the same thing, without necessitating his running his legs off and neglecting his business, and without arousing the resentment of anybody.

That way is by direct-by-mail-advertising.

Direct-by-mail-advertising usually consists of a series of form letters, booklets, folders, post cards, and other mailable pieces of advertising.

But if the grocer feels that he cannot risk the expense of a complete series, like this, let him put his whole faith in form letters.

Such letters would cost about $3 per thousand, printed on his own letter heads.

They are printed in imitation type, and each person's name can be filled in, at the top, so that the letter cannot be told from a genuine, personal typewritten letter.

The filling in of these names would cost $2.50 per thousand extra.

I will cite two cases where I sent out such letters, which will serve to give some idea of the results to be expected:

One lunch room proprietor, in Detroit, used these letters for a year, and increased his business from $30 in the month of May to $300 in the corresponding month of May, the year after.

I sent out only 100 such letters for a furniture trimmings house, in Detroit, and it secured 60 orders from the 100 letters, some of the orders amounting to more than $300 each.

These are exceptional cases, I admit. But I can say that I do not know of a case where these letters have been used properly, that didn't prove profitable.

The grocer could use them because they are something absolutely new in the grocery line.

They will gather in trade of themselves.

They will popularize the grocer's name and store.

They will attract attention to his regular newspaper advertising.

They will take the place of hand bills.

They can be used to announce timely bargains.

They are in the nature of personal solicitation and appeal to folks more forcibly than any other kind of advertising the grocer could indulge in.

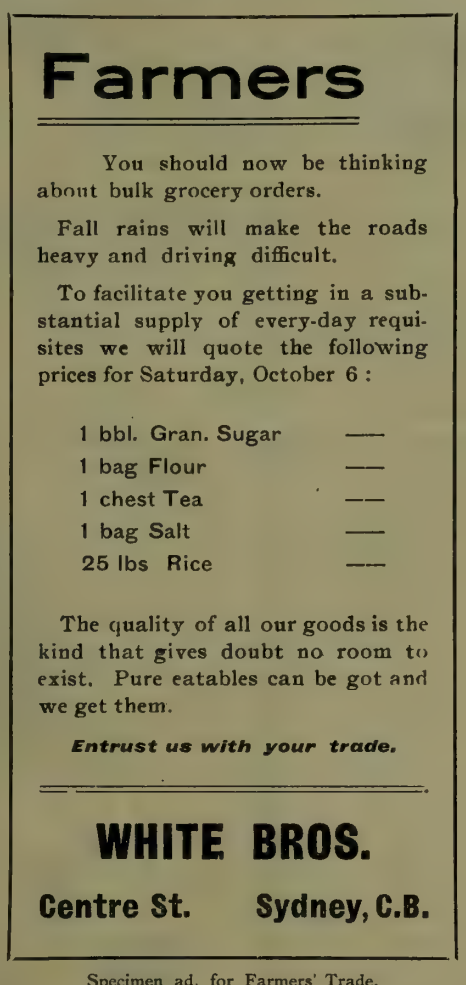
Why not try some of this kind of advertising?

A service consisting of 1,000 letters, sent one a month, for, say, three months would cost about $25.

It's the surest kind of a gamble I can conceive of.

The fact is, I don't see how a grocer can afford to neglect this result-bringing, name-making, attention-compelling sort of advertising.

Isn't it worth a trial, even if you are skeptical?—Selected.



Farmers
You should now be thinking about bulk grocery orders.
Fall rains will make the roads heavy and driving difficult.
To facilitate you getting in a substantial supply of every-day requisites we will quote the following prices for Saturday, October 6:
1 bbl. Gran. Sugar ——
1 bag Flour ——
1 chest Tea ——
1 bag Salt ——
25 lbs Rice ——
The quality of all our goods is the kind that gives doubt no room to exist. Pure eatables can be got and we get them.

Specimen ad. for Farmers' Trade.

WHAT THE FORM LETTER IS.

In the above extract the writer lays stress on the efficacy of the form letter for retail advertising.

As some grocers may not be familiar with the actual make-up of such a letter and its chief function a few particulars can be stated here.

In character the letters should be a sort of business serial.

That is, each month you should state certain facts either about new arrivals of goods or special sales, but at the same time a certain amount of news should be held back for next time.

The housewife then comes to regard the letter as a monthly guide — perhaps looks for its arrival.

A test can be made along this line by discontinuing the issue of the letters for, say, two months.

If customers ask you what happened the monthly letters, that form of advertising made some impression.

Should you think of starting the "letter" campaign, select one of your clerks to do duty and have him submit the stuff monthly.

A. A. B.

THE BID FOR FARMERS' BULK TRADE.

Grocers who are so situated that they can do an extensive trade with farmers should now be alive to Fall opportunities.

The farmers may have been buying in drib-drabs lately, but they will about this time be giving consideration to the bulk purchase question.

While farmers are cogitating an appropriate grocery ad in the weekly paper makes an extra strong appeal.

It coincides exactly with what is in the farmers' minds, and while this fact may not be an absolute guarantee of business, it is the next thing to it.

To draw the trade your way you can quote drawing prices.

This doesn't mean cutting. You can afford to sell cheaper by the original package than when you break bulk. You should know what the difference is as nearly as possible. Always remember that to be doing good business you must sell at a profit over and above the cost of doing business.

CLARITY.

The prime feature of good advertising is "clarity." "Clarity" is the outlining of a proposition in such a way that a reader has a full and complete comprehension of it in the shortest possible space of time and with the littlest effort.

As an example, let me lay out a scheme for advertising a new form of wafer, which, of course, would most properly take place in a grocery or a confectionery store. In the open floor, in the most conspicuous part of the store, place a small show case just large enough to hold a tasty dish, two wafer cartons and a placard. Work a good color effect in painting and decorating the case so as to attract instant attention and hold interest long enough to bring home to the mind of the interested one the message to be conveyed. On the plate put the contents of one box of wafers, lay the empty carton on one side and the full one on the other, and are selling better than ever.

Why don't you share in the prosperity?

Why don't you please your particular customers?

Place a trial order for

Southwell's Jams and Marmalades

and know how good these goods are.

There every observer has a clear conception of what he is buying, what it costs, how it looks and the quantity — concerning which particulars every buyer seeks to satisfy himself. And if a person would buy under any circumstances he would under these.

Wafers are chosen here only to set forth how "clarity" may be recognized. That quality of advertising, however, may be magnified in innumerable ways by keeping in mind that a prospective buyer wants to know quantity, price, appearance, etc., of an article to be purchased. It may be applied to any business and any article. And when an advertiser has mastered this feature — "clarity"—he is very nearly a master advertiser.—Brains.

WITH THE TRADE IN OTTAWA

Death of A. G. Warnock, Valued Member of the Grocers' Association—Washday at the Capital—Grocers' Association Arranging for Instructive Lectures.

Ottawa, Sept. 25, 1906.

During the past week nothing of importance appears to have developed as far as trade is concerned. A fair amount of business has been done with both wholesalers and retailers.

Another raise in the price of cheese took place on the local board following up the prices paid on some other boards through the province. On the city market, potatoes are a little higher in price, 90c. to 95c. being about as low as dealers can buy now. Butter keeps about the same price with supply equal to the demand. Dairy, 21c. to 22c.; creamery prints, 25 1-2c.; solids, 24 1-2c. There has been a large sale of vinegar for pickling this season. A plentiful supply of gherkins and small onions were to be had compared with other years. Many people took advantage of it to put up their own goods. As vinegar is a very profitable line to the grocer, this business is appreciated.

At the Fruit Exchange receipts of peaches and grapes have been steady, with a fair supply daily. The demand has been extra good and prices are a little higher. No. 1 peaches, 70c. to 80c.; No. 2, 50c. to 65c. in 11 quarts, and 45c. to 50c. in 6 quarts. Grapes, Concord and Niagaras, 22c. to 25c. Plums and gages are much higher than last week and cannot be bought less than 90c. to $1. Apples are about the same, $2.75 to $3 for No. 1, and $1.75 to $2 for No. 2. Lemons are very high in price; new stock is on the market now and sells $7 to $8 a box.

Still another loss to the grocery trade took place when A. G. Warnock, of Bond street, died Wednesday morning, the 19th inst. This makes the third death amongst grocers during the last month. Mr. Warnock was very popular and well acquainted with his confreres in business. For years he was a partner in the firm of Martin & Warnock, millers, of this city. He entered the grocery business a little over a year ago and had established a nice trade in that time. He will be greatly missed by the Grocers' Association, of which he was a valued member.

The vegetable growers of this district have formed themselves into an association and at a recent meeting a committee was appointed to wait on the Grocers' Association seeking their assistance for better regulations in the management of our city market. They also have arranged for an address on the most profitable methods of handling their products by an expert from the Department of Agriculture of Ontario.

It has been decided by the Board of Health that in future all milk tests shall be made public as soon as completed.

* * *

Messrs. J. H. Grigg, the Surprise Soap man, J. H. Tuthill, of the Eclipse Soap Co., and F. H. Cockburn, Comfort Soap, were in the city at one time last week. Someone said it was washday.

The Scannell Bros. & Croser Co., Limited, grocers, of Sussex street, have gone into liquidation since meeting with considerable loss by fire recently, as this firm was the leading price cutters of the city they have not received as much sympathy as they might otherwise have had from the trade in general.

The Grocers' Association meet this week when a number of important matters will come up. The executive are arranging for a series of instruction lectures and entertainment for the coming Winter meetings.

John Everett, of Christie, Brown & Co., made his regular call last week.

A small girl recently entered a grocer's shop in the suburbs of Whitechapel and said to the shopman in a shrill, piping voice, "Please, sir, I wants 'arf a pound of butter and a penn'orth of cheese, and muvver ses she will send a shilling in when farver comes home."

"All right," replied the man.

"But," continued the child, "muvver wants the change, 'cos she 'as got to put a penny in the gas meter."—Weekly Telegraph.

Points to Consider

1. What the biscuits are made of.

WITH THE TRADE IN LONDON, ONT.

Merchants Inconvenienced by the Teamsters Strike and Glad it is Over—Biscuit Makers Short of Help—Value of the Exhibition to the Retailer

London, Sept. 18, 1906.

The wholesale grocers of London were in a state of anxiety for a few days last week when the railway teamsters of this city went on strike. The agitation for increased pay began with the employes of the Shedden Co., there being about 25 teamsters working for the Grand Trunk cartage company, whose demands of a year ago had been ignored. Last week they consulted with the teamsters of the C.P.R., Michigan Central and Pere Marquette railways and the decision to go on strike was unanimous. The men asked $45 a month for a ten-hour day and extra pay for overtime. Just 24 hours was given the railways and when the demands were not met the men went on strike. Though many of the wholesale houses sympathized with the men they were put to considerable inconvenience while the strike lasted. Fortunately in less than two days the men's requests were granted and the teaming went on.

The biscuit factories here are short of labor, both the McCormick Manufacturing Co. and D. S. Perrin & Co. advertising for girls to pack biscuits. The busy season has commenced and the biscuit makers are having their usual trouble getting sufficient hands to handle the work.

Coote & McMillan's new grocery store at the corner of Richmond and Maple streets had an experience last week that made things interesting for those inside the store. A horse attached to D. S. Perrin & Co.'s delivery wagon ran away and jumped through the plate glass window of the grocery store and over a show case. Two women who were in the store had a narrow escape from being hurt. Besides breaking a glass seven by ten feet the horse damaged other things in its mad career. It was finally calmed down and led out by way of the door.

The retail grocers are divided in opinion as to the value of the Western Fair for their business. Most of them benefit to some extent, but there are only a few who do a large hotel trade and who catch transient fruit trade. These reaped richly, for the Western Fair was attended by a larger crowd this year than ever before.

London market has been exceptionally good the past week. Fruit, vegetables, and dairy produce have all been well supplied, but the demand has been proportionately large and the result is that firm prices are being obtained.

A NEW TEA FIRM.

George E. Leger and A. H. Casavant have broken into the wholesale tea and coffee business under the name of the Canada Direct Tea Trading Company, with offices at 11 St. Sacrament street, Montreal. Both gentlemen were formerly with Kearney Bros., St. Peter street, Mr. Leger having been with them between thirteen and fourteen years. Mr. Casavant will represent the new firm on the road, while Mr. Leger will look after the local trade.

I Know What Other Grocers Think of My Methods: Let Me Have Your Opinion

When I do business with grocers (and that is quite often) my methods always come in for praise. I have become known as a sort of "cigar staunch man."

The chaps behind the grocery counter look to me for advice on their cigar troubles, and when they follow my advice they have no more troubles.

Because I knew there were a number of grocers who never sold cigars and therefore could not be appealed to by an ordinary proposition I instituted my remarkable "500" offer.

REVOLUTION IN TOBACCO INDUSTRY.

Returned Tobacco Buyer Tells of Conditions in Cuba.

"You have no idea," said D. Granda, of F. & J. Granda, cigar manufacturers, Montreal, "of the present situation in Cuba. In all my experience as a buyer of tobacco I never saw such a state of affairs. There seems to be no sense in the way business is being done. I was interested in tobacco, and when I tell you that I did all my buying for next year in twenty-four hours, you will have some idea of the situation. Ordinarily it takes a buyer a week or ten days, at least, to make his purchases. This year, however, the market was in such a condition when I was there that I was able to make my purchases in a very short time. There is absolutely no price to go by at present in buying tobacco. In former years we had a standard, and the price was either above or below that level. This year, however, it is just a case of pay what is asked of you or leave the goods. Everything in tobacco is away up. Some lines are 150 per cent. higher than last year. The crop, as you may know, was only 40 per cent. this season, and I found that the tobacco obtainable was not at all up to the usual good quality. But buyers had to take what was offered or nothing. You will see the result when the new tobacco arrives and begins to be used.

"If this revolution is not settled pretty soon," said Mr. Granda, "next year we will have practically nothing in the way of a Cuban tobacco crop. August is seeding time and from about the end of the present month to the end of October is the replanting season. You will easily understand that with conditions such as they now are there will be nobody to attend to this business, and consequently the tobacco will be neglected. All the natives are interested in the revolution. Those who are not with the rebels are with the Government, so there you are. From this you will see that our only salvation lies in the settlement of the troubles now going on in this little island of Cuba."

A WINNIPEG GROCER EAST.

W. H. Stone Seeing Ontario and Quebec After Twenty Years.

W. H. Stone, of Winnipeg, is one of the large grocers of the western metropolis. He is an Englishman, learned his trade in England by the good old thorough way of apprenticeship, and came to Canada about 25 years ago. He knew where he wanted to get to and without a stop off anywhere made straight for Winnipeg. There he has built up a big business, and this Summer, feeling a little below par physically, decided to take a rest and see something of Eastern Canada.

Though still a young man Mr. Stone can afford to relax his energy for a season, and in his nephew, now in the business, he has a very capable man to shoulder the management during his absence. His trip took him as far east as Montreal, and he made more or less prolonged visits in Ottawa, Belleville, Toronto and other centres. Mrs. Stone is with him and their traveling when possible was by water. When seen in Toronto last week, where he is visiting friends, Mr. Stone had quite recovered his wonted exuberant health.

The stranger would not guess Mr. Stone's place of residence. In his manner there is nothing of the bursting energy of the west, nor in his talk. He is a quiet man, diffident even, yet decisive, evidently self-reliant and with a strong reserve of energy and progressive force. Now, just a few hints as to business methods. His staff consists of ten or twelve clerks, men. He employs no boys. He tried them more than once. One man has special care of the windows, another of the cleanliness of the store and arrangement of the stock. One man has charge of the call order trade. In a growing city like Winnipeg there is a good deal of moving about and the call order system is one of the ways of retaining trade. This man often carries with him samples of new goods.

Mr. Stone takes stock every February. He thinks that better than the first of the year. It gives the staff a chance to get the stock into order after the disarrangement consequent upon the holiday rush. It gives the bookkeeper time to get in quite a number of accounts.

Mr. Stone was greatly pleased with Eastern Canada, but the west for him; he was glad of his approaching return to Winnipeg.

MOVED TO LARGER QUARTERS.

J. M. Brayley & Co., formerly occupying premises on Bonsecours street, are now located at 13, 15, 17 and 19 St. Therese street, Montreal. The old quarters were only occupied temporarily, larger space than there available being required to take care of the company's increasing business.

The Seventh in a Series of Articles on a Subject of Interest to Every Retailer.

PURCHASE INVOICES.

IF it is desired to keep account of goods purchased for different departments of a store, for instance a general store, a book (B) may be kept extending the amount of purchase for each department into a column for this purpose, the total of which is posted in one amount at the end of the month to the debit of merchandise account, and the party from whom the goods were purchased is credited (see Fig. A). When the account is paid a notation to this effect is made in the column for the purpose, the voucher is attached to the invoices and filed for future reference.

To insure the saving of all cash discounts, if the retailer is in a position to take advantage of discounts allowed for short terms, the creditors should be notified to make drafts when the account becomes due. In this way the dealer is free from any anxiety in this regard.

If it is convenient to pay by draft, or if the retailer prefers to pay by cheque or money order, the statements may be arranged according to "due dates" and settlements made accordingly.

Having now covered the ground fairly well so far as recording the daily transactions of the merchant, it is proposed to devote the next three articles to closing the books, introducing the results of the business for a period, together with the trading account, profit and loss account, and statement of the condition of the business at the present time.

Results of the Business.

We will suppose that during the period merchandise has been bought to the amount of $15,000 and goods have been sold to the amount of $18,000, and that the value of the stock on hand at present, taken at cost price, is $4,500. The merchandise account will then appear as in Fig. B.

Rule.—Add to the stock on hand when commencing business, the purchases for the period less any allowances; deduct the total thus obtained from the total of the sales for the period, less any allowances, plus the stock on hand at the end of the time.

The difference thus obtained will be the gross profit on the business done outside of any expenses. (The trading account will be shown later.)

We will suppose that the cash on hand, when closing the books, amounts to $50.50, which would be the amount of the debit of "cash" accounts in the ledger.

During the period various articles, such as hammers, harness, etc., also a wagon, to the amount of $150, have been added to the general equipment, making the total amount at the debit of this account now $750.

No additions have been made to the real estate so that this account stands as formerly with a debit of $3,000.

The expense for the period has been $2,550, and there

The notes on hand not due at commencing business all being paid. The account would now appear as follows:—

As the various notes are paid amounts will be posted from the cash book to the credit of bills receiveable account until eventually all notes are paid, when the account will balance. At the end of the period we find that the following customers still owe the amounts set opposite their names respectively, viz :—

is at present on hand the following: Coal, $20; wood, $20; also insurance paid in advance, $100. There is also due, but not yet paid, taxes amounting to $30.

The expense account would now appear as in Fig. C.

The amount due by us on account of expenses not yet paid is brought down as a liability, and the amount which represents stock of coal, etc., or items prepaid, is brought down as an asset.

Referring to the expense account (Figure C) last chapter it will be noticed that the items prepaid, or stock on hand which has originally been charged, are credited to account and brought down as a debit in the next year's business; similarly, the due and unpaid items are debited to the account and brought down as a credit. In the first instance the amount being credited reduced the expenditure for the year and when brought down is an asset, and in the second instance the amount being debited increases the expenditure and when brought down is a liability.

Bills Receivable account has been added to as follows :—

Also, we owe the following creditors :—

T. Thomas $100.00
S. Reter 30.00
R. Ramsay 15.00

In addition purchases have been made from

T. Little $100.00
J. Jackson 27.50

The amount owing the bank under discount has been reduced from $2,000.00 to $1,800.00.

Bills payable account shows that all notes outstanding have been provided for when due and only one acceptance has been given which is not yet due, viz :—T. B. Scott, $200.00, due Dec. 15, '06.

The bills payable account will appear in the same manner as bills receivable account in above cut with the exception that the payments will be recorded on the debit side and the note not yet due will appear as a liability on the credit side.

When this acceptance has been paid, bills payable account will be charged in the cash book and the amount posted to the debit of bills payable account in the ledger.

OUTDOOR CABINET ESPECIALLY FOR GASOLENE. CUT No. 10.

THE PICKLE HABIT

is a good habit, if the pickle is a good pickle. Maconochie's pickles are good pickles—none better. Pickles are not a necessity of life, but in the 20th century we live beyond the bare necessaries and to be up-to-date the grocer caters more to the jaded, than the robust, appetite, must supply the "appetiser" as well as the filler.

The successful grocer is selling Maconochie's pickles not only because they are good, but also because they are profitable, show the surest profit because they never show a loss. Quality and profit should be inseparable to the grocer seeking success, and once he begins to sell Maconochie's pickles, success soon knocks at his door.

Vegetables gathered in the sunny gardens of Kent, selected for crispness and freshness; Vinegar as pure as the dew on the daisy at dawn, delicious enough to fool Bacchus himself—these combined and scrupulous care and cleanliness in preparation, all go to make Maconochie's pickles what they are—could you have better?

No matter how good a fellow he is, listen not to the plausible argument of the traveller who wants to substitute a "just as good." Business is business, just insist and you can get Maconochie's Pickles or Marmalade, Vinegar, Herrings, Sauces or any of our lines, all of which are strictly as good as can be produced, moderate priced and profitable.

Always as Good as New

RISING SUN Stove Polish is a good thing for the dealer to push to the front; first, because it gives the most durable lustre of any Stove Polish ever made and pleases the customer, and second, because it does not deteriorate with heat or cold, age or climate, and is always as good as the day it was made. You are justified in pushing it, as thousands of store-keepers are doing all over the world.
